The FORESTER'S DAUGHTER

A ROMANCE OF THE BEAR TOOTH RANGE

By HAMLIN GARLAND

Copyright, 1914, by Hamlin Garland

Lying so, feeling the magic of the sun, hearing the music of the water and watching the girl, he regained a serener mood, and when she came back with his food he thanked her for it with a glance before which her eyes fell. "I don't see why you are so kind to me. I really believe you like to do things for me." Her head drooped to hide her face, and he went on: "Why do you care for me? Tell me!"

"I don't know," she murmured. Then she added, with a flash of bravery. "But I do."

"What a mystery it all is! You turn from a splendid fellow like Landon to a 'skate' like me. Landon worships you—you know that—don't you?"

"I know—he"— she ended, vaguely distressed.

"Did he ask you to marry him?"

"Yes."

"Why didn't you? He's just the mate for you. He's a man of high character and education." She made no answer to this and he went on: "[illegible] I'm not worth your care—truly, I'm not. I resented your engagement to Belden, for he was a brute, but Landon is different. He thinks the world of you. He'll go high in the service. I've never done anything in the world—I never shall. It will be better for you if I go—tomorrow."

She took his hand and pressed it to her cheek, then, putting her arm about his neck, drew him to her bosom and kissed him passionately. "You break my heart when you talk like that," she protested, with tears. "You mustn't say such gloomy things—I won't let you give up. You shall come right home with me, and I will nurse you till you are well. It was all my fault."

"I will not have it go that way," he said. "I've brought you only care and unhappiness thus far. I'm an alien—my ways are not your ways."

"I can change," she answered. "I hate my ways, and I like yours."

As they argued she felt no shame, and he voiced no resentment. She knew his mood. She understood his doubt, his depression. She pleaded as a man might have done, ready to prove her love, eager to restore his self respect, while he remained both bitter and sadly contemptuous.

A cow hand riding up the trail greeted Berrie respectfully, but a cynical smile broke out on his lips as he passed on. Another witness; another gossip.

She did not care. She had no further concern of the valley's comment. Her life's happiness hung on the drooping eyelashes of this wounded boy, and to win him back to cheerful acceptance of life was her only concern.

"I've never had any motives," he confessed. "I've always done what pleased me at the moment—or because it was easier to do as others were doing. I went to college that way. Truth is, I never had any surplus vitality, and my father never demanded anything of me. I haven't any motives now. A few days ago I was interested in forestry. At this time it all seems futile. What's the use of my trying to live?"

CHAPTER XIV.

The Gossips Awake.

BERRIE was frightened for Wayland, and as she thought of the long ride still before them she wrung her hands. "Oh, what shall I do? What shall I do?" she moaned.

Instantly smitten into shame, into manlier mood, he said: "Don't worry [illegible] me. Please don't. I can ride. I'm feeling better. You must not weaken. Please forgive my selfish complaints. I'm done! You'll never hear it again. Come! Let us go on. I can ride."

"If we can reach Miller's ranch"—

"I can ride to your ranch!" he declared, and rose with such new found resolution that she stared at him in wonder.

He was able to smile. "I've had my little crying spell. I've relieved my heart of its load. I didn't mean to agonize you. It was only a slump." He put his hand to his head. "I must be a comical figure."

His sudden reversal to cheer was a little alarming to her, but at length she perceived that he had in truth mastered his depression, and, bringing up the horses, she saddled them and helped him to mount. "If you get tired or feel worse tell me, and we'll go into camp," she urged as they were about to start.

"You keep going till I give the sign," he replied, and his voice was so firm and clear that her own sunny smile came back. "I don't know what to make of you," she said. "I reckon you must be a poet."

It was dark when they reached the village, but Wayland declared his ability to go on, although his wounded head was throbbing with fever and he was clinging to the pommel of his saddle; so Berrie rode on.

Mrs. McFarlane, hearing the horses on the bridge, was at the door and received her daughter with wondering question, while the stable hands, quick to detect an injured man, hurried to lift Norcross down from his saddle.

"What's the matter?" repeated Mrs. McFarlane.

"He fell and struck his head on a stone," Berea hastily explained. "Take the horses, boys! Mother and I will look out for Mr. Norcross."

The men obeyed her and fell back, but they were consumed with curiosity, and their glances irritated the girl. "Slip the packs at once," she insisted.

With instant sympathy her mother came to her aid in supporting the wounded, weary youth indoors, and as he stretched out on the couch in the sitting room he remarked with a faint, ironic smile, "This beats any bed of balsam boughs."

"Where's your father?" asked Mrs. McFarlane of her daughter.

"He's over on the Ptarmigan. I've a powerful lot to tell you, mother, but not now; we must look after Wayland. He's nearly done up, and so am I."

Mrs. McFarlane winced a little at her daughter's use of Norcross' first name, but she said nothing further at the moment, although she watched Berrie closely while she took off Wayland's shoes and stockings and rubbed his icy feet. "Get him something hot as quick as you can!" she commanded, and Mrs. McFarlane obeyed without a word.

Gradually the tremor passed out of his limbs and a delicious sense of warmth, of safety, stole over him, and he closed his eyes in the comfort of her presence and care. "Rigorous business this life of the pioneer," he said with mocking inflection. "I think I prefer a place in the lumber trust."

"Don't talk," she said. Then, with a rush of tender remorse: "Why didn't you tell me [illegible] that you were so tired. We could have stopped at the Springs."

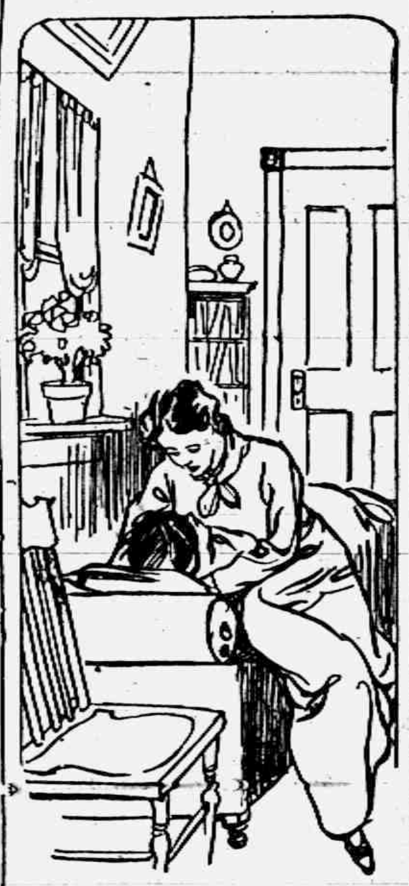
"I didn't know how tired I was till I got here. Gee," he said boyishly, "that doorknob at the back of my head is redhot! You're good to me," he added humbly.

She hated to have him resume that tone of self depreciation, and, kneeling to him, she kissed his cheek and laid her head beside his. "You're splendid," she insisted. "Nobody could be braver, but you should have told me you were exhausted. You fooled me with your cheerful answers."

He accepted her loving praise, her clasping arms, as a part of the rescue from the darkness and pain of the long ride, careless of what it might bring to him in the future. He ate his toast and drank his coffee and permitted the women to lead him to his room, and then being alone he crept into his bed and fell instantly asleep.

Berrie and her mother went back to the sitting room, and Mrs. McFarlane closed the door behind them. "Now tell me all about it," she said in the tone of one not to be denied.

The story went along very smoothly till the girl came to the second night in camp beside the lake. There her voice faltered, and the reflective look in the mother's eyes deepened as she learned that her daughter had shared her tent with the young man. "It was the only thing to do, mother," Berrie bravely said. "It was cold and wet outside, and you know he isn't very strong, and his teeth were chattering he was so chilled. I know it sounds strange down here, but up there in the woods in the storm what I did seemed right and natural. You know what I mean, don't you?"



"You're splendid," she insisted. "Nobody could be braver."

"Yes, I understand. I don't blame you—only—if others should hear of it"—

"But they won't. No one knows of our being alone there except Tony and father."

"Are you sure? Doesn't Mrs. Belden know?"

"I don't think so—not yet."

Mrs. McFarlane's nervousness grew. "I wish you hadn't gone on this trip. If the Beldens find out you were alone with Mr. Norcross they'll make much of it. It will give them a chance at your father." Her mind turned upon another point. "When did Mr. Norcross get his fall?"

"On the way back." Here Berrie hesitated again. "I don't like to tell you, mother, but he didn't fall; Cliff jumped him and tried to kill him."

The mother doubted her ears. "Cliff did? How did he happen to meet you?"

Berrie was quick to answer. "I don't know how he found out we were on the trail. I suppose the old lady phoned him. Anyhow, while we were camped for noon yesterday"—her face flamed again at thought of that tender, beautiful moment when they were resting on the grass—"while we were at our lunch he came tearing down the hill on that big bay horse of his and took a flying jump at Wayland. As Wayland went down he struck his head on a stone. I thought he was dead, and I was paralyzed for a second. Then I flew at Cliff and just about choked the life out of him. I'd have ended him right there if he hadn't let go."

Mrs. McFarlane, looking upon her daughter in amazement, saw on her face the shadow of the deadly rage which had burned in her heart as she clinched young Belden's throat.

"What then? What happened then?"

"When did this take place?"

"Yesterday about 2. Of course Wayland couldn't ride, he was so dizzy and kind o' confused, and so I went into camp right there at timber line. Along about sunset Nash came riding up from this side and insisted on staying to help me, so I let him."

Mrs. McFarlane's tense attitude relaxed. "Nash is not the kind that tattles. I'm glad he turned up."

"And this morning I saddled and came down."

"Did Nash go on?"

"Yes. Daddy was waiting for him, so I let him go along."

"It's all sad business," groaned Mrs. McFarlane, "and I can see you're keeping something back. How did Cliff happen to know just where you were, and what started you back without your father?"

For the first time Berrie showed signs of weakness and distress. "Why, you see, Alec Belden and Mr. Moore were over there to look at some timber, and old Marm Belden and that Moore girl went along. I suppose they sent word to Cliff, and I presume that Moore girl put him on our trail. Leastwise that's the way I figure it out. That's the worst of the whole business." She admitted this with darkened brow. "Mrs. Belden's tongue is hung in the middle and loose at both ends—and that Moore girl is spiteful mean." She could not keep the contempt out of her voice.

"Oh, I wish you hadn't gone!" exclaimed the worried mother.

"It can't be helped now, and it hasn't done me any real harm. It's all in the day's work anyhow. I've always gone with daddy before, and this trip isn't going to spoil me. The boys all know me, and they will treat me fair."

"Yes, but Mr. Norcross is an outsider, a city man. They will all think evil of him on that account."

"I know. That's what troubles me. No one will know how fine and considerate he was. Mother, I've never known any one like him. He's a poet! I don't care what people say of me if only they will be just to him. They've got to treat him right," she added firmly.

"Did he speak to you—are you engaged?"

Her head drooped. "Not really engaged, mother, but he told me how much he liked me, and—it's all right, mother, I know it is. I'm not fine enough for him, but I'm going to try to change my ways so he won't be ashamed of me."

Mrs. McFarlane's face cleared. "He surely is a fine young fellow and can be trusted to do the right thing. Well, we might as well go to bed. We can't settle anything till your father gets home," she said.

Wayland rose next morning free from dizziness and almost free from pain, and when he came out of his room his expression was cheerful. "I feel as if I'd slept a week, and I'm hungry. I don't know why I should be, but I am."

Mrs. McFarlane met him with something very intimate, something almost maternal in her look, but her words were as few and as restrained as ever. He divined that she had been talking with Berrie and that a fairly clear understanding of the situation had been reached. That this understanding involved him closely he was aware, but nothing in his manner acknowledged it.

She did not ask any questions, believing that sooner or later the whole story must come out. The fact that Siena Moore and Mrs. Belden knew that Berrie had started back on Thursday with young Norcross made it easy for the villagers to discover that she had not reached the ranch till Saturday. "What could Joe have been thinking of to allow them to go?" she said. "Mr. Nash's presence in the camp must be made known, but then there is Clifford's assault upon Mr. Norcross. Can that be kept secret too?" And so while the young people chatted the troubled mother waited in fear, knowing that in a day or two the countryside would be aflame with accusation.

A long day's rest, a second night's sleep, set Wayland on his feet. He came to breakfast quite gay. "Barring the hickory nut on the back of my head," he explained, "I'm feeling fine, almost ready for another expedition. I may make a ranger yet."

Berrie, though equally gay, was not so sure of his ability to return to work. "I reckon you'd better go easy till daddy gets back, but if you feel like it we'll ride up to the postoffice this afternoon."

"I want to start right in to learn to throw that hitch, and I'm going to practice with an ax till I can strike twice in the same place. This trip was an eye opener. Great man I'd be in a windfall, wouldn't I?"

He was persuaded to remain very quiet for another day, and part of it was spent in conversation with Mrs. McFarlane, whom he liked very much, and an hour or more in writing a long letter wherein he announced to his father his intention of going into the forest service. "I've got to build up a constitution," he said, "and I don't know of a better place to do it in. Besides, I'm beginning to be interested in the scheme. I like the supervisor. I'm living in his house at the present time, and I'm feeling contented and happy, so don't worry about me."

He was indeed quite comfortable, save when he realized that Mrs. McFarlane was taking altogether too much for granted in their relationship. It was delightful to be so watched over, so waited upon, so instructed. "But where is it all leading me?" he continued to ask himself, and still that wall of reserve troubled and saddened Berrie.

On the fourth morning the phone rang, and the squawking voice of Mrs. Belden came over the wire—"I wanted to know if Berrie and her feller got home all right?"

"Yes, they arrived safely."

The old woman chuckled. "Last I see of Cliff he was hot on their trail—looked like he expected to take a hand in that expedition. Did he overtake 'em?"

"I don't hear very well. Where are you?"

"I'm at the Scott ranch. We're coming round 'the horn' today."

"Where is the supervisor?"

"He headed across yesterday. Say, Cliff was mad as a hornet when he started. I'd like to know what happened"—

Mrs. McFarlane hung up the receiver. The old woman's nasty chuckle was intolerable, but in silencing the phone Mrs. McFarlane was perfectly aware that she was not silencing the gossip; on the contrary, she was certain that the Beldens would leave a trail of poisonous comment from the Ptarmigan to Bear Tooth. It was all sweet material for them.

Berrie wanted to know who was speaking, and Mrs. McFarlane replied, "Mrs. Belden wanted to know if you got through all right."

"She said something else, something to heat you up," persisted the girl, who perceived her mother's agitation. "What did she say—something about me—and Cliff?"

The mother did not answer, for Wayland entered the room at the moment, but Berrie knew that traducers were already busy with her affairs. "I don't care anything about old lady Belden," she said later, "but I hate to have that Moore girl telling lies about me."

AVOID SILO ACCIDENTS.

With the opening of the silo filling season there will be frequent reports of serious and fatal accidents. The manufacturers of silage cutters have greatly improved their construction in recent years, and most accidents nowadays are the result of carelessness. Practically all of them can be avoided by the exercise of reasonable care. In addition to the exercise of common sense at the feeding end of the machine, here are some things that the inexperienced man should do:

Take care that corn is never put into the machine until the motion is up to full speed.

In stopping be careful not to shut off the power until the elevator is empty. If the elevator is not empty the cut material will fall back and lodge in the fans. Then when the machine is started again the cut corn jams the fans, and as a result they are bent or broken.

For the Children

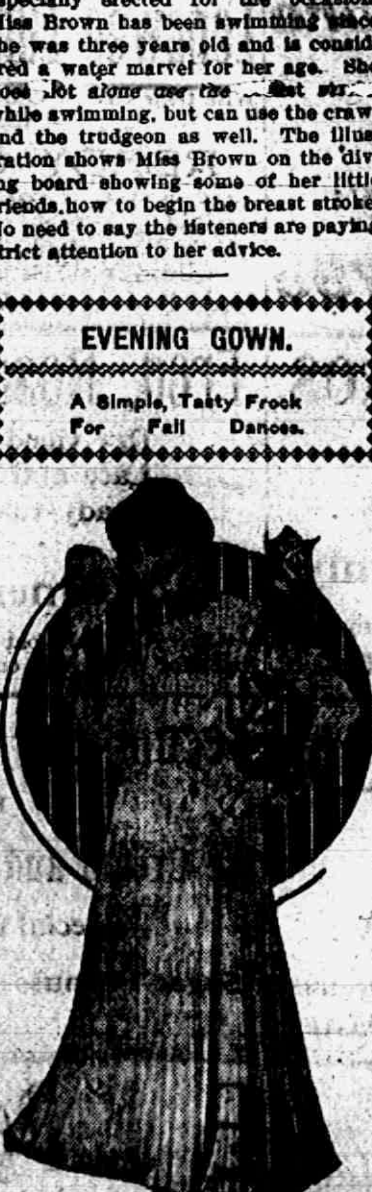
One of the features at a recent water carnival held at College Point, N. Y., was the swimming feats of Miss Katherine Brown, the five-year-old daughter of Commodore Al Brown, the champion long distance swimmer of the world. The little tot not alone swam a hundred yards in fast time, but performed some remarkable diving stunts from a thirty-five foot stand especially erected for the occasion. Miss Brown has been swimming since she was three years old and is considered a water marvel for her age. She does not alone use the [illegible] stroke while swimming, but can use the crawl and the trudgeon as well. The illustration shows Miss Brown on the diving board showing some of her little friends how to begin the breast stroke. No need to say the listeners are paying strict attention to her advice.

EVENING GOWN.

A Simple, Tasty Frock For Fall Dances.

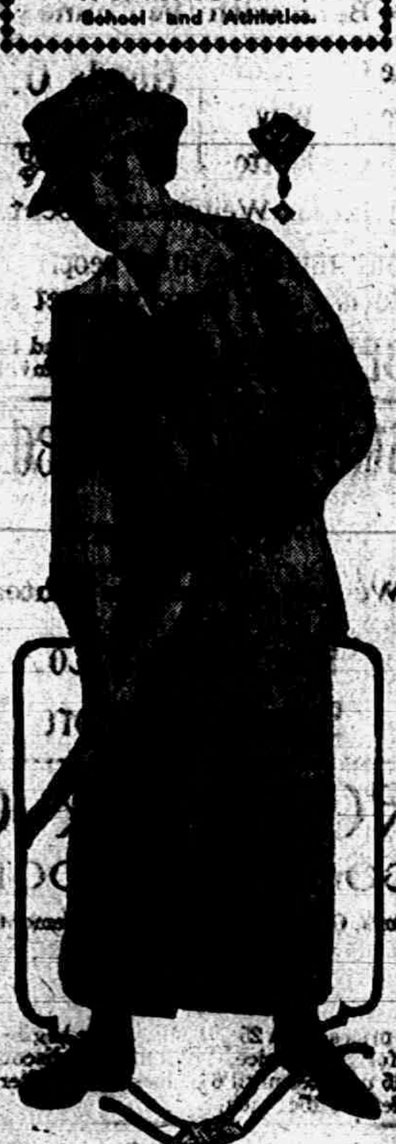


A GIRLISH DESIGN.

This simple frock is developed with white net or chiffon over pale pink. Its shortish skirt is finished with a wreath of roses, which also complete the unique sleeves, while two rose clusters finish the corsage and belt line.

THE CORRECT JUVENILE.

A Serviceable Suit For School and Athletics.



IDEAL FOR SPORTS.

Corduroy, covert or serge will develop well this practical suit for the outdoor girl. Strong bone buttons, belt and sensible pockets are its only garnishings. Please note how every accessory—boots, gloves, tie and hat—carries out the idea.

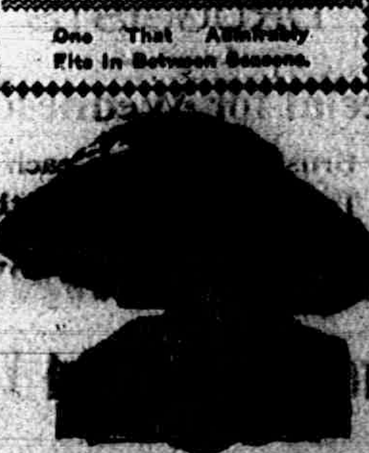
Proper Lighting.

Add immensely to the attractiveness of your home by diffusing the lights instead of focusing them on one point. Eye strain will be relieved and shadows and outlines will be softened, especially when amber lights are used. The new indirect lighting fixtures are replacing old fashioned ones, making the lighting problem more artistic and less expensive.

Much the same effect may be produced with less expense by frosted bulbs and globes, [illegible] and glass diffusing plates. There are various types of this indirect lighting suitable for all rooms, from the kitchen to the parlor, and it is to be recommended as a blessing to the busy eyes and the tense nerves of today.

A CHARMING HAT.

One That Admirably Fits in Between Seasons.



CORRECT FOR AFTERNOONS.

With all the gauzy coolness demanded by warm weather, this hat nevertheless suggests fall with its fur edged brim and bright colored [illegible] on the front of the crown. It is both elegant and simple.

Farm and Garden

RIPE FOR THE SILO.

When Corn and Other Crops Should Be Harvested.

[W. R. Dobson, Louisiana station.]

Corn is ready to harvest for filling the silo about the same time it is ready for harvesting the fodder. The grains should be well dented and glazed and a few of the lower leaves turned brown. If the corn is cut too green the silage will be sour and the feeding value decreased, while, on the other hand, if the corn is too ripe it will not pack well in the silo.

Sorghum should be harvested for the silo while the seed are in the dough stage. Like corn, if it is left in the field until it has become too dry the silage will contain a large amount of indigestible material and will not make a good quality of silage.

CORN READY FOR THE SILO.

The time of harvesting the crop for filling the silo—that is, the stage in which the crops should be harvested—must be given great consideration if a good quality is to be obtained.

Pea vines, soy beans and other hay crops should be harvested for the silo at the same time as for making hay—that is, when in full bloom and few of the heads are ripe.

Nurseries.

In the scheme of living where appearances must be maintained at all costs, where the keeping of servants is regarded as an absolute essential, where the whole aim is to impress one's acquaintances, children are too often regarded as needless luxuries. Where they are permitted to intrude, they come, as a usual thing, in single numbers, one child being considered enough of a burden. In Europe the women who have followed this theory have in many cases seen their entire family swept away and the sad condition has made the mothers of America pause and reflect.

When one comes to think of it, how very few houses are built with nurseries. Even large homes, rented at exorbitant rates, seldom have a nursery. One of the bedrooms has to be given over to the kiddies, but it can never be made to look quite as useful and pretty as if it had been designed for the purpose. The ideal nursery ought to be tiled all round halfway up the wall, not cold green tiles, but a warm shade of tan or a deep pink. The room ought to have fitted cupboards in it, so that not an inch of space is wasted. There should be fitted guards in front of the windows, so that there is no danger of the babies falling out, and the fireplace ought to be large and open, not the absurd little affairs that one finds in the bedrooms of the ordinary modern house.

FIGHTING THE HESSIAN FLY.

Pest Is on the Increase and Should Be Combated.

The 1915 wheat crop was cut down to the extent of several million bushels by the depredations of the Hessian fly, says the Iowa Homestead. This pest seems to be on the increase, and in those localities where it has made its appearance wheat growers can well afford to take certain precautions against its spreading.

The real damage to the wheat is not done by the mature fly, but rather by the maggots or larvae. In a contribution to the Iowa Agriculturist Professor R. L. Webster points out that in some cases as many as fifteen or twenty maggots will appear on a single plant. In this case so much nutriment is taken up by these pests that the wheat dies, and if the entire crop is not a total loss it is so greatly injured that the yield is materially cut down. These insects cause wheat to lodge so badly that it is almost impossible to take it up with a binder.

In discussing control measures Professor Webster advises the plowing under of infected stubble. After harvest is the best time to take measures against the Hessian fly. All summer is spent in the flaxseed stage on wheat stubble, where the insect can easily be reached.

Stubble may be burned over soon after harvest. This destroys a large percentage of the insects. There are, however, some undesirable features about this measure. It does not get all the flaxseed, since some are on the plants below the soil. In Kansas, according to Messrs. Headlee and Parker, plowing wheat stubble under was found a more efficient measure than burning it over.

Infested wheat stubble should be disked immediately after harvest. This makes plowing easier and conserves moisture. Then three or four weeks later the field should be plowed under at a depth of six inches, completely burying all stubble.

Volunteer wheat allows the insect to breed readily, and flies easily go from this to sown wheat. All volunteer wheat should be destroyed by disking and harrowing.

By sowing wheat as late as possible and yet obtaining a good start much benefit may be obtained, although there is danger of winter killing if sowed too late. The idea in late sowing is that the wheat may come up at a time in the fall when most of the flies have disappeared.

Late sowing benefits only so far as the fall generation of the insect is concerned. All wheat is liable to infection in the spring, so that late sown wheat is open to injury then as well as that sown early. But if late sown wheat escapes damage in the fall the chances for injury are greatly reduced in the spring, since the majority of the flies will deposit eggs in the field where they emerge.

Not infrequently late sown wheat becomes heavily infested in the spring. This is usually due to infestation from other nearby wheat.

Some fifteen years ago, in Ohio, F. M. Webster gave approximately safe dates at which fall wheat may be seeded and escape severe injury by the Hessian fly. More recently, Headlee and Parker gave similar dates for the wheat growing section of Kansas. From the Kansas dates and also from observations by Professor Webster in southwestern Iowa it appears that wheat sown Oct. 1 in the southern tier of counties should escape the fall brood of the fly. For the latitude of central Iowa this date would be about Sept. 25.

Do not follow wheat with wheat, advises Professor Webster. Many cases of severe infestation by the fly occur when wheat follows on old wheat stubble. This is because the insect is carried over in the stubble or in volunteer wheat that comes up in the stubble. The chances for damage are always less where wheat follows some other crop than wheat.

Wide Spread Cloverleaf Spreader

Never in our experience in the Implement business have we seen a Farm Tool give the general satisfaction as this spreader. The International Harvester Co. have built this spreader perfectly as far as light draft, simple construction, low box, wide spread 12 in. wide, recently took first premium at World's Fair.

We have so far sold 24 new spreaders this season and have ordered another car. This alone shows the reception this spreader is meeting with the farmers.

There are simular machines but none just like it; please bear this in mind and examine closely as you will readily see the different advantages in favor of the CLOVERLEAF.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sheldon kept open house Friday evening for the Willing Workers to honor the 16th birthday of the Misses Mildred and Marion Brooks, twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Al Brooks neighbors of the Sheldons. The young ladies were completely surprised. Games and a corn roast made the evening most enjoyable and refreshments were served. The young ladies were presented with a handsome dresser set.

CHILDS' WELFARE LEAGUE

Will Hold a "Tag Day" in Tecumseh Saturday, September 11

The work of this organization is well known in Tecumseh and the business men have contributed to the work in a vary substantial manner. On Tag Day every body will have an opportunity to assist in caring for the poor, crippled and neglected children in the rural, mining and lumbering sections of the state where organized charities do not reach, by buying tags of the Tecumseh young ladies who are to offer them for sale. 964 cases were cared for last year and 200 families were kept intact through the good offices of the league. The League is incorporated, non sectarian and is highly enclosed by the state board of charities and correction at Lansing.

Head-quarters Saturday will be in Webster Andersons Co., store and a number of the local ladies are to assist as patronesses of the day

Frank J Temple is to act as chairman of the Finance committee assisted by H. S. Temple both of the Lilley State Bank

Mrs Mabel M. Howard, District Superintendent for the League will be in charge.

GARLINGHOUSE GARAGE AND LIVERY

Prominent among the many improvements in Tecumseh during the past year are the improvements on the Garlinghouse property. For over 35 years this business has been running in the same location and under the same name and is favorably known to the travelling public throughout the state as well as being rated among our best and well known firms. The present [illegible] Otto Garlinghouse, does not propose to lower the high standard by any means.

Last winter he purchased the Hayden garage and combined the livery and garage business into one.

Since then improvements have been going on constantly. First the intervening space, 60 x 140 ft, between the garage and livery was covered with one big roof and the large building thus made is used both for storage of automobiles and a ten cent hitch. Under this cover from 60 to 75 rigs or autos can be accommodated at one time. The entire front of this addition is finished with a cement stucco which adds greatly to the general appearance.

An attractive office with plate glass front has been erected midway between the garage and livery and windows have been placed in such position that all departments of the business can be seen from the office. The office equipment is practically complete, the latest addition being a $550 National cash register which totals separately each department of the business.

So much for the building—now for what is inside. These are a few of the departments: Horse livery, feed stable, 10c hitch, auto livery, auto accessories and gasolene, auto storage, auto repair service and taxi service A complete line of auto accessories is handled. All articles are attractively displayed. They are exclusive agents for the Goodyear line of tires and tubes and the famous Red Inner Shoe.

His place is popular for both the tourist and home motorist and it is no uncommon sight on a hot day to see three to five cars waiting for gasoline which is pumped directly into the cars from a 500 gallon tank.

Prompt, courteous and efficient service is the motto everywhere in the establishment, both in the office and the repair department which, by the way, is some busy place. Homer Marsh conducts this end of the business and his reputation as an auto mechanic is A No. 1 He has plenty of competent assistants always on hand.

One very popular feature of this business is the renting of cars without furnishing drivers and it has proven mighty convenient.

L. C. Hayden still makes this his headquarters for his Mitchell auto business. He is distributor of this machine for a large territory and has sold many cars this season.

This place is surely some busy institution and Tecumseh can well feel proud of the business and of the hustler—Otto.

A SPLENDID CHAUTAUQUA

The people of Tecumseh certainly enjoyed one fine Chautauqua this week. Rain may have detained part of the people from a few of the entertainments but those who did go felt well repaid The Arden Drama Players and Pat Parker the cartoonist held the stage Tuesday Mr. Parker is a genius in his line and the Players were very pleasing. In the afternoon and evening they devoted themselves to dramatic art "The Taming of the Shrew" being excellent. On Wednesday Bland's Band, Jean McDonald, the reader and Hon Wm E Mason drew unusually large crowds. Congressman Mason spoke in the afternoon and Miss McDonald delighted the evening audience. Blands Band is superior to the usual Chautauqua band and that is some record The "Last Fight of Custer's Band" was a fitting finale.

In the afternoon Senator Mason presented Director Bland with a handsome silver tipped baton in remembrance of their happy summer together and in the evening after the performance the band gave a little stag party in his honor in the dining room of the hotel Barrett.

Yesterday the Beverly entertainers were very good and attracted more interest on account of Miss Bertha Seeley being the daughter of our former M. E minister M. F. Seelye, while in town she was a guest of Miss Marion Rosacrans.

Every company says this town looks the best of all the circuit for here it is that they disband and leave for home.

One of the best improvements which have been made along our business street is the new ladies rest and lunch room just opened by Barrett Bros. It gives a wholesome place for ladies and especially for our friends from out-of-town A place for them to wait for their slow husbands. We call your attention to their display ad appearing in this issue.

U. S. IS WORRIED BY BORDER RAIDS

Washington Puzzling Over Hint of Mexican Plotting.

22,000 TROOPS ARE ON GUARD

Villa Declares Robbers Visits Are Work of Carranza Men—Charge Is Not Taken Seriously—U. S. Aviators Fired at By Men Across Line—Bandits Surrounded, Report.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Officials of the administration are worried over the activities of Mexican bandits along the Texas and Arizona borders. It has not yet been definitely determined whether the Mexicans who are firing at American soldiers and citizens are organized or whether they are unorganized bands that are operating on their own account. Information has been conveyed to the authorities here that organized forces have been mobilized south of the border to make raids into Texas and Arizona in the event that the Pan-American conference recognizes any government in Mexico except that headed by First Chief Carranza.

Of Course Villa Would Say So.

Just how much credence is placed in this intelligence, officials decline to intimate. Within the past few weeks, additional forces have been sent to the border at the request of Gen. Funston, who is in command of the troops in that region. It is the understanding that Gen. Funston has been shifting the regiments under his direction with a view to checking any raid or raids that may be sent over the line from Mexico. Agents of the Villa government have persistently circulated reports that Carranza commanders are prepared to send organized forces into Texas and Arizona if a situation develops that seems to menace the government of the first chief. Whether there is any ground for such reports is known only to the responsible government authorities. They are keeping their own counsel, declaring that Gen. Funston, who is making his headquarters at Fort Sam Houston at San Antonio, Texas, has full authority to take such action as may be warranted by whatever emergency that may arise.

Gen. Funston now has under his command approximately 22,000 troops. This force was until recently strung along in a rather thin line over an extensive border front. Officials refuse to say whether the American forces have been strengthened at the points where a raid of formidable proportions might possibly be made. The inference to be drawn from statements that the authorities have voiced privately, indicate that this government is prepared for any invasion of Texas and Arizona that may be contemplated by organized forces in Mexico.

Fire on U. S. Planes.

Daily reports received at the war department demonstrate that Mexicans just south of the American border are in an ugly frame of mind. A day or two ago two army aeroplanes that ascended near Brownsville were fired upon repeatedly from the Mexican side.

Say Raiders Are Surrounded.

BROWNSVILLE, TEXAS. — The Mexican bandits who killed two Americans have been surrounded by American soldiers in the thick brush near Fresno and are battling for their lives. Reports reaching here say the entire band of 50 or 60 faces annihilation. Army aviators located the Mexicans, but have been unable to employ bombs because of the danger of hitting soldiers. The brush is so thick at this point that it is impossible to see more than three or four feet ahead.

Four Mexicans Killed.

EL PASO, TEX. — Four Mexican bandits and a woman were killed early in the day in the country north of Brownville following the capture by the bandits of three Americans and the escape of one. The Mexicans were killed in fighting the officers, the Mexican woman was shot by American officers by mistake for a man; when she was attempting to make her way to them for protection.

TWO HUNDRED DIE IN MEXICAN WRECK

WASHINGTON — Two hundred people, including many women and children, were killed in a train wreck several days ago, 200 miles east of Mexico City. American Consul Silliman, reporting to the State Department, said the disaster was "an appalling one." Another train following with forty-five American refugees aboard, was delayed by the wreck, but reached Vera Cruz Friday.

SUBMARINE HITS LINER HESPERIAN

Incident Undoes Late Amity, Exchanges with Kaiser.

MOUNTED GUN WAS ABOARD

No Americans Perish—No Warning Passengers State—Wireless Call for Aid Brings Rescue Steamers—Con. Wood Wires—Ship Was Canadian Vessel—600 Aboard.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The torpedoing of the Allan liner Hesperian by a German submarine has destroyed at one blow the beautiful structure of peace and amity built up in Washington during the last two weeks through the efforts of the German ambassador, is the belief in Washington. Officials are dismayed at the first reports of the torpedoing of the Hesperian, and permitted themselves the hope that these were not true until an official report was received from Consul Frost at Queenstown. It is now regarded that matters stand exactly where they did after the Arabic was sunk by a German submarine.

LONDON, ENG.—The Allan steamship Hesperian was torpedoed at 8:30 o'clock Saturday night off the south coast of Ireland, 100 miles southwest of Fastnet.

Approximately 350 passengers were on board, one or two of them Americans. All were saved, according to the latest report issued by the Allan line.

Vessel Remains Afloat.

The steamer did not sink and is reported proceeding under convoy to Queenstown, to which port most of the passengers and crew were taken by rescue steamers summoned by wireless calls for help.

Passengers landed at Queenstown asserted that the attack was made without warning. The United States embassy here has not yet received any information on this point. The American consul at Queenstown telegraphed the embassy, however, that there were one or two Americans on board, adding that none was lost.

Wounded Soldiers Aboard.

The Hesperian, a vessel of 10,920 tons gross, was outward bound from Liverpool for Montreal. Many of the passengers were wounded Canadian soldiers on their way home from the front. There were approximately 250 in the crew.

The attack upon the Hesperian came just as darkness was falling. Passengers who have reached Queenstown express the belief that she had been chased for some distance by a submarine, which fired as soon as it was within range. The attack came so suddenly, it was stated, that great alarm was felt aboard the steamer.

The torpedo struck the Hesperian forward of the engineroom, tearing away the forward part so that water rushed into the forward compartments. The wireless operater instantly sent out a call for aid, while Captain Main ordered the boats over the side. Three of them are said to have been upset in launching, and twenty persons who were injured have been landed at Queenstown. So far as known, all those thrown into the water were saved.

A fleet of rescue steamers soon reached the scene and all the persons in the small boats were taken aboard. When it was seen that the Hesperian was likely to remain afloat for some time Captain Main, regarded as one of the most reliable commanders in the Allan line service, insisted upon returning to his ship to await the arrival of admiralty tugs, which he hoped would be able to take her safely to Queenstown. Twenty of his men went back with him.

Expected to Be Troop Ship.

MONTREAL, CAN. — The Allan liner Hesperian sailed for Montreal from Liverpool on Aug. 17th, with passengers but no war material was entered on her cargo manifest and she had no troops on board. She was not expected back again as it was believed the admiralty intended to commission her as a troop ship. Her name does not appear on the advertised sailings from Montreal for September. The plans, however, were apparently altered for she left Liverpool last Friday with passengers for Montreal. The Allan line offices have information that all on board were saved.

Captain Main, her commander, was one of the oldest and most experienced navigators crossing the Atlantic, having been forty-two years at sea and almost that long in service of the Allan line. On his last trip he brought over with him his son, a private in the Glasgow Highlanders, who had been wounded in France and was on furlough.

Seaman and port officials are greatly gratified that the Hesperian has not gone down and attributed its escape to the captain's skillful nvigation and it is known that he had ideas of his own on how to outwit submarines. The Hesperian was a well known and popular boat and was on the Liverpool and Clyde route.

U. S. DEMANDS DUMBA GET OUT

Note to Austria Says He Is Persona Non Grata.

STRIKE PLOT ENVOY'S UNDOING

Summary Action by State Department is American Reply to Explanation Given Lansing of Intercepted Archibald Letter—Message Asks Penfield to Present Request to Dual Monarchy.

Washington, Sept. 10.—Ambassador Penfield at Vienna is instructed by cable to inform the Austro-Hungarian government that Dr. Constantin Dumba no longer is acceptable as an envoy to the United States, and to ask for his recall.

Reply to Explanation.

It is the answer of the American government to Dr. Dumba's explanation of his intercepted letter to Vienna outlining plans for handicapping plants in this country making war supplies for the allies.

Dr. Dumba, after telling of writing the letter which was taken by British officers from James F. J. Archibald at Falmouth, asserted that he acted on orders of his government.

Told to Warn Austrians.

He said that he had been instructed to give the widest publicity to a decree announcing enforcement of the Austro-Hungarian penal code against subjects who engaged in manufacture of war munitions for their country's enemies.

He contended he was fully within his rights in warning his countrymen.

Could Disorganize Plants.

The letter which Archibald was carrying to Vienna was addressed to Minister of Foreign Affairs Burian. In it Dr. Dumba said he "could disorganise and hold up for months, if not entirely prevent, the manufacture of munitions in Bethlehem and the middle west."

Dumba asked Burian to reply by wireless if he approved measures of this kind in America.

Innocent, Says Archibald.

Archibald has declared his innocence in the controversy. He said he knew nothing of the contents of the letter which he declared was given him at the pier just as he was sailing for Europe.

He has declared he would return to America and restore himself to the confidence of his countrymen.

The United States has cancelled Archibald's passports. He is now at Rotterdam where Minister Van Dyke has been instructed to issue an emergency passport to permit his return to the United States.

After his return the department of justice will be called on to decide if he has violated any law of the United States in acting as a messenger for one of the European belligerents.

Text of Dumba Demand.

Washington, Sept. 10.—Secretary Lansing issued this statement:

"The department has instructed Ambassador Penfield at Vienna to deliver to the minister for foreign affairs, the following note:

"'Mr. Constantin Dumba, the Austro-Hungarian ambassador at Washington, has admitted that he proposed to his government plans to instigate strikes in American manufacturing plants engaged in the production of munitions of war. The information reached the government through a copy of a letter from the ambassador to his government. The bearer was an American citizen named Archibald who was traveling under an American passport. The ambassador has admitted that he employed Archibald to bear official dispatches from him to his government.

"'By reason of the admitted purpose and intent of Mr. Dumba to conspire to cripple legitimate industries of the people of the United States and to interrupt their legitimate trade and by reason of the flagrant violation of diplomatic propriety in employing an American citizen protected by an American passport as a secret bearer of official dispatches through the lines of the enemy of Austria-Hungary, the president directs us to inform your excellency that Mr. Dumba is no longer acceptable to the government of the United States as the ambassador of his imperial majesty at Washington.

"'Believing that the imperial and royal government will realize that the government of the United States has no alternative but to request the recall of Mr. Dumba on account of his improper conduct, the government of the United States expresses its deep regret that this course has become necessary and assures the imperial and royal government that it sincerely desires to continue the cordial and friendly relations which exist between the United States and Austria-Hungary.'"

Indiana Merchant Suicides.

Bicknell, Ind., Sept. 10.—J. B. Huntington, a merchant, formerly of Bicknell, committed suicide Wednesday at Jackson, Miss., in the presence of his wife and daughter. The body will be brought here.

The "watchful waiting" process would be helped just now by deleting the first "t" and inserting "cb" before the second, in the last word.

KAISER'S AIDS TIE UP MANY PLANTS

Machinists' Unions Apparently Acting in Harmony.

QUIT WORK WITHOUT CAUSE

Chicago Plants Crippled by Walkouts of Teutonic Sympathizers—Organization in New York by German-American to Encourage Desertions From Industries—Mysterious Explosion at Peoria.

Chicago, Sept. 10.—The long arm of the secret service of the Teutonic allies has brought about complete or partial cessation of work in five Chicago factories suspected of manufacturing shells or machines for making shells for the allies.

The International Association of Machinists is the organization through which the German and Austrian governments act, according to indications, though this is denied by officials of the union. When a plant is to be tied up it is the machinists who strike. When a plant is suspected of accepting a war contract the machinists, through some mysterious agency, know of it at once. And, strange to say, the lists of firms accepting contracts which the machinists have corresponds exactly to the lists in possession of the agents working for the two foreign governments. [illegible] become that the Illinois Manufacturers' association scents a situation bordering on civil war and has taken steps for the organization of patriotic rifle clubs, independent of the National guard, for the protection of the industries of this state and nation against armed interference of citizens from other nations.

Plants Hit by Strikes.

The Chicago plants known to be affected by war strikes and lockouts are: Illinois Tool company, 154 East Erie street; 130 machinists on strike. Goodman Manufacturing company, West Forty-eighth and Halsted streets; 250 machinists on strike. McDonald Machinery company, West Twenty-second and Halsted streets; 50 machinists on strike. Otis Elevator company, 600 West Jackson boulevard; 150 machinists on strike. Torris, Wold & Co., Ashland avenue and Fulton street; 150 machinists on strike.

In addition the firm of Smur & Kanen, 312 Whipple street, according to union officials, has closed its plant and locked out 195 machinists because of threats of a strike.

Strikes Being Planned.

German and Austrian agents are in possession of information that war munitions are being manufactured in seven more big plants in Chicago. It may be a coincidence, but admission was made at headquarters of the machinists' union that strikes were being organized against these same plants and these alone. The list of these plants is as follows:

Pettibone & Mulliken, West Division street and Forty-eighth avenue, Cicero; 600 machinists. Loew-Victor Engine company, Oakley and Oakdale; 100 machinists. Chicago Automatic Screw Machine company, Oakley and Kinzie; 180 machinists. Edward Bell Manufacturing company, One Hundred and Fifty-fourth street and Homaty avenue, East Chicago; 120 machinists. Hannah Machinery company, Forty-sixth and Harrison street; 50 machinists. American Laundry Machinery company, 1800 North Spaulding avenue; 250 machinists.

According to information which reaches the machinists' union Pettibone & Mulliken have a contract for shrapnel and other war munitions totaling $17,000,000. Half of this is for the United States, it is said, and half for the allied governments.

Has German Employment Bureau.

New York, Sept. 10.—For a month past a German employment bureau has been in operation at 134 Liberty street for the purpose of placing Germans who have given up jobs at munition plants as a result of the warning by the German government that by so doing they were committing a crime.

At the head of this bureau is Hans Liebau, an architect and sanitary engineer, who says that he and other Germans conceived the scheme of thus aiding German subjects here who did not want to violate the laws of their country and that it is strictly in the nature of a private charity. He denied with much emphasis that this plan had been instigated by the German authorities here or had any connection whatsoever with the German embassy.

Mystery in Powder Blast.

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 10.—William Moon, an employe, was killed and one of the six-wheel mills of the Western Powder company's plant, fifteen miles west of here, was wrecked by an explosion. The concussion shook houses in the residence district, breaking numerous windows.

Officials of the company could not explain the explosion. Detectives from this city will investigate and the federal authorities here may also inquire into the cause of the blast.

Snyder Comes Off Shoal.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Sept. 10.—Steamer William P. Snyder, which went ashore in the fog Sunday midnight, near Rains landing was released by the tug Illinois and lighter Reliance Tuesday morning and has arrived at the Soo.

Old Baldwin Printer Dies.

Baldwin, Mich., Sept. 10.—Edward A. Wright, an old-time printer, who has been assistant to Editor Davis at the printing office since his arrival in Baldwin about three weeks ago, was found dead at the printing office, a victim of apoplexy.

The Weather.

Fair, without further change in temperature, gentle variable winds.

POUCHER—DICKINSON

The wedding of Mrs. Margaret Dickinson and Fred Poucher of Tipton, which we were only able to mention in our next issue is worthy of more [illegible] solemnized at the bride's home last Thursday evening in the presence of only the immediate family, Rev. W. A. Rex performing the ceremony.

The next day in company with Mr. Poucher's brother Bert and wife the newly weds motored to Detroit to visit the state fair.

Upon their return they will make their home in Tecumseh. Both of the principals are well known and have hosts of friends who wish them many happy years together.

"H WHERE, OH WHERE HAS THAT LITTLE DOG GONE"

A lady writes us that she boarded a Lake Shore train at a station on the Jackson Branch one day last week and with her she took her dog, Brutus by name, intending to be away for some time. Now she was afraid that the bad baggage man would not deal kindly with Brutus so took him into the car with her and coaxed him to lie under her seat with many admonitions of what would befall doggie if he did not stay put.

At [illegible] station a naughty man [illegible] sat down with Brutus mistress who thought it better to keep silent about the close proximity of the dog. Mr Man dropped some thing and of course it rolled under the seat and man-like he began poking around with his umbrella for it. Well he poked Brutus and the latter of course resented the familiarity and nabbed the man by the back of his leg and he didn't just grab his clothing either. Mr. Man being just a common man jumped pretty high and said some big words then he went for the dog in good earnest and at last drove our friend Brutus from his hiding place and then kicked him,—Yes sir, just kicked him right off the train. By that time the train was in Tecumseh and now where we come in is to find that dog. The lady writes us that the dog is a hound 3 feet long and one foot high, weighs 35 lbs is all black except a little brown on face and neck and is bedecked with a black leather collar.

Any one who will notify the Herald of the whereabouts of this dog will confer a favor on us for this lady believes we can find anything and we must live up to the reputation.

KAISER'S ARABIC NOTE RECEIVED BY LANSING

Subsea Commander "Thought" He Faced Attack.

Washington, Sept. 10.—The German note on the Arabic has reached the state department. Secretary Lansing said the German note contended that the Arabic changed her course and that this caused the submarine commander to torpedo her.

The secretary said he had not read the note carefully enough to know whether it offers reparation for American lives lost on the Arabic.

It is not known just when the note will be given out, but it will be done within the next day or so.

HIGHEST WAGES IN HISTORY

Steel Plant Will Raise Pay of All Employes Oct. 1.

Allentown, Pa., Sept. 10.—It was announced at the office of the Empire Steel & Iron company that beginning Oct. 1, the wages of all its employes will be raised. About 1,200 workers will be affected. The company has plants in Washington, N. J., Mount Hope, N. J., Topton, Macungie and Catasauqua, Pa.

The new scale of wages, it was said, will be the highest in the company's history.

LAWSON ENDS BOAT DISPUTE

Detroit Collector Holds Small Vessels Must Be Lighted.

St. Joseph, Mich., Sept. 10.—The question of whether a motor boat moored at a dock must display lights at night, submitted to Richard L. Lawson, collector of the port of Detroit, in a dispute between local boat owners and John W. Lange of Port Huron, customs inspector stationed at this port during the summer, has been decided.

The result is that all motor boats moored at local docks will display lights. The decision ends a bitter fight made by owners of the small craft who contended that the rule that all boats moored in streams near the regular channels need not display lights.

PAY HIGH PRICE FOR LARD

Row Over Two Cents Costs Ann Arborites $20.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 10.—An argument over what they contended was an overcharge of 2 cents landed Russell Bachelor, William Herzog and Emanuel Stollsteimer in justice court and cost John Schneider a broken collarbone.

Bachelor, Herzog and Stollsteimer purchased some lard of Schneider, a clerk in a meat market, and alleged that he charged them 2 cents too much. [illegible] followed [illegible] with blows, breaking the clerk's collarbone. The judge fined the assailants the surgical and medical fees and the costs.

MISS LELIA JENNINGS

Saturday morning at dawn, Lelia Louise, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. George W. Jennings, passed out at her home on Chicago street. Her going was not all together unexpected as she had been in a critical condition for some weeks. She must have been a sufferer years but failed to make complaint until the fifth of July, and then when the exact nature of her ailment was discovered, the best surgical skill and treatment were of no avail.

Miss Leila was born in Flint when her father was pastor of Garland street church there 23 years ago. Her life had always been at home and so followed her parents to the different fields where her father had been called to serve the Methodist church.

Her one short year in Tecumseh had made her many friends and her going will be received as a great shock. Her genial and sunny disposition never failed and her unselfishness and thoughtfulness were her last thought.

Besides her parents, Roy W. of Flint, Ben D and Winnifred of Detroit, and Master Ted at home are left. Services will be held at the home Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock and Wednesday morning the family will leave for Flint where interment will be in Glenwood cemetery.

The services will be conducted by Dr. Ramsdell of Ann Arbor assisted by the local pastors.

MRS. CLARENCE MOBBS

Mrs. Clarence Mobbs nee Myrtle Stanley died at her home on the Keyser farm, two miles northwest of the village, Saturday morning after an illness of some six weeks.

She was about 28 years old and had always [illegible] Adrian until with her husband she moved to this farm last spring.

Beside the husband are left to mourn the father Frank Stanley of Adrian, two brothers, Ralph Stanley of Detroit and Chas. Stanley of Adrian, and many other relatives and friends. Mrs Sizer of this village is her grand mother and Mrs. A. B. Harding an aunt.

The funeral was held at the home yesterday morning at 9:30 and the burial held at Adrian. Rev. Hicks of that city conducted the services.

AUSTRIANS CAPTURE FORTRESS OF DUBNO

Vienna, Sept. 10.—Continuing their terrific attacks to cut the railroads from Lemberg to Kieve the Austrians have crowned one phase of their general action with success, capturing the great Russian stronghold of Dubno.

In the capture of this fortress the Teutons have obtained command of the railroad lines from Lemberg through Dubno to Rovno and thence to Kiev and Odessa.

London, Sept. 10.—Military critics here are elated by Wednesday's brilliant success of the Russian armies near Tarnopol, which hurled back the German forces with heavy losses and captured many prisoners and valuable munitions.

The Austro-Germans opened the battle west of Tarnopol on Tuesday and lost 8,200 men and officers.

NICHOLS MURDER INSIDE JOB

Employe Confesses He Was Party to Robbery Conspiracy.

New York, Sept. 10.—The confession of Carl Talas, the youthful second man in the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Griggs Nichols, widow of James E. Nichols, who founded the wholesale grocery firm of Austin, Nichols & Co., makes it certain that the elderly woman was killed in her home at 4 East Seventy-ninth street by three men who had persuaded Talas to aid them in robbing her. Mrs. Nichols, however, did not die from strangulation but by fright, having a weak heart and Bright's disease.

Talas confessed to Inspector Faurot after a rigorous night long examination, and was made a prisoner on the charge of homicide. Search was begun immediately for the three men who attacked and robbed Mrs. Nichols of rings worth $10,000. One of the men, Talas told the police, is named Arthur Walters, or Waldemar, and was Mrs. Nichols' second man until a little less than three months ago. It was on this man's recommendation that Talas got the position he left. All the men are Finns.

is the greatest rectifier for the blood and skin yet known. Greasy skin with pimples, blotches, eruptions or scrofula easily cleared away. Its use leaves the blood and skin as pure as the lillies. SAN-JAK for the stomach, nerves and blood is the best the world ever saw. SAN-JAK prevents the excessive flow of poison of fluid into the blood from the super renal glands near the kidneys, causing the arteries to harden in the years past 50. This preventative keeps the arteries soft and flexible, giving flexibility to the muscles as in youth.

You can feel well and active at any age from 60 to 90 years. Man should die from old age, not from diseased tissue. Mothers and daughters can avoid many dangerous operations by the use of this wonderful medicine. The use of SAN-JAK for pain in the back and abdomen greatly lessens the danger of appendicitis. $1.00 per bottle. Get SAN-JAK at

THE CHAUTAUQUA

Yes or No?

We had a rattling good Chautauqua last week and Friday's program was a splendid closing. Rev. Shepherd was substituted for Hon. J. K. Codding who had been called back to Leavenworth to resume his former position as warden at the prison.

Rev. Shepherd gave many splendid ideas on how to better conditions here for our children and young people. He showed the development of the man from the little baby up and the needs each phase requires.

The Royal Welch Ladies who gave the concerts that day were excellent artist and gave two fine programs They sail this week for their homes in England and Wales and no wonder their rendition of "Its a Long Way to Tipperary was very enthusiastic. The audience joined with them at the close with "America".

Although the Lincoln people gave us such a good week's entertainment the committee refuse to contract with them for another year feeling that the people had not given them proper support. They had to "dig up" $6.60 each, but there is talk of holding a meeting a little later to take action on the subject for many do want a chautauqua next year Following are the list of citizens who have made our chautauqua possible and paid their good money as guarantors:

This is the Stove Polish YOU Should Use

IT'S different from others because more care is taken in the making and the materials used are of higher grade.

Black Silk Stove Polish

Makes a brilliant, silky polish that does not rub off or dust off, and the shine lasts four times as long as ordinary stove polish. Used on sample stoves and sold by hardware and grocery dealers.

All we ask is a trial. Use it on your cook stove, your parlor stove or your gas range. If you don't find it the best stove polish you ever used, your dealer is authorized to refund your money. Insist on Black Silk Stove Polish. Made in liquid or paste—one quality.

Black Silk Stove Polish Works Sterling, Illinois

Use Black Silk Air-Drying Iron Enamel on grates, registers, stove-pipes—Prevents rusting. Use Black Silk Metal Polish for silver, nickel or brass. It has no equal for use on automobiles.

FRIDAY NIGHTS STORM

Friday night we had one of the biggest storm to hit this region in many moons. The rain came in torrents. The water in Evans Creek ran so high that it swept away the foot bridge back of Lyman Howe's home.

Lightning played havoc for a few minutes. It struck the corner of Ed Hand's house tearing off some shingles and also struck a tree in front of Guy Nemire's home. Guy was sitting in a chair in the house and the shock knocked him from the chair unconscious. It was seven minutes before he regained his sense.

The wind did not do the damage here that it did over toward Macon and Saline. It blew down orchards and took away porches. Its strength was realized when it was found that Little Bros. silo was moved over two feet.

And The Verdict Is Unanimous—A Greater, Finer Paige Than Ever

History repeats occasionally.

When the 1916 Paige "Six-46" was announced recently and the price was quoted at $1295—a full $100 less than the first "Six-46"—but a greater, finer Paige than its predecessor—

Some doubters said: "It can't be done. They can't sweep the country as they did with the first big Paige Six."

But here is where history is again repeating. The newest and greatest Paige "Six-46" is a triumph and is again dominating the field.

And it is achieving the victory from the standpoint of quality alone.

The first Paige "Six-46" was an amazing success because of its extraordinary value combined with exclusive and distinctive beauty.

The demand was so great that the capacity of the great Paige plant—a new plant—was insufficient. It had to be doubled at once.

And the Paige—since the advent of the first "Six-46"—has never caught up on its orders.

So with greater capacity and double the former production it is now possible to offer at $1295 a greater, a finer "Six-46" than last season. There has not been a compromise on a single point. On the contrary, add to all the vital qualities of the former model these—

Additional Values

A genuine Pantasote top; the best body finish money and time can achieve—a Richelieu blue, taking 24 days to complete by the air-drying process; genuine French glaze hand-buffed leather upholstery.

Such is the Paige policy—to give the utmost—in producing the seven-passenger Six at $1295.

The same policy is responsible for the remarkable values in the new Paige Light Six—a five-passenger Six at $1095.

WHEN YOU NEED A CORN BINDER

Some day you will meet somebody who will tell you he can sell you the best Corn Binder made. Then ask him if he can beat the Deering on these points—

The Deering ties bundles in the middle, whether corn is tall or short. It has 81 [illegible]ment; other binders have eight

Both wheels are same height as a cart; does away with side draft.

With three horses the third does not walk over bundles.

If you went out in the fields to tie a bundle of grain or corn, would you try to tie it standing up? Of course you wouldn't. You would lay it down and then tie it. That is the way the Deering does it.

Other binders tie it standing up. That is one reason they are heavier draft than the Deering and one reason they knock off more ears.

Here's another point: if you buy a Deering of us, if anything breaks we have the biggest stock of repairs in this part of the state.

If you need help we will be there right away.

This service free the first year.

You will have to see our Tongue Truck to appreciate it. We have made arrangements to supply these trucks for binders purchased prior to this year at a small cost.

The Kind of a Friend to Have.

I have a friend who calls on me every now and then and always gives me a new lease on life. He makes me think more of myself; makes me more ambitious, more determined to see my opportunities and to make the most of them. His calls are like the coming of spring after a long, cold winter, which awakens the sleeping buds and calls out the flowers. The sunshine of his cheerful mind, the alchemy of his optimism, awakens me to renewed effort and encourages me to outdo myself. I am never too busy to see him, and I always urge him to stay, because his presence makes me a larger man, makes life seem more worth while than ever. He helps me to get a new grip upon myself. He arouses me, so that I feel equal to any task when he leaves.—Christian Herald.

Circumstances Alter Cases.

How Purple Dye Was Discovered.

It is often said that the old Phoenicians discovered the purple dye in the murex shell by observing a dog which had eaten one of the mollusks and thus colored his chops with a rich purple stain. The ancients were accustomed to hunt the murex by the assistance of pointer dogs. Some of the myths say that Heracles by the aid of his dog first discovered the purple murex.

He Had Seen the Play.

While acting in Sir James Barrie's play, "The Little Minister," at a suburban theater Miss Grace Lane was told at the end of the first act that a gentleman, whose name she did not catch, would like to speak to her.

Miss Lane supposed that it was a reporter on a local paper who desired an interview, and she wearily gave permission for the visitor to be brought into her presence.

When, a little later, the manager brought a small, delicate looking man up to her in the wings she smiled upon him condescendingly and opened the conversation by saying she hoped he liked the play.

"Yes," answered the stranger quietly, "I've no very grave faults to find with it."

"I suppose," continued Miss Lane, "that you saw it when it was produced at the Haymarket?"

"Yes, I saw it there more than once," was the reply.

"You seem to have taken a great interest in the play," was Miss Lane's next remark, as she began to show signs of moving off.

"Well, you see," said the quiet little man apologetically, "I wrote it."

The stranger, whose name she had not caught, was James Matthew Barrie.—London Mail.

The Round Robin.

William Henry P. Fyfe in "Five Thousand Facts and Fancies" says that round robin is the name given to a remonstrance or petition signed by a number of persons, generally in a circular form, so as to avoid giving prominence to any single name. He continues:

"This device is said to have been first used by the officials of the French government as a means of making known their grievances. The most celebrated 'round robin' in the English language is the one signed by Burke, Gibbon, Sir Joshua Reynolds and others and sent to Dr. Samuel Johnson, requesting him to amend the epitaph to Oliver Goldsmith in Westminster abbey and suggesting that it be written in English and not in Latin. Johnson accepted the 'round robin' in a kindly spirit, but told Sir Joshua Reynolds, the bearer of the missive, that he would 'never consent to disgrace the walls of Westminster abbey with an English inscription.'"

Great Men and Doubles.

It is said that there is a French soldier who is the living image of Napoleon I. Other instances have been found of persons born many years apart bearing a striking likeness to one another. Mr. Winston Churchill is the "double" of the Emperor Titus, at least according to the bust of the latter at the British museum. "Dion Boucicault," writes George Augustus Sala, "was the very image of Sir Kenelm Digby as he appears in the frontispiece to his 'Choice and Experimental Receipts in Physics and Chirurgery.' Douglas Jerrold was the ikon of Montgolfier, the discoverer of the fire balloon, and the late Montagu Williams, Q. C., if he had donned a flowing black periwig, might well have sat to a Sir Peter Lely of our times for a portrait of Charles II."—London Tatler.

CALL OFF FAT STOCK SHOW AT ILLINOIS FAIR

Hoof Plague Causes Board of Agriculture to Act.

Kankakee, Ill., Sept. 10.—The Illinois fat stock show at the state fair, which opens next Friday, is doomed. The state board of agriculture here decided it would be dangerous to show cattle, hogs and sheep because of the prevalence of the foot and mouth disease. [illegible] with Governor Dunne on this score.

State Veterinarian Dyson sat in with the members of the board of agriculture. The big horse show will be retained as a feature.

The fat stock show has been one of the big features of the annual state fair at Springfield. Cattle, hogs and sheep from all sections of the United States have been displayed. The foot and mouth plague has gained such headway stock breeders are shaking their heads. They say that when a herd like the prize one of Samuel Insull becomes infected after the precautions taken by Mr. Insull's army of attendants it is extremely dangerous to attempt a stock show under the circumstances. They hold that infection may be carried in the dust on the clothes of an attendant.

"We want to be on the safe side," said President Small. "The disposition of the members of the state board of agriculture is to do nothing that might be cause for regret later."

LANSING ALDERMEN TO PROBE CHARGES

But the Investigating Will Be by the Accused.

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 10.—Lansing council has voted to investigate alleged charges of graft in the recent passage of the jitney ordinance. Aldermen Charles Reck, Frank Young and Bert Baker constitute the committee on investigation, and public hearings will be held.

During the passage of the ordinance through council two weeks ago, Alderman Ferle said on the floor that the ordinance had been "framed up" at a meeting between the council and General Manager Collins of the Michigan United Traction company. He was also accused of having said off the floor of council that he had "been approached" by some M. U. T. official and offered something to vote for the ordinance.

When the resolution authorizing an investigation was sprung Ferle objected somewhat to the use of the term "graft" in the resolution, but did not back up on the charges.

The council voted a special election on the jitney bus ordinance referendum, "at the earliest possible date." Oct. 20 is the date tentatively fixed."

The Faust Legend

For 1,400 years the Faust legend—the sale of a human soul to a devil has existed. The first recorded hint of its vitality is given in the sixth century story of "Theophilus." That story suited the early Christians in their efforts to stamp out the necromancing devices of evilly disposed persons prone to seek power by unholy means. The association of the name of Faust, however, with the legend is not more than 400 years old. The likeliest prototype of the modern Faust is the man of the same name who in Cracow boldly proclaimed himself a professor of magic. In the sixteenth century stories Helen of Troy was bestowed by Mephistopheles upon Faust, and not until the middle of the eighteenth century does there appear a shadowy Margaret in the form of a "beautiful but poor girl," who afterward develops into the Margaret of Goethe.

The Dead Horse.

The smart traveling man stood on a corner in the little country village at dusk. He was looking for amusement, and the first object that attracted his attention was an overgrown boy, perhaps fifteen years of age, riding a horse that might have come out of the ark.

"Hello, sonny!" shouted the salesman. "How long has that horse been dead?"

Quick as a flash the boy replied. "Three days, but you're the first buzzard that has noticed it."

The traveling man moved on to the hotel.—Youth's Companion.

Force of Association.

While the owner of the touring car dismounted during necessary repairs, the young front wheel timidly asked the old back wheel:

"Don't you get weary of the social whirl—revolving and revolving and revolving?"

"You'll get used to it," said the old wheel. "Our owner is a spinster, with nothing to do but go round, till sometimes I feel like a Daughter of the Revolution myself."—Judge.

AN ESCAPE AT SEA

A Yankee Prisoner Takes to the Water

By WILLARD BLAKEMAN

In the autumn of 1914 when the German cruisers were destroying British commerce on the high seas Jack Marston, an American boy, was an ordinary seaman aboard the English ship Sea Gull. That wasn't the real name of the vessel, but there are reasons why it should be fictitious. Jack had been brought up on the Maine coast and was as much at home in the water as on shore and nearly as much at home in it as out of it. At any rate, he preferred to be in it.

Just why he shipped aboard a British vessel instead of an American does not appear, though American ships being few and far between it is probable that he would have been obliged to look for some time in order to get a berth on one. He was in Portland one day and, finding the Sea Gull there and about to make a trip to Valparaiso and return, concluded to sign for the voyage.

One morning when the Sea Gull was not a hundred miles from the port of her destination her captain espied on her port quarter a war vessel too far distant to make out to what nation she belonged. He was not long in doubt, for the ship headed for the Sea Gull, and when she came near enough the German flag was seen flying from her stern. She proved to be the Emden, one of the most remarkable of the commerce destroying cruisers of that period.

The Sea Gull being defenseless, her captain and crew realised that her sailing days were ended. They were [illegible] Emden, [illegible] ship was scuttled and sunk. That Jack Marston was a United States citizen was no especial advantage to him, for, being a member of the crew of a British ship, he was subject to the same terms as the others. However, there was nothing to be done with the captives until the Emden's commander could find some way of getting rid of them, and they were all kept aboard the Emden. They were considered prisoners of war, but not placed in confinement. Indeed, there were crews of two other captured ships aboard, besides a number of passengers.

Jack had not shipped to be kept aboard a German cruiser, darting hither and thither hunting for the merchant marine of Germany's enemies, and was much disgruntled. He told the captain of the Emden that he was an American citizen and asked to be furnished the means of getting ashore. But he had no proofs of his citizenship and even if he had would probably not have been entitled to different treatment from the other captives.

Jack having nothing to do, his mind turned on the problem of regaining his liberty. He did a great deal of thinking, with no practical result. There may be regularly planned escapes, but Jack, being out on the ocean, usually hundreds of miles from shore, might plan till the crack of doom without hitting upon any way of getting ashore even if he could elude the officers and crew of the Emden. If the cruiser had put into port the matter might have been feasible. But this she dared not do, for British warships were watching the harbors. Indeed, the safest place for the Emden was far out at sea, where the area was so large that she was not likely to be found, and if sighted by an enemy too strong for her she would have plenty of room for flight.

Such being the case, Jack soon made up his mind that he must wait for an opportunity, and an opportunity would not likely arise unless the Emden found it essential to approach the coast, either for supplies or to get rid of her prisoners, who were making great inroads into her stock of provisions.

Jack one morning on awakening was surprised to see land not two miles from the ship. The Emden was steaming northward, skirting the shore. The reason for this was soon apparent. Jack saw seaward a British man-of-war, cruising along in the same direction as the Emden. It was evident that the latter was keeping within the limit of three miles from shore, which by international law is neutral waters. Jack looked at the shore longingly. He would have undertaken to swim to it, but in broad daylight it would be impossible for him to leave the ship without being seen. He resolved to wait till night. But when night came the idea of committing himself to the black, inhospitable waters to swim between two or three miles to a shore he could not see was too much for even his water pluck, and he dared not try it. He hoped for an opportunity just before dawn.

But during the midwatch a fog rolled in, and the captain of the Emden, taking advantage of it, ran out to sea, and when the next day the fog lifted she was out of sight of land. Jack ground his teeth, for he feared that he would not again get so near the shore.

That day one of the Sea Gull's crew died. The sailmaker of the Emden was engaged in making a bag in which to give the corpse a sea burial, and as Jack sat watching him at work an idea entered his head. One might put himself in the bag in place of the corpse to be thrown overboard and thus escape.

Escape where? Swimming on the bosom of an ocean unless there is a vessel near or land within reach is an undesirable change even from captivity. No; there was nothing in that idea and it was banished.

That afternoon a cloud of smoke appeared on the horizon, and soon the black hull of a war vessel loomed up. There was a commotion on board the Emden, for the vessel might be a British warship. The captain permitted her to come close enough to see that she flew the union jack of Great Britain and that she was a much larger craft than the Emden. Then he began to show his heels.

That night the lights on the Emden were darkened, and she changed her course several times. Quite likely the British ship also covered her lights. At any rate, she was not to be seen. The Emden's captain hoped that when daylight came again he would be rid of her. Unfortunately for the Emden the night was bright by the light of a full moon, so that she could be seen by her pursuers.

The next morning at dawn Jack Marston went on deck and at the first break of day descried the British ship somewhat nearer than the night before. The Britisher must have discovered the Emden at the same time, for a dense cloud of smoke issuing from her stacks indicated that she was putting fuel on her fires. The Emden followed suit and made every effort to escape. For a time it seemed that the English man was gaining; then for an hour she neither lost nor gained. Jack, who was watching her closely, made up his mind that she was slowly losing.

Now, the crew of the Sea Gull were hoping that they would be rescued, and when Jack told them that the Britisher was slowly losing ground they were much disappointed. Jack determined to take an awful risk. That was to get himself sewed up in the burial bag and thrown overboard, with the hope of being picked up by the pursuing ship. He told his mates of his plan and asked them to help him. They looked upon his scheme as foolhardy and tried to dissuade him from it. But when they found that this was impossible they offered to do anything he suggested in their power.

Jack's plan was this: The attention of the officers and crew of the Emden was confined to getting away from the pursuing ship. The Sea Gull's men might steal the body of their dead comrade and hide it. They might then sew Jack up in the burial bag and heave him overboard without permission. They might omit the shot usually tied to the ankles for sinking purposes, and Jack would not remain long under water. On rising he would endeavor to attract the attention of the Britisher.

The crew of the Sea Gull agreed to do their part in the matter. If Jack wished to commit suicide he might do so. That was his lookout, not theirs. So when every one of the Emden's crew was intent on the pursuer they took the body out of the burial bag, and Jack got into it with pieces of cork tied under his shoulders, some provisions in a rubber bag, a bottle of water, a knife and a piece of white cotton cloth attached to a stick for signal purposes.

It was decided to ask the captain of the Emden for permission to bury their dead companion. He was too busy at the time to give any thought to their request and granted it with a [illegible] of the head. Then the sailors carried Jack to the side of the ship and, standing about him uncovered, slid him overboard.

Jack did not mind being discovered in the water by the Germans, for he knew they would not think of stopping to pick him up. He was not below the surface more than twenty seconds, but when he reappeared the cruiser was going so fast that she was already quite a distance from him. The gaze of most of them was in his direction, but was fixed on the pursuing ship. One man caught sight of him, but Jack simply floated on the surface and was probably supposed to be the corpse that had been given burial. At any rate, no especial attention was paid to him, and he was being rapidly left astern.

Jack's main fear was that the Britisher, being in a hurry, would fail to pick him up even if he succeeded in attracting her attention. He was directly in her line and with his white flag would likely succeed in making himself seen. She was nearly half an hour behind the Emden and losing. When a few hundred yards from him he waved his flag. He knew that he was seen, for he saw several persons pointing at him and evidently discussing him.

But Jack was horrified to see the ship proceed on her way without stopping for him. She had gone nearly a mile beyond him when a gladdening sight met his view. There was a boat being lowered. There were men in it, and when in the water and loosened from the ship they pulled toward him.

Jack was picked up, and the ship waited for the return of her boat. Her commander was conscious of losing on the Emden and had decided to save the man in the water. When Jack was taken aboard he was plied with questions as to the German cruiser, but could only say that she was the Emden and had aboard the crews of several vessels she had sunk.

Jack was put ashore at a South American port and determined that when he committed himself again to the deep he would go under the American flag. After waiting some time he found a berth on a United States vessel and in due time turned up on his native shore. He says he is quite content with his experience as a sailor on the ocean in wartime and has no desire for any more of it.

Wheat After Fallow.

At the Rothamsted experiment station in England wheat has been grown continuously and also alternating with fallow for fifty-eight years. The records of the station have the following to say regarding the work:

"It will be seen that the produce of wheat after fallow is considerably higher than when it is grown continuously, 17.1 bushels against 12.7 bushels per acre, but if reckoned as produce over the whole area, half in crop and half in fallow, the whole area grows much less of both grain and straw than where the crop is grown year after year on the same land. A given area of land would therefore be more productive when cropped every year than if the crop were alternated with fallow. The superior yield of the portion in crop after a fallowing may in some degree be attributed to the greater freedom from weeds, but in the main it is due to the production of nitrates from the humus of the soil during the summer when it is fallow, a process which is much stimulated by the stirring it receives and the consequent aeration. The success of a fallowing depends upon these nitrates remaining for the succeeding crop. They may be entirely washed away by heavy autumnal rains."

Sod and Insects.

To guarantee against insects do not follow a grass sod with such a grain crop as corn. It is well to keep the land fallow for a time.

Kinsale.

Kinsale keeps a modest place in the history of Ireland. It was here that Don Juan's fleet landed 3,000 men to join hands with O'Neill, out of which landing grew the story that the cottages at World's End are "still inhabited by the descendants of Spaniards." It was from Kinsale that James II. on March 2, 1689, landed and from Kinsale he sailed after his defeat at the battle of the Boyne. Thirty years ago the house in which he spent the night before his departure was still in existence. Kinsale was greater in the past than now, for we read that "of all the Irish ports it was the best situated for intercourse with France and that in the town Marlborough found a thousand barrels of wheat and eighty pipes of claret."—London Spectator.

JOSEPH, MICH. — New ravages of the hoof and mouth disease which have [illegible], during the past week, in the slaughtering of many valuable herds throughout northern Illinois and the opposition which the federal and state authorities are meeting in the enforcement of rigid quarantine regulations, has brought a warning from J. K. Atherton, United States inspector for the bureau of animal industry, stationed at Niles, to the dairymen and stock raisers of Berrien county and northern Indiana to take every precaution against the recurrence of the plague in this region.

It was in the district around Niles that the disease was first discovered in August, 1914, and it spread so rapidly that herds valued at more than $100,000 were killed before Berrien county was cleared of the scourge. It then spread into Illinois.

UNWRITTEN LAW VOID HERE

Judge Fines Man Who Threatened Pair with Tin Knife.

CORUNNA, MICH. — Louis M. Dihar pleaded guilty in the circuit court of assault with intent to do great bodily harm. Dihar attacked his wife and James Cosgrove with a knife when he found them together in the Ann Arbor railroad yards in Owosso.

Judge Miner refused Dihar's plea after he saw the knife used in the attack. It was a tin affair and not dangerous. Later Dihar pleaded guilty to simple assault and was placed on probation for six months.

SPOTTED BEANS ARE BARRED

Federal Order Worries State Growers; Analysis Asked.

LANSING, MICH. — Michigan bean growers are worried over an announcement just received in Lansing from the United States bureau of foods, barring beans affected by anthracnose from being shipped out of the state.

According to Market Director James N. McBride of Lansing anthracnose merely discolors white beans without in any way affecting their food value. As three-fourths of the white bean crop is grown in Michigan this is considered a serious situation.

LINER WITH 1,700 ABOARD IS AFIRE

Sant' Anna's Wireless Asks Aid; 3 Days from Port.

SEVERAL SHIPS RUSH TO HELP

French Steamer's Appeal For Help Caught at Cape Race Causes Alarm For Safety of Italian Reservists and Ship—Vessel Was Searched For Bombs Before Sailing.

NEW YORK — Several steamers are believed to be rushing to the aid of the Fabre liner Sant' Anna, afire at sea, 1,000 miles due east of New York.

NEW YORK — The steamship Sant' Anna, bound from New York to Marseilles and Naples with about 1,600 Italian reservists aboard, was afire Monday in the Atlantic three or four days' sail from the nearest port. A wireless message that reached the station at Cape Race late at night brought the first news of her plight. It gave her position as latitude 40.23 north, longitude 47.30 west, or about 960 miles southeast of Halifax.

Efforts by the agents of the Fabre line, to which the steamer belongs, to obtain further information failed during the early morning and grave fears were entertained for the safety of the vessel and her passengers.

Carries a Cargo of Food.

When the Sant' Anna sailed from New York Sept. 8 she carried a cargo [illegible] of foodstuffs. According to her owners here there were no arms or ammunition aboard. The Italians, gathered from every part of the United States and returning home to join the army, were in the steerage. Comparatively few passengers were carried in the first and second cabin. The crew numbered about 100.

"Several of our vessels have been set on fire recently," said Howard F. Jones of the firm of James E. Elwell, agents for the Fabre line. "We have had the vessels under the closest watch while in port and no Germans or Austrians were permitted on the pier. We examined every piece of freight offered as cargo to guard against bombs and infernal machines."

Search Ship For Bombs.

It was said that the sailing of the Sant' Anna from this port was delayed twenty-four hours to permit a thorough search because the suspicions of her officers had been aroused by rumors that a bomb had been placed aboard.

CHARGES GERMANS FOMENTED STRIKES

New York World Avers $1,000,000 Was Offered for Walkout.

NEW YORK — The world on Monday morning publishes a story that Germans offered $1,000,000 for a strike of longshoremen and riots on the docks of the United States to prevent the shipment of munitions. The World says in part: "This correspondent clearly reveals the inception, history and final collapse of the unsuccessful attempt made by agents of the German and Austrian governments to buy strikes and mob violence in the United States. Conspicuous among these agents occurs the name of Dr. Dernburg, German propagandist.

"This plot was first made known to leaders of the Longshoremen's Association by Matthew F. Cummings, a prosperous groceryman, of Boston, who bore letters of indorsement from Professor von Mach of Harvard University and son-in-law of the late former Secretary of the Navy John D. Long. The plan contemplated a five weeks' strike by the 23,000 longshore workers at Atlantic coast ports at a cost of $1,035,000.

"In addition to Cummings, other agents of the German and Austrian governments, plentifully supplied with money, were working to bring about strikes in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Newport News, Charleston, New Orleans and Pacific coast points. Evidence upon which the World's publication is based is provided by letters, telegrams, records of conversations and incidents occurring between May 7 and July 10 of the present year."

EXPERTS ARE CHOSEN TO ASSIST U. S. NAVY

Leaders of All Applied Sciences Will Aid Thomas Edison.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Secretary of the Navy Daniels has announced the names of the twenty-two scientists and inventors who, with Thomas A. Edison, the chairman, are to constitute an advisory board to assist the United States navy in its technical problems of development.

The members of the board were chosen by eleven scientific societies, each of which nominated two men. Each of them was chosen for the inventions he had made or the leadership held in his particular science. Mr. Edison was chosen by Secretary Daniels for the chairmanship of the board, the plan resulting in the creation of the body having been taken up first with Mr. Edison as the foremost inventor of this country.

Dr. Daniels announced that he had aranged for the first meeting of the advisory board to take place in his office at 11 o'clock on Wednesday, Oct. 6. At this meeting it is expected that the organization of the board will be effected and plans for the conduct of its work discussed. It is thought probable that the first organization will take the form of a division of the board into committees, to which will be assigned problems in particular fields of the navy's work, to which members will be assigned in acordance with their special fitness.

SIR WILLIAM VAN HORNE DIES

Famed Canadian Railroad Builder Got Start in Illinois.

MONTREAL, CAN. — Sir William Van Horne, for years prominent in transcontinental railroad development in Canada, is dead in the Royal Victoria hospital here.

Sir William Van Horne rose from the foot of the ladder to wealth and fame as one of the so-called empire builders of Canada. Although he was born in the United States, in Will county, Ill., Feb. 3, 1843, and gained railway experience through many years' connection with railroads in the central and western United States, it was after his moving to Canada and becoming general manager of the Canadian Pacific railway in 1882 that he achieved his most notable triumph by pushing the railway to completion across the continent.

Sir William Van Horne's body will be taken to Joliet, Ill., for burial after funeral services at his home Tuesday morning.

VON PAPEN WILL GO TO NEW POST

U. S. to Find Easy Way to Be Rid of Him.

VON BERNSTORFF AGREEABLE

Military Attache Mixed Up in Archibald Mess Will Be Shifted From Country—German Envoy Sees Lansing—Austria Is Likely to Recall Dumba.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The departure from the United States of Captain Franz Von Papen, military attache of the Germany embassy, will probably be arranged for here in a few days. This is now indicated here.

The situation involving Captain Von Papen in the matter which brought about the request for the recall of Dr. Dumba, the Austro-Hungarian ambassador, is recognized as most delicate. Nevertheless the attitude of this government is that Captain Von Papen has at the very least been guilty of an impropriety in attempting to transmit official reports to his government by using an American citizen as dispatch bearer and that this alone makes his further presence in this country as an accredited representative of his government quite undesirable. There is also reason to believe, officers say, that he was a party to Dr. Dumba's other offense in planning to conspire against American industry.

May Be Shifted.

On the other hand, the administration is not desirous of making trouble, and hence is reluctant to dismiss him peremptorily from his post at the German embassy here. Consequently it was considered that the problem might be solved best, and with the least embarrassment to either the German or American government by bringing about his assignment to other duties other than that of military attache of the embassy here.

Count Von Bernstorff saw Secretary Lansing today. It is believed that in the course of their discussions the Dumba matter came up and this afforded an opportunity for the reaching of an understanding with regard to the case of Captain Von Papen.

Officials are inclined to accept the unofficial reports from Europe indicating that the Vienna government will promptly accede to the request of the United States and will issue his recall at once. The incident is now regarded as practically ended so far as Ambassador Dumba personally is concerned.

HILL BOOSTS BIG WAR LOAN

Rail Magnate Hurries East at J. P. Morgan's Invitation.

ST. PAUL — James J. Hill arrived in New York this morning to aid in handling the largest financial deal in the world's history. He was asked to go to New York by J. P. Morgan to help direct the loan to European governments that will amount to from $500,000,000 to $1,000,000,000.

Hill is fully prepared for what a financial transaction may in large measure determine the course of the war. He will lay before the meeting data to show that if the loan is not made our surplus crops will be useless. He will insist that the loan be made to such nations as are trading with us, who are in a position to secure reasonably the loan with collateral.

PUTTING DAMP WHEAT IN SHAPE FOR HANDLING

Government Experiment Show Value of Mixing With Dry Wheat.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 9.—Much of the new crop of wheat as delivered from the farm this year has a high moisture content which if put into storage without special treatment is very likely to cause trouble by becoming musty and hot.

By mixing high-moisture and low moisture wheat together, a method whereby part of the damp wheat of this year's crop can be put into good condition was demonstrated in an experiment at Baltimore which was directed by a grain standardization specialist of the Department of Agriculture in cooperation with the Gambrill Manufacturing Company of that same city.

The experiment described was performed to determine if it would be possible or feasible to handle damp wheat in such a way that it would not be necessary to put it through a commercial drier and yet insure its keeping safely in storage or during shipment.

Two Grades Mixed

For this expetiment one car of Pacific Coast white wheat containing 1,098 bushels was mixed with one car of Eastern red winter wheat containing 1,125 bushels, and put into storage in an elevator bin. On July 29, samples taken from the white wheat while it was still in the car tested 9.7 percent in moisture. Samples taken from the red wheat on July 31 while this wheat was also still in the car tested 15.1 per cent. These wheats were thoroughly mixed on August 3 and the mixture was then put into storage in an elevator bin and allowed to remain there until August 6, when it was transferred to another bin. Samples taken from the August 6, when it was transferred to tested 12.9 per cent moisture for the red wheat and 12.2 per [illegible] white wheat. The wheat was allowed to remain in the second bin until August 10 when it was transferred to a third bin. Samples taken at this time showed that the moisture content of the red wheat was 12.5 per cent and of the white wheat, 12 per cent. While the grain was still in the car the red wheat tested higher in moisture by 5.4 per cent than the white wheat. By August 6, or three days after the wheats were mixed, enough of the moisture from the damp wheat had been transferred to the dry wheat so that the difference in their moisture content at that time was only seven-tenths of one per cent. By August 10, or one week after the wheats had been mixed, the difference in their moisture contents had been reduced to only one-half of one per cent.

No Change in Tempature

In order to have a record of the temperature changes in the grain during this experiment, four electrical thermometers were placed at different dephts in the bin into which the mixture was run. No appreciable change in temperature was noticed during the transfer of the moisture from the red to the white wheat.

The mixing of damp and dry wheat will facilitate the handling of the wet wheat this year. The miller who buys wet wheat and has some dry wheat to mix with it can obviate some of the extra work in handling the damp wheat to keep it in condition and also get it in shape for milling by mixing the two wheats together for a few days. This will also do away with part of the extra work in drying. One car of wheat can be dried down to a low moisture content and then mixed with another car of high moisture content wheat and time and labor be saved. If the mills or elevators are equipped so that they can mix and dry at the same, this method will greatly increase their capacity for taking care of large quantities of damp wheat.

FLORIDA REUNION

The fifth annual reunion of the Michigan Florida people met in Holloway Sept. 4, 1915, and assembled in the Grange Hall, where an hour was spent in greeting all old and new friends from far and near until dinner was announced in the dining room. It was bountifully served by the Ladies Aid of the Presbyterian church, 135 being fed. The tables were laden with all the good things one could wish and beautiful bouquets decorated each table. Place cards at each plate in the shape of the state of Florida tied with pink ribbon which read, "Florida Reunion Sept. 4, 1915 Holloway" were the souvenirs accompanied by a pretty flower for each guest.

Afterward the meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Wm. Cox of Holloway and all listened to a fine program. Instrumental music, H. A. Friedlander of Britton; Prayer, Rev. Hawkins of Holloway; Song "America"; Minutes of last meeting read and approved; Song, Mrs. E. C. Cook of Tipton; Reading, Mrs. Frank Molton of Eustis, Fla.; Class history, Mrs. Mary Biggs of Onsted; Music, Miss Leola VanNess of Britton; Reading, Mrs. L. T. Lochner of Adrian; Song, Rev. Hawkins of Holloway; Remarks, Dr. L. G. North of Tecumseh telling of his trip and visit to Yellowstone Park; Music, Miss Pearl Pocklington of Ridgeway; Song, H. A. Friedlander.

President—E. C. Cook of Tipton; Vice president—Jewett Whelan, Tipton; Secretary—Mrs. Mary C. Beals of Adrian; Historian, Mrs. H. L Ladd, Adrian.

An invitation was extended from Tipton which was accepted to meet next year the first Saturday in September 1916 in Tipton. Paul D. Warren, ticket agent of Toledo was present to ascertain how many were expecting to go to Florida to spend the winter. A rising vote of thanks was given the Ladies Aid for their fine dinner.

Miss Francis Pocklington Harding who was born December 1909, in Datona, Florida was guest of honor. Thursday closed another reunion most successful and enjoyable with a good-bye until we meet again.

AUTO ACCIDENT

Sunday night Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Harris two of their sons Eugene and Seth and Earl Conger, all of whom live some five miles south of town, started home from Adrian, when in the narrow road south of Spielman's nursery they met another car.

This machine to avoid a washout kept in the road necessitating Mr. Harris to turn close to the east side. The edge of the embankment on this side gave away and the car pitched over but fortunately struck a tree preventing a fall of 20 feet or more. The smash drove the front seat backward nearly to the rear pinioning Mrs. Harris who was sitting on the rear seat, beneath a bicycle which they were carrying between the seats.

She also received a severe blow over the right eye when her head was thrust through the braces. It took several men 10 or 15 minutes to liberate her when she was carried to the Spielman home and Dr. Bland of Adrian called.

After the wounds were dressed she was taken home and is now was about the house a little lame and bruised but not much the worse for the experience.

None of the others were hurt but the car was smashed badly. As this dangerous road is inside the Adrian city limits it seems that a light there would be a fine thing.

ONE SPOONFUL GIVES ASTONISHING RESULTS

Tecumseh residents are astonished at the QUICK results from the simple mixture of buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., known as Adler-i-ka. This remedy acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel and is THOROUGH a bowel cleanser that it is used successfully in appendicitis. ONE SPOONFUL of Adler-i-ka relieves almost ANY CASE of constipation, sour or gassy stomach. ONE MINUTE after you take it, the gasses rumble and pass out. B. J. Pulver. adv

WHEN YOU NEED A CORN BINDER

Some day you will meet somebody who will tell you he can sell you the best Corn Binder made. Then ask him if he can beat the Deering on these points—

The Deering ties bundles in the middle, whether corn is tall or short. It has 21 inches adjustment; other binders have eight

Both wheels are same height as a cart; does away with side draft.

With three horses the third does not walk over bundles.

If you went out in the fields to tie a bundle of grain or corn, would you try to tie it standing up? Of course you wouldn't. You would lay it down and then tie it. That is the way the Deering does it.

Other binders tie it standing up. That is one reason they are heavier draft than the Deering and one reason they knock off more ears.

Here's another point: if you buy a Deering of us, if anything breaks we have the biggest stock of repairs in this part of the state.

If you need help we will be there right away.

This service free the first year.

You will have to see our Tongue Truck to appreciate it. We have made arrangements to supply these trucks for binders purchased prior to this year at a small cost.

BIG GALA DAY

GIVEN BY TECUMSEH'S LIVE WIRES

Best Sports Day Ever Held Here

NO ONE HURT—EVERYBODY HAPPY

Things opened up Wednesday morning for the Gala Day with a biff! boom! bang! and went right along all day without a hitch.

The business portion was roped off and no autos or carriages allowed within so if a little one did stray away no harm could come to it. Flags of all nations with Old Glory predominating were suspended across the street and around each lamp post was clustered golden rod. The top lamp in each cluster was red so that when at night the lights were turned on the effect was beautiful. Band stands were placed at intervals to accommodate the Milan, Deerfield, Tipton and Clinton bands who gave us some fine music until far into the evening. Larger platforms had also been erected for the use of the vaudeville companies Many of the merchants and the Young Men club had stands and all seemed to do a rushing business These stands and the business places were handsomely decorated. The monster crowd were on deck early and fun began with their arrival.

Ben Beasley won the prize of $5.00 for bringing the most in a Ford car. He had 19 passengers packed on a Ford truck.

The first event was the 100 yd. dash which was won by E. Davidson, prize $5.00; 2nd, L. Young, $3.00 3rd, Gordon Bachman $2.00.

Doughnut eating contest, [illegible] Meads, $3.00; 2nd, C. French, $1.00.

Fat man's race, 1st, Ed Pritchard, $5.00; 2nd, Channing Beebe, $3.00; 3rd, Hiram Gove, prize $2.00.

Ladies Base Ball Throwing contest, 1st, Miss Myrna Service, $5.00 164 ft. 6 in.; 2nd, Henrietta Morgan, $3.00, 133 ft. 6in.; 3rd, Mrs. Clarence Shermon, $2.00, 121 ft.

Sack race, C. Glancy, $5.00.

Tug of war between Brewers and Heesen's foundry men won by Heesen's force, $15.00.

Right here the crowd managed to squeeze in 35 minutes for dinner and most every body ate down town. The hotel and restaurants were jammed, the hotel alone feeding over 300 for dinner.

Directly at 1:15 the program began again with the race for the greased pig. Whoever smeared that animal did a good job and she led the boys some race over the flower beds and lawn at the Shull home and when David Underwood of Britton came bringing her back to the crate it was hard to tell who had the most grease on him.

The ladies 100 yard dash followed with Nerissa Fitzsimmons winner, $5.00.

The 3-legged race finished the sports on the streets. Here Russell Blesing and Lester Waring were winners $3.00.

A big crowd attended the ball game which was the next feature. Yet down town the crowd seemed no smaller. Milan played Tecumseh the home boys coming off victors 2 to 8. Following is the score by innings:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Tecumseh	1	0	3	0	0	0	3	1

At 5 o'clock Chas. E. Cole of Adrian made a dandy balloon ascension with a triple parachute drop, something never before seen in Tecumseh.

The crowd in the evening was immense, many maskers were out and gave a grand parade at 8 o'clock. They were led by all the bands playing in unison with Will Ross as drum major. This seemed like ye olden time for some 20 years ago Will was major of our band.

The prizes were given as follows:

Best dressed lady, Florence Willnow,

Most comical, Anna Mitchell.

Best dressed man, Wiley McCann.

Most comical, Robt. Moore.

The streets were filled until a late hour with the happy throng watching the vaudeville performers who, by the way, were first class.

Ninety couples attended the dance in Witherell's hall, many Adrian and Milan people being present. Music was furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Will Coller.

The village owe a vote of thanks to the committee who got up this Gala Day:

Ex. Committee—Faron Anderson, Leon Temple, H. S. Temple, G. E. Belding, J. J. Belcher, Wade Jones, Floyd Heesen.

Sports—H. R. Brewer, L. P. Williamson

Vaudeville—Wade Jones, Billy Fisher.

Bands—W. T. Eccles.

Official judges—R. T. Meade, W. T. Eccles, E. C. Brown.

Concessions—F. G. Heesen, J. J. Belcher.

They certainly worked hard and gave us the best Sports Day Tecumseh has ever seen. Not a minute was wasted. There were no gaps and the addition of the vaudeville stunts to the usual sports made a fine day's programs. The work not only consisted of arranging the program but the fellows worked hard all day Tuesday until midnight putting up the stands and decorating.

At the Jones Toggery shop was a big bottle full of beans, peanuts, etc. E. N Satterthwaite gets $3.00 in trade for nearest guess on number of pieces in the bottle, 3,962; Arthur Laney, 2nd, 4,000, Hardy Greenfield, 3rd, 4004. Whole number pieces, 3,973 and there were about 500 guessers

Another guessing stunt was at the Lilley State Bank when guesses were made on the number of pennies in a big dish. The prizes were won as follows: 1st, Thos. Price, guess $84.03; 2nd, F. Arnold, $83.75; 3rd, Mabel Allison, $81.60; 4th, Inez Fay, $83.65; 5th Walter Milosh, $84.90; 6th D. E. Weiser, $83.36. The number of pennies was $84.17.

It was a very orderly crowd and our marshal and constables had nothing to do but enjoy the day along with the crowd and what has been remarked since, in that immense crowd there was not a single accident.

MRS. GRANT SCHREDER

The long sufferings of Mrs. Grant Schreder were ended Wednesday evening when she fell quietly asleep in death. For five long months the family have lovingly cared for the mother whose love for them no attention could repay and yet all feel that the suffering is mercifully ended.

Lydia Jack was born in Riga 45 years ago and married Grant Schreder in 1888. To the union were born one son Edwin and two daughters Anne and Mabel who are spared to comfort the husband. The mother, Mrs. Eliza Jack, a brother, Frank Jack, and three sisters, Mrs. Addie Shurtz, Mrs. Raymond Tucker and Mrs. Wm. French also live in Tecumseh.

Mrs. Schreder had endeared herself in many homes by her services as a nurse and leaves hosts of friends.

The funeral will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home, Rev. W. A. Rex pastor of the Presbyterian church of which deceased was a member, officiating.

ADRIAN FAIR NEXT WEEK

Everything is in readiness for Lenawee's county fair which opens in Adrian Monday and extends through the week. If the weather is favorable the big fair will gather people from all over the county. The management promises many new features and are making it the biggest event of the year.

NEWLY WEDS ENTERTAINED BY FRIENDS

Tuesday evening while Mr. and Mrs. Fred Poucher were calmly enjoying each other's company and reading the Tecumseh Herald, a party of some 35 friends and relatives walked in on them equipped with horns, refreshments for the evening and some splendid presents. The guests felt that the newly-weds had not properly considered their feeling in not advertising the date of their wedding so got even in this manner.

They made the echoes ring with the horns and spent the evening congratulating Mr. and Mrs. Poucher and in having fun at their expense. Everybody had a jolly evening of course.

FUNERAL OF MISS JENNINGS

A large assemblage of friends gathered at the Methodist parsonage Tuesday afternoon to do honor to the memory of Miss Lelia, the daughter of the pastor and wife, Rev. and Mrs. G. W. Jennings. Rev. D. H. Ramsdell of Ann Arbor, presiding elder of the Ann Arbor district, officiated, assisted by Rev. F. Hewitt, Rev. Johnson of Clinton and Rev. Scofield of Manchester. The village clergy attended in a body as also did the Epworth League of which she was a devoted member. Many friends from all over the state as well as of the home church sent beautiful floral tokens.

Among the out-of-town people who came for the funeral were Miss Winnifred and Ben Jennings of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Jennings, Flint; Mrs. Joseph Allison, Eaton Rapids; Miss Nettie Johnston, Lima, O.; Mrs. R. G. Burnett, Port Huron; Mrs. Frank Pettibone, Mrs. John Rosso, Mt. Clemens; Miss Gladys Jennings, Owosso; Miss Ethel Marsh, Pontiac.

MICHIGAN SWEPT BY STORM

DETROIT, MICH. — Southern Michigan is recovering from one of the worst wind and rain storms of the 1915 season. From Lake Michigan to the Thumb section and as far south as Detroit and Monroe the storm swept with fierce fury, leveling crops, sweeping down telegraph and telephone lines, delaying railway service, and causing injury to numerous persons. Property damage will run into hundreds of thousands of dollars.

At Grand Rapids rain and lightning there caused $40,000 damage. Lightning and wind hit the factory district at Ionia, endangering the lives of more than twenty workmen and doing damage estimated at $25,000. Growing crops in the vicinity of Jackson were lashed and destroyed. Hail stones as large as walnuts crashed down over that district.

TRAGEDY ATTENDS RAT HUNT

Boy Shoots at Rodent Without Noticing Chum Who Is Killed.

SAULT STE. MARIE, MICH. — The new state rat bounty law figured in a tragedy in this city and resulted in the death of the six year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Robinson.

Several youngsters were engaged in a rat hunt in a barn. Young Robinson was searching for a lost cartridge when he was hit by a bullet from a small rifle in the hands of Cecil Osterman. He died almost instantly. Evidently Robinson had scared a rat from its hiding place and the Osterman boy shot at the animal without noticing his chum.

CHAPTER XV.

Wayland Hears From Home.

IT was almost noon of the fourth day when the supervisor called up to say that he was at the office and would reach the ranch at 6 o'clock.

"I wish you would come home at once," his wife argued, and something in her voice convinced him that he was more needed at home than in the town.

Mrs. McFarlane met him at the hitching bar, and it required but a glance for him to read in her face a troubled state of mind.

"This has been a disastrous trip for Berrie," she said after one of the hands had relieved the supervisor of his horse.

"In what way?"

She was a bit impatient. "Mrs. Belden is filling the valley with the story of Berrie's stay in camp with Mr. Norcross."

Wayland showed a graver [illegible]. "It couldn't be helped. The horses had to be followed, and that youngster could not do it, and, besides, I expected to get back that night. Nobody but an old snoop like Seth Belden would think evil of our girl, and, besides, Norcross is a man to be trusted."

"Of course he is, but the Beldens are ready to think evil of any one connected with us. And Cliff's assault on Wayland"—

He looked up quickly. "Assault! Did he make trouble?"

"Yes. He overtook them on the trail and would have killed Norcross if Berrie hadn't interfered. He was crazy with jealousy."

"Nash didn't say anything about any assault."

"He didn't know it. Berrie told him that Norcross fell from his horse."

"Good God! I never suspected a word of this. I didn't think he'd do that."

He fixed another penetrating look upon her face, and his voice was vibrant with anxiety as he said, "You don't think there's anything—wrong?"

"No, nothing wrong, but she's profoundly in love with him. I never have seen her so wrapped up in any one. She thinks of nothing else. It scares me to see it, for I've studied him closely and I can't believe he feels the same toward her. His world is so different from ours. I don't know what to do or say. I fear she is in for a period of great unhappiness."

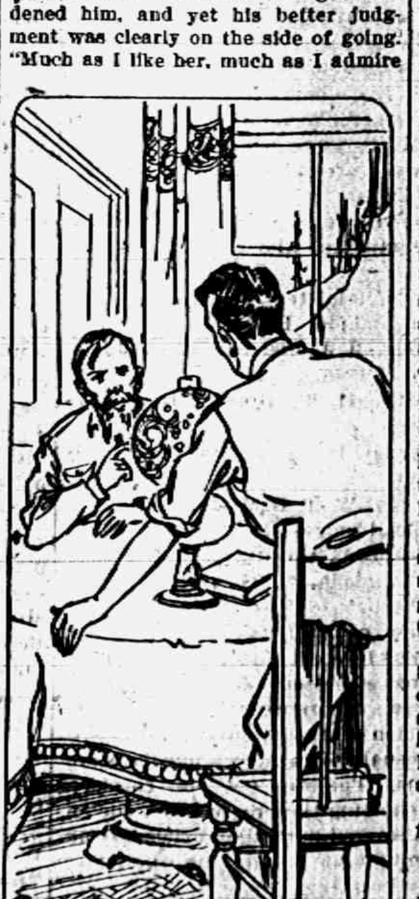
The return of the crew from the corral cut short this conference, and when McFarlane went in Berrie greeted him with such frank and joyous expression that all his fears vanished.

"Did you come over the high trail?" she asked.

"No, I came your way. I didn't want to take any chances of getting mired. It's still raining up there," he answered; then turned to Wayland: "Here's your mail, Norcross, a whole hatful of it—and one telegram in the bunch. Hope it isn't serious."

Wayland took the bundle of letters and retired to his room, glad to escape the persistent stare of the cowhands. The dispatch was from his father and was curt and specific as a command: "Shall be in Denver on the 23d. Meet me at the Palmer House. Am on my way to California. Come prepared to join me on the trip."

With the letters unopened in his lap he sat in silent thought, profoundly troubled by the instant decision which this message demanded of him. At first glance nothing was simpler than to pack up and go. He was only a tourist in the valley, with no intention of staying, but there was Berea! To go meant a violent end of their pleasant romance. To think of flight saddened him, and yet his better judgment was clearly on the side of going. "Much as I like her, much as I admire her, I cannot marry her. The simplest way is to frankly tell her so and go. It seems cowardly, but in the end she will be happier."



"Good Lord," exclaimed Norcross in sudden realization of the gravity of the case, "what beasts they are!"

His letters carried him back into his own world. One was from Will Halliday, who was going with Professor Holsman on an exploring trip up the Nile. "You must join us. Holsman has promised to take you on." Another classmate wrote to know if he did not want to go into a land deal on the gulf of Mexico. A girl asked: "Are you to be in New York this winter? I am. I've decided to go into this suffrage movement." And so, one by one, the threads which bound him to eastern city life respun their filaments. After all, this Colorado outing, even though it should last two years, would only be a vacation. His real life was in the cities of the east. Charming as Berea was, potent as she seemed, she was, after all, a fixed part of the mountain land and not to be taken from it. At the moment marriage with her appeared absurd.

A knock at his door and the supervisor's voice gave him a keen shock. "Come in," he called, springing to his feet with a thrill of dread, of alarm.

McFarlane entered slowly and shut the door behind him. His manner was serious and his voice gravely gentle as he said, "I hope that telegram does not call you away."

"It is from my father asking me to meet him in Denver," answered Norcross, with faltering breath. "He's on his way to California. Won't you sit down?"

The older man took a seat with quiet dignity. "Seems like a mighty fine chance, don't it? I've always wanted to see the coast. When do you plan for to pull out?"

"I haven't decided to go at all. I'm still dazed by the suddenness of it. I didn't know my father was planning this trip."

"I see. Well, before you decide to go I'd like to have a little talk with you. My daughter has told me part of what happened to you on the trail. I want to know all of it. You're young, but you've been out in the world, and you know what people can say about you and my girl." His voice became level and menacing as he added, "And I don't intend to have her put in wrong on account of you."

Norcross was quick to reply. "Nobody will dare accuse her of wrongdoing. She's a noble girl. No one will dare to criticise her for what she could not prevent."

"You don't know the Beldens. My girl's character will be on trial in every house in the county tomorrow. The Belden side of it will appear in the city papers. Sympathy will be with Clifford. Berrie will be made an issue by my enemies. They'll get me through her."

"Good Lord," exclaimed Norcross in sudden realization of the gravity of the case, "what beasts they are!"

"Moore's gang will seize upon it and work it hard." McFarlane went on. with calm insistence. "They want to bring the district forester down on me. This is a fine chance to badger me. They will make a great deal of my putting you on the roll. Our little camping trip is likely to prove a serious matter to us all."

"Surely you don't consider me at fault."

Worried as he was, the father was just. "No, you're not to blame. No one is to blame. It all dates back to the horses quitting camp. But you've got to stand pat now for Berrie's sake."

"But what can I do? I'm at your service. What role shall I play? Tell me what to do and I will do it."

McFarlane was staggered, but he answered: "You can at least stay on the ground and help fight. This is no time to stampede."

"You're right. I'll stay, and I'll make any statement you see fit. I'll do anything that will protect Berrie."

McFarlane again looked him squarely in the eyes. "Is there a—an agreement between you?"

"Nothing formal—that is, I mean I admire her, and I told her"— He stopped, feeling himself on the verge of the irrevocable. "She's a splendid girl," he went on. "I like her exceedingly, but I've known her only a few weeks."

McFarlane interrupted. "Girls are flighty critters," he said sadly. "I don't know why she's taken to you so terrible strong, but she has. She don't seem to care what people say so long as they do not blame you. But if you should pull out you might just as well cut her heart to pieces"— His voice broke, and it was a long time before he could finish. "You're not at fault—I know that—but if you can stay on a little while and make it an ounce or two easier for her and for her mother I wish you'd do it."

Wayland extended his hand impulsively. "Of course I'll stay. I never really thought of leaving." In the grip of McFarlane's hand was something warm and tender.

Berrie could not be entirely deceived. She read in her father's face a subtle change of line which she related to something Wayland had said. "Did he tell you what was in the telegram? Has he got to go away?" she asked anxiously.

"Yes, he said it was from his father."

"What does his father want of him?"

"He's on his way to California and wants Wayland to go with him, but Wayland says he's not going."

A pang shot through Berrie's heart. "He mustn't go—he isn't able to go," she exclaimed, and her pain, her fear, came out in her sharpened, constricted tone. "I won't let him go—till he's well."

Mrs. McFarlane gently interposed. "He'll have to go, honey, if his father needs him."

"Let his father come here." She rose and, going to his door, decisively knocked. "May I come in?" she demanded rather than asked before her mother could protest. "I must see you."

Wayland opened the door, and she entered, leaving her parents facing each other in mute helplessness.

Mrs. McFarlane turned toward her husband with a face of despair. "She's ours no longer, Joe. Our time of bereavement has come."

He took her in his arms. "There, there, mother, don't cry. It can't be helped. You cut loose from your parents and came to me in just the same way. Our daughter's a grown woman and must have her own life. All we can do is to defend her against the coyotes who are busy with her name."

"But what of him, Joe; he don't care for her as she does for him. Can't you see that?"

"He'll do the right thing, mother; he told me he would. He knows how much depends on his staying here now, and he intends to do it."

"But in the end, Joe, after this scandal is lived down, will he marry her? And if he marries her can they live together and be happy? His way of life is so different. He can't content himself here, and she can't fit in where he belongs. It all seems hopeless to me. Wouldn't it be better for her to suffer for a little while now than to make a mistake that may last a lifetime?"

"Mebbe it would, mother, but the decision is not ours. She's too strong for us to control. She's of age, and if she comes to a full understanding of the situation she can decide the question a whole lot better than either of us."

"That's true," she sighed. "In some ways she's bigger and stronger than both of us. Sometimes I wish she were not so self reliant."

When Wayland caught the startled look on Berrie's face he knew that she had learned from her father the contents of his telegram and that she would require an explanation.

"Are you going away?" she asked.

"Yes. At least, I must go down to Denver to see my father. I shall be gone only overnight."

"And will you tell him about our trip?" she pursued, with unflinching directness. "And about—me?"

He gave her a chair and took a seat himself before replying. "Yes, I shall tell him all about it and about you and your father and mother. He shall know how kind you've all been to me."

He said this bravely, and at the moment he meant it, but as his father's big, impassive face and cold, keen eyes came back to him his courage sank, and in spite of his firm resolution some part of his secret anxiety communicated itself to the girl, who asked many questions with intent to find out more particularly what kind of man the elder Norcross was.

Wayland's replies did not entirely reassure her. He admitted that his father was harsh and domineering in character and that he was ambitious to have his son take up and carry forward his work. "He was willing enough to have me go to college till he found I was specializing on wrong lines. Then I had to fight in order to keep my place. He's glad I'm out here, for he thinks I'm regaining my strength. But just as soon as I'm well enough he expects me to go to Chicago and take charge of the western office. Of course I don't want to do that. I'd rather work out some problem in chemistry that interests me, but I may have to give in for a time at least."

"Will your mother and sisters be with your father?"

"No, indeed! You couldn't get any one of them west of the Hudson river with a log chain. My sisters were both born in Michigan, but they want to forget it. They pretend they have forgotten it. They both have New Yorkitis. Nothing but the big hotels will do them now."

"I suppose they think we're all 'Injuns' out here?"

"Oh, no, not so bad as that. But they wouldn't comprehend anything about you except your muscle. That would catch 'em. They'd worship your splendid health, just as I do. It's pitiful the way they both try to put on weight. They're always testing some new food, some new tonic. They'll do anything except exercise regularly and go to bed at 10 o'clock."

CHAPTER XVI.

Deserting the Ranch.

ALL that Wayland said of his family deepened Berrie's dismay. Their interests were so alien to her own.

"I'm afraid to have you go even for a day," she admitted, with simple honesty, which moved him deeply. "I don't know what I should do if you went away. I think of nothing but you now."

Her face was pitiful, and he put his arm about her neck as if she were a child. "You mustn't do that. You must go on with your life just as if I'd never been. Think of your father's job—of the forest and the ranch."

"I can't do it. I've lost interest in the service. I never want to go into the high country again, and I don't want you to go either. It's too savage and cruel."

"That is only a mood," he said confidently. "It is splendid up there. I shall certainly go back some time."

"Of course, we are not rich, but we are not poor, and my mother's family is one of the oldest in Kentucky." She uttered this with a touch of her mother's quiet dignity. "Your father need not despise us."

"So far as my father is concerned, family don't count and neither does money. But he confidently expects me to take up his business in Chicago, and I suppose it is my duty to do so. If he finds me looking fit he may order me into the ranks at once."

"I'll go there. I'll do anything you want me to do," she urged. "You can tell your father that I'll help you in the office. I can learn. I'm ready to use a typewriter—anything."

He was silent in the face of her naive expression of self sacrificing love, and after a moment she added hesitatingly: "I wish I could meet your father. Perhaps he'd come up here if you asked him to do so."

He seized upon the suggestion. "By George, I believe he would! I don't want to go to town. I just believe I'll wire him that I'm laid up here and can't come."

A knock at the door interrupted Wayland, and Mrs. McFarlane's voice, filled with new excitement, called out, "Berrie, the district office is on the wire!"

Berrie opened the door and confronted her mother, who said, "Mr. Evingham phones that the afternoon papers contain an account of a fight at Coal City between Settle and one of Alec Belden's men and that the district forester is coming down to investigate it."

"Let him come," answered Berrie defiantly. "He can't do us any harm. What was the row about?"

"I didn't hear much of it. Your father was at the phone."

"What is it all about, father?" asked Berrie.

"Why, it seems that after I left yesterday Settle rode down the valley with Belden's outfit, and they all got to drinking, ending in a row, and Tony beat one of Belden's men almost to death. The sheriff has gone over to get Tony, and the Beldens declare they're going to railroad him. That means we'll all be brought into it. Belden has seized the moment to prefer charges against me for keeping Settle in the service and for putting a nonresident on the roll as guard. The whelp will dig up everything he can to queer me with the office. All that kept him from doing it before was Cliff's interest in you."

"Of course he can't. He knows that. But he can bring us all into court. You and Mr. Norcross will both be called as witnesses, for it seems that Tony was defending your name. The papers call it 'a fight for a girl.' Oh, it's a sweet mess. You and Berrie and Mrs. McFarlane must get out of here before you are subpoenaed."

"That won't do," retorted McFarlane quickly. "That won't do at all. You must go with them. I can take care of myself. I will not have you dragged into this muckhole."

Berrie now argued against running away. Her blood was up. She joined her mother. "We won't leave you to inherit all this trouble. Who will look after the ranch? Who will keep house for you?"

McFarlane remained firm. "I'll manage. Don't worry about me. Just get out of reach. The more I consider this thing the more worrisome it gets. Suppose Cliff should come back to testify?"

"He won't. If he does I'll have him arrested for trying to kill Wayland," retorted Berrie.

"And make the whole thing worse! No; you are all going to cross the range. You can start out as if for a little turn round the valley and just naturally keep going. It can't do any harm, and it may save a nasty time in court."

"One would think we were a lot of criminals," remarked Wayland.

"That's the way you'll be treated," retorted [illegible] has retained old Whitby, the foulest old brute in the business, and he'll bring you all into it if he can."

"Not entirely, but talk and testimony are two different things. Suppose they call daughter to the stand? Do you want her cross examined as to what basis there was for this gossip? They know something of Cliff's being let out and that will inflame them. He may be at the mill this minute."

"I guess you're right," said Norcross sadly. "Our delightful excursion into the forest has led us into a predicament from which there is only one way of escape, and that is flight."

McFarlane was again called to the telephone. Landon, with characteristic brevity, conveyed to him the fact that Mrs. Belden was at home and busily phoning scandalous stories about the country. "If you don't stop her she's going to poison every ear in the valley," ended the ranger.

"You'd think they'd all know my daughter well enough not to believe anything Mrs. Belden says," responded McFarlane bitterly.

"All the boys are ready to do what Tony did. But nobody can stop this old fool's mouth but you. Cliff has disappeared, and that adds to the excitement."

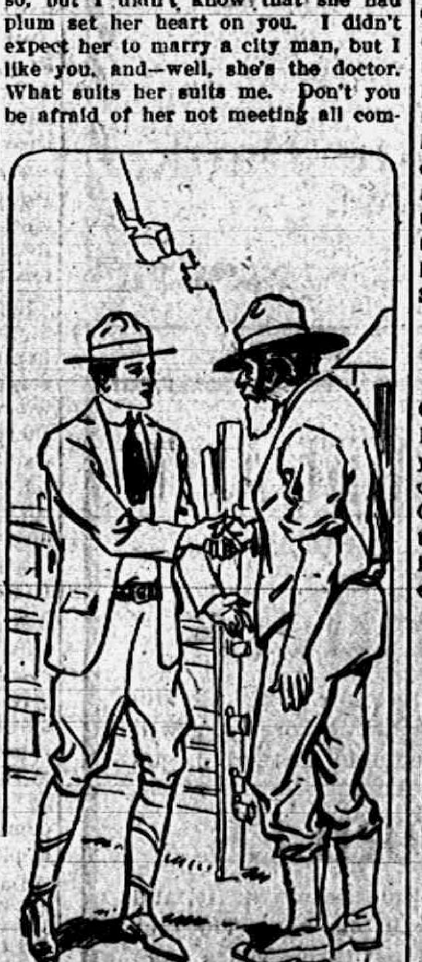
"Thank the boys for me," said McFarlane, "and tell them not to fight. Tell 'em to keep cool. It will all be cleared up soon."

As McFarlane went out to order the horses hooked up Wayland followed him as far as the bars. "I'm conscience smitten over this thing, supervisor, for I am aware that I am the cause of all your trouble."

"Don't let that worry you," responded the older man. But he spoke with effort. "It can't be helped. It was all unavoidable."

"The most appalling thing to me is the fact that not even your daughter's popularity can neutralize the gossip of a woman like Mrs. Belden. My being an outsider counts against Berrie, and I'm ready to do anything—anything," he repeated earnestly. "I love your daughter, Mr. McFarlane, and I'm ready to marry her at once if you think best. She's a noble girl, and I cannot bear to be the cause of her calumniation."

There was mist in the supervisor's eyes as he turned them on the young man. "I'm right glad to hear you say that, my boy." He reached out his hand, and Wayland took it. "I knew you'd say the word when the time came. I didn't know how strongly she felt toward you till today. I knew she liked you, of course, for she said so, but I didn't know that she had plum set her heart on you. I didn't expect her to marry a city man, but I like you, and—well, she's the doctor. What suits her suits me. Don't you be afraid of her not meeting all comers." He went on after a pause, "She's never seen much of city life, but she'll hold her own anywhere, you can gamble on that."



"I'm right glad to hear you say that, my boy."

"She has wonderful adaptability, I know," answered Wayland slowly. "But I don't like to take her away from here—from you."

WAR LOAN MAY BE HALF BILLION

Expressions from Various U. S. Interests Differ.

ROCKEFELLER ASKED TO JOIN

Cotton Growers Will Take Collaterals on Warehouse Receipts—Wheat Growers Want Money, Being Educated to Plan—Munition Men Want Gold—Loan Is Assured.

New York, Sept. 17.—The impression is spreading in financial circles that the Anglo-French financial mission may be satisfied to establish a credit for their countries of less than one billion dollars, the figure originally given.

Various sums are mentioned as the true one, these varying all the way from $800,000,000 down to $500,000,000. It may be emphatically stated, however, that nothing came from the members of the mission itself, indicating that they are willing to accept any less sum than the one first set forth. The reductions were made by American bankers who admit that they are expressing a personal opinion. It is added significantly by one man that while they might take $500,000,000 there is nothing to prevent them from coming back for another such sum next year if the war continues. The advantages of such a huge credit to the growers of wheat, corn, oats and other grains as well as to cotton growers will become so well understood by that time that the task will be easier. To all practical purposes substantially the same money will be ready for reinvestment.

Upon one thing the American bankers are all agreed and that is that so far the mission has stood firm on the principle that the indebtedness must be in one form—straight bonds of England and France jointly without collateral security but having priority over every form of national indebtedness of the two countries including all war loans. On the question of interest there is general agreement that the mission stands firm on 5 per cent. That does not mean that the countries would receive the full face of the loan, for it was generally thought that the commission of the syndicate will make the interest to be paid 5½ per cent. The position seems to be that the ideas of the Anglo-French mission have become well known to American financiers and they have expressed their views. Not all the American bankers have been heard from and there are engagements running some days ahead for them to do so.

Loan May Be in Three Parts.

It is said that every man or every section has a different opinion and desires to express it. The banks from the wheat growing sections appear to be fairly well educated to the necessity for the loan. The cotton section wants money and desires it upon their warehouse receipts. The manufacturers, particularly of munitions of war, want gold. Out of those diversified expressions has risen the report that the loan may be in three parts. One portion of it for commodities is to be without collateral. A second portion for cotton is to be based on the warehouse receipts, and a third, for munitions, is to have a form of collateral.

John D. Jr. Aids Loan.

New York, Sept. 17.—Standard Oil millionaires, including John D. Rockefeller Jr., it is reported, are considering the terms of the proposed billion dollar credit loan to Great Britain and France with a view to participating.

Details of the proposed loans have been placed before Mr. Rockefeller and his associates, it is said, by J. P. Morgan, the fiscal agent in this country of Great Britain and France. Mr. Morgan called at the Standard Oil offices. Other conferences, it is said, are being held.

Cargo for U. S. on Fire.

Liverpool, Sept. 17.—A disastrous fire broke out in the Johnston liner Quermore at the Hornby docks. The liner was loading a cargo of hemp, jute and general goods for Baltimore.

Ionia, Mich., Sept. 17—The proposed Wolverine Paved way was boosted by Portland, Ionia, Saranac and Lowell at a meeting here at the city hall.

TWO MEN LOSE LIVES IN MICHIGAN CYCLONE

Two Others Hurt; Property Loss Heavy in Many Localities.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Sept. 17.—Moses Burke of Big Rapids and Kenneth Fookes of Alma were instantly killed by lightning, two men were injured, and great damage done at Grandville and Holland by a near cyclone which swept this section of the state.

Bert Ebeling of Saugatuck was badly injured when a gust of wind blew a load of hay over, burying him beneath it. Lyman Hildreth, a Grandville undertaker, was injured when a telephone pole was toppled over on his team and wagon.

Standish, Mich., Sept. 17.—During a cyclone which swept this section the roofs of part of the International Milk Products company's plant of this city were blown off. Several barns were demolished. The Methodist church of Bentley, twelve miles west, was partly blown down. A rough estimate places the damage at $50,000 in this section alone. One or two persons were reported killed near Tittabawassee river by falling trees and barns.

FRANCE CALLS BOYS 18, MEN 47 TO DUTY

M. Ribot, Minister of Finance, Calls For New Credit.

Paris, Sept. 17.—The government introduced a bill calling to the colors the class of 1917, the date to be fixed by the minister of war. The bill also provides that the class of 1888 hold themselves in readiness for service at the disposition of the war minister until the end of the war.

The government bill, which probably will be passed at once, without debate, brings to the colors French youths of eighteen years and orders men of forty-seven years who are still fit for service to hold themselves in readiness.

About 350,000 French boys, many of them now in school, may be ordered to training camps to prepare for the trenches under the provisions of the act.

Minister of Finance Ribot's memoranda accompanying the bill introduced in the chamber of deputies appropriating $1,240,000,000 for the expenses of the last quarter of the year, say France already has advanced $150,000,000 to her allies.

According to the most recent financial reports, M. Ribot said, "the average monthly war expenses of Russia were $360,000,000; Germany's monthly war expenses approach $500,000,000, while Great Britain's exceed this amount.

Minister Ribot concluded by alluding to the early issue of a national loan.

JOLT TO PACKERS NOT UNEXPECTED

Appeal from Prize Court on Meat Will Be Taken.

$15,000,000 IS CONDEMNED

British Tribunal Renders Decision on Big U. S. Cargoes on Four Ships—Says Supplies Were Destined to Germany—State Department May Be Appealed to Later.

London, Sept. 17.—A. R. Urion, representative of the Chicago packers, speaking with reference to the prize court decisions concerning the American packers' products, said:

"Our intention is to carry the matter to an appeal to the privy council which meets in October. Should this appeal fail, which we hope it will not, then it will be necessary for the American state department to conduct diplomatic negotiations concerning our products. If the two governments are unable to agree it will probably be necessary eventually to appoint an international commission."

Involves $15,000,000.

The amount involved in the British prize court decision is 3,000,000 pounds. As far as the American packers are concerned, their feeling is considerably aroused by the fact that the greater part of the product, if sold at auction, will bring prices lower than production in Chicago.

Decision Was Looked For.

Washington, Sept. 17.—Much interest was expressed at the state department in the reports of the decision of the British prize courts in the cases of the American packers whose goods to the value of more than $15,000,000 are now under orders of confiscation by the British government.

The adverse decision of the court in the majority of the claims arising from the cases of the four ships involved was no surprise here. It had been anticipated as a result of the proceedings before the court. There is reason to believe that the decision does not come as a surprise to the packers themselves. While interested in the case not only because of the principles involved but also because of its magnitude and the volume of American trade likely to be effected thereby, the state department has taken no direct or official part in it.

There is no expectation that the United States will take any part in the case now that it has been decided against the Americans' interests. The only ground for the intervention of the government in behalf of the claimants, the charge that there has been a denial of justice, cannot be claimed by a government on behalf of its citizen claimants before another government until the claimants have exhausted all legal resources open to them. Since the prize court in rendering its decision gave notice to the American claimants that they might appeal the court's decision, it is not expected here that the government will be asked until the appeal has been taken and a decision rendered.

GERMANS CLAIM BIG GAINS NEAR VERDUN

Berlin Reports Teutons Have Passed "Limit" Trenches.

Berlin, Sept. 17.—What may prove to be the greatest victory achieved by the Germans in the western theater of war since their initial rush into France is officially announced by the war office. The smashing advance against the French line, bending it backward to the west of Verdun, imperils that great French stronghold more seriously than ever before.

The official report says:

"The troops under General Von Mudre at 8 o'clock in the morning commenced the hottest artillery fire ever heard, demolishing the enemy's trenches and shaking the morale of the French troops. Hell reigned for three hours and at 11 o'clock the German regiments suddenly rushed forward and stormed the trenches with bayonets, taking many of the trenches.

"By noon the line defined as the limit was passed by the irresistible Germans, whose losses have been comparatively small."

Auustria Got Wilson Note the 10th.

Washington, Sept. 17.—Announcement is made at the state department of the receipt of a message from the American legation at Berne, Switzerland, stating that the note asking for the recall of Ambassador Dumba was delivered in Vienna on Sept. 10.

A Potato Race.

Children of all ages (except the baby) enjoy greatly a potato race. Two rows of potatoes are laid along the ground for a distance of a hundred feet or so, about five feet apart. A basket or pail is placed at the end of the row from which the contestants start. Two persons begin together, each having a spoon, and they must pick up the potatoes, one at a time, on the spoon without touching it with the hand, and carry it safely and drop it in the basket. One may select the potatoes in any order one pleases, but must make a separate trip for each potato. Sometimes they fling the potatoes from a distance, but if it falls short it must be picked up and placed in the basket. Whoever gets his potatoes in first is the winner of these two; then two others enter the contest. After all the company have had their turn the winners are pitted against each other until there is only one remaining, who is pronounced the champion.

RUSS HURL AUSTRIAN RIGHT WING 20 MILES

Petrograd Claims Substantial Victories in Galicia.

Petrograd, Sept. 17.—The Austrian right wing has been shattered and thrown back nearly twenty miles in the fighting in southeast Galicia. The Russian pursuit continues and Slav detachments have crossed the Strypa and now occupy positions on the western bank. The number of Austrian prisoners exceed 3,000.

Official dispatches indidate that the Austrian retreat extends northward to near Brody. German divisions have lost heavily in the fighting before Tarnopol.

The Austrians who attempted to approach Rovno have been beaten back in the Rovno-Dubno fortress district.

Berlin, Sept. 17.—The German forces have captured Pinsk, an official statement from the war office announces. The city was taken by the forces under Field Marshal Mackensen, who have pushed steadily eastward from Brest Litovsk since the fall of the latter fortress.

General Von Hindenburg has made further important progress on the Riga-Dvinsk line, particularly toward Jacobstadt, it was officially announced, driving the Russians to the east bank of the Owina near Lievenhof.

SHERMAN INJURED BY PRANK

U. S. Senator Cut by Flying Glass When Boy Hits Car.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 17.—United States Senator L. Y. Sherman of Illinois was cut severely on the face and hands by glass when a stone was thrown through the window of a parlor car of the west bound Vandalia train between Collinsville and East St. Louis at 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

The stone is believed to have been thrown by two boys who were seen walking along the track. It broke the window in front of where Senator Sherman was sitting. The shattering glass flew into his face.

Chicagoan Averts Bullet.

Janesville, Wis., Sept. 17.—E. Evenson of Chicago narrowly escaped being shot by Charles Harmong, a policeman, when the latter found Evenson drilling at the vaults of the First National bank. Evenson was repairing the rim lock of the vault and no one had told the police authorities that he was to be in the bank after hours.

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 17.—Governor Henderson has signed the new Alabama compulsory education bill, requiring every child between the ages of eight and fifteen years to attend school eighty days or more each year.

WOMAN IS FATALLY BURNED

Neighbor Saves Own Baby; Food City Explosion Victim Will Die.

Battle Creek, Mich., Sept. 17.—Mrs. Wirt Muscott, thirty-eight years old, was fatally burned while canning peaches when parafine, which she was using to seal the cans, caught fire and ignited her hair and clothing. Every inch of her body was burned to the knees.

Firemen rushed her to Nichols hospital in Chief W. P. Weeks' car, but her life cannot be saved. Mrs. Jennie Stevens, a neighbor, carried her own baby to safety and returned too late to save Mrs. Muscott.

MOTHER CHARGES ASSAULT

Ludington, Mich., Sept. 17.—Accused of having chloroformed and criminally assaulted Mrs. John Clapper at her home in this city, Clifton Beebe has been arrested.

Mrs. Clapper, mother of three children, identified Beebe as her assailant, say the police. Beebe, a Ludington boy, about twenty-two years old, protests his innocence.

SAN-YAK

is the greatest rectifier for the blood and skin yet known. Greasy skin with pimples, blotches, eruptions or scrofula easily cleared away. Its use leaves the blood and skin as pure as the lillies. SAN-JAK for the stomach, nerves and blood is the best the world ever saw. SAN-JAK prevents the excessive flow of poison of fluid into the blood from the super renal glands near the kidneys, causing the arteries to harden in the years past 50. This preventative keeps the arteries soft and flexible, giving flexibility to the muscles as in youth.

You can feel well and active at any age from 60 to 90 years. Man should die from old age, not from diseased tissue. Mothers and daughters can avoid many dangerous operations by the use of this wonderful medicine. The use of SAN-JAK for pain in the back and abdomen greatly lessens the danger of appendicitis. $1.00 per bottle. Get SAN-JAK at

MISSIONARY CONFERENCE

Presbyterian Ladies Hostesses for Missionary Societies of Tecumseh and Clinton

On Friday evening was held a conference of the Missionary societies of Tecumseh and Clinton, the ladies being the guests of the Presbyterian Woman's Missionary society in their church parlors. Ladies were present from each society and enjoyed a social session after which the following program was given:

XXIII Psalm—Audience

Prayer—Mrs. Alva Waring

Address of Welcome—Mrs. Chas. Kamp

Vocal solo—Mrs. L. W. Kimball Clinton

Conference discussion in which a delegate from each society gave an account of the work they had accomplished.

Presbyterian—Mrs. F. D. Rector

Westminster Guild—Mrs. Floyd Ager

Methodist—Home, Mrs. Alva Waring. Foreign Mrs. John McIntyre

Baptist—Mrs. Jay Morse

Friends—Miss Edith Ingersoll

Episcopal—Mrs. T. C. Harris

Clinton Methodist—Mrs. Clack

Clinton Congregational—Mrs. Latham

Vocal solo—Mrs. Eugene Rosacrans

Address—Mrs. Latham

Vocal solo—Mrs. R. S. Moore

Refreshments of punch and cake were served by the Guild girls and the Clinton ladies bade their hostesses "Good Night."

Today there was quite an exodus of students from Tecumseh for the M. A. C., Anna Carson, Wilfred Mills, Ed Sayles and Harold Halladay being among the number.

DINNER PARTY

Mrs. W. W. Shurtz entertained last Thursday for dinner in honor of Mrs. Ida Lanning of Detroit. Those present were Mrs. Thos. Shurtz, Mrs. Harold Halsey of Palmyra, Mesdames Vedder, Hooten, Gove and Louis Jones of Tecumseh, Mrs. Harrison of Tipton and Addie and Glenn Lanning of Detroit.

MRS. MARY E. MOREHOUSE

Mary Elizabeth Spurr was born at Forest Hill, Digby, Nova Scotia, Dec. 9, 1821. On Dec. 9, 1841, she married James Hall Morehouse of Digby, Nova Scotia. They went to live in Bear River, Digby county, in June, 1854. From there with children and grandchildren, in June, 1880, they went to Milwaukee, Wis. Then to Jewell City, Kansas, and in October, 1886, Mrs. Morehouse came with her invalid husband to Tecumseh where she has lived with her daughter Mrs. Annie Bryant Smith for 29 years until September 16 when she passed to the Heavenly Country, her husband having preceded her on Oct. 5, 1890.

Their daughter Lizzie died in 1878 and son Jamie died in infancy. Two daughters remain, Mrs. Annie Bryant Smith of Tecumseh and Mrs. Alice May Henderson of Olds, Alberta, Canada. Three grandchildren Mrs. Grace B. Austin of Tecumseh, Miss Faith T. Henderson and Frank M. Henderson of Olds, Alberta, Can.

Mrs. Morehouse was a member of the Wesleyan Methodist church from her girlhood, an earnest White Ribboner, a daily student of the Bible, a loving wife and mother and was intensely interested in all the great events and inventions of the century and within two weeks of her death was able to read and discuss the daily world happenings. She will be greatly missed by her family and friends.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. William Smith and Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Austin thank the friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted them in caring for Mother and for the singing, flowers and loving words of Mary C. Wood at the funeral.

CHILDS' WELFARE L'AGUE

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DEATH

Automobile Makes Leap of 30 Feet into a Gravel Pit near Belding Street, Jackson

As Ray Carr and a companion were returning from the Jackson fair last Thursday evening, they had a narrow escape from death when their auto leaped 30 feet down into a gravel pit on the Belding road just out of Jackson. The night was dark and rainy and in seeking this road they made a wrong turn with the above result.

The earth being so very soft saved the occupants from injury and the car was not damaged but was up to the hubs in the mud. Mr. Carr cranked the car and ran it out on its own power, coming home without any further trouble. It was a fortunate accident for had they been hurt, they might have called in vain for help as people would not be looking into the pit for autoists.

LIGHTNING STARTS FIRE, GLASGOW BARNS BURN.

HILLSDALE, Mich., Sept. 18.—Much damage was done Thursday evening during a thunder storm. The biggest loss in the county occurred at the S. W. Glasgow farm, two miles west of Jonesville on the Chicago turnpike. The Hillsdale Mutual will be called upon to pay about $6000. The value of the property destroyed was more than that. The Michigan State Telephone Co. also suffered a little from the storm and for a minute all of the electric lights of the city went out.

The storm came up about 7 o'clock. When the Glasgow barns were struck and burned it made a blaze which was seen by a great many Hillsdale people. Many people went out to the farm from Jonesville.

Everything on the Glasgow farm was burned excect the house. The buildings included the south barn, the horse barn, the middle barn, and the barn which connected the middle and south barn, the hog house and the corn house, six buildings in all, including four barns and two smaller barns. All of the buildings were together.

Mr. Glasgow carried $4,800 insurance on the buildings and contents, and the tenant, Albert Searles, has $1,300 on his part of the contents. There was stored in the barns the yield from 240 acres of grain. Threshing had been done Thursday and 1,500 bushels of grain put in the barns but a few hours before the fire.—Telegram.

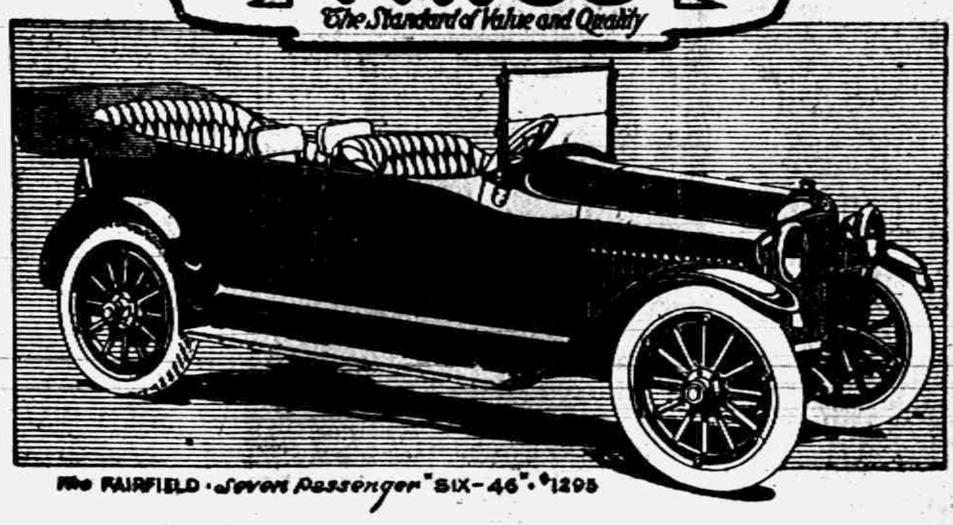
PAIGE
The Standard of Value and Quality



The FAIRFIELD · seven passenger "SIX-46" · $1295

It's Amazing What $1295 Will Buy if the Car is a Paige

You can now buy the Paige seven passenger Six—the 1916 edition of the Fairfield "Six 46"—for $1295.

The dollars you put into this car have the biggest purchasing power you have ever exercised.

With other makes, other models and other prices of other days in mind, you realize what this extraordinary purchasing power now means.

This purchasing power—when applied to the Paige Big Six—springs from several fundamental factors—

Increased production due to the ever-increasing demand for Paige Sixes; the Paige policy to give the utmost in value; and advancement in scientific manufacturing and merchandising methods.

These facts explain in a large measure why the Paige was enabled to cut the price of its Big Six $100 and yet give you still greater values.

In addition to the characteristic features of value and quality that previously won distinction for the Paige, such as luxury, ease of riding, simplicity of control and ample power, you will now find extra values like these:

A real Pantasote top; the most expensive body finish—a Richelieu Blue achieved by 24 days of the air-drying process; and genuine French glaze hand-buffed leather for the upholstery.

Come in and check up on these points.

There are equally great values in the new Paige Light Six for $1095.

Big Musical Comedy

"A MODERN CINDERELLA"

The First Attraction of the Season at the Bradley Opera House.

The Management of the Bradley takes pleasure in announcing "A Modern Cinderella" as the opening attraction for the coming season. This big musical comedy offering is booked for next Friday evening, September 24th. The company comes here highly recommended to the local management and they are playing mostly city time coming here from Ann Arbor, this same company has just recently played Battle Creek and most of the larger cities in Michigan and will play Jackson after the engagement here.

"A Modern Cinderella" is one of the newest musical offerings, all of the scenery and costumes entirely new this season and include some magnificent evening gowns of the very latest style. The scenery is georgeous, in fact one mass of color pleasing to the eye.

Bright snappy sayings, humerous situations, melodious, hummable tunes, novel and startling effects have combined to make "A Modern Cinderella" one of the biggest successes of the season. The program is said to contain some 20 popular song hits and the music is bright and lively. The musical numbers are all staged in a very lavish manner.

Arrangements are being made with Adrian players to furnish the music, so that Tecumseh people will get the show exactly as the larger cities, music and all. The seats will be on sale at Hay's Bakery commencing next Thursday morning. Prices 25 cents to $1.00.

The local management has a number of excellent attractions booked for his patrons for the coming season and will use his best efforts at all times to secure nothing but the best for Tecumseh and hopes that his efforts will meet with approval of the theatre goers of Tecumseh and vicinity.

KISSING HOLLOW BRIDGE

At last the bridge in the Kissing Hollow is being reconstructed on new lines. The old bridge has been torn away and conrete walls are being laid for the new one which will be much wider than the old bridge, and other necessary improvements are to be added. In view of the many accidents that have occurred at that point, this seems a move in the right direction. It will be ten days or two weeks, before the road will be open for travel.

GOLDEN WEDDING

Fifty years ago, on September 19, 1865, a company of friends assembled at the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. John Whitenack east of town, to celebrate the marriage of their eldest daughter Margaret to S. Wesley Bordine. Rev. E. B. Haskall, a former minister of the Methodist church in Tecumseh, pronounced the words that made these two one.

Sunday a company of friends numbering about 20 met with this couple to celebrate their 50th anniversary. The day proved a very pleasant one and everything conspired to make it an enjoyable occasion. The rooms were prettily decorated in yellow the many fall flowers lending their color to the scheme. An American flag draped over the archway attested to the loyalty of the company. A fine three course dinner was served and the time passed pleasantly in social visiting. The table of beautiful presents in gold, silver, china and linen gave proof of the love and appreciation of their friends.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Fredenburg and daughter Mrs. Miller of Battle Creek, Mrs. Leonard Coller of Coldwater and Miss Lora Slattery of Montana.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Bordine unite with the Herald in wishing them many happy returns of the day.

REV. G. W. JENNINGS RETURNS TO TECUMSEH

Ann Arbor District Changed to Detroit West District

At the annual meeting of the Detroit conference of the M. E. church which closed last evening at Port Huron, many changes were made. The most important was the change made in the districts by Bishop Burt and his cabinet. Port Huron and Ann Arbor districts pass out of existence and three districts are reduced to two by creating a Detroit East and a Detroit West district.

Tecumseh is located in the new Detroit West district with D. H. Ramsdell superintendent, The ministers were all returned to this vicinity with the exception of Deerfield and Petersburg, Levi Bird, and Hudson, C. M. Thompson.

Tecumseh people will welcome the return of Rev. Jennings as his year here has made him a host of friends. We understand that he had been sought after for other fields and our people can congratulate themselves on his return.

DOUBLE FUNERAL

James Hendershot passed away at his home in Macon Sunday afternoon. At 4:02 Monday the body of his brother Hugh Hendershott who died at Hammond, Ind., Saturday p. m. was brought to Tecumseh for burial and a double funeral was held at he home of the late James Hendershott today. James was buried in the cemetery near his home, and Hugh was laid beside the grave of his wife in Brookside cemetery.

James H Hendershott was born in Montour county, Penn, Jan 27, 1831 and was the eldest son of his parents, while Hugh was the youngest.

The juniors enjoy a class party at the home of Mrs. Orville Gove, the sister of the class president Miss Muza Rice, tonight. They will have a corn roast and we'll warrant them a good time.

Will Meyer of Detroit joined his wife here Saturday night. Sunday afternoon Leon Rosacrans and family motored to Detroit taking Mr. and Mrs. Meyers and Mrs. Adamson to their home. The ladies having been here for a more lengthy visit.

BRAMBLE—BALCH

The following was clipped from the Kalamazoo Gazette of Saturday Sept. 18.

A bridal bower of ferns and palms with asters in pink and white was formed in the bay window for Miss Mabel G. Balch, who was united in marriage at 6 o'clock last evening to Mr LeRoy C Bramble of Tecumseh at the home of her aunt, Miss Emily A. Balch, 503 South West street.

Some 35 friends witnessed the ceremony impressively read by the Rev. Frederick W. Hatch, pastor of the First Baptist church who used the double ring service

The wedding was noted for its simplicity and quiet beauty. The Lohengrin wedding march announced the coming of the bridal couple unattended. The bride wore a lovely gown of white pussy willow taffeta, en train, with long tulle veil, and her bouquet was a shower of bride rosebuds and ferns.

The ceremony was followed by a supper for which the decorations were pink and white asters. The bridal bouquet was caught by Miss Elma Furst.

Mr. and Mrs Bramble left early in the evening for a motoring trip and outing at one of the many Michigan lakes. The bride's going away suit was of brown with which she wore a smart brown velvet turban and yellow Fox furs.

After the honeymoon the bridal couple will go to Tecumseh to reside where they will be at home to their friends after October 1.

Out-of town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. C. H Bramble and daughter, Bernice, of Lansing, parents and sister of the bridegroom, Mr. Mr. and Mrs, Athol Brainard of Tecumseh Mrs. C. A. Pierce of Elgin, Ill., and Earl McNeil of Eaton Rapids

Mr. Bramble is a graduate of Tecumseh high school and later from Kalamazoo college while in Kalamazoo he distinguished himself as a foot ball player and was captain of the college team, He also has a fine record as a base ball player having spent several seasons with the Sioux City team. The Herald extends congratulations and best wishes to the newlyweds.

WHO LOST THE BARRELL?

A barrel, decorated with a beautiful coat of red paint with the inscription "Keep to the right" emblazoned on either side and supporting "Old Glory" jauntily aloft, occupies the point of intersection of Chicago and Evans streets. We do not know whether this is a memento of Tecumseh's balmier (?) days or a sign of distress, fire or danger, but presume that its object is to caution the driving public against turning too short.

We appreciate the necessity of a sign on this corner, but why not put up a permanent sign such as is being used all over the country, something that will be a real ornament, a sign plainly lettered for the daytime and lighted by night.

More autos are traveling the streets of Tecumseh each day; our people are buying them and tourists are attracted here because of our good roads. There is a continual stream of autos rounding this corner. Many haven't the time nor the inclination to slow down when making it and an accident is bound to occur if some such measure is not adopted. "Keep to the right" is the proper warning and the Herald approves of the move.

MISSIONARIES ENTERTAINED

Rev. and Mrs. B. E. Robison of Ning Po, China, were at the Baptist church, Sept. 19 At the morning service Rev. Robison gave an able address dealing with the influence of Christianity in China and at the Sunday School hour, he addressed the Men's Class, and Mrs. Robison addressed the Sunday School. In the evening there was a large attendance at the Young People's meeting and Mr. Robison again spoke. They were the guests of the pastor during their stay in the city. Mr. and Mrs. Robison are Michigan people, her home being at Eaton Rapids and his home at South Haven. Mr. Robison graduated at Kalamazoo College and the Divinity School of Chicago University in preparation for his work in China They have been at Ning Po seven years. The population of that city is about that of Detroit Mr. Robison is at the head of an institution of learning known as the Ning Po Boys School.

USES FOR OLD LINEN.

Never throw away old linen in any shape or form. Cotton sheets and pillowcases when old and worn are soft and splendid for bandages and other sickroom needs. No new bandage ever equals old bed or table linen for such purposes, as they will tell you at any hospital, but it is understood it must be sterilized before being used.

Housekeepers are apt to overlook this use for old linen unless there is really sickness present in the house, but a store of such pieces laid away will never come amiss even if they are only used for ironing boards and for wrapping up bundles in the storeroom, for in a contagious disease old sheets must be hung over the doorways to the sickroom and kept wet with disinfectant. When the weather is hot wet sheets hung about the room will cool the air.

The linen should have been washed clean without starch, and the hands that roll it should be very clean. For an open wound sterilized gauze will be a necessity, but clean linen may be used to protect the bandages underneath. At the hospitals the old linen so utilized is baked in the regular oven to sterilize it before using.

When the bandages are rolled they should be placed in a clean covered receptacle until needed. A glass jar or a covered box will do for the purpose. The width of the bandages depends upon their use. About one inch is wide enough for a finger, and from that the widths vary. For an abdominal bandage six or eight inches may not be too wide.

The tops of old evening gloves have their use too. An appeal recently came from Paris for them, to be sewed together as interlinings in vests for soldiers in winter trenches. Hundreds of poor women are kept employed making these winter comforts.

Many a Tecumseh Citizen Knows How Sure They Are

Nothing uncertain about the work of Doan's Kidney Pills in Tecumseh. There is plenty of positive proof in the testimony of citizens. Such evidence should convince the most skeptical doubter. Read the following statement:

Mrs. C. Stevenson, Wyandotte & Pottawatamie Sts., Tecumseh, says: "The first symptom of kidney complaint in my case was a sharp shooting pain across the small of my back, which made it almost impossible for me to lie down. Someone advised me to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial and I did, procuring my supply at C. A. Wright & Son's Drug Store. After I had taken this remedy a short time, the pains and aches left and gravel that had been a source of constant suffering, no longer troubled me, in fact, I felt like a different person. I have since recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to a number of my friends and shall continue to do so. My former endorsement holds good."

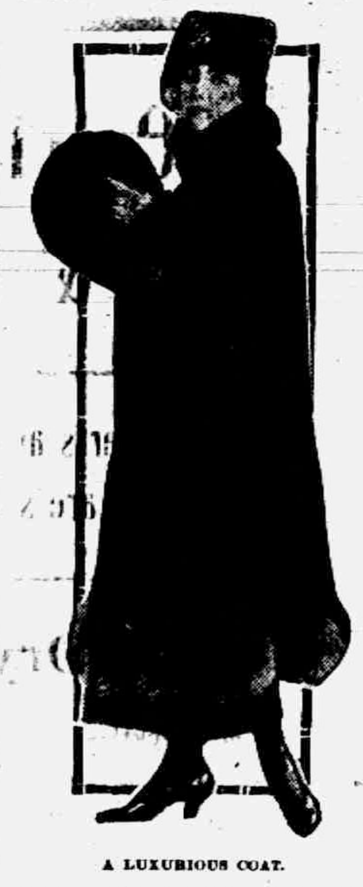
A COOL HERALD.

A New Model For the First "Colder" Day.



A LUXURIOUS COAT.

With warm weather and vacations still with us it seems farfetched to bring in our furs. But furs and more of them are the coming note, and this handsome design of black seal, in rippling fullness and edged with skunk, suggests one new design. Please observe the smallish size of the muff.

New Towel Ends.

The ends of the newest embroidered towels are surely trying to emulate the latest of dress fashions, for they are showing every variety of scallops. Where one was once content to hemstitch the ends of a huck towel, and place a simple embroidered letter in the middle of one end, to be strictly up to date one must now slash the toweling into some new cut of scalloping. There are square scallops, pointed ones, wide and shallow and deep rounded scallops, and scallops within scallops. And they are embroidered in colors, often with a finish of a second buttonholing of another color or a crocheted picot edge. Fillet crochet inserts are quite the thing now for towel ends; sometimes one sees a piece of fillet insertion with three initials of the intended owner crocheted in the mesh. Cutwork initials or solid initials with an oval background of cutwork are very effective and are not difficult when one considers the results obtained. The plain woven ends of Turkish towels are now being embroidered, most often with a flowered border of darned work or French knots.

ARMY WORMS ON MARCH.

Since Aug. 1 the fall army worms have advanced northward from Texas, Louisiana and Oklahoma and have reached Kansas, Arkansas, Mississippi and southern Missouri. The worms have pushed northward with amazing speed, as it is evident that the moths spreading them developed in southern Texas. They do not seem to be doing a great deal of damage thus far, but may prove disastrous to fields of late planted corn, millet and alfalfa. There will be some danger to fall planted alfalfa also.—Farm Progress.

LATE CELERY AND ITS CARE.

Some Varieties Are Cultivated Until the Latter Part of September.

Late varieties are cultivated until the latter part of September, when handling begins, says M. G. Kains in the American Agriculturist. Before handling a cultivator is run between the rows to make the ground fine and loose. Another cultivator, with side shovels, immediately follows to throw the dirt toward the rows. Men then get on their knees between the rows and, holding up the leaves with one hand, with the other shove up a handful of dirt around the bottoms of the plants to hold the leaves in an upright position.

Immediately after the handling a celery hiller is ran between the rows and the dirt thrown up at least six inches high around the plants. Later on the hiller is used again, when the dirt is thrown up as high as possible. Nothing more is done until trenching time. Trenching White Plume celery begins about Oct. 20. The process consists simply in digging a trench about one foot wide and deep enough so that when the celery is placed in the trench the tops will stick out about two inches.

For digging an attachment similar to an onion set harvester and made at the blacksmith's is fastened to a two horse riding cultivator. The celery is then pulled up by hand, most of the dirt shaken from the roots and the broken and decayed leaves and suckers pulled off. It is then carried to the trench, where a man in the trench packs it tightly in an upright position. No dirt is placed around the roots.

The boards used in blanching celery are nailed together V shape and placed over the trenches to keep off rain and prevent sun and wind from wilting the celery. Manure is then placed in piles along the trenches. On the approach of cold weather a little manure is placed along the bottom of the boards, and when the weather becomes very severe more manure is added. Two inches of manure over the boards are usually enough. One of the secrets of keeping celery is to keeps the tops dry.

Late Garden Hints.

If the late cabbage is showing a tendency to grow a little too fast and the heads are cracking open bend the plants over to one side and break all the roots on the opposite side of the plant so the growth will be checked. If the cabbage is not to be buried in pits, but used at once in the making of kraut or other winter foodstuffs let the outside leaves grow, as these will make fine green stuff for the hens when vegetation is pretty well gone in the fall.

If you have a good many beans left on the vines, either in the garden or in the corn of the truck patch, pick them and shell them, or gather vines and all and beat them out for winter use. In September is a splendid time to make a cold frame and sow lettuce and radishes for table use early in the winter.

Get all the weeds and dead vines out of the garden. It is just as well to burn them, for by doing this you destroy a good many bugs. Sow rye or wheat in the garden, as this will give lots of humus when plowed under, and you can use it as a chicken pasture well up into the winter.—Farm Progress.

Plow Drag.

Here is shown a device recently patented by a Tennessee man to prevent a walking plow from cutting the lawn to pieces when it becomes necessary to drag the plow through the yard to plow a little strip of garden, says the Farming Business. There is a slot on the machine. The teeth are attached to a swivel bar just behind the plow and to the handles. A spring from the plow to the bar jerks the bar back when rocks or heavy clods are struck and the bar jerked to the rear of its keeper.

The Need of Lime.

For eight years the Missouri College of Agriculture has maintained seven field experiment stations in various parts of the state. These fields were fairly representative of the level and rolling lands of central and northeast Missouri. One of the most striking facts brought out in the eight years of experimenting was the general need of lime on these prairie soils. It is known that thousands upon thousands of acres of Illinois land are in dire need of lime to neutralize the soil acids. These conditions are not peculiar to the two states mentioned. Lime is a general need. For the man who wants to farm intensively, to grow alfalfa, clovers and other legumes the lime problem is one that must be solved.

His View.

Willis—Do you think a man should be allowed to hold the highest honor in the United States more than four years? Gillis—Sure thing! I say, if a man can top the league in batting for ten or even fifteen years let him stay in the game for the good of the sport. —Boston Journal.

U. S. GETS HESPERIAN NOTE

Germany Disavows Submarine Attack on Allan Liner.

Washington, Sept. 17.—Germany's note informing the United States that there is no reason to believe that the Allan liner Hesperian was sunk by a submarine has been received at the state department.

The German note declared all reports received from submarine commanders indicated that there was no submarine in the vicinity when the explosion which wrecked the Hesperian occurred. Belief was expressed that the vessel was blown up by a mine in view of the nature of the explosion and the fact that it was well forward.

British Dardanelles' Loss 79,238.

London, Sept. 17.—British losses at the Dardanelles to date total 79,238 in killed and wounded, Undersecretary for War Tenant announced in the house of commons. The killed include 1,130 officers and 16,478 men, while 2,371 officers and 59,259 men have been wounded.

Arithmetic by Hand.

We shall never be in danger of forgetting that our ancestors did their sums on their fingers so long as arithmetic retains the word "digits." But modern civilization knows nothing of the elaborate developments of this method. It takes a Wallachian peasant to multiply 8 by 9 on his hands. This is how he does it: The fingers of either hand, beginning with the thumb, stand for the numbers from 6 to 10. So the ring finger of one hand and the middle finger of the other are stuck out to represent 8 and 9. Counting the fingers remaining on the side farthest from the thumbs, he finds them 1 and 2 respectively, and 1 multiplied by 2 gives him the units of his product—2. Then he counts from the thumbs to the stuck out fingers inclusive, finds them 3 and 4, adds these and gets 7 for his tens. Answer, 72. All this to avoid knowing the multiplication table beyond 4 times 4!

"If you hadn't come she would have married Cliff, and what kind of a life would she have led with him?" demanded McFarlane. "I knew Cliff was rough, but I couldn't convince her that he was cheap. I live only for her happiness, my boy, and, though I know you will take her away from me, I believe you can make her happy, and so—I give her over to you. As to time and place, arrange that—with—her mother." He turned and walked away, unable to utter another word.

Wayland's throat was aching also, and he went back into the house with a sense of responsibility which exalted him into sturdier manhood.

Berea met him in a pretty gown, a dress he had never seen her wear, a costume which transformed her into something entirely feminine. She seemed to have put away the self reliant manner of the trail and in its stead presented the lambent gaze, the tremulous lips of the bride. As he looked at her thus transfigured his heart cast out its hesitancy, and he entered upon his new adventure without further question or regret.

It was 3 o'clock of a fine, clear, golden afternoon as they said goodby to McFarlane and started eastward, as if for a little drive. Berrie held the reins in spite of Wayland's protestations. "These bronchos are only about half busted," she said. "They need watching. I know them better than you do." Therefore he submitted, well knowing that she was entirely competent and fully informed.

At last the topmost looming crags of the continental divide cut the skyline, and then in the smooth hollow between two rounded grassy summits Berrie halted, and they all silently contemplated the two worlds. To the west and north lay an endless spread of mountains, wave on wave, snow lined, savage, sullen in the dying light, while to the east and southeast the foothills faded into the plain, whose dim cities, insubstantial as flecks in a veil of violet mist, were hardly distinguishable without the aid of glasses.

Berrie turned in her seat and was about to take up the reins when Wayland asserted himself. "Wait a moment. Here's where my dominion begins. Here's where you change seats with me. I am the driver now."

She looked at him with questioning, smiling glance. "Can you drive? It's all the way downhill—and steep."

"If I can't I'll ask your aid. I'm old enough to remember the family carriage. I've even driven a four in hand."

Their descent was rapid, but it was long after dark before they reached Flume, which lay up the valley to the right. It was a poor little decaying mining town set against the hillside, and had but one hotel, a sun warped and sagging pine building just above the station.

"Not much like the Profile house," said Wayland as he drew up to the porch. "But I see no choice."

"There isn't any," Berrie assured him.

CHAPTER XVII.

A Matter of Dress.

"WELL, now," Wayland went on as they stepped off at the hotel, "I am in command of this expedition. From this on I lead this outfit. When it comes to hotels, railways and the like o' that I'm head ranger."

Mrs. McFarlane, tired, hungry and a little dismayed, accepted his control gladly, but Berrie could not at once slip aside her responsibility. "Tell the hostler"—

"Not a word!" commanded Norcross, and the girl, with a smile, submitted to his guidance, and thereafter his efficiency, his self possession, his tact delighted her. He persuaded the sullen landlady to get them supper. He secured the best rooms in the house and arranged for the care of the team.

Berrie was correspondingly less masculine. In drawing off her buckskin driving gloves she had put away the cowgirl and was silent, a little sad even in the midst of her enjoyment of his dictatorship. And when he said, "If my father reaches Denver in time I want you to meet him," she looked the dismay she felt.

"I'll do it, but I'm scared of him."

"You needn't be. I'll see him first and draw his fire."

Mrs. McFarlane interposed. "We must do a little shopping first. We can't meet your father as we are."

"Very well. It is arranged. We get in, I find, about noon. We'll go straight to the biggest shop in town. If we work with speed we'll be able to lunch with my father. He'll be at the Palmer House at 1."

Berrie said nothing, either in acceptance or rejection of his plan. Her mind was concerned with new conceptions, new relationships, and when in the hall he took her face between his hands and said, "Cheer up! All is not lost!" she put her arms about his neck and laid her cheek against his breast to hide her tears. "Oh, Wayland, I'm such an idiot in the city! I'm afraid your father will despise me."

She woke to a new life next morning—a life of compliance, of following, of dependence upon the judgment of another. She stood in silence while her lover paid the bills, bought the tickets and telegraphed their coming to his father. She acquiesced when he prevented her mother from telephoning to the ranch. She complied when he countermanded her order to have the team sent back at once. His judgment ruled, and she enjoyed her sudden freedom from responsibility. It was novel, and it was very sweet to think that she was being cared for as she had cared for and shielded him in the world of the trail.

In the railway coach Wayland tactfully withdrew, leaving mother and daughter to discuss clothes undisturbed by his presence.

"We must look our best, honey," said Mrs. McFarlane. "We will go right to Mme. Crosby at Battle's, and she'll fit us out. I wish we had more time, but we haven't, so we must do the best we can."

"I want Wayland to choose my hat and traveling suit," replied Berrie.

"Of course. But you've got to have a lot of other things besides." And they bent to the joyous work of making out a list of goods to be purchased as soon as they reached Chicago.

Wayland came back with a Denver paper in his hand and a look of disgust on his face. "It's all in here—at least, the outlines of it."

Berrie took the journal and there read the details of Settle's assault upon [illegible] The fight arose from a remark concerning the forest supervisor's daughter. Ranger Settle resented the gossip and fell upon the other man, beating him with the butt of his revolver. Friends of the foreman claim that the ranger is a drunken bully and should have been discharged long ago. The supervisor for some mysterious reason retains this man, although he is an incompetent. It is also claimed that McFarlane put a man on the roll without examination." The supervisor was the protagonist of the play, which was plainly political. The attack upon him was bitter and unjust, and Mrs. McFarlane again declared her intention of returning to help him in his fight. However, Wayland again proved to her that her presence would only embarrass the supervisor. "You would not aid him in the slightest degree. Nash and Landon are with him and will refute all these charges."

This newspaper story took the light out of their day and the smile from Berrie's lips, and the women entered the city silent and distressed in spite of the efforts of their young guide. The nearer the girl came to the ordeal of facing the elder Norcross the more she feared the outcome, but Wayland kept his air of easy confidence and drove them directly to the shopping center, believing that under the influence of hats and gloves they would regain their customary cheer.

In this he was largely justified. They had a delightful hour trying on millinery and coats and gloves.

Silent, blushing, tousled by the hands of her decorators, Berrie permitted hats to be perched on her head and jackets buttoned and unbuttoned about her shoulders till she felt like a worn clothes horse. Wayland beamed with delight, but she was far less satisfied than he, and when at last selection was made she still had her doubts, not of the clothes, but of her ability to wear them. They seemed so alien to her, so restrictive and enslaving.

"You're an easy fit," said the saleswoman. "But"—here she lowered her voice—"you need a new corset. This old one is out of date. Nobody is wearing hips now."

Thereupon Berrie meekly permitted herself to be led away to a torture room. Wayland waited patiently, and when she reappeared all traces of Bear Tooth forest had vanished. In a neat tailored suit and a very chic hat, with shoes, gloves and stockings to match, she was so transformed, so charmingly girlish in her self conscious glory, that he was tempted to embrace her in the presence of the saleswoman. But he didn't. He merely said: "I see the governor's finish. Let's go to lunch. You are stunning!"

"I don't know myself," responded Berrie. "The only thing that feels natural is my hand. They cinched me so tight I can't eat a thing, and my shoes hurt." She laughed as she said this, for her use of the vernacular was conscious. "I'm a fraud. Your father will spot my brand first shot. Look at my face—red as a saddle!"

"Don't let that trouble you. This is the time of year when tan is fashionable. Don't you be afraid of the governor. Just smile at him, give him your grip, and he'll melt."

"I'm the one to melt. I'm beginning now."

Notwithstanding his confident advice Wayland led the two silent and inwardly dismayed women into the showy cafe of the hotel with some degree of personal apprehension concerning the approaching interview with his father. Of course he did not permit this to appear in the slightest degree.

It pleased him to observe the admiring glances which were turned upon Berrie, whose hat became her mightily, and, leaning over, he said in a low voice to Mrs. McFarlane: "Who is the lovely young lady opposite? Won't you introduce me?"

This little play being over, he said, "Now, while our order is coming I'll run out to the desk and see if the governor has come in or not."

Wayland returned with an increase of tension in his face.

"He's here! I've sent word saying 'I am lunching in the cafe with ladies.' I think he'll come round. But don't be afraid of him. He's a good deal rougher on the outside than he is at heart. Of course he's a bluff old business man and not at all pretty, and he'll transfix you with a kind of estimating glare as if you were a tree, but he's actually very easy to manage if you know how to handle him. Now, I'm not going to try to explain everything to him at the beginning. I'm going to introduce him to you in a casual kind of way and give him time to take to you both. He forms his likes and dislikes very quickly."

"What if he doesn't like us?" inquired Berrie, with troubled brow.

"He can't help it." His tone was so positive that her eyes misted with happiness. "But here comes our food. I hope you aren't too nervous to eat. Here is where I shine as provider. This is the kind of camp fare I can recommend."

Berrie's healthy appetite rose above her apprehension, and she ate with the keen enjoyment of a child, and her mother said, "It surely is a treat to get a chance at somebody else's cooking."

"Don't you slander your home fare," warned Wayland. "It's as good as this, only different."

He sat where he could watch the door, and despite his jocund pose his eyes expressed growing impatience and some anxiety. They were all well into their dessert before he called out, "Here he is!"

Mrs. McFarlane could not see the newcomer from where she sat, but Berrie rose in great excitement as a heavy set, full faced man with short, gray mustache and high, smooth brow entered the room. He did not smile as he greeted his son, and his penetrating glance questioned even before he spoke. He seemed to silently ask: "Well, what's all this? How do you happen to be here? Who are these women?"

Wayland said: "Mrs. McFarlane, this is my father. Father, this is Miss Berea McFarlane of Bear Tooth Springs."

The elder Norcross shook hands with Mrs. McFarlane politely, coldly, but he betrayed surprise as Berea took his fingers in her grip. At his son's solicitation he accepted a seat opposite Berea but refused dessert.

STUFF BALLOT BOX AT METHODISTS' MEETING

Find Eight More Votes Than There Were Voters.

PORT HURON, MICH. — A peculiar situation has developed in connection with the conference held by the laymen of the Detroit district of the Methodist Episcopal church on Friday to select eight delegates to the general conference at Syracuse, N. Y.

There were 179 accredited delegates at the conference and 187 ballots were cast. Just how the ballot box became stuffed is not known, but it is explained that there was some confusion and that some of the delegates had neglected to hand in their credentials.

When the vote was announced there were a few delegates who wanted the ballot declared invalid, but the majority were in a hurry to get through and stated that in all probability, the result would not be affected by the surplus of eight votes. It was rumored that one of the candidates who stood high in the balloting might bring the matter to the attention of the general conference and ask to have the ballot thrown out.

ONE JAILED, OTHER IS DYING

Fight Over Damages by Pigs May Cause Recluse's Death.

BATTLE CREEK, MICH. — Harry Sellens, a Lee township farmer, may be held for manslaughter, as the result of an attack upon Henry White, an aged recluse of the same township. White cannot live, it is reported.

Sellens and White own adjoining farms and Sellen's pigs got into White's corn. White locked up the pigs and when Sellens came after them, showed the damage they had done. An argument followed during which, it is said, Sellens attacked White, knocked him down, kicked him him and broke three of the old man's ribs.

ACCUSE EDITORS OF LIBEL

County Clerk Has Publishers of Weekly Arrested.

KALAMAZOO, MICH. — Truxton Talbot, of this city, a former resident of Plainwell, and H. L. Jacobson, a Comstock farmer, were arrested on a charge of criminal libel, preferred by County Clerk Edward F. Curtenius.

Talbot and Jacobson have for some time published a weekly paper called the People. In the last issue of the paper charges of a serious nature were made against the clerk, who was accused of wrong-doing in office.

SWITCH OF TWO DEAD BODIES IS CORRECTED

Remains of Men Killed in Accident Get Mixed.

FLINT, MICH. —Great confusion over the identification of the bodies of two victims of the grade crossing horror here last Saturday in which five persons were killed, when an auto bus was struck by a Pere Marquette train, resulted in the burial of the body of W. Clinton Sain of Chicago at Clio by relatives of George Randle.

The body of Randle was sent to Chicago where Sain's relatives discovered the mistake just before the funeral.

The mistake was rectified at the Clio cemetery. The body of Sain was exhumed and brought to Flint to be prepared for shipment to Chicago at once. The body of Randle was then placed in the grave.

How the mistake was made and discovered by Sain's relatives almost at the hour of the funeral, is puzzling. Randle's brother had identified Sain's body as that of Randle and men who worked with Sain out of the Detroit branch of the International Harvester company positively identified Randle's body as that of Sain and one of their number accompanied the body to Chicago.

Randle's relatives viewed the body of Sain which they buried as Randle just before the funeral Monday and accepted it as that of Randle. The features of this body were badly distorted.

GERMANS DRIVE BACK SERBIANS

Kaiser Opens Campaign to Aid Moslem Allies.

SEEKS PATH INTO BULGARIA

Teutons Apparently Intend to Cut Passage Through King Peter's Realm—Action Is Likely to Bring Greece and Roumania Into War—British Troops There Also.

BERLIN — (Via London). — Announcement was made by the war office here of an attack by German forces on the Serbians. It was said the Serbians were driven back. The announcement says: "On the northern bank of the Danube German artillery engaged in battle Serbian positions south of the river near Semendria (twenty-four miles southeast of Belgrade). The enemy was driven off. His artillery fire was silenced."

Opens Balkan Campaign.

LONDON, ENG.—The official announcement by Berlin of the attack by German forces on the Serbians is the first that Germans are on the Serbian front. It has been reported for several weeks that the Germans and Austrians were planning a new campaign in the Balkans, with the object of going to the assistance of the Turks.

Such a move would doubtless be directed first at Serbia in an attempt to force a passage through that country to the Bulgarian border. Turkey, has made promises of territorial concessions to Bulgaria, it has been reported that the latter nation would not oppose the passage of German and Austrian forces to the Turkish frontier. The prediction has been made that this move would bring Roumania and Greece into the war. These nations, as well as Bulgaria, have called out additional troops recently.

British Forces Sent.

Official announcement was made in England in July that British forces, the strength of which was not given, had been sent to Serbia. A large British force, under command of Rear Admiral Ernest Troubridge, according to unofficial advices from Belgrade in June, has been in Serbia since March. It is also known that the Serbians are being assisted in the field by the French.

EVACUATION OF KIEV BY RUSS HAS BEGUN

Germans Are Attempting to Encircle Foe at Vilna.

PETROGRAD — A dispatch from Kiev to the Bourse Gazette quotes the director of the Southwestern railways as saying that the evacuation of that town was "proceeding normally" and that there were on hand enough cars for this purpose. Military critics assume in the absence of official information that the Russian forces have abandoned Vilna and are retiring to the south.

London, Sept. 22.—The Russian army menaced since the fall of Vilna, by the Germans encircling movement, is estimated variously at 250,000 to 500,000 men. The conditions under which the Russians are attempting to extricate themselves furnish a striking parallel to those which followed the capture of Warsaw. They may precipitate one of the greatest, if not the greatest battle which has been fought on the eastern front.

ASKS U. S. TO CHECK TURKS

Viscount Bryce Issues Appeal in Behalf of Armenia.

LONDON — Viscount Bryce formerly British ambassador to the United States, issued an appeal to America to try to stop the slaughter of Armenians.

"If anything can stop the destroying hand of the Turkish government it will be an expression of the opinion of neutral nations, chiefly the judgment of humane America," he said. "Accounts from different sources agree that over the whole of eastern and northern Asia Minor and Armenia the Christian population is being deliberately exterminated, the men of military age being killed and the younger women seized for Turkish harems."

DR. HILLIS DECLARES HE DESERTED IDEALS

Thirst for Wealth and Power Brought on Troubles.

NEW YORK, N. Y. — The Rev. Newell Dwight Hillis, noted Brooklyn preacher, successor to Henry Ward Beecher and Lyman Abbott, in Plymouth church, one of the most famous churches in America, an author whose books on religious subjects have had extraordinary sales, and chautauqua orator whose fame is second only to that of Wm. J. Bryan, Sunday in his pulpit told his congregation that his life-long ambitions for wealth and power had utterly crushed his life, brought him to the brink of poverty and humbled him so that he said he was not worthy to unloose the shoe laces of a poor worker of the slums.

His lawyer, it is understood, strongly advised him to attempt no public statements. Yet he changed the subject of his sermon shortly before he entered the pulpit and prefaced his "public statement" with the announcement that he had written it but an hour and a half before.

OBREGON CAPTURES BLANCO

SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS — General Lucio Blanco has been captured and is now held a prisoner in jail by General Obregon, according to an official Carranza dispatch from Vera Cruz, received here.

The same dispatch declared Eulalio Gutierrez, once provisional president of Mexico by election of the Aguas Calientes convention, had "surrendered" to General Obregon at Saltillo.

LOSS OF COAL FIELD HARD BLOW TO VILLA

Monclova, Last Supply Source, Is Taken by Carranza.

BROWNSVILLE, TEXAS—General Villa has been struck a death blow as far as extensive future operations are concerned by the capture of Monclova, in the state of Coahuila by Fortunato Zuazua, which was announced by General Jacinto B. Trevino. The city is the last of the coal mining towns held by Villa, according to the Carranza generals.

All the locomotives held by Villa burn coal and he must now secure fuel in the United States and pay cash.

ADLER MAKES GUILTY PLEA

Noted Banker Forger Said to Have Amassed Nearly $1,000,000.

WAUKESHA, WIS. — George Adler, alias John W. Barnhart, Forest City, Ark., banker, pleaded guilty to forgery. Judge Milo Muckleston deferred sentence until Friday.

The defendant is alleged to have amassed almost $1,000,000 by a forgery scheme worked in almost every state in the Union.

Party Hunting Explorers Safe.

LONDON, ENG. — A dispatch to Reuter's Telegram company from Christiania says the Norwegian foreign office has received a dispatch from Archangel that the arctic expedition headed by Captain Otto Sverdrup, which has been searching for the Russian explorers, Rusanoff and Brusiloff, has arrived there safely.

ONLY THE MACHINE IS HURT

Automobile Turns Over and Burns Near Rose City.

ROSE CITY, MICH. — Mr. and Mrs. William E. Denton and two sons, of Sault Ste. Marie, miraculously escaped death three miles northwest of here when their touring car left the road at the foot of a hill and turned turtle over a fifteen-foot embankment.

A fence over the swamp bottom held the car which caught fire. The gasoline tank exploded after the occupants had extricated themselves. Their seventeen-year-old son threw his sister several feet away out of danger. The party was en route for Mt. Pleasant to visit Mrs. Denton's mother.

STEFANSSON IS SAFE IN ARCTIC

Message from Explorer Dated Aug. 31, Last, Received.

IMPORTANT LAND DISCOVERED

Territory Found Southwest of Prince Patrick Island—Valuable Contribution to Geological Science—Boats Outfitted for Another Expedition in North—On Ice Seven Months.

OTTAWA, ONTARIO — The first definite tidings that the world has received from Vilhjalmar Stefansson, the Arctic explorer, for a year and a half were received here by the naval department, which sent him and his companions on their perilous trip to the frozen north. The advices from the explorer were meager but sufficient to show that he and his companions are safe.

Stefansson's advices came from Nome, Alaska, in the form of a message, signed by himself and dispatched from Baillie Islands on Aug. 31.

The message follows:

"As unavoidable delays threatened and the running cost of chartering Polar Bear was high, I purchased her and engaged her on terms similar to Karluk. Engaged Hoff, engineer of schooner Ruby, to take place of Blue of Alaska. Engaged five extra helpers for southern parts, who have ample [illegible] Polar Bear for two years. Plan continue northern explorations to 145 west and 82 north, if northerly course is secured."

Shows His Determination.

Stefansson's determination to proceed with his explorations, despite the loss of the Karluk, the chief vessel in his original expedition, shows the caliber of the man, and this news was received with gratification by officials here.

The Polar Bear, engaged by him in place of the Karluk, is a well known and tried Arctic vessel, and he seems to have gathered supplies for a further stay of two years in the Arctic zone.

Baillie Islands, from which Stefansson's message is dated, are east of the mouth of the Mackenzie river, toward Banks Island, and lies in latitude 70 north, longitude 127 west.

Discovers New Land.

NOME, ALASKA — The power schooner Ruby has arrived from Herschell Island, on the Arctic coast west of the mouth of the Mackenzie river, with news that Vilhjalmur Stefansson, the Canadian explorer, who with two companions, Storker Storkenson and Ole Anderson, set out from Martin Point, Alaska, March 22, 1914, over the frozen Polar ocean to search for supposed new lands in the Beaufort sea, is not only alive and well, but has accomplished every purpose for which the hazardous journey was undertaken.

Stefansson succeeded beyond all expectations in his explorations. He discovered new land southwest of Prince Patrick Island. He is now on Banks Land outfitting for continuance of explorations to the westward to ascertain the full extent of the new land.

Stefansson discovered a continuance of the continental shelf several degrees west of Banks Land and even determined its southern limits, but was unable to continue his explorations to the north and west.

Stefansson spent some time exploring his new find, but at length, owing to scarcity of provisions, was compelled to set out on the return journey to land. The men had been on the ice for nearly seven months. The return to shore was accomplished with great difficulty. The men subsisted on the most meager rations, but kept moving day after day. The dogs were almost famished. Finally the party arrived at Banks Land, thoroughly worn out. For seven months they had been on scanty rations, traveling almost continuously.

BRITAIN WARNED BY WORKERS

"Draft and We Stop Work," Is Labor Edict to Nation.

LONDON, ENG.—During a discussion in the house of commons Henry Thomas, laborite and assistant general secretary of the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants, declared that every lodge of the railway union had informed the executive committee that on the introduction of conscription the men would stop work.

"If the conscriptionists want an industrial revolution," he said, "let them proceed with their agitation."

EASTLAND IS ORDERED SOLD

December 20 Is Day Set for Bids for Ill-Fated Boat.

CHICAGO, ILL. — Judge K. M. Landis in the United States district court ordered the sale of the hull of the Eastland and set Dec. 20 as the date on which bids for the purchase of the steamer will be advertised for.

The order was prepared by the attorneys for the various interests represented and signed by the court.

"BLUE SKY" LAW IS INVOKED

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. — On complaint of Willard M. Cornelius, warrants were issued for members of the stock brokerage firm of Howe, Snow, Corrigan & Bertles of this city, charging violation of the new state "blue sky" law. It is alleged that the local firm unlawfully sold stock in the Clifford Realty company of Detroit. The realty company, it is charged, failed to file bonds, or obtain a license from the state securities commission.

Howe, Snow, Corrigan & Bertles is one of the largest brokerage firms in the city and has offices in the Michigan Trust company building.

Hidden Pet Puzzle.

By taking the initial letter of a one syllable word from each of the following sentences and writing them together correctly the name of a certain kind of four footed pet will be spelled:

Aim at the sun and you'll reach the moon.

Art is a long and tedious study.

A gentle nag is the children's friend.

Sweet is the bread one can earn for himself.

Answer.—Spaniel.

Riddle.

I may be made of brass, paper or wood. I may live for a century or be easily defaced and lost. I am given as a token of love, and yet the sight of me may cause sorrow. Sometimes I hold a stream, a tree, a bird and a bush; sometimes I hold only a face. I may look like you or like your friend. I may be black or white and so small I may be seen in your eye.

Fern Dust.

We tiptoed through the forest
One bright midsummer night,
And there we found a clearing
Aglow with fairy light.
We spied a little elf man,
With a tiny, shiny pail,
And he was singing, "Fern dust,
Fern dust for sale!"

He sold us each a pailful
To sprinkle in our shoe.
We paid him for it, gladly,
With a bunch of meadow rue.
And then we heard a rustling,
A whispering in the breeze,
And the laughter of the fairies
Who danced beneath the trees.

We pitter pattered homeward,
And my, but we felt queer!
For not a soul could see us
And not a soul could hear.
As, fairy-like, we tripped it,
And scarcely touched the ground—
The magic fern dust hid us
And stilled the smallest sound.

But when we woke next morning,
The fern dust all had gone;
Had vanished with the fairies
In the misty light of dawn.
But we shall find that elf man
With his tiny, shiny pail,
For we'll hear him singing, "Fern dust,
Fern dust for sale!"

THE CZAR'S CHECK.

It Passed Over Itching Palms, but That Was No Surprise.

When Professor Tuxen, the Danish artist, had finished his great work, "The Coronation of Edward VII.," he received, it appears, an order from the Russian emperor for a copy of this painting, for which the czar was to pay 12,000 rubles.

In due course the professor repaired to Petrograd to deliver the painting. He was granted an audience with the czar, who expressed his satisfaction with the picture and who handed the professor an order on the imperial treasury for the sum agreed upon.

When the professor presented the check for payment he was told that an order from the emperor was subject to a discount, and he had, therefore, to accept a sum considerably smaller than the face value of the check.

Before his departure from Russia the professor had a farewell audience with the czar, who in the course of conversation asked him, "Did you get your money, professor?"

Professor Tuxen replied that he had not intended to mention the matter, but since his majesty himself raised the question he would say he had received only part of the money.

At this the czar seemed not at all surprised, but calmly made out another order for the sum which had been deducted from the original amount, and thus Tuxen got his money.—Washington Star.

Curious Letter Endings.

A few specimens of the style of beginning and ending letters in the old days may prove interesting as in striking contrast to the laconic "yours obediently," "faithfully" or "truly" of the present day. It would certainly be difficult to match the following subscription of a letter from the Duke of Shrewsbury to Sir Thomas Hanmer, dated September, 1713: "I desire that you will believe that, wherever I am, I shall always endeavor to deserve and very much value your friendship, being, with a sincere esteem, sir, your most faithful and obedient servant, Shrewsbury."

Frequently one meets with bellicose subscriptions, as in the case of the Earls of Huntly and Errol, who in 1594 threatened "awful consequences" to the magistrates of Aberdeen unless they released certain gentlemen imprisoned in their city and subscribed, "Yours as ye will, either present peace or weir."

Quotes the Headlines.

"Do you see that youngster standing on the corner with his hands in his pockets and whistling with all his might?"

"Of course I see him and hear him too."

"You must be mistaken."

"No, I'm not. He sells newspapers after school."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Telling Time in West Africa.

Because of the scarcity of clocks in West Africa events are timed by the regular daily occurrences. For example, a native wrote that she had received news of her sister's illness "a little while before the guinea fowl talk"—that is, about 5 o'clock in the morning.

Why He Was Sad.

"Why so sad and downcast?"

"My wife has threatened to leave me."

"Cheer up. Women are always threatening something like that, but they hardly ever do it."

"That's what I was thinking."—Houston Post.

March of Progress.

"What has become of love in a cottage, anyhow?"

"It has given away to incompatibility in a bungalow."—Kansas City Journal.

TEN COMMANDMENTS FOR CLEANLINESS.

The following ten commandments for cleanliness were promulgated by the Pueblo Colo., Commerce Club. Dirt in the houses, the stores, the dairies, the yards, the streets and alleys results in death for the babies from summer complaint and for the grown people from typhoid. In a clean town the standard of behavior is better. There is a better public spirit. Hence these commandments:

1. Thou shalt locate, report and abolish all public nuisances.
2. Thou shalt not spit on sidewalks or in any public place or conveyance.
3. Thou shalt remember that filth breeds flies and that flies make funerals.
4. Thou shalt not sweep thy sidewalks in the business section after 7:30 in the morning.
5. Thou shalt not throw tin cans nor rubbish in any back yard, vacant lot or alley.
6. Thou shalt provide a covered receptacle for all manner of house and stable refuse.
7. Thou shalt gather and burn all sorts of combustible rubbish.
8. Thou shalt not haul refuse in leaky or overloaded wagons.
9. Thou shalt wage continual warfare on weeds, dandelions and untrimmed trees.
10. Thou shalt whitewash or paint thy buildings, and shalt keep thy premises constantly clean.

FUNCTIONS OF A YELLOW SLIP

Although small and insignificant and of no intrinsic value, a number of the important functions are performed by the small yellow label which readers of the Tribune will note attached to the upper left hand corner of the first page of each issue. Primarily, of course, the reason for the label is that it carries the name of each subscriber, enabling the post clerks to properly distribute the papers: but it also serves another two fold use in that it is both a statement of the subscriber's subscription account and a receipt for subscription paid.

Following the name on each label is printed the time to which the subscription is paid. Thus, if the label reads "John Jones 1 Jan 16," it indicates that Mr Jones' subscription is paid up to January 1, 1916, and is in a way, a receipt for money paid on subscription. On the other hand, if the label reads, "John Doe 1Jan. 15, it indicates that Mr. Doe's subscription was paid up until January 1, '15 and that the balance from then up to the present time is unpaid.

Frequently subscribers inquire about their subscription accounts and when they are in arrears ask why we did not a mail a statement of the account. As a matter of fact, each paper carries a statement of the account of the person to which it is addressed, and subscribers thus have a ready means of finding just how their subscription stands at any time by simply referring to the little yellow address label on the upper left hand corner of the front page of each paper. OUR SHRINKING SUN.

Its Diameter Becomes About Four Miles Less Each Century.

There are various theories to account for the enormous store of heat and light in the sun. The theory now generally accepted by physicists is that the gradual contraction of the sun in cooling is the chief source of apparent inexhaustible energy. It has been calculated that at the present rate of expenditure of heat the sun's diameter would contract four miles in a century, and in a few millions of years it may become as dense as the earth.

The sun is supposed to be composed of much the same materials as the earth, except that they are at a much higher temperature. About forty of the seventy terrestrial elements have been identified by the spectroscope as existing in the vapors around the sun. Astronomers think that they find traces there of very few substances not already known. Even these may be discovered on the earth some day.

It has been calculated that the heat thrown on a square mile exposed at noon under the equator would melt in an hour 26,000 tons of ice. This amount has to be multiplied fifty million times to arrive at the quantity of heat received by the earth's surface during a single hour. Yet this enormous supply is even less than one two-thousand-millionth part of what the sun pours forth in all directions in space. It stands to reason that this inconceivable outgiving of heat must be accompanied by a gradual though imperceptible diminution in the size of the sun.—Philadelphia Press.

In these days of uncertainty and backing water it is well to keep at the forefront the motto of Davy Crockett, "Be sure you're right, then go ahead."

Diplomacy, after all, seems to cling to the old fashioned habit of saying a great deal, but never punctuating it with facts and definiteness.

Even fans have their heydays of popularity, as when the thermometer is climbing toward 100 and when they root for our favorite team.

Some one should invent a perpetual motion war scheme to accommodate nations which simply can't keep from scrapping.

Coast guards will carry rifles, and it is to be hoped that they'll manage to "sharp shoot" the idiots who rock the boat.

This season it has been almost impossible not to keep tabs on the "hot, hotter, hottest" weather.

It was a month of October, dog days and just July.

AT THE WARRINGTON, CHICAGO.

"Don't Lie to Your Wife" Opens Season—Good Comedy—Good Principals and Good Chorus.

The musical comedy artists presented by Eugene McGillan were welcomed by a big audience Thursday night when the Warrington season opened with "Don't Lie to Your Wife," by Campbell Casad.

The dialogue, replete with both wit and wisdom, is as "natural as life," and, at times, even more interesting.

The various episodes in which the Doubleday's progress from a state of belligerency all occur at their Fifth avenue residence, New York city.

The principals are the right persons in the right places, being especially well equipped for their respective roles, and pretty girls, prettily costumed, who sing, dance and act with charming unanimity, make up an attractive chorus.

"Oh, these men!—they're all alike; especially husbands?" says one woman who has made a study of Mr. Doubleday and his friends. Every man has not the ready wit and limitless inventive genius of that resourceful husband, however.

"What is good for men is good for women also;" this sounds convincing when Mrs. Doubleday says it, but somehow the working out doesn't exactly tally with the sentiment.

"When the cat's away the mice will play," but how could the mice suppose the cat would dream, and, acting on the "pointer" thus gained, hurry home and spoil sport.

Although dreams "go by contraries" they set one thinking and prompt action is pretty likely to follow this sort of thought.

It might have turned out differently but for the initial lie which required so many more to bolster it up, and which led to the search for "Nevermore," and ushered in a series of happenings which keeps the audience guessing as to who is likeliest to win out.

Will Diel is inimitable as Mr. Doubleday, while A. M. Jackson and [illegible] Hackett well sustain their parts as tried friends and true. Mr. Diel's "There Comes a Night" and the trio in "I've Been Floating Down the Old Green River" are among the emphatic "hits" of the production. A sympathetic sigh steals thru the house as Doubleday sings of times when "the world seems full of skating rinks."

Furores of applause and floral offerings galore prove the popularity of Mlle. Carlita, who carries her audience by storm in "When You're Away I'm Lonely" "Wouldn't You Like to Be My Sweetheart" the "Soothing Symohony" the duo with Mr. Hackett, "Nobody Knows," and in the interpolated "Sextet from Lucia," with Miss George, and Messrs. Hackett, Foran, Johnson and Diel.

Mr Hackett, by the way, has a remarkably pleasing voice, rich, mellow and vibrant. He easily divides honors with Mlle Carlita.

Sedall Bennett is "Pansy" to the life and "She Lives Down in Our Alley" as the pretty maid gives it is worthy the encore it receives.

Ernest Grout in his "Australian fits" wins round after round of applause, and the numerous "nieces" of Mr. Doubleday prove lively and interesting additions to the family.

Not the least interesting feature is the singing of "Every Road Is the Right Road," by Mr. Hackett and the chorus. Part of the people move homeward humming this popular air, while other vocalize softly as much as they can remember of Nat Johnson's "When You're Away I'm Lonely" which bids fair to become equally a favorite.

"Don't Lie To Your Wife" with all of the big song hits, handsome scenery, lively dances, and choruses complete will be the attraction at the Bradley Opera House, next Wednesday, September 29.

"HYPOCRITES"

Did you ever see "Hypocrites?" The most startling, the most famous and yet the most beautiful photo-dramatic conception ever placed upon the motion picture screen? "Hypocrites" has caused more comment, been debarred from public exhibition in more cities, and has received more praise from the greatest minds in this country than any other presentation ever placed before the public either upon the stage or screen.

"Hypocrites" is wonderful. Thousands of delightful audiences will tell you that. "Hypocrites" is a dramatic conception that is never to be forgotten. "Hypocrites" is the play that was shown to more than 60,000 Detroiters at the Washington Theater last spring. "Hypocrites" tells a story, brings forth a moral that is ever to be remembered. To be sure, the facts are told in a frank manner that has never before been attempted. There is no hypocrisy in the relating of the story. It's all there before you but it is presented in such compelling form that it sears itself into your very brain. An unerasable impression for all time.

OUT WITH AXE

Good Judgment and Intelligent Action Save Them.

Some Michigan people know what to do when they get a cut or a bruise. Others are panic-stricken over external hurts which could be healed by a simple liniment, as in the case of Mr. L. H. Carpenter of Dryden, N. Y., who says: "Recently I cut my thumb with an axe so that it hung only by a little skin. I used nothing except Hanford's Balsam of Myrrh and saved my thumb. It is the best remedy I ever saw for cuts and wounds of any kind." Certainly, no family should be without this liniment of many uses. Your dealer has it.

THE HIGH SCHOOL

The Commercial course, which made its first appearance in the High School this year, is receiving due attention. Those taking the course seem very much interested in it, but none of the subjects are a "cinch." The work is done entirely at the library which has been equipped with the proper apparatus.

English IV have been having special reports on the "Life of Chaucer," the "Retrogressive or Transition Period" and Caxton and his printing press which add much interest to the study.

What could have [illegible] science teacher from Friday until Monday? Somehow he forgot Monday morning and gave a lesson which he had assigned on Friday for Monday. "'Mum's' the word," thought the class. "One lesson prepared."

The custom has always been that as soon as the gong strikes, everyone for his room as soon as possible, between classes, at noon or at night. Mr. Reed thought that we looked more like a flock of sheep at feeding time than young men and women passing from room to room. In his usual jovial manner he announced that we were not to leave or enter until signaled by the teacher. George VanGilder using "Safety First," peaked into Miss Halladay's room and after waiting for the signal, piped out "Say, can I come in?"

The U. S. history class have been required to subscribe for the Outlook in order to study the history being made day by day along with that of their text.

It seems to be customary this year for the classes to be represented by [illegible] two members. The Freshies trust the business of their class to "Bob" Moore, president. The Sophomores honored Joe Satterthwaite as president. What about the Juniors? Well, Muza Rice and Ralph Cuthbert hold the numerous offices. It is absolutely necessary to hold several cabinet meetings during the Junior year.

Nothing resembling "X. Y. Z." has been seen around the High School building recently. What's the trouble?

"Seniors! Money!" comes the cry from the treasurer, whose initials are B. A. G. To impress the request deeper in the minds of the debtors, the following notice was neatly printed on the board. "Seniors! Money! B. A. G."

What would you answer if you were asked 'Why do you eat?' ? Naturally you would reply "Because I am hungry." So did a dignified Senior when asked the same question, the questioner of course having a different point in view.

One Spoonful Gives Astonishing Results

Tecumseh residents are astonished at the QUICK results from the simple mixture of buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., known as Adler-i-ka. This remedy acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel and is so THOROUGHLY a bowel cleanser that it is used successfully in appendicitis. ONE SPOONFUL of Adler-i-ka relieves almost ANY CASE of constipation, sour or gassy stomach. ONE MINUTE after you take it the gasses rumble and pass out. B. J. Pulver, druggist.

The Business Institute is the largest, best-equipped business school in Michigan, and is one of the leading schools of the kind in America. During the past six months there were approximately a thousand applications for Institute students to fill positions. This certainly should interest young men and women.

Napoleon's Temper.

A story is told of a sudden rage into which Napoleon I. fell one day as he was at dinner. He had scarcely partaken of a mouthful when apparently some inopportune thought or recollection stung his brain to madness, and, receding from the table without rising from his chair—his small stature permitted that—he uplifted his foot—dash went the table, crash went the dinner, and the emperor sprang up, intending to pace the room. Quick as a flash his waiter scratched a few magic symbols on a bit of paper, and the emperor's check had grown more than double. Napoleon appreciated the delicacy of his attendant and said, "Thank you, my dear Dunand," with one of his inimitable smiles. The hurricane had blown over.

A PLANK MISSING

Not a plank from the political platforms of Tecumseh's various parties, but a really truly wooden plank left by the merry-go round when they took their departure from Tecumseh. When it was found missing word was sent back to have it shipped to Adrian, and then came the search for it when lo and behold it was found that it had been used for some temporary repairs in the village by order of our genial president, John R. Nyland who thought it just the proper plank for the place, and great was his consternation when it was discovered that it was the right plank in the wrong place. However "All's well that ends well" and the plank was shipped to its destination in good order.

Everybody is cordially invited to attend.

APPLES PLENTY IN LENAWEE COUNTY

J. R. Keeney Sons & Co. Busy—Pickers Camped in Orchard with Jesse Coller as Cook

Is is estimated that J. R. Keeney Sons & Co will harvest over 10,000 bushels of apples this season as the crop is one of the best in years. They have a force of 15 pickers at work and they pick from 390 to 400 bushels a day using patent picking bags. The men sleep in tents and Jesse Coller is an efficient cook for the company.

THE LENAWEE FAIR

From early morning until the middle of the afternoon yesterday autos were whizzing by headed for Adrian and the fair. This proved to be the record breaking day of years. Every available parking place was utilized by the machines until there was hardly room to walk.

Every exhibit building was crowded to its capacity and it would be hard to discriminate as to the best In the Grange department there was a fine display of grains, fruits and flowers and great taste was displayed in the arrangements. The old Dutch wind mill was fine and the floor inlaid with several colors of corn was very attractive. A flag made of grain and another of flowers showed much skill in their construction. For once in the history of the Lenawee County fair the week has been a pleasant one.

We see by the Adrian Telegram that little Helen Slayton youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs Elmer Slayton celebrated her fourth birthday Monday with a group of little friends. The Misses Florence Park and Bernice Richards assisted in serving refreshments.

WRECKED THE THEATER.

When London Playgoers Rose Against an Increase in Prices.

There occurred in London something over a hundred years ago a series of riots called the "O. P. riots," which grew out of an increase in theater prices.

In 1809, after Covent Garden theater had been burned to the ground and rebuilt, it was reopened under the management of John Kemble, one of the Kemble family of great actors, with an increased scale of admission prices. The new theater was all right, and Kemble was popular, but the theater going public resented the increase of prices.

On the opening night when Kemble, who was to play Macbeth, attempted to make an explanatory speech he was hooted down by demands for "old prices," and night after night people crowded the house, danced on the seats and interrupted the players with cries of "O. P.," old prices.

The disturbance continued for several weeks, the people wearing "O. P." badges and displaying big "O. P." placards. The theater was closed for several days, but when it was opened the trouble began again. Seats were destroyed and windows broken.

Legal proceedings were taken and failed. The municipal authorities, assisted by a governor of the Bank of England, finally brought about a compromise.—Philadelphia Press.

An Old Verb.

To laze is an old verb. In Samuel Rowlands' "Martin Markall," 1610, we are told that "loyterers laze in the streete, lurke in alehouses and range in the highwaies." The word occurs, I believe, in some of Mortimer Collins' lyrics:

But Cupid lazeth 'mongst the faiery lasses,
Whose clere complexion he oft sweareth passes.

Many a Tecumseh Citizen Knows How Sure They Are

Nothing uncertain about the work of Doan's Kidney Pills in Tecumseh. There is plenty of positive proof in the testimony of citizens. Such evidence should convince the most skeptical doubter. Read the following statement:

Mrs. A. Stevenson, Wyandotte & Pottawatamie Sts., Tecumseh, says: "The first symptom of kidney complaint in my case was a sharp shooting pain across the small of my back, which made it almost impossible for me to lie down. Someone advised me to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial and I did, procuring my supply at C. A. Wright & Son's Drug Store. After I had taken this remedy a short time, the pains and aches left and gravel that had been a source of constant suffering, no longer troubled me. In fact, I felt like a different person. I have since recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to a number of my friends and shall continue to do so. My former endorsement holds good."

NEWS OF THE STATE

Stabbed by Highwaymen.

FLINT, MICH. — George Sumner was seriously injured and H. D. West slightly hurt by highwaymen who waylaid and stabbed them early in the morning. They were walking on the Pere Marquette tracks, they said, when six men jumped out of the darkness and surrounded them and Sumner was stabbed in the back, side and face and West was stabbed in the face.

Survivor of Merrimack Fight Dies.

ALPENA, MICH. — Henry M. Thompson, aged eighty-three, for half a century a resident of Alpena, the last surviver of the crew of the frigate Congress in its memorable battle with the Merrimac in Hampton Roads, and a former sailor in the British navy, is dead here.

Sleeps in Van, Robbed.

FLINT, MICH. — Instead of engaging a room when he arrived here in search of work, Alexander Sebigle, a Pole, of Clio, crawled into a moving van in a warehouse yard, already occupied by two strangers. He awoke minus $80, his gold watch, and his shoes.

Find Woman Unconscious.

MORRICE, MICH. — Mrs. Emma Sutherland was found in an unconscious condition at her home here. When her door was forced by neighbors, who became alarmed at her nonappearance for forty-eight hours, she was found in a small cloest under the stairs.

Former Mayor Dies.

MUSKEGAN, MICH. — The former Mayor John Campbell, sixty-six, for years one of the most prominent men in business and political circles in this city, died at his home after a three days' illness of pneumonia. He was mayor of Muskegon in 1907 and 1908.

Lid on at Mt. Clemens.

MT. CLEMENS, MICH. — The second dry Sunday in Mt. Clemens since the governor's lid brought no relief to the parched throats. The very thirsty were able to discern a crack in the lid here and there. The saloons generally observed the closing order.

Michigan Has Deserted Village.

BALDWIN, MICH. — All the property and equipment of the abandoned Great Northern Portland Cement plant, which once made a widely known community of the now deserted village of Marlborough, will be sold at auction, September, 22.

Monroe Prisoner Dies.

MONROE, MICH. — Walter M. Bordles, about thirty-five years old, who was brought here to the county jail by the supervisors of that township and several assistants, died within two hours afterwards. Coroner George Huber is investigating.

U. S. Issues Plan of Drill.

LANSING MICH. — Captains Frank Wells and Robert O. Bagsdale, United States Army officers detailed with the Michigan National Guard, have just completed and are sending out to company officers a program for the drills for the ensuing year.

Deserted Wife Tries Poison.

ESCANABA, MICH. — A week ago Leo Whittens, an Escanaba man, left his home to go to work at the Northwestern shops and he failed to return. Distracted, his wife took poison with suicidal intent, but was rescued in time.

Secretary Quits Education Board.

MUSKEGON MICH. — The resignation of Frank Hubbard Smith, formerly secretary of the board of education, has been accepted. Mr. Smith had disagreed with the board over its policy of strict economy in salary matters.

Offers Couzens Labor Arbitrating Job.

LANSING, MICH. — The Governor Ferris has offered the vacancy on the board of mediation and conciliation, created under the Hilsendegen act, to James Couzens of Detroit and will urge most emphatically that Mr. Couzens accept.

Oakland to Stay Dry.

LANSING, MICH. — As the result of a decision by the supreme court Oakland county will remain dry for two years. The drys won on the recount of the local option vote last April. The wets contested the result in the courts.

New York City's Pensions.

New York city has eight pension funds. They are the public schoolteachers' retirement fund, the police pension fund, the fire department relief fund, the department of health fund, the College of the City of New York fund, the supreme court appellate division fund, the street cleaning department fund and the city of New York employees' retirement fund.—New York Mail.

Diplomacy.

"Johnny," said the indignant parent, "why didn't you come home when I called you?"

"I didn't hear you," replied truthful John.

"Then why did you run away?"

Family Joys.

"When you were courting me," said his wife, "you declared there wasn't another woman in the world like me."

"Yes," replied her husband, "and I'm glad of it—for the sake of other men."

⁂

A Romance of the Bear Tooth Range

By HAMLIN GARLAND

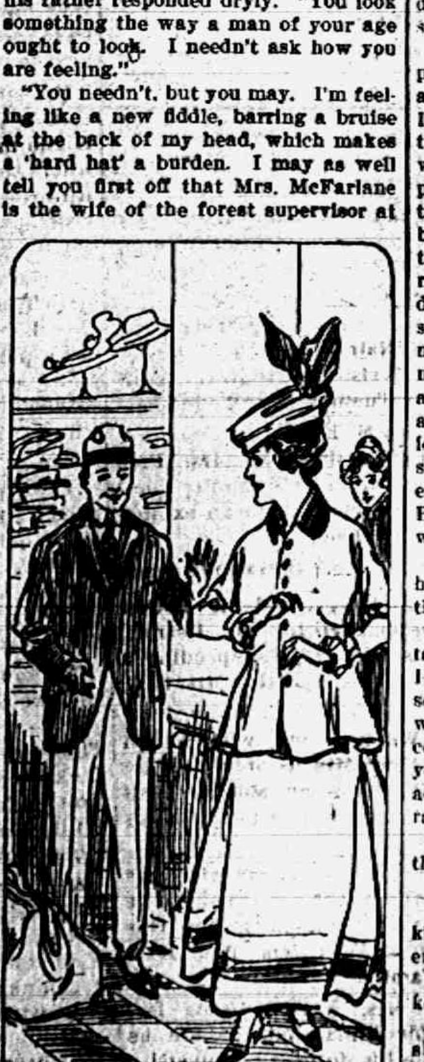
Copyright, 1914, by Hamlin Garland

◆ ◆ ◆

Wayland explained: "Mrs. McFarlane and her daughter quite saved my life over in the valley. Their ranch is the best health resort in Colorado."

"Your complexion indicates that," his father responded dryly. "You look something the way a man of your age ought to look. I needn't ask how you are feeling."

"You needn't, but you may. I'm feeling like a new fiddle, barring a bruise at the back of my head, which makes a 'hard hat' a burden. I may as well tell you first off that Mrs. McFarlane is the wife of the forest supervisor at Bear Tooth, and Miss Berea is the able assistant of her father. We are all rank conservationists."



She Was So Transformed That He Was Tempted to Embrace Her.

Norcross senior examined Berrie precisely as if his eyes were a couple of X ray tubes, and as she flushed under his slow scrutiny he said, "I was not expecting to find the forest service in such hands."

Wayland laughed.

"I hope you didn't mash his fingers, Berrie."

She smiled guiltily. "I'm afraid I did. I hope I didn't hurt you—sometimes I forget."

Norcross senior was waking up. "You have a most extraordinary grip. What did it—piano practice?"

Wayland grinned. "Piano! No—the cinch."

"The what?"

Wayland explained. "Miss McFarlane was brought up on a ranch. She can rope and tie a steer, saddle her own horse, pack an outfit and all the rest of it."

"Oh! Kind of cowgirl, eh?"

Mrs. McFarlane, eager to put Berrie's better part forward, explained: "She's our only child, Mr. Norcross, and as such has been a constant companion to her father. She's not all cowhand. She's been to school, and she can cook and sew as well."

"Mrs. McFarlane comes from an old Kentucky family, father. Her grandfather helped to found a college down there."

Wayland's anxious desire to create a favorable impression of the women did not escape the lumberman, but his face remained quite expressionless as he replied:

"If the life of a cowhand would give you the vigor this young lady appears to possess I'm not sure but you'd better stick to it."

Wayland and the two women exchanged glances of relief.

"Why not tell him now?" they seemed to ask. But he said: "There's a long story to tell before we decide on my career. Let's finish our lunch. How is mother, and how are the girls?"

CHAPTER XVIII.

The Private Car.

ONCE, in the midst of a lame pursuit of other topics, the elder Norcross again fixed his eyes on Berea, saying, "I wish my girls had your weight and color." He paused a moment, then resumed with weary inflection: "Mrs. Norcross has always been delicate, and all her children—even her son—take after her. I've maintained a private and very expensive hospital for nearly thirty years."

This regretful note in his father's voice gave Wayland confidence. His spirits rose.

"Come, let's adjourn to the parlor and talk things over at our ease."

They all followed him, and after showing the mother and daughter to their seats near a window, he drew his father into a corner, and in rapid undertone related the story of his first meeting with Berrie, of his trouble with young Belden, of his camping trip, minutely describing the encounter on the mountainside and ended by saying, with manly directness: "I would be up there in the mountains in a box if Berrie had not intervened. She's a noble girl, father, and is foolish enough to like me, and I'm going to marry her and try to make her happy."

The old lumberman, who had listened intently all through this impassioned story, displayed no sign of surprise at its closing declaration, but his eyes explored his son's soul with calm abstraction. "Send her over to me," he said at last. "Marriage is a serious matter. I want to talk with her—alone."

Wayland went back to the women with an air of victory. "He wants to see you, Berrie. He's mellowing. Don't be afraid of him."

She might have resented the father's lack of gallantry, but she did not. On the contrary, she rose and walked resolutely over to where he sat, quite ready to defend herself. He did not rise to meet her, but she did not count that against him, for there was nothing essentially rude in his manner. He was merely her elder and inert.

"Sit down," he said, not unkindly. "I want to have you tell me about my son. He has been telling me all about you. Now, let's have your side of the story."

She took a seat and faced him with eyes as steady as his own. "Where shall I begin?" she bluntly challenged.

"He wants to marry you. Now, it seems to me that seven weeks is very short acquaintance for a decision like that. Are you sure you want him?"

"Yes, sir; I am." Her answer was most decided.

His voice was slightly cynical as he went on. "But you were tolerably sure about that other fellow—that rancher with the fancy name—weren't you?" She flushed at this, but waited for him to go on. "Don't you think it possible that your fancy for Wayland is also temporary?"

"No, sir!" she bravely declared. "I never felt toward any one the way I do toward Wayland. He's different. I shall never change toward him."

Her tone, her expression of eyes stopped this line of inquiry. He took up another. "Now, my dear young lady, I am a business man as well as a father, and the marriage of my son is a weighty matter. He is my main dependence. I am hoping to have him take up and carry on my business. To be quite candid, I didn't expect him to select his wife from a Colorado ranch. I considered him out of the danger zone. I have always understood that women were scarce in the mountains. Now don't misunderstand me. I'm not one of those fools who are always trying to marry their sons and daughters into the ranks of the idle rich. I don't care a hang about social position, and I've got money enough for my son and my son's wife. But he's all the boy I have, and I don't want him to make a mistake."

"Neither do I," she answered simply, her eyes suffused with tears. "If I thought he would be sorry"—

He interrupted again. "Oh, you can't tell that now! Any marriage is a risk. I don't say he's making a mistake in selecting you. You may be just the woman he needs. Only I want to be consulted. I want to know more about you. He tells me you have taken an active part in the management of the ranch and the forest. Is that true?"

"I've always worked with my father—yes, sir."

"You like that kind of life?"

"I don't know much about any other kind. Yes, I like it. But I've had enough of it. I'm willing to change."

"Well, how about city life housekeeping and all that?"

"So long as I am with Wayland I shan't mind what I do or where I live."

"At the same time you figure he's going to have a large income, I suppose? He's told you of his rich father, hasn't he?"

Berrie's tone was a shade resentful of his insinuation. "He has never said much about his family one way or another. He only said you wanted him to go into business in Chicago and that he wanted to do something else. Of course I could see by his ways and the clothes he wore that he'd been brought up in what we'd call luxury, but we never inquired into his affairs."

"And you didn't care?"

"Well, not that exactly. But money don't count for as much with us in the valley as it does in the east. Wayland seemed so kind of sick and lonesome, and I felt sorry for him the first time I saw him. I felt like mothering him. And then his way of talking, of looking at things, was so new and beautiful to me I couldn't help caring for him. I had never met any one like him. I thought he was a 'lunger'"—

"A consumptive. That is, I did at first. And it bothered me. It seemed terrible that any one so fine should be condemned like that, and so I did all I could to help him, to make him happy. I thought he hadn't long to live. Everything he said and did was wonderful to me, like poetry and music. And then when he began to grow stronger and I saw that he was going to get well and Cliff went on the rampage and showed the yellow streak and I gave him back his ring—I didn't know even then how much Wayland meant to me. But on our trip over the range I understood. He meant everything to me. He made Cliff seem like a savage, and I wanted him to know it. I'm not ashamed of loving him. I want to make him happy, and if he wishes me to be his wife I'll go anywhere he says—only I think he should stay out here till he gets entirely well."

The old man's eyes softened during her plea, and at its close a slight smile moved the corners of his mouth. "You've thought it all out, I see. Your mind is clear and your conscience easy. Well, I like your spirit. I guess he's right. The decision is up to you. But if he takes you and stays in Colorado he can't expect me to share the profits of my business with him, can he? He'll have to make his own way." He rose and held out his hand. "However, I'm persuaded he's in good hands."

She took his hand, not knowing just what to reply. He examined her fingers with intent gaze.

"I didn't know any woman could have such a grip." He thoughtfully took her biceps in his left hand. "You are magnificent." Then in ironical protest he added: "Good God, no! I can't have you come into my family. You'd make caricatures of my wife and daughters. Are all the girls out in the valley like you?"

She laughed. "No. Most of them pride themselves on not being horsewomen. Mighty few of 'em ever ride a horse. I'm a kind of a tomboy to them."

"I'm sorry to hear that. It's the same old story. I suppose they'd all like to live in the city and wear low necked gowns and high heeled shoes. No, I can't consent to your marriage with my son. I must save you from corruption. Go back to the ranch. I can see already signs of your deterioration. Except for your color and that grip you look like upper Broadway."

She flushed redly, conscious of her new corset, her silk stockings and her pinching shoes. "It's all on the outside," she declared. "Under this toggery I'm the same old trailer. It don't take long to get rid of these things. I'm just playing a part today—for you."

He smiled and dropped her hand. "No, no. You've said goodby to the cinch. I can see that. You're on the road to opera boxes and limousines. What is your plan? What would you advise Wayland to do if you knew I was hard against his marrying you? Come, now, I can see you're a clear sighted individual. What can he do to earn a living? How will you live without my aid? Have you figured on these things?"

"Yes. I'm going to ask my father to buy a ranch near here, where mother can have more of the comforts of life, and where we can all live together till Wayland is able to stand city life again. Then, if you want him to go east, I will go with him."

They had moved slowly back toward the others, and as Wayland came to meet them Norcross said, with dry humor: "I admire your lady of the cinch hand. She seems to be a person of singular good nature and most uncommon shrewd"—

"Here! Here!" A look of pain covered the father's face. "That's the fist she put in the press."

They all laughed, and then he gravely resumed: "I say I admire her, but it's a shame to ask such a girl to marry an invalid like you. Furthermore, I won't have her taken east. She'd bleach out and lose that grip in a year. I won't have her contaminated by the city." He mused deeply while looking at his son. "Would life on a wheat ranch, accessible to this hotel by motorcar, be endurable to you?"

"You mean with Berea?"

"If she'll go. Mind you, I don't advise her to do it," he added, interrupting his son's outcry. "I think she's taking all the chances." He turned to Mrs. McFarlane. "I'm old fashioned in my notions of marriage, Mrs. McFarlane. I grew up when women were helpmates, such as, I judge, you've been. Of course it's all guesswork to me at the moment, but I have an impression that my son has fallen into an unusual run of luck. As I understand it, you're all out for a pleasure trip. Now, my private car is over in the yards, and I suggest you all come along with me to California"—

"Governor, you're a wonder!" exclaimed Wayland.

"That'll give us time to get better acquainted, and if we all like one another just as well when we get back—well, we'll buy the best farm in the North Platte, and"—

"Don't be so sure of it," replied the lumberman. "A private car, like a yacht, is a terrible test of friendship." But his warning held no terrors for the young lovers. They had entered upon certainties.

THE END.

J. KIER HARDIE

Great Labor Party Leader of Britain Passes Away.

© by American Press Association.

DEATH CALLS KIER HARDIE

Noted British Labor Leader Expires of Pneumonia.

London, Sept. 27.—James Kier Hardie, the noted British labor leader, died at Glasgow of pneumonia. He was fifty-nine years old.

Mr. Hardie had one of the most interesting careers of all the men in public life in Great Britain in the last thirty years. He was chairman of the labor party in parliament. He founded the publication called the Labor Leader. In addition to his prominence as a trades union advocate and as a politician, Mr. Hardie was noted as an authority on Scottish literature.

PRESIDENT SLURRED; TWO LEAVE ALLIANCE

Speech By Lawyer Causes German-American Ruction.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 27.—A speech in which it is alleged President Wilson was referred to as a "jackass," an "ape," and a "crook," has split the German-American alliance of St. Louis in two and threatens to disrupt the organization, it became known.

Paul O. Sommer, financial secretary, and Albert Von Hoffman, director, already have resigned their membership in the alliance. The speech in question was made by Kurt von Reppert, a lawyer, who denied that he used the words objected to as epithets, and said his sentences were misconstrued.

Von Hoffman, a well known aeronaut, jumped to his feet in the midst of Von Reppert's speech and declared: "I am proud of both my kaisers, Wilhelm and Franz Joseph, but I am prouder of the fact that my son is a second lieutenant in the United States army. I resign."

DEATHS MAY KILL MOTHER

Son and Daughter Succumb Within 24 Hours of Each Other.

Cadillac, Mich., Sept. 27.—Mrs. Paul Lux of Star City, Missaukee county, is critically ill at her home and may die from the shock resulting from the deaths of her son and daughter last week.

Frank Lux, her son, returned three weeks ago from Washington for a visit and Thursday was stricken with brain fever while harvesting oats and died. The shock of his unexpected death so affected his young sister, Mary, that she died early Friday morning.

PERJURY CHARGE IS HURLED AT BROTHER

Manufacturer Accuses Bank Examiner of Falsehood.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Sept. 27.—Frederick L. Perkins, a state bank examiner, was arrested on complaint of his brother, Willis J. Perkins, president of the Perkins Machine company.

The criminal warrant charges Frederick Perkins with having testified falsely against Willis during a suit over notes given by Willis to his mother. On the death of the mother, Willis's three brothers and a sister, Edith F. Perkins, sued him in an effort to include the Perkins Machine company, which was built with money secured in return for the notes, in the estate.

Another brother, Charles E. Perkins, furnished bail of $1,000 when the accused was arraigned in police court.

PREPARING FOR AUTO PARADE

Grand Rapids, Mich., Sept. 27.—Charles B. Downey, proprietor of the Downey house, Lansing, and marshal of the two-day auto parade which will be held October 1 and 2, has arrived in this city from Lansing over the route of the proposed Wolverine Pavedway. Mr. Downey's trip was made via Ionia, but he will return via Clarksville, Lake Odessa and Grand Lodge.

He is making the trip for the purpose of putting up necessary signs and bills along the route in preparation for the booster outing next week.

TWO STATES HIT BY CLOUDBURST

Water Two to Ten Feet Deep at Galena, Ill.

CANOES RUN TO POSTOFFICE

Landslides by Dozen Tie Up Traffic in Iowa—Catfish Creek Rises Thirty Feet in Four Hours—Thousands of Acres of Maturing Corn Are Wholly Destroyed.

Galena, Ill., Sept. 28.—Galena is covered with water from two to ten feet as the result of a cloudburst north of here. The property damage to Galena business houses and to farm lands will reach thousands of dollars.

The first floors of four hotels filled with county fair visitors are flooded. Business houses on Main street and factories and foundries on Commerce street also are flooded.

Blasts from the waterworks whistle gave the alarm that water was swooping down on the city. Citizens left their homes and found canoes and launches running up and down Main street. Canoes ran in and out of the postoffice lobby.

Not a railroad train has moved since early in the morning.

The Illinois Central and Northwestern railroads lost thousands of feet of track by landslides and washouts, and the Northwestern will be tied up several days.

Heavy Damage in Iowa.

Dubuque, Ia., Sept. 27.—With dozens of landslides, numerous bridges damaged and five miles of track washed out between Dubuque and Farley, Ia., the Great Western is detouring all trains over the Illinois Central as far as Dyersville. The latter road had numerous landslides and a few washouts, but managed to get trains running at noon.

This damage was caused by floods in the Maquoketa and Catfish Creek valleys following a fall of 4.76 inches of rain in fifteen hours ending at 7 o'clock in the morning.

Thousands of acres of corn just maturing is lying flat on the ground and wholly destroyed.

MRS. C. H. CONRAD IS DEAD

Widow of Nellie Custis' Grandson Passes Away.

Garden City, Miss., Sept. 27.—Mrs. Norman Penn Conrad, the widow of Charles A. Conrad, son of the secretary of war under President Filmore, died here suddenly while on her annual visit to the home of her nephew, Hugh A. Krumbhaar.

Charles A. Conrad was a well known lawyer of New Orleans, and the grandson of Nellie Custis, the adopted raughter of George Washington. When her husband died about twenty years ago Mrs. Conrad gave many relics of the Washington family which had come to her through Mr. Conrad to the trustees of the old Washington home at Mount Vernon.

SERVED CHURCH 77 YEARS

"Father" Uhlich, Pioneer of American Lutheranism, Dies, Aged 99.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 27.—Frederick A. Uhlich, ninety-nine years old, known throughout the country as one of the pioneers of Lutheranism in America, is dead here.

Though a layman, he was referred to by Lutherans as "Father Uhlich" because of his activity in establishing the Evangelical Lutheran church in this country. With one exception he was the last survivor of 700 persons who sailed from Bremen in 1838 in quest of religious liberty.

FORTY HAITIENS ARE KILLED

Attack Made on U. S. Soldiers Repulsed—10 Americans Wounded.

Cape Haitien, Sept. 27.—In an attack by Haitian rebels on an American force, about two miles from Cape Haitien, forty Haitians were killed. Ten Americans were wounded.

The rebels have refused to disarm and Americans are marching on Haut du Gap, in the Plain of the North.

Herbst Fails to Win Freedom.

Monroe, Mich., Sept. 27.—The much-litigating Henry Herbst who sought release from jail here, where he has been kept since last March for refusing to pay the judgment of $1,000 rendered against him by a jury in a breach of promise case in which Miss Alvina Labranch, a Detroit dressmaker, was the complaint, failed to win his freedom.

Burns to Death in Wreck.

Mason City, Ia., Sept. 27.—One man was burned to death and several persons were injured in the wreck of a freight train on the Minneapolis and St. Louis railroad south of here.

Prelude to Italian Activity.

Rome, Sept. 27.—The resignation of Admiral Viale, minister of Marine, is interpreted here as a prelude to activity on the part of the Italian navy.

Girl Wins Garden Contest.

Dearborn, Mich., Sept. 27.—Miss Agnes McGoonaugh of Dearborn, was awarded first prize of $50 in the "better gardens" contest conducted here from June 1 to September 15 under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford.

GEN. SCRIVEN CARABOA HEAD

It Is Philippine Organization That Sang "Damn" Song.

Washington, Sept. 27.—Brigadier General George P. Scriven, chief signal officer, U. S. A., has been chosen Paramount Carabao of the Washington Corral, Military Order of the Carabao.

The annual dinner of the Carabao will be held in Washington next December. The dinners of the organization came into special prominence two years ago when President Wilson directed that a rebuke be administered to the leading officers of the Washington Carabaos for singing the song, "Damn, Damn the Filipino" at the annual dinner.

FIND FORMER BANKER AND WIFE MURDERED

Captain and Mrs. Robert Mueller Slain in Home.

Princeton, Wis., Sept. 27.—Captain Robert Mueller, former banker of Milwaukee and a member of governor's staff of the National Guard, and his wife, were found slain in the smoldering ruins of their summer cottage at Puckaway Lake, Wisconsin. Their skulls were crushed and the cottage fired in an evident attempt to hide the crime.

The bodies were found by volunteer firemen from a near-by village, who extinguished the flames. At first it was believed both had been burned to death in bed. An examination of the bodies showed, however, that the skulls of both had been crushed, while the head of Captain Mueller had been severed from the body and mutilated.

Not a trace of the slayers or a clew of any kind has been found. The authorities are in the dark because the Muellers were practically camping in their place without servants so late in the season, and no one saw either the killing or the fire until the house was a mass of ruins. Captain Mueller had been having trouble with poachers and revenge may have been the motive of the slaying.

PRISON FOR RICH SWINDLERS

Ohio Capitalists Who Defrauded Government in Revenue Tax Sentenced.

Columbus, O., Sept. 27.—Dennis Kelly, Columbus capitalist, and his business associates, who last June were convicted of defrauding the government of more than $1,000,000 in revenue tax on artificially colored oleomargarine, were sentenced to serve two years each in the penitentiary at Moundsville, W. Va., and fined $1,000 each by Federal District Judge Sater here.

Notice of the appeal was immediately filed, and a stay of execution until Dec. 6 was allowed.

10,000 See Man Killed.

Mrs. McManus Arrives.

ALLIES SWEEP BACK GERMANS

Paris Claims Fifteen Miles of Trenches Taken.

PRISONERS EXCEED 20,000

Stubborn Fighting Continues in the Champaign District—German Position to 2-Mile Depth Taken—British Gain Mile and Take 1,700 Prisoners and Many Guns.

Berlin, via London, Sept. 27.—A repulse of a German division near Loos, northwest of Lens, with considerable casualties and the loss of materials, is admitted in the German official communication made public here. The evacuation of an advanced German position north of Perthes, between Rheims and the Argonne forest, also is admitted by the war office.

London, Sept. 27.—The greatest victory for the allied arms since the battle of the Marne, when the strategy of General Joffre and Sir John French saved Paris, has crowned the first move of the great Franco-British drive to hurl the Germans from France.

Almost a year to the day since the great battle, which marked the end of the German advance into France, Joffre and French have hurled their legions at the German line with a violence for which they have been months in preparing.

As a result, the German position, which extends in the form of a right-angled triangle from Ypres south to a point northeast of Compiegne, thence directly east through Rheims to a point north of Verdun, is in imminent danger of envelopment and annihilation unless the allied drive is stopped short. The Germans only chance of safely lies in straightening out this line by a retreat to the Belgian border that will eclipse in magniture the famous retreat from the Marne.

Twenty thousand Germans have been taken prisoners by the French and British in terrific battles in France in the last two days, according to official announcement of the British and French war departments.

The French army in the Champagne district penetrated the German lines along a front of fifteen miles and for a depth at some plaices of two and a half miles, the announcement adds. Souches has been stormed and captured by French troops.

British Make Big Gain.

The British captured five miles of trenches south of La Bassee canal and east of Vermelles. In some instances the British troops penetrated the German positions for 4,000 yards.

The British claim to have captured the western outskirts of Hulluch, the village of Loos, the mining works around it and hill No. 70.

Bombard Coast Positions.

British warships and French and Belgian batteries also have heavily bombarded the German positions on the coast between Zeebrugge and Nieuport.

The offensive which resulted in the French and British victory began Saturday morning. For several weeks there has been an almost incessant bombardment with big guns, which late last week increased in intensity, particularly in the sectors where the infantry attacks took place.

The French, who have the most important gain to their credit, made their chief onset against the German lines around Perthes, Beausejour and Suippes, in Champagne, where in December they made a considerable gain of ground. Saturday's attack, however, backed by a tremendous artillery fire, gave them possession of more territory than they had retaken from the Germans since the latter dug themselves in after the battle of the Marne.

The importance of this gain lies in the fact that every yard of ground taken in this region weakens the Gerposition around Verdun, from which the Germans might be compelled to retire should the French succeed in making any further advance.

The French also have regained the cemetery of Souchez and trenches east of the "Labyrinth," in the Arras district, which was the scene of much heavy fighting earlier in the year. There the Germans had built what they considered almost impregnable fortifications.

A party of six Cleveland gentlemen arrived in Tecumseh last Wednesday and were the guests of The Uncle Sam's Macaroni Co. for the day. They were given one of Uncle Sam's fine dinners at the plant and [illegible] automobile ride through the lake country with supper at Wampler's lake.

Five of the men were members and officers of the Cleveland Retail Grocers' Association as follows: George Nash president; Mr. Wren, secretary; George Schaler, ex-president; E. H. Klaustermyer, chairman Food Show committee; J. P. Lewis, publicity chairman; together with A. B. Lee, Ohio sales agent for the Uncle Sam's people.

The fame of The Uncle Sam's Macaroni Co. as entertainers is spreading and scarcely a day passes without numerous visitors. People abroad are learning of its cleanly way and are having an opportunity of visiting this model plant.

BABY PARTY

Saturday being the birthdays of Barbara and Richard Williamson, some 30 little ones with their mothers were entertained at the home of Mr and Mrs. Leon Williamson to celebrate the event. The color scheme was pink and white the rooms being prettily decorated.

A large table for the older children built for the occasion was placed in the siting room about 20 being seated here. A large white basket in the center of the table with a large pink bow on the handle was filled with pink and white asters surrounding it were smaller baskets of pink and white flowers. At each plate were paper doylies on which was placed a little cake in center of which was a red rosette spoting a white candle, pink and white place cards were at each plate with Jumping Jacks as favors.

The color scheme was carried throughout the dinner even to the ice cream which was pink served in white cones. In the dining room ten babies were seated in high chairs around the table, ranging in age from six weeks to one year. These were accompanied by their mothers. Baskets of pink and white cosmos were used as decorations. Mrs. Alex Reed catered.

The public schools in Tecumseh are uncomfortably crowded, there being 70 scholars in one room at the East branch.

Apples lie on the ground in the orchards throughout the county, the crop being so plenty that prices do not warrant their being cared for.

Arthur E. Kennedy and George N. Stacy have bought out the news and confectionery business of the Tribou Bros. in the postoffice and will hereafter conduct the business under the firm name of Kennedy & Stacy. Mr Kennedy has had some experience in that line of trade and will have the principal charge of the concern.

A number of young men of Tecumseh have, instead of dropping a nickel into the foreign missionary box, contributed a fund with which they have clothed Ed Kelly with a nice comfortable winter suit and placed him in school. There is now a chance for some benevolent person to afford him a place to sleep and work for his board. This is the kind of mission work that should be first in order.

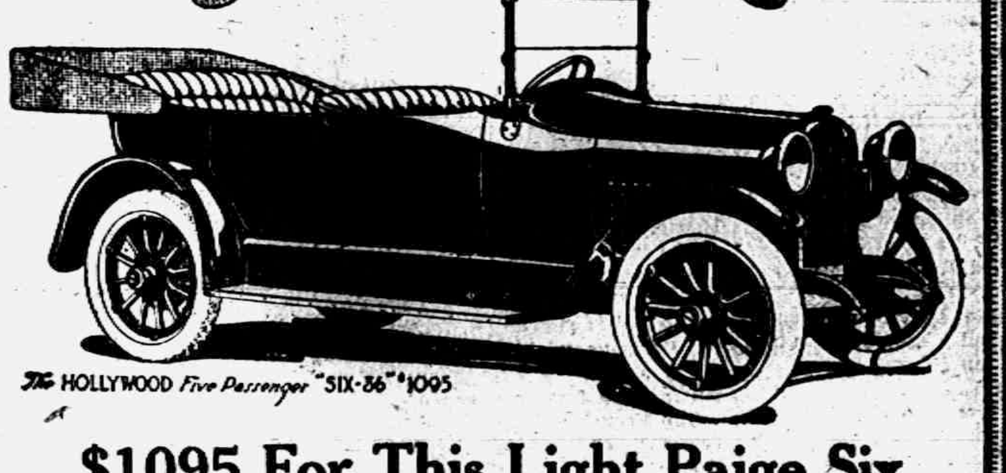
PAIGE

The Standard of Value and Quality



THE HOLLYWOOD Five Passenger "SIX-36" $1095

$1095 For This Light Paige Six

Every Dollar Representing Paige Values

The new Paige Light "Six-36", as its makers intended, is winning its way triumphantly on the basis of quality alone.

It has taken its place, like other members of the famous Paige family, as "The Standard of Value and Quality" among five-passenger Sixes.

Rigid adherence to Paige policy and to Paige ideals won this triumph.

This policy means that for every dollar asked for this car there is the largest dollar's worth of car value ever offered.

It means also that the new Paige Light Six in beauty, comfort, ease of riding, simplicity of control and ample power, is a characteristic member of the Paige family.

It means, further, with only 2600 pounds weight, an economy of operation that brings it within the reach of any pocketbook.

And just as the top is a real Pantasote top and the upholstery genuine leather, so in every other feature and detail is this Light Six a genuine Paige without compromise.

A personal investigation and a ride in this car is the best way to discover these claims for yourself.

If your needs require a seven-passenger car investigate the wonderful values of the Paige Big Six at $1295.

Remember, it is by no means difficult to manufacture a car for a price.

It is, however, quite a difficult thing to produce a motor car of one hundred point excellence and still maintain a selling price to the consumer is not prohibitive.

There you have the true essence of the Paige Idea.

What is the Real King Coal?

WHY

RED BAND LUMP

OF COURSE.

And where does it come from? Miller's Creek District, way down on the Kentucky and Tennessee line.

It comes in large chunks, often with reddish seams which give it its name. It is a hard coal and slacks very little. It blazes up, crackles, and snaps like old-fashioned shell-bark hickory, then burns down to a fine white ash, and not much of it at that.

As for heat—there is no coal in the same class.

The threshers like it and pay $1.00 per ton more for it, because they say it goes further than any other coal.

There are cheaper brands of Kentucky coal, but nothing that even approaches "Red Band" in quality. We sell it delivered at $5.50 per ton.

Pocahontas Egg

All dealers sell a smokeless coal and call it Pocahontas. In many cases it is only New-river coal which is much inferior. But ours is the genuine No. 3 vein Guaranteed Pocahontas.

It is a very tender coal, unusually free from bone, slate, or other impurities. It costs us more than other smokeless coals, but it is worth its price. We sell it at three prices, according to the way you want it—shoveled, screened or forked.

All Coal Not Delivered Is Sold at a Discount.

Coke

We have the genuine Solvay, both nut and egg. Burns clean to a fine red ash with no clinkers.

Plymouth Hard Coal

EGG, STOVE OR CHESTNUT.

For years this coal has given better satisfaction in Tecumseh than any other kind of hard coal we know of. There is an old saying: "The best is the cheapest," which certainly applies to Plymouth Hard Coal.

Wood

We have Hickory, Soft Maple, Oak and Mixed Wood at prices from $2.50 up, all stored under our large woodshed. We will deliver it split, ready for cookstove, if you wish.

You will soon be buying your winter fuel. We know we have the quality you want. Our prices are as low, or lower, than anyone else's. Our delivery is prompt and we try to please you. Call us by phone and we will call at your residence and go further into details concerning these different kinds of fuel, doing our best to supply you with the right kind for your particular needs, in order to give you more heat and better satisfaction for less money.

FOUND DEAD

In Bed Monday Morning. Mrs. Wm. Randall Died Sometime During the Night

FOUND BY GRANDCHILD

William Randall arose yesterday morning as usual and left his wife, as he thought sleeping. As she had been feeble for some time he did not waken her. Later their little grandchild went into her room, and soon returned saying grandma won't wake up Mr. Randell went into the room and was shocked to find her unconscious Running to a neighbor's R. V. Wilson he told them what he feared.

Mrs Wilson went over at once and found that life was extinct, Dr. Hendershott was summoned but it was to late, as he thought she had been dead for some hours, Mrs. Randall had been in poor health for a long time, and it is thought death resulted from the bursting of a tumor.

Olive Olivar was born in Tecumseh township Sept. 15, 1848 and was united in marriage to Wm. Randall Jan. 4, 1871 She leaves to mourn her loss her husband and three sons Laverne of Jackson, Mark of Marion, and Frank of this place.

"DON'T LIE TO YOUR WIFE"

Giving Excellent Satisfaction

The following letter was received from Mr. Stronach, manager of the New Ramsdell theatre at Manistee and speaks very highly of the big musical comedy, 'Don't Lie to Your Wife" Mr. Stronach was formerly manager of 'The Man from Home" (being with that company when they played here) and should be able to correctly judge any attraction.

Manistee, Mich., Sept. 20, '15.

Mr. Ed L. Mark,
Tecumseh, Mich

Dear Sir: We just concluded two nights, 18 and 19, of Eugene McGillan's "Don't Lie to Your Wife" Co. to excellent business. This company deserve some real patronage as they have a splendid caste, it's a clever play and the singing, dancing and costumes of principals and chorus are above par. This is absolutely unsolicited I am just anxious to see a deserving organization get business which I trust you will for the excellent company who are not cheating.

Yours very truly,
JOHN STRONACH, JR.

The following clipping from the Mt. Pleasant Courier of Sept. 24th highly commends this same attraction:

As a rule The Courier does not devote much of its space to reviews of productions at the opera house, but the one on Tuesday evening, "Don't Lie to Your Wife," deserves special mention for its excellence as a musical comedy. The acting was good, the voices fine, and Mr. Will Dell's comedy as Amos Doubleday, is on a par with that of Frank Daniels and other celebrated comedians. The costumes were fine and up to-date, the special scenery gave harmonious setting to the stage that was pleasing. This company deserves patronage wherever it goes, and should it return here would be the signal for the s. r. o. card to be hung at the box office window.

"Don't Lie to Your Wife" played at the Croswell two nights during fair week and the Telegram of Sept 25th has the following to say regarding the play:

The musical comedy of the above name made a hit with the audience at the Croswell last night, with its line of funny capers, special music and oddities Three gay boys, two married and one engaged, had the time of their lives in the play, at Coney Island, with three chorus girls added to the mix-up. Automobiles bring them in contact with police, the press agent is busy and the three men are made to suffer in publicity threats the error of theis ways. It is a great tangle from which they emerge all to the happiness.

Some local interest is attached to the fact that two of the songs rendered were written by a former Adrian boy, James Shannon, "the boy tenor" of the Episcopal church here some year ago. 'She lives down in our alley" was given by Miss Bennett, and "When you're away I'm lonely," by M'lle Carlita and Mr. Hackett, both Shannon songs.

M'lle Carlita is easily the star of the cast, has a very good soprano voice, and sings "How would you like to be my sweetheart?" in a pleasing manner, The other characters are presented by a capable company, including of course the chorus. The costumes are in keeping and everything about the company and play wss well received by the audience.

"Don't Lie to Your Wife" will be presented at the Bradley Opera House to-morrow night (Wenesday) September 29. The company comes here highly recomended as you will see by the above items and will no doubt be greeted by a full house. The seat sale opened at Hay's bakery this morning.

Regular communication of Tecumseh Lodge No 69 F. & A. M. Friday evening. Work in F. C. degree. Address by Rev. W. A. Rex,

The general public will please remember that the lecture at the Presbyterian church this evening by Dr. Steele, on "Alcohol and the Public Health" is free, and no offering will be taken.

The work at Kissing Hollow is now completed, the approach on each side has been widened and now so far as the roadway is concerned there is no danger of accidents. The work is very satisfactory in every respect. No sooner were the signs taken down than auto's began to run over the road, as if they could wait no longer,

While showing his diamonds to a couple of young ladies Monday evening John Gaston was quite surprised when one of them walked out of the store with one of the rings upon her finger with the remark, "I'll be back with this in the morning. He called up several places and did not settle down to peace and quietness until the ring was safely returned that evening

WOULD CONNECT CHICAGO WITH NEW YORK

Of the many kidney remedies on the market today, none other is recommended like Doan's Kidney Pills, Thirty-five thousand benefited people gladly testify in the newspapers of their own towns. Forty-five hundred American newspapers publish this home proof of Doan's merit. The type used in one year to tell this wonderful story would make a solid column of metal twice as high as the world's highest mountain. Placed end to end the lines of type would reach from New York to Chicago. These miles of good words told by 35,000 tongues sound glad tidings to any Tecumseh sufferer who wants relief from kidney and bladder ills. Here's a Tecumseh case. Don't experiment. Use the remedy endorsed by people you know.

Henry Kempf, carpenter, Kilbuck St., Tecumseh, says: "My kidneys were not doing their work as they should and I was suffering from a lame and aching back. I got a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills at Wright & Son's Drug Store and it did not take them long to remove the trouble."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Kempf had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y. adv

His Rest was Broken.

O. D. Wright, Rosemont, Neb., writes: "I was bothered with pains in the region of my kidneys. My rest was broken by frequent action of my kidneys. I was advised by my doctor to try Foley Kidney Pills and one 50 cent bottle made a well man of me." They relieve rheumatism and backache. Sold everywhere in Tecumseh. adv

INCENDIARY BOMBS.

These Missiles of Fire and Fumes Are Loaded With Thermit.

Incendiary bombs differ from ordinary explosive bombs in that they are intended not to scatter fragments over a wide area, but to produce sudden and intense heat at a given point, thus starting a fierce conflagration.

W. A. Tilden describes in Nature one of these bombs. His account is as follows:

The bomb, as a rule, is conical, of ten inches diameter at the base, corded round and has a metal handle at the apex. The base is a flat cup, on to which a pierced metal funnel is fitted, having the ignition device and handle fitted at the top. The funnel is generally filled with thermit, which upon ignition generates intense heat and by the time of the concussion has taken the form of molten metal of the extraordinarily high temperature of over 5,000 degrees F. The molten metal is spread by the concussion. Outside the funnel is a padding of a highly inflammable or resinous material, bound on with an inflammable form of rope. The resinous material creates a pungent smoke.

There is generally some melted white phosphorus in the bottom of the cap, which develops nauseous fumes. In some cases celluloid chippings are added and occasionally a small quantity of petrol.

JOGGED HIS MEMORY.

One Clever Wife Made Sure Her Letters Would Be Mailed.

It was one of those days when it rained without the least warning that a well dressed man stopped in front of a High street business place. He stood with studied look, as though some heavy weight was on his mind. For fully five minutes he stood there thinking, thinking, thinking.

Then it began to sprinkle a little, and he raised an umbrella which he had been tossing from one hand to the other as he went through his different pockets. When he raised the umbrella two letters already stamped fell from it to the ground. They struck first on the hat of the man and then slowly fell down past his face. There was a broad smile, and he picked them up.

"I knew there was something my wife had told me to do, but I couldn't make out for the life of me what it was," he said to another gentleman who stood near by.

The wife had placed two letters in his umbrella. She was certain that there would be a shower and that in no other manner could she be sure of having the letters mailed.—Columbus Dispatch.

The New Minister.

"How do you like your new minister?"

"Very much, indeed. He's the right sort, one of those 'man among men' ministers, you know. Comes over to the house occasionally and smokes a pipe, plays on our baseball team, good at tennis and golf and seems to believe in getting pleasure out of this life."

"I see."

"Yes, and he's interested in the things we laymen are interested in. He discusses the problems of the day. I tell you he's a fine fellow."

"I know, but what sort of sermons does he preach?"

"Well, that I can't tell you. I haven't been over to hear him preach yet."—Detroit Free Press.

My wife felt weak and was easily tired and was also troubled with various pains, but since she took Peruna she is well and strong."

BOWSER BUYS AN AUTOMATIC

And His Burglar Calls That Evening.

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1915, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

When Mr. Bowser came home on a recent evening he stopped for a moment at the gate and looked up and down the street and across. When he entered the house he walked through to the sitting room to one of the back windows and peeked and peered for a moment before stepping back and exclaiming in a whisper:

"There he is, just as I expected!"

"Who is it?" asked Mrs. Bowser, who had followed him.

"A burglar!"

"How do you know?"

"I saw that man on the street car. I saw his hungry look as I took out my wallet to get a bill changed. He got off the car when I did and is now spotting the house to see how he may enter tonight."

"I shouldn't worry about him," replied Mrs. Bowser with a smile to herself."

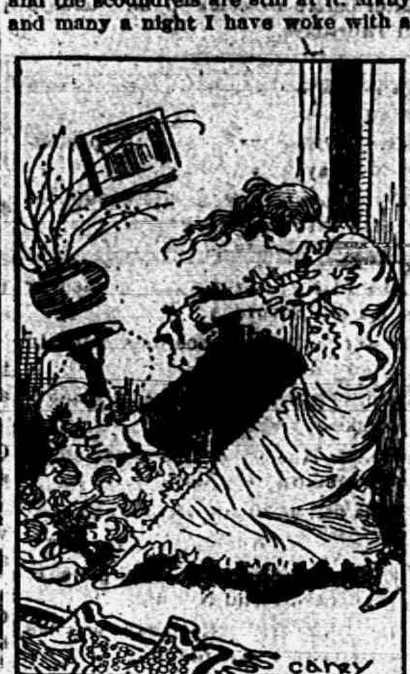
"I'm not worrying. I'd rather he was a burglar. I hope he will try to get in here tonight. I am fixed for him. See this?"

And he drew forth an automatic pistol, which he had bought an hour before, and exhibited it with great pride and said:

"Mrs. Bowser, we have been at the mercy of burglars for the last year. We are at their mercy no longer. I hold death for them in my hand."

"I haven't read or heard of a burglar for weeks and weeks," said Mrs. Bowser.

"There have been thousands of them and the scoundrels are still at it. Many and many a night I have woke with a feeling that an intruder was in the house, but I went to sleep again without alarming you."



"I WOULD GRAB HIM BY THE HAIR AND PULL HIM OFF."

There was no more talk on the subject until after dinner and then Mr. Bowser said:

"Mrs. Bowser, we must understand each other about this burglar business. If there is a strange noise in the house, and I think it is a burglar, I will poke you in the ribs with my elbow and gently whisper in your ear. You must remember not to scream out."

"I see," was the reply.

"If you are the first to wake give me a poke and whisper 'b-u-r-g-l-a-r-s?' That will be enough for me. I will spring out of bed, grasp my automatic and fly downstairs and fill somebody with lead. This is the program and we must stick to it and not get things mixed up."

"But do you think I am going to remain up here while you hunt a burglar downstairs?" asked Mrs. Bowser.

"Of course you are. You wouldn't be idiot enough to follow down."

"I'd follow, of course!"

"But what could you do?"

"If I found that a burglar had you down on the floor and was choking you to death I would grab him by the hair and pull him off."

"Humph! You would stay right up here until I came up and informed you that the burglar was as dead as a door nail. The matter is all settled and we need talk about it no longer."

Mrs. Bowser hadn't been made at all nervous by the talk, and she had no fear as she fell asleep. Soon after midnight, however, she found herself sitting up in bed and listening with all her might to some noise on the next floor down. It came again and again and after two or three minutes she made up her mind that a burglar was prying up a window. She took the end of Mr. Bowser's nose between her thumb and finger and then whispered the magic word in his ear. He grunted. She whispered again. He sat up and yawned.

"I think there is a burglar in the house," she whispered.

Mr. Bowser made a move as if he would fall back on his pillow and cover up his head, but checked himself and asked:

"What have you heard?"

"Some one is prying up a window."

"It is probably some noise on the street."

"But you will go down and investigate?"

"I don't see the need of it," said Mr. Bowser after a hesitation lasting thirty seconds. "It's probable that you had a touch of nightmare, but if you hear noises again give me another call."

Mrs. Bowser was out of bed in thirty seconds and feeling for the automatic under his pillow.

"Here! What are you going to do?" he asked.

"I am going down and shoot that burglar, if there is one," replied Mrs. Bowser.

He swung his legs off the bed, took the pistol from her hand, and as she turned up the light he started for the door. He paused three times in going ten feet, and as he laid his hand on the doorknob he asked:

"Suppose there is more than one of them?"

"If there are a dozen shoot them all!"

Mrs. Bowser followed him to the head of the stairs, and he did not object in the least. All was silent and darkness below, and the bravest general in the European armies might have hesitated over the situation. The plunge, however, must be taken, and Mr. Bowser took it, fully expecting that he was going to his doom. Mrs. Bowser encouraged him with whispered words, and at length he reached the foot of the stairs. There he turned to enter the sitting room, and just as he reached it there was a bump, bump, bump—a shout—a scream and then the noise of a skirmish line.

Mr. Bowser had turned loose his automatic. Mrs. Bowser had screamed, and the burglar was trying to get out of the window he had entered. In the darkness he could not be seen, but Mr. Bowser was taking no chances of letting him escape. He had the pistol pointed all over the room as it belched forth its bullets.

"Have you killed him?" the voice of Mrs. Bowser asked as the pistol ceased to bang.

"Ten times over," was the reply. "Can you light the gas?"

A gas jet was lighted and at that moment a big black tomcat who had somehow got into the house and wanted to get out again and had been bumping his head against the glass uttered a frightful y-e-o-w-l and streaked it for the basement stairs and disappeared.

Mr. Bowser looked at Mrs. Bowser. Mrs. Bowser looked at Mr. Bowser. Then he exclaimed, "By gosh?"

Then she sat right down on the floor and chuckled, and tittered and giggled and laughed as she had not done since she was a girl of twelve.

"What in the thunder ails you?" growled the burglar killer.

"Oh, it's so funny?" gasped Mrs. Bowser. "It was nothing but the old cat after all!"

"Durn her hide, but how did she get in here?"

"The cook may have left the kitchen door open."

"Then you discharge her in the morning, and if there is any wages coming to her don't pay them. I saw the cat plain enough as she ran out of here, but still I am inclined to believe that there really was a burglar in the house."

Mrs. Bowser stifled her laughs and lighted more gas jets and went to inspecting the room to find where the barrel of bullets which had missed the burglar had found lodgment. The following is a true record:

One bullet through the mantel mirror.

Two bullets through the piano, but not improving its tone.

One bullet through a window pane overlooking the back yard. It was later on ascertained that this chunk of lead entered a barn on the opposite side of the alley and nicked the ear of a hostler sleeping on his innocent bed.

Two bullets through the fatal parts of a Japanese vase. It must have died instantly.

Three or four bullets through a crayon picture of Mrs. Bowser. They destroyed her nose, knocked out her front teeth and carried away both eyebrows, but she was glad of it, as it had always given her a chill to look at it.

With the exception of five or six holes in the ceiling there were no more marks. The other bullets might have been shot into the fireplace and climbed up the chimney.

"Well?" queried Mrs. Bowser, after they had got through hunting.

"If it was a burglar," replied Mr. Bowser, "he has been mortally wounded and has crawled away to die."

"Yes, that is the way of it," said the politic wife, and the lights were turned out, and the couple went back to bed. Next morning Mrs. Bowser referred to the matter at the breakfast table, but Mr. Bowser discouraged her by saying:

"You had better get you a tonic of some sort. You had an awful attack of nightmare last night."

And the good little woman, knowing how a modest man feels when he has done a heroic action, didn't say another word—not a word.

A Real Angel.

"Why do you always allude to Mrs. Wombat as an angel?"

"She isn't forever paying calls which must be returned. Angels' visits are few."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Correct!

"Carl," said the teacher, "can you tell me what an invertebrate is?"

"Yes, ma'am," replied Carl. "It's an animal that does not have a backbone."—Judge.

GEN. SCRIVEN CARABOA HEAD

It is Philippine Organization That Sang "Damn" Song.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Brigadier General George P. Scriven, chief signal officer, U. S. A., has been chosen Paramount Carabao of the Washington Corral, Military Order of the Carabao.

The annual dinner of the Carabao will be held in Washington next December. The dinners of the organization came into special prominence two years ago when President Wilson directed that a rebuke be administered to the leading officers of the Washington Carabaos for singing the song, "Damn, Damn the Filipino" at the annual dinner.

450,000 ARMENIANS ARE PUT TO DEATH

Annals of Other Turk Atrocities Offer No Parallel.

NEW YORK — Dr. M. Symbad Gabriel, president of the Armenian General Progressive association in the United States, has received from Nubar Pasha, diplomatic representative in Paris of the Katholikos, or head of the Armenian church, news in regard to the massacres of Armenians in Turkey, in which it is said that "Christian martyrdom has at no time assumed such colossal proportions."

Dr. Gabriel, in making public the letters, said that from information contained in them and from other reports he had received directly, he estimated that 450,000 Armenians had been put to death or exiled, out of a population of 1,500,000.

"It is nothing more or less than the annihilation of the whole people," declares Dr. Gabriel.

Shower of Gasoline Carries Flames All Over City, and Hundreds Suffer Burns—Passenger Station, Hotel and Other Big Buildings Blown Up —Loss $500,000.

ARDMORE, OKLA — From fifty to 100 persons were killed, half the business district was set on fire and the passenger station and freight sheds were blown up when a 250-barrel tank car exploded fifty yards from the station here. Because the crash destroyed the lighting plant hundreds worked in the dark all night, digging the dead and injured out of the ruins. Many of the dead are women and children.

So great was the crash that almost simultaneously the passenger station, freight shed and adjoining buildings collapsed; the Whittington Hotel, near by tumbled to pieces, burying twenty persons in the ruins; the Pennington Wholesale Grocery company's building caught fire, and so rapid was the spread of the flames that employes and customers were trapped.

Hundreds Injured.

The fire spread with amazing rapidity, the shower of gasoline, which fell over almost the entire city, carrying the flames in every direction. An hour after the explosion more than half the city seemed to be in flames, with no apparent chance to save anything in the business district.

The number of injured cannot even be estimated. More than 200 are in local hospitals and in private homes, but hundreds of others have not been accounted for. Everybody is too busy working to relieve suffering or digging for bodies. Of the total population of about 8,000 here every able person that survived is engaged in relief work of some kind.

The property loss is estimated at $500,000.

RECEIVER TAKES M., K. AND T

Step Brings Total Mileage Thus Affected in U. S. to 75,000.

NEW YORK — The Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad was added to the big list of railroads in receivership when C. E. Schaff, president, was appointed receiver in the U. S. district at St. Louis. The system operates over 3,865 miles of road from St. Louis and Kansas City to Galveston.

This receivership brings the total mileage of railroads in receivership in the U. S. close to 75,000. The company has over $76,000,000 stock outstanding and a bonded indebtedness of $140,000,000.

BENJAMIN S. CABLE DIES IN AUTO CRASH

Accident Occurs With Car of Host R. T. Crane.

CHICAGO, ILL. — Benjamin S. Cable, president of the United Charities and assistant to the Secretary of Commerce and Labor under President Taft, was killed in an automobile accident at Byfield, Mass.

Mr. Cable was riding in an auto with Richard T. Crane of Chicago, at whose summer home he was a guest. They were motoring along a turnpike when a doctor's auto sped out ahead of them on a cross road. Before either driver could check his auto the machines had crashed together in a head-on collision. Mr. Crane and the physician were slightly injured. Mr. Cable was killed instantly.

Mr. Cable was a lawyer. He was unmarried and resided with his mother at 1415 Astor street. He was the son of the Ransom R. Cable, president of the Rock Island system. When the reorganization of the road was affected and the elder Cable left it, the son entered a private law practice. He had previously been in the legal department of the road. Mr. Cable was educated in the Chicago public schools, Harvard and Yale universities.

PERJURY CHARGE IS HURLED AT BROTHER

Manufacturer Accuses Bank Examiner of Falsehood.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. — Frederick L. Perkins, a state bank examiner, was arrested on complaint of his brother, Willis J. Perkins, president of the Perkins Machine company.

The criminal warrant charges Frederick Perkins with having testified falsely against Willis during a suit over notes given by Willis to his mother. On the death of the mother, Willis's three brothers and a sister, Edith F. Perkins, sued him in an effort to include the Perkins Machine company, which was built with money secured in return for the notes, in the estate.

Another brother, Charles E. Perkins, furnished bail of $1,000 when the accused was arraigned in police court.

TO PROBE SALVATION ARMY

Application for Solicitors' Licenses Are Held Up at Lansing.

LANSING, MICH. — The question of licensing the various charitable organizations for soliciting purposes is still held up by the state board of corrections and charities.

It is about the outside concerns that the board is worried. The Salvation Army has been picked as a test case, and Secretary Mart T. Murray is at work trying to find out exactly where he can get the information he wants about that organization. Under the Salvation Army system, so its officials aver, nearly all money collected is spent right in the place of its collection. The state now wants to know just what becomes of that money, whether it is paid out in salaries or whether it goes for something else.

BOYS MAKE BOMB, ALL HURT

Improvised Affair from Cartridge Box Inflicts Bad Wounds.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. — Three schoolboys were injured here when an improvised bomb, make by one of the boys, exploded. Lincoln Linderholm made a bomb by stuffing a large army cartridge with powder from an unexploded fireworks bomb which he had found at the fair grounds.

A portion of the shell entered the leg of Donald Kingsberry, aged eight, and another cut into his abdomen. A piece of the flying metal struck young Linderholm above the heart and another tore his upper lip. Robert Garrett was also hurt.

ALLIES DEFEAT GERMANS AGAIN

Crown Prince's Effort to Relieve Campagne Repulsed.

CLAIM KAISER'S LOSS 100,000

Anglo-French Drive Continues in Champagne and Arras Region—Teutons Suffer Heavily in Move for Verdun—Berlin Claims Enemy Is Checked—Kaiser Rushes West.

LONDON, ENG. — Crown Prince Frederick William's army was thrust against the French line in a new German offensive movement in the Argonne, but it reeled backward with heavy losses under the French fire.

The French continued their drive in the Champagne, gaining considerable ground. The British and French north of Arras maintained all their previous gains in spite of heavy German counter attacks.

While fighting of the stubbornest character raged all along the line across France it was reported that Emperor William had begun preparations to move his headquarters from the eastern front to Luxemburg in order to direct German operations in the west. He is expected at Luxemburg Friday.

German Loss at 100,000.

Roused by the big advance made in the first assaults of the allies after they launched their general offensive, the Germans rushed re-enforcements through Belgium to Lens and from various points into the Champagne. The arrival of these troops is believed to account for the stubborness of the battle now in progress in the Champagne region.

Whether the fresh German troops more than fill the gaps made by earlier fighting is a mystery. The German losse already are placed by allied authorities at more than 100,000. The loss incurred by the crown prince in his new move in the Argonne swells this figure.

What the allies' loss is cannot be learned, but it is officially admitted to be considerable.

Thwart Crown Prince's Plan.

In the view of the allies the crown prince assaulted the French in the Argonne with a double purpose—first to divert French troops from the Champagne region and thus lessen the force of the allies offensive there, and second to smash a way through the French line, with Verdun for his objective. The official statement from Paris says his offensive attack was "completely checked," and that "losses were heavy."

Apparently General Joffre and Sir John French anticipated such a move when they prepared their plans, and therefore left no weak spot anywhere along the allied front.

Germans Report Foe Stopped.

The German war office announces that the Anglo-French offensive in the neighborhood of Lille and the French attack in the Champagne made no further progress. The British attack in other sectors is said to have broken down with heavy British losses.

Says Offensive Failed.

BERLIN — Via London — The combined British and French offensive of which so much has been heard has broken down completely before the impenetrable strength of the German defensive works on the western front. The war office announces that the French and British troops have been driven back at all points and that the net result of an assault which extended from the North Sea to the Vosges was nothing more than a slight bending of the German line at two points in Artois, north of Arras, and in Champagne north of Perthes.

The public is but little concerned over the news that the allies were able to make a little headway out of such an enormous amount of effort expended but is on the other hand filled with renewed confidence in the impregnable character of the German positions in the west.

While the French and British forces were attempting to make progress the Germans captured more than 6,000 of their soldiers, including 425 officers, and took a large number of machine guns and other military material. The losses to the attackers in killed and wounded are not estimated but it is said that they were very heavy. The Germans gave up some positions north of Arras and in Champagne but have already regained a portion of it.

Greece to Call 400,000 Men.

PARIS, FRANCE—Mobilization of twenty classes of Greek troops will call to colors 400,000 men. THE GREEN MANIKIN

A Story With "Heart Interest"

By AGNES G. BROGAN

When David Bronson heard an American speaking voice in that little faraway Parisian restaurant an emotion that was surprising surged within him. "So this was what had been the trouble of late, this the cause of his unfinished book—homesickness, pure old fashioned homesickness."

Long ago, as a lad, he had realized this desperate feeling. Now the sound of that familiar tongue brought back a longing to be "among his own" which was almost unbearable, back again in "little old New York," for from her accent the speaker had also lived in that vicinity. Bronson whirled about to look at her. Demure and unaware of admiring glances, she sat at a nearby table, "conspicuously simple" in her close fitting black suit and turban.

Bronson struggled against an uncontrollable desire to hear again that soft voicing of his mother tongue, then with a muttered, "May I?" sank into a seat at the opposite side of the table. The restaurant being unduly crowded, his intrusion was calmly taken for granted. Happily absorbed, he gazed at the lovely, downcast face of his companion, and she, glancing up at last, smiled. A frank, engaging smile it was, like that of a friendly child.

"The salt?" Bronson asked politely, while the girl's smile deepened.

"So you, too, are American," she said. All the pentup longings of the man's home yearning soul broke forth at her question.

"American—yes," he answered, "and if you could but know the joy it gives me merely to be again in the presence of an American! I might have sought out my countrymen here, I suppose, but"—he laughed shortly—"I did not recognize my need until I heard your voice."

The girl leaned impulsively forward. "I know," she breathed. "Oh, I know! For weeks I've been fighting off the desire to go back. Sometimes it was almost too strong for me. I've got to stay here, you see. I must, until"—

"Until," he prompted gently. The girl drew back, continuing her meal. "Until I make good," she answered quietly.

"Student?" the man questioned. She nodded her head.

"There are so many of us," she said ruefully, "'would be' artists, musicians—mostly failures!"

"And you?"

The girl's low laughter ended in a wry smile. "I'm an art failure," she replied, with a shrug of the shoulders.

Bronson's quick glance was sympathetic.

"Perhaps not," he encouraged. "Better stick it out a little longer and see." She arose, drawing on her gloves, and stood looking now on the gloves, now on him.

"I intend to," she answered brightly.

With visible regret the author also arose.

"Pardon the boldness of a fellow American," he entreated, "but may I not hope to see you again?"

So it happened that the small table beneath the window came quite naturally to be a place of meeting, a place for the exchange of simple confidences, for comforting recollections of home beloved scenes and home happy times. To the man this one hour was a sort of panacea for all the trials of a troubled day. About it his dreams centered as a reward for nightly hours of writing. And the girl's open pleasure in these meetings was a constant growing joy.

"Do you know," she asked in her ingenuous way, "I cannot get over the idea that I have known your face before? It was strangely familiar from the first, and yet"—

Then David Bronson knew that his hour of announcement had come. It had been a gratifying thing to hide for a time from the paths of fame and to feel that his unknown personality had powers of its own to awaken interest and pleasure. With a sigh he drew forth his card and placed it before her.

"David B. Bronson," the girl read aloud, while recollection widened in her eyes.

"Not," she said in a tone of awe—"not David Bronson, the author?"

He nodded abruptly.

"And you are writing a book over here," she went on slowly, "a book with a French setting perhaps and one of your wonderful American heroines?"

"The heroine," he confessed, "proves a disappointment. She is so exactly what she seems to be—commonplace, no human heart interest."

The girl turned wearily aside. His admission of greatness seemed all at once to put him far from her presumption of friendship.

"Look about you," she said. "You'll find human heart stories among us all."

Bronson got hastily into his coat. "Just this once," he begged, "allow me to walk with you."

Heretofore this request had been refused. Now the girl deliberated. "You may come," she agreed.

Down the sunlit narrow street they went, crowds jostling her slim figure against the shelter of his arm—on through poorer districts and poorer until where the limit of dingy shabbiness seemed to have been reached the girl paused.

"There"—she pointed at the top of the tenement—"is my home."

"Home!" the man breathed contemptuously; then, with wondering pity he repeated the word, "Home!"

"Goodby," said the girl and extended her hand.

Smiling, too, she went up the narrow stair, but when tomorrow came she was absent from her place at the restaurant table. An atmosphere of unaccountable cheerlessness pervaded the sunny niche near the window. Bronson fretted impatiently at the girl's delay. He had intended to inquire today more particularly into her manner of living. His night had been troubled and wakeful at the thought of her bright presence, braving the struggle for existence. What sacrifice and deprivation might she not be undergoing for a dream of art which might be no more than a dream! This, at least, his own knowledge could decide for her if she would come. But the opposite chair remained vacant.

"Mademoiselle comes not today," the garrulous waiter remarked. "Mademoiselle, 'the green manikin,' is absent."

Bronson sat up with a start.

"Mademoiselle who?" he asked rather sharply.

"She who dines with you," the waiter imperturbably replied, "mademoiselle who is what you call 'manikin' or model for the great modiste. Surely monsieur has heard of the green manikin from Franquetta's."

Yes, Bronson had heard, remembered having seen the model pictured in Franquetta's window, a graceful figure clad always in garments soft tinted as the ocean's foam, and the model was his frank faced student—she of the tenement room. The two seemed irreconcilable.

Abruptly he left his untasted meal; a satirical smile curled his lips. So his sympathy had all been wasted, imposed upon. The green model of Franquetta's was evidently in no need of pity.

For a moment he hesitated before the glittering letters of the modiste's sign, then passed into the miniature theater. Before the parted curtain he waited, watching tensely the girlish figure framed in the gleaming lights. Clad in bright green from shoulder to satin heel stood the girl whose appealing presence had so deeply stirred his heart.

Mechanically, automatically, like some manikin in a play, she moved across the brilliant stage, displaying to an admiring audience the beauties of her costume. Bitterly the man turned from her steady painted smile to pass out again into the street. So the struggling art student, the beloved little student, had never been. Across his very memory of her must ever flash that crimson painted smile. He frowned disapproval when next day the girl herself slipped quietly into her accustomed seat.

"May I tell you," she asked, "the story of a green model who, unlike your difficult heroine, is not exactly as she seems, not exactly commonplace? Her story may even have heart interest."

"Fame is an illusive thing," she quoted. "One may more quickly find her because of one's ability to wear a certain color than for the reward of tireless years of study. Over in America my old father and my mother and the sister who has always been sick wait for a success in art which was prophesied surely for me. To this purpose were carefully—oh, so carefully—hoarded the savings of years. This had also been my father's youthful dream—to go abroad and perfect his own sketches, to achieve fame which critics promised. Marriage and later cares had forced this dream aside, but now it was to be fulfilled, gloriously fulfilled, in myself, the daughter.

"But that which had seemed an assured inherited talent at home became here a doubtful promise, and at length the savings were gone—all gone! Do you see, then," she cried passionately, "what I have been doing? Deceiving them all along; writing, as I fancied the glow on their faces, of how one sketch had been accepted, of how another brought the check inclosed, and all the time—all the time I was but a dressmaker's model, a manikin in green. How else could one make money here alone in a foreign land? But now"—her voice broke despairingly—"how dare I go back, I with my mocking boast of art?"

Something gripped hard at the man's throat, and his hand reached out to clasp the girl's.

"Tomorrow," he said slowly—"tomorrow I want to see those sketches."

Tomorrow he saw them. As he turned them over, looking intently at each, an expression of admiration gathered on his face. When he came to the last he looked up at her and said:

And to two old people seated before their farmhouse door there came one eve a letter. "Read it," said the mother. "It's from our girl beyond the sea."

The old man glanced quickly back from the closely written page. "Why," he cried—"why, she's to illustrate that great author's new book, mother, our own little girl!"

In speechless joy they gazed into each other's face. Then together they finished the letter.

"Books and pictures must ever wait for love," wrote the girl, "so David Bronson and I are coming home together. Your daughter has married the author."

"HYPOCRITES"

Never before in the history of the motion picture in Detroit, has the comment and interest been aroused as that occasioned in the presentation of the Bosworth production of "Hypocrites" which was shown for two continuous weeks at the Washington Theatre.

During its stay at that beautiful play house, it played to more paid admissions than any motion picture ever before shown in the city. More has been said of it, more has been written of it and more discussion has it occasioned than any production ever given public presentation either upon the screen or stage. And why? Because "Hypocrites" is without doubt the most sensational, the most beautiful presentation ever conceived for public exhibition.

If one wonders why a motion picture should thus be honored, he will find the answer in the witnessing of the production.

"Hypocrites" is big—it is big sensationally and artistically—in fact, it is the most remarkable idea ever subsidised into concrete form. "Hypocrites" strikes you a telling blow right between the eyes. It dazes you with its unclothed forcefulness. And still again you are soothed in an unexplainable manner by the sheer beauty of the story. Its wonderful appeal to all Christianity is so great, so powerful, that not only have the great public of Detroit recognized its worth, but they have been discussing it since the day of its first presentation, are discussing it now and will still talk of it long after the subject will have passed upon its way.

"Hypocrites" is wonderful, its equal has never been brought into existence and in all probability never will. "Hypocrites" is the masterpiece of screen production and will remain such for all time. Seeing is believing and if you have not as yet witnessed "Hypocrites," then by all means witness it the first opportunity you have. You will never regret it.

IT WAS A GREAT DAY FOR AUTO ACCIDENTS

Michiganders Were Slipping About Up Side Down.

MT. CLEMENS, MICH. — Sunday was marked by two serious automobile accidents here in which Detroit people figured. A Carter car owned and driven by A. F. Kraft, an electrician, crashed into the superstructure of the bridge over the north branch of the Clinton river. Vincent Kraft and William King received serious injuries about the hips. The party had been driving around town during the night at a high rate of speed without light and eluding the police, it was reported. David J. Meldrum, employed as a foreman by the Cadillac Motor Car company, was the victim of the second accident. His car turned turtle. He is at St. Joseph's sanitarium with a broken leg and bruised hips.

Petoskey, Mich., Sept. 28.—Five persons were injured in automobile accidents here while the streets were slippery from continuous rains. Mr. and Mrs. Grand Kaiser, wealthy farmers, were both injured internally when their automobile went over an embankment west of Petoskey. As Mr. and Mrs. Mid Martin and daughter attempted to turn a corner in the downtown section of Petoskey during a rain, their car skidded and ran into a telegraph pole. Mr. and Mrs. Martin were injured and their daughter, Katherine, aged eight years, was seriously cut about the head.

Saginaw, Mich., Sept. 28.—Daniel McMullen, of Flint, had three ribs fractured in an automobile accident here. Carl Freuchter, of Frankenmuth, reported to the sheriff that his car and another collided on the Genesee road near Cook's corners and wrecked. There were eight passengers in the two cars and all escaped serious injury. The sheriff also received word that a car had turned turtle in the ditch at the Michigan House on the Bay City road, but nothing more could be learned of this accident.

Eloping Couple Arrested.

TOLEDO, O. — Cylde Hazleton, twenty-one years old, and his wife Gladys were arrested here at the request of George Van Horn, the girl's stepfather. The couple ran away and were married at Monroe, Mich., August 6. The girl's home was at Portland, Mich. He will be charged with swearing falsely to her age.

Vernon Woman Must Be Just Horrid.

CORUNNA, MICH. — The slander case of Ray Brooks against Mrs. Cora Empie, of Vernon, was started in the circuit court here. Both are members of a Vernon church. Brooks alleges that Mrs. Empie connected his name with that of a prominent Vernon young woman. He seeks $5,000 damages.

Tecumseh Druggist Pleases Customers

B. J. Pulver reports customers greatly pleased with the QUICK action of simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc, as mixed in Adler-i-ka. This simple remedy drains the old foul matter from the bowels so THOROUGH that ONE SPOONFUL relieves almost ANY CASE of constipation, sour or gassy stomach. It is so powerful that it is used successfully in appendicitis. Adler-i-ka never gripes and the INSTANT action is surprising.

A Busy Season

The farmer is about the busiest man there is just now with his threshing not done, silos to fill, fall plowing delay, wheat to sow, and corn to cut, he has his hands full. It's up to him to save all the time he can. Would'nt it be a good idea to get a corn binder and cut one of those jobs short? It will take at least five days to do by hand what a corn binder will do in one.

A DEERING CORN BINDER

will handle tall and short corn with equal ease, and bind the bundles squarely in the middle. It has a 21 inch range for tying bundles where other machines have but eight

It has a main frame of angel steel, firmly bolted and braced, made to withstand heavy strain At the same time it is comparatively light in weight. Both roller and ball bearings are use to eliminate friction.

There are no chain belts to tangle and gather mud. Gears are all protected.

It leaves a clean, even stubble, and knocks off less ears than other binders because it ties the bundles while the corn lies flat on the binder deck like a grain binder.

With every Binder we promise you Free Repair Service for One Year.

TECUMSEH MERCHANTS PROGRESSIVE

The Trade, a journal for retail merchants and published in Detroit, comes out in its issue of September 23d with an article headed "Tecumseh Merchants are Progressive." The article gives a report of Tecumseh's series of Bargain Days, comments on the unity of feeling among the merchants and their loyalty for their home town.

We quote from the article: "Merchants who are inclined to criticise the conditions which maintain in the towns in which they live and who attempt to place the blame for lack of progress upon their fellow merchants instead of assuming some of the responsibility themselves, might with profit take a trip to Tecumseh, Michigan where a spirit of home town loyalty and personal interest in each other exists among the retail merchants to a remarkable degree."

The article closes with an account of F. D. Avery's 25th anniversary which he celebrated September 15th, complimenting him on his 25 years of success and his loyalty to his town and fellow merchants. A very good half tone picture of Mr. Avery is shown.

Much interest is being manifested abroad in Tecumseh's Bargain Days. Letters of inquiry have been written to us asking for details, which goes to show that Tecumseh is in the "limelight" and has started the "ball a-rolling." Our Bargain Days of last summer were not arranged alone to increase trade but also to create a better feeling between the merchant and his customer. Our merchants are well pleased and feel that the results have been most satisfactory. The town has received good wholesome advertising out of it and the tradesmen have succeeded in assuring their friends and patrons that they are giving them a "square deal."

BEST YET

"Don't Lie to Your Wife" Made a Big Hit

Manager Mark of the Bradley is certainly to be congratulated on the fine success he met with on the "Don't Lie to Your Wife" production given Wednesday night. The house was a good one and every one present certainly appreciated the fun which began with the raising of the first curtain.

The story dealt with a Mr. Doubleday and friends who were out with some chorus girls during the absence of their wives, also an escapade of Mrs. Doubleday's in which a race horse man figured. The various predicaments out of which both worked were ludicrous in the extreme and kept the audience in gales of laughter. The dancing was good and the singing exceptionally fine.

In the press agent we recognized the French tenor who sang here last spring with the Spanish Concert Co. who gave an entertainment at the Presbyterian church

WOULD CONNECT CHICAGO WITH NEW YORK

Of the many kidney remedies on the market today, none other is recommended like Doan's Kidney Pills. Thirty-five thousand benefited people gladly testify in the newspapers of their own towns. Forty-five hundred American newspapers publish this home proof of Doan's merit. The type used in one year to tell this wonderful story would make a solid column of metal twice as high as the world's highest mountain. Placed end to end the lines of type would reach from New York to Chicago. These miles of good words told by 35,000 tongues sound glad tidings to any Tecumseh sufferer who wants relief from kidney and bladder ills. Here's a Tecumseh case. Don't experiment. Use the remedy endorsed by people you know.

Henry Kempf, carpenter, Kilbuck St., Tecumseh, says: "My kidneys were not doing their work as they should and I was suffering from a lame and aching back. I got a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills at Wright & Son's Drug Store and it did not take them long to remove the trouble."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Kempf had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y. adv

Assist Your Stomach

To Get Rid of the Poisonous Gases and Fermenting Food.

A good long fast will do this sometimes. A trip to the mountains. Tramping. Roughing it. Yes, very good remedies.

But are you going to avail yourself of either one of these remedies. No? Then the next best thing is to try a bottle of Peruna. Take it according to directions. You will have a natural appetite. All gas and fermentation in the stomach will disappear.

Read what Mrs. Emma Bell, Box 204, Fort Pierce, Florida, says: "I was taken suddenly with swelling of the stomach and bowels, and great distress. Very painful. Three doctors gave me no relief. Could not eat anything. Everything soured. I was starving to death. I began taking Peruna and was soon strong enough to do work. After taking five bottles I can truthfully say I am well. I gained twenty pounds."

Victor Hugo.

Victor Hugo was the wealthiest of the nineteenth century authors and also the hardiest. At one time he made less than 1,000 francs last him and his brother for eighteen months, and one chop would serve for lunch three days in succession. But this early abstinence did not spoil Hugo's digestion, for at the age of eighty-three he cracked nuts with his teeth and ate oranges as some folk eat apples—peel and all.

Then the Row Started.

Mrs. Snappem (who has been suffering from toothache)—Thank goodness. I've had that tooth out at last! Mr. Snappem—Happy tooth! Mrs. Snappem—What do you mean? Mr. Snappem—It's out of the reach of your tongue.

The Grind.

"What are you doing now?"

"Two a day," said the vaudeville actor. "And you?"

"I can't quite equal that," responded the popular novelist. "Two a week is about my limit."—Kansas City Journal.

It is a great step in the interpretation of life when we have discovered that all events are ultimately spiritual.—Brierley.

HIS BOYS

How They Won a Mother

By AGNES G. BROGAN

It was a very bedlam of screeching sounds below which caused Mollie to swing wide the casement of her study window.

What could it mean, this riot of noise in a house supposedly vacant? For the owner's assurance that the house next to the bungalow was unoccupied had been one of Mollie's reasons for renting the place in the country.

Here, far away from city distractions, she might fittingly finish the clever serial for which a publisher waited. But now! From a rear door of the neighboring house came a rushing line of boys [illegible] shouting, leaping good naturedly at each other's shoulders—five of them.

"Sure, they moved in last night," said Nora, "and divil a wink of slape did I have all night. No one lift to look after them but an old red face of a cook, and the father ridin' off this mornin' in his automobeel."

Disconsolately Mollie wandered out into her well kept garden, the spirit of writing destroyed. Mr. Boffin, the cat, came scampering wildly from his customary seat on the garden wall, his exit evidently hastened by a well aimed missile.

"Dear me," cried Miss Mollie, "this will never do! Peace, indeed, and quiet and all the desirable advantages promised by that real estate man! Well, we shall see!" And then her gaze fell upon one small lonely brother seated in a sunny corner of the old veranda. Near to the touch of his thin white hand rested a wooden crutch, and presently, bearing his frail weight upon it, the little cripple swung himself out into the garden.

"Poor child!" sighed the girl in ever ready sympathy and retreated thoughtfully to her room again and her seat before the casement window. From this viewpoint she could see the lively brothers vainly trying to climb her garden wall to reach the hollyhock row which bordered it.

"If they dare!" she murmured, with flaming cheeks. But the cherished blossoms were just out of reach of the grimy fingers; then, with upraised angelic face, the little crippled brother leaned against a nearby tree and, much to the enjoyment of the others, deliberately lifted his wooden crutch and with straight aim knocked from the hollyhocks their brilliant blossoms.

"Oh!" cried Mollie, and "Oh!" again, and rushed down to deal with the offender. It was necessary to make the circuit of the great house, which had been empty yesterday, and to knock loudly at the close fastened door. When this was opened the red faced cook confronted her, and Mollie, pointing toward the limping culprit, asked, still a little excitedly, if the boy's mother was there and if she might see her.

"Tim's mother?" asked the cook; then she stared curiously at the girl. "Why, Tim's mother's in the hospital havin' an operation."

Again Mollie experienced the same helpless sensation which had come over her at sight of Tim upon the veranda, the little crutch close at hand.

"I did not know," she said. "I am sorry. Perhaps you could—could keep the child from being so mischievous. He's ruined my choice flowers. He has been spoiled no doubt," she added leniently, "left to grow up unpunished because of his—weakness. If his father"—

The woman interrupted with a coarse laugh. "Spoiled?" she mocked "Unpunished? Tim, come here!"

Quite cheerfully the little fellow obeyed. Quickly the woman's rough fingers, which could also be gentle, rolled back the lad's white waist. "There," she pointed—"there's welts, there's marks where he's been punished."

Mollie drew back in horror. "Oh, no!" she cried protestingly. "Surely no father could be a brute like that!"

But Tim exhibited his scars proudly as scars of battle. "Sure," he said. "I've been licked!"

Then Mollie's anger turned to pity. "You poor little thing!" she cried "They did not know how to teach you Come with me, Tim, and let me tell you about the flowers.

"You see," she explained as he hobbled along at her side, "they were just little seeds at first, planted in an empty garden. And the sun came along and did its warming work, then the rain, and the wind, and—the spring. The little seeds had a hard, brave fight of it; but, after all, the green sprouts came peeping above ground, then the stalks, and after, oh, ever so long a time, the green tiny leaves, next the buds unfolded slowly, slowly and then"—

The boy's eyes widened expectantly. "Then," finished Mollie, "came the flowers—the wonderful, glorious flowers." Her voice fell sadly. "And in a thoughtless moment you killed them all! I'll tell you," she added at the boy's conscience stricken face, "You may come over and gather all the flowers you want, but don't kill them."

The lad sank down upon the porch step of Mollie's house, and his small eyes regarded her shrewdly. "Say," [illegible] "after all I did you'll let me come over here? You'll let me have your flowers?"

The girl nodded. "Well, you are 'a good sport,'" said Tim, and their laughter mingled together.

"But you must be good," she admonished him. "You must be my knight errant and guard my garden."

And so faithfully did Tim perform this task that Mollie was called hastily one day by Nora to bandage an offending brother's head upon which Tim had used his one weapon of correction—the crutch.

Mollie watched each morning with eyes which tried to be sternly disapproving as the master of the lawless household entered his waiting car. It was difficult to frown continually upon one so gayly happy.

And the man's own brow would wrinkle perplexedly at the girl's forbidding salute in return to his friendly "Good morning."

Mollie wondered if the suffering wife in the hospital had no influence at all over those cruel blows. She heard him call to the boys quite savagely one evening, "You stop that!" Seizing upon the first excuse for intervention at hand, she picked up a tray of Nora's freshly baked cookies and ran to the garden wall. "Here, boys," she called over its top, "I've something for you." In an eager medley they came and, when they had been rewarded, as swiftly departed.

Mollie found herself looking directly into the man's smiling eyes. "You are very good to my boys," he said. Mollie hesitated, in anxiety to say the right word.

"One can do so much more," she remarked, "by kindness—than by—force."

"I agree with you." The man's tone was hearty. "And," continued Mollie, "little Tim was, no doubt, too frail for much schooling, but—he has such an apt mind—if he had but—half a chance now." Her voice reproved his neglect, but the man was most amenable. "I know," he said. "I intend to see that Tim has—a good education."

Mollie turned slowly away—again that helpless feeling of defeat. "His mother," she asked perfunctorily—"is she doing well?"

"Very well, they tell me," the man replied. He sought to detain her as she went up the path. "I'm going to take Tim in to see his mother tomorrow," he told her. So, in strange contradiction of emotions, Mollie gathered her choicest flowers, and when upon the morrow the shining automobile waited before the next house door she went forth in her white ruffled frock to place the roses in Tim's thin arms.

"You will give them to your mother," she said. It was hard to reconcile this tender father who settled Tim, the little cripple, so carefully among his cushions with that unspeakable father whose cruelty had scarred the same small body.

In the evening the man came back alone. "I had to leave Tim there in the hospital," he explained. "It seems he was not as well as they at first thought. The broken limb has not mended as it should, and it has to be forcibly broken again. He wants you. He says he can bear it better if you are there, holding his hand." The man's voice broke off huskily, and Mollie raised a pale face.

"I shall be ready to go with you in the morning," she said. So as they entered the hospital room the boy looked up with his own cheerful grin. "I knew you'd come," he told Mollie. "You're a 'good sport.'"

The girl laughed shakily as she pressed her tear wet face to his. "You must show me now," she said, "what a 'good sport' you can be."

"Sure," Tim answered bravely. When it was all over Mollie turned to find the man's eyes fixed upon her in a sort of worshipful adoration. Warmly he grasped her trembling hand.

"You are one of God's angels," he said softly.

So across the still motionless body of the little lad they gazed wonderingly into each other's face as at the birth of some new joy.

"Say," murmured Tim's weakly returning voice, "don't let them keep me here. Make him take me back to the country. You—make him." His entreating eyes were on Mollie. "He'll do whatever you say. He's dead stuck on you."

Mollie turned about breathlessly. "Oh," she cried, "he doesn't know what he is saying. He is quite out of his mind." But the man regarded her quietly.

"Tim does know," he replied, "just what he is talking about." Then as Mollie stood staring speechlessly the boy again spoke. "He is good," said Tim—"most as good as you are. Doesn't he come down to the hospitals where homeless kids are getting better of different things, and doesn't he pick out a bunch of 'em and carry them out to his 'get well house?' 'You come along,' he says to me, 'and I'll fatten you up in the country,' and my mother didn't care where I was, and my dad had broken my leg."

"Your father?" breathed the girl incredulously. Little Tim nodded. "Threw me downstairs," he explained succinctly. "Oh," cried Mollie remorsefully. Shamedly her eyes met those of the man. "And I've been thinking," she confessed—"thinking you were that father, blaming you all along."

"Good heaven!" exclaimed the man. His tone was eloquent. "Gee!" echoed little Tim. "But, say," he added quickly, "Won't you get him to take me back to the country?" "I'll make a bargain with you, Tim," the man began steadily. "I will promise to take you back for an indefinite time if you will try to persuade her to take me for good and all—later."

With a sudden tremulous laugh Mollie infolded the boy in her arms, while Tim winked back over the girl's bowed head. "She will," said Tim confidently. And she did.

Naturally.

Skin Sufferers—Read!

We want all skin sufferers who have suffered for many years the tortures of disease and who have sought medical aid in vain, to read this.

We, as old established druggists of this community, wish to recommend to you a product that has given many relief and may mean the end of your agony. The product is a mild, simple wash, not a patent medicine composed of various worthless drugs, but a scientific compound made of well known antiseptic ingredients. It is made in the D.D.D. laboratories of Chicago and is called the D.D.D. Prescription for Eczema.

The effect of D. D. D. is to soothe instantly, as soon as applied; then it penetrates the pores, destroys and throws off all disease germs and leaves the skin clean and healthy.

We are so confident of the marvelous power of D. D. D. that we have taken advantage of the manufacturers guarantee, to offer you a full-size bottle on trial. You are to judge the merits of the remedy in your own particular case. If it doesn't help you, it costs you nothing.

D. D. D. Soap is made of the same healing ingredients. Ask us about it.

CHEMICALS [illegible] BY WAR

Company Declares 60 Per Cent Dividend and Increases Capital Stock.

Midland, Mich., Oct. 4.—The Dow Chemical company, of Midland, having a surplus of $300,600 on hand has declared an extra dividend of 60 per cent. War orders for chloroform and the increased volume of home demand for other chemicals owing to cutting off the foreign supply, are responsible for the remarkable prosperity of the company.

At a stockholders meeting here an increase of capital stock from $1,500,000 to $3,000,000 was voted.

CONGRATULAED BY WILSON

Wallace D. McLean Weds Miss Ada Rorick McConnell at Adrian.

Adrian, Mich., Oct. 4.—One of the seasons's most notable weddings was celebrated here when Miss Ada Rorick McConnell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. McConnell, was married to Wallace D. McLean, of Washington and New York city.

SEAMAN'S ACT MUST NOT HAMPER TRADE

Secretary Redfield Says Commerce Will Not Be Crippled.

Washington, Oct. 4.—Secretary of Comerce Redfield, in issuing instructions to Collector of Customs Lawson, at Detroit, and to other collectors on the lakes regarding enforcement of the seamen's law from November 4, when it goes into effect, until close of navigation, throws out a very strong hint of forthcoming legislation to repeal the troublesome measure.

Secretary Redfield gives specific instructions that no one shall be permitted to defer compliance "in the possible thought that changes in the law may be secured during the coming winter."

At the same time the secretary shows appreciation of the fact that there is going to be a heavy movement of freight during the closing days of the season and he gives instructions that officers enforcing the law must avoid crippling the commerce of the nation. Insofar as passenger ships are concerned, the law will have no effect this fall, because all the excursion boats will be laid up by November 4, and the few passenger vessels running at that time will be operating under company rules superior in every way to anything aimed at in the seamen's bill.

Muskegon Court Dismisses Gravel Pit Investigation.

Muskegon, Mich., Oct. 4.—Finding absolutely unsubstantiated all the charges of false pretense made against Henry Vanderveen, of Grand Rapids, wealthy contractor of that city, who sold to Muskegon county the Laroop gravel pit, thereby doubling $5,000 in less than twenty-four hours, Justice Willard H. Howe of Muskegon Heights dismissed the case against him.

With this dismissal, it is asserted that the investigation of the gravel pit purchase by this county is ended.

BRITAIN DISCOURAGES PROPAGANDA IN U. S.

Sir Cecil Spring-Rice Issues Circular on Subject.

New York, Oct. 4.—In a circular letter sent out to all British consuls in the United States under date of October 1, Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British ambassador, defines the rights and duties of British subjects in this country and cautions them against any violation of American neutrality or any propaganda to influence public opinion here.

The circular remarks that the status of former British subjects who have become citizens of the United States "does not in any respect differ from that of native born American citizens," and that "a foreign official may not advise them, any more than any other American citizen, as to the manner in which they are to exercise their rights as American citizens."

The latter has this to say on the subject of propaganda: "His majesty's government, decided at the commencement of the war that it was improper to undertake any special measures with a view to influence public opinion, here, still more, that any appeal should be made by British officials to American citizens based upon the fact that they were born under the British flag. Especially it was not thought right or proper that any British official in this country should take part in any form of propaganda."

ALL NIGHT FIGHT DRAW IN FRANCE

French Make Small Gain; British Are Repulsed.

ALLIES LOSE BEST DIRIGIBLE

Germans Capture Alsace and Crew—Allied Aeroplane Bombards Luxemburg—Germans Use Liquid Fire but French Asphyxiating Bombs Offset Damage—Gains Equalized.

London, Oct. 4.—Hand-to-hand fighting that lasted throughout the night, the use of liquid fire by the Germans and asphyxiating gas bombs by the French marked the second day of the great new drive begun by the British and French in Flanders, Artois and the Champagne.

Conflicting claims come from Paris and Berlin, but both sides agree that the allies have made some progress. The French, Berlin admits, captured German trenches extending over forty meters in an attack from Neuville against hill positions near by.

Great Battle Near Loos.

The neighborhood of Loos, whence the British are fighting night and day to advance to Lens, was the scene of a desperate battle. No report has come yet from Sir John French, but the Germans officially announce that after a struggle that resulted in enormous losses the British were repulsed and forced, for the time, to stop their attacks in the hill region.

Fighting in the air is going on over the entire front. The French airship Alsace, the greatest of all the allies' dirigibles, has been brought down by the Germans in the Rethel district and its crew captured. The Alsace was the only dirigible that had done anything worthy of note for the allies.

Bombard Luxemburg.

French aeroplanes, Paris announces and Berlin admits, bombarded Luxemburg, capital of the duchy of that name, and did considerable damage. Berlin announces the bombardment as "an attack on the neutral city of Luxemburg," and says the airship killed two Luxemburg soldiers, a workman and a shop girl, but, since the duchy is the headquarters for the German army fighting against Verdun, the allies cannot regard it as anything but hostile territory. Allied airmen also attacked Vouziers and Laon.

SUBMARINE PARLEYS BEGIN

Secretary Lansing and President Confer on New German Note.

Washington, Oct. 4.—Following his receipt of a note from the German government on the submarine issue, handed him by the German ambassador in New York, Secretary Lansing has had a conference with President Wilson.

Thus after a lapse of two weeks during which Mr. Lansing has been enjoying a vacation, the submarine controversy has again been brought to the fore in Washington. Mr. Lansing arrived in the city only in the morning and it was regarded as a fact of some significance that the president desired to consult with him immediately without waiting until his regular business hours Monday.

HUNDREDS HUNTING MOTHER

Mrs. C. R. Boyce and Baby Disappear from Sandwich, Ill., Home.

Aurora, Ill., Oct. 4.—Several hundred residents of the town of Sandwich, fifty miles west of Chicago, on the Burlington railroad, have started a systematic search for Mrs. C. R. Boyce, twenty-seven years old, wife of a foreman in the foundry of the Sandwich Manufacturing company.

She disappeared from her home after midnight on the night of Sept. 24, carrying her three-month-old son in her arms. The following morning her nightgown was found in a corn field on the outskirts of the town.

CHICAGO MOTOR DEATHS 236

3,134 Persons Besides Are Maimed in Year; No Convictions.

Chicago, Oct. 4.—Two hundred and thirty-six persons have been killed by automobile accidents in Cook county during the last year; 3,134 are known to have been maimed or otherwise injured in Chicago alone, and hundreds, for which there are no records available, have suffered similarly in outlying districts.

No one has been convicted in these cases.

Mrs. Kelly to Have Eugenia Arrested.

New York, Oct. 4.—Mrs. Edward J. Kelly announces her intention to have her daughter, Eugenia, sister to the former Mrs. Frank Gould, arrested on a warrant charging her with being an incorrigible child.

Escaped Convict Back in Prison.

Saginaw, Mich., Oct. 4.—Herbert Keyzer, who escaped from the prison farm near Jackson several months ago, was returned to the prison to serve out his fifteen-year term on conviction of a statutory charge. Keyzer returned to the vicinity of his old home some time ago, was chased by a posse of officers and farmers, eluded them, and went to West Virginia, where he was working in a mine when captured three days ago.

TEUTON OFFENSIVE HALTED IN RUSSIA

Withdrawal of Troops Tells On Von Hindenburg's Assault.

London, Oct. 4.—The speed of operations and the intensity and vigor of Field Marshal von Hindenburg's offensive in western Russia is slackening. The effect of the withdrawal of troops for the Balkan campaign and of others for the strengthening of the hard pressed Teuton armies in the west is becoming more and more noticeable.

The German commander in chief reports only insignificant progress in the encircling movement around Dvinsk. Latest official advices from Petrograd claim the recapture of Postawy, on the important supply line leading from Novo Swensyany to Bereswitsch, half way between Wilna and Dvinsk.

The German southern armies of Prince Leopold of Bavaria, and the Austro-German forces in Volhynia and along the Galician border line are reported by Berlin to have made substantial progress. Petrograd, on the other hand, in its latest official report asserts the Russians made considerable headway in Galicia.

STORM DEAD TOTAL NEAR 500

Probably When All Sections Report It Will Be Increased.

New Orleans, La., Oct. 4.—The dead and missing from Wednesday's hurricane total approximately 500. That this number will be increased is certain. Little has been heard from a considerable area southwest of New Orleans.

Hundreds of persons are still marooned in the flooded sections along the coast. More than one hundred and fifty schooners were wrecked between Gulfport and New Orleans.

Police Commissioner Is Arrested at Chattanooga, Tenn.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Oct. 4.—T. C. Betterton, general manager, secretary and treasurer of the Tennessee Coffin and Casket company, and police commissioner of Chattanooga, was arrested charged with violating the penal code of the United States by shipping whisky in caskets sent out from his factory without being properly labeled to show their contents.

Liner Ashore Off Spanish Coast.

London, Oct. 4.—The Nelson liner Highland Warrior, bound from London for Buenos Aires, is ashore on Cape Prich, near Corunna, Spain, according to a dispatch received by Lloyds from the Land's End wireless station. Another vessel is said to be proceeding to her assistance.

Canada Bars Hyphenated Newspapers.

Chicago, Oct. 4.—An order notifying Postmaster D. A. Campbell that the Abendpost and the Illinois Staats-Zeitung, German newspapers of Chicago, have been barred from the use of the Canadian mails, was received from the office of Postmaster General Burleson.

Michigan Bars Illinois Cattle.

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 4.—The state livestock sanitary commission, with the help of Governor Ferris, has closed the state of Michigan absolutely against the cattle of any description, coming from Illinois. This quarantine is inspired by the prevalence of foot and mouth disease.

Dead Realty Dealer Swindler.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 4.—Frauds in duplicate deeds of trust and other forged instruments by Theodore Peltzer, killed by a fall from his office window Wednesday, were disclosed. Officials believe the swindle may total $500,000.

Jail Belgians for Singing.

Amsterdam, Oct. 4.—Baroness Decrombrugghe, a prominent Belgian woman, and her son, have been sentenced to a month's imprisonment for singing "Brabanconne," the Belgian national anthem, within doors at Ghent.

Illinois Man Cut in Two.

Benton, Ill., Oct. 4.—Otto Backner was killed here by a switch engine while attempting to board an Illinois Central train to return to his home at Christopher. His body was cut in two.

ED FRENSDORF ON REMAKING OF MEN

A Fine Talk by Michigan's Widely Known Penologist on This Important Subject.

St Peter's parish house, Tecumseh, was packed Sunday afternoon with an audience of men of all ranks who had assembled to hear Ed. Frensdorf of Hudson, speak on the subject of "The Remaking of Men."

Mr. Frensdorf has been a member of the board of control of the Jackson state prison for five years, and during that period has devoted a large portion of his well known business energy not only to the question of making the prison pay its own way, but also to the more important question of "remaking" the inmates of the prison, so that when their shall terms expire they may be better equipped to make their way in the world and not drift back into channels that will again lead them within prison walls.

It was the first meeting of the Men's class of St. Peter's church after the summer vacation and C. F. Patterson, the president of the class, in the course of his remarks introducing the speaker, thanked the men present for attending the meeting in such large numbers and extended to them an invitation to be present at any of the future meetings of the class which will be held every Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Mr. Frensdorf opened his talk with the statement that his five years' experience on the prison board of control had shown him that kindness goes far further than anything else with men behind prison bars as it does with men in every walk of life.

He said prisoners are not children in body or mind—they want to be treated like men. They must be given sensible work to do that is of a productive nature and not such silly tasks as carrying stuff from one corner of a yard to the other and back again as a means of punishment. The way men are punished at the Jackson prison is by not permitting them to work and taking away from them their amusement privileges. Men in prison, as elsewhere, must be kept employed or they get into mischief, and it is a difficult question for the board to provide them with employment that will not conflict with outside labor.

Two-thirds of the men in prison, are there, strange as it may seem, from their inability to work. Thirty-one per cent of the prisoners are the victims of venereal disease, which has weakened their physical system. While at work before they ever committed any crime they took whiskey, opiates or other stimulants to enable them to keep up with their fellow workmen, and then, when the drink and drug habits gets such a hold on them that they lose their jobs they go down to thievery, forgery and other crimes.

Of the Jackson prisoners 375, or 36 per cent, are under 25 years of age; and 141, or 13 per cent, are under 20; 70 per cent have not passed the third grade of the public schools; 487, or 47 per cent, have one or both of the major venereal diseases. During the last six months 24 youths under 20 years old have been received at the prison, 7 of them for murder. The problem of the prison management is largely one of dealing with the youths. Few men are made in prison, although some have been repaired.

The part of this talk, however, that I want to emphasize, is the juvenile offender. I have interceded with Judge Hart, at the request of a number of your citizens, in behalf of the three Tecumseh boys now in jail at Adrian. Judge Hart is one of the few judges in Michigan who knows anything about the probation law of the state. But few circuit judges know anything about juvenile penology.

I would beg of the people to keep the boys and girls out of prisons and reform schools. Society at large is to blame for the criminal conditions. An uncensored picture show may give a boy his first lesson in future crimes. The personal actions of men may influence others for bad. If three good men and three good women could be found in each community who would keep in touch with the boys and girls and by a word in season keep them from going astray what a preventative of crime it would be.

In my five years on the board of control I have spent more time behind prison walls than all the other members of the prison boards of Michigan put together, because I have thoroughly enjoyed the work. My numerous talks with convicts as to what brought them to the prison show that it is the same old story—truancy from school, an exasperated police officer who gets the boy for his first trifling offense, a stern justice of the peace, a sentence to the Reform school at Lansing. That is the beginning. At Lansing, associated with other degenerate boys they learn immoral practices, some of them the most disgusting, that they never knew anything about before they went there. The minute the boy become educated in these practices his faculties are imparied and mentally, morally, physically and spiritually, he cannot cope with strong red-blooded men in the world's work. Twenty-six per cent of the criminals are graduates of the reform schools, and 76 per cent have served terms in other institutions.

Mr Frensdorf spoke of the educational advantages offered at the state prison and said that the board was about to establish a vocational training school to educate prisoners, so that they would have some vocation to follow when they get out of prison. We are doing all we can, he said, to improve the men. The lifers are the best prisoners we have at the prison; 87 per cent of them never committed but one offense. We have lifers who are at work on the prison farm who have not been inside the prison for 27 months. The degenerates are the worst criminals. A big percentage of this class come from syphilitic parents and the question is what are we going to do about it. If you farmers here did not take more care in the breeding of your hogs than is done with the breeding of children you would be paupers in a few years. Now, we have an ever increasing army of imbeciles, deformities and moral degenerates to deal with as the result of our carelessness.

Mr. Frensdorf here spoke of the means employed to make the prison self-supporting. He said it was no trick to make a penal institution pay. He described the prison farm, its products, its canning and other factories and the 155 one acre plots of lots divided by lot among the prisoners, in the working and productiveness of which there is the most intense rivalry. He also spoke of the manner of feeding the prisoners who are the best fed in the United States at no greater cost than elsewhere as nearly all the foodstuff are grown on the farm.

Speaking of the prisoner after he comes out of prison he said if the world would give these men the chance to uplift themselves instead of looking down on them and hounding them fewer of them would drift back into evil ways and again get back in prison.

Mr Frensdorf's talk showed that he is thoroughly enthusiastic in his work and he has the amelioration of prison conditions and the reform of the prisoners very much at heart. In fact, he said that he was so enthused with his job that if the governor were to ask for his resignation from the board he would not know what to do.

Concerning Women on Juries.

"Do women have to sit on juries if they vote?" Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, president of the National American Woman Suffrage association, was recently asked:

"Not necessarily," said Dr. Shaw; "but I have seen a lot of juries which needed to have some one sit on them, and I have known women who have had to stand up at most difficult and disagreeable employments who would be glad to sit on juries and receive about double the price they can get by standing. And these men and women who prey upon the virtue of girlhood and boyhood would rather face Satan himself than a jury of mothers. Yes, we need women on some juries."

When to Stop Advertising.

An English journal requested a number of the largest advertisers to give their opinions concerning the best time to stop advertising, and the following replies were received:

When the population ceases to multiply and the generation that crowded on after you and never heard of you stops coming on.

When you have convinced everybody whose life will touch yours that you have better goods and lower prices than he can get anywhere else.

When you stop making fortunes solely through the direct use of this mighty agent.

When younger and fresher houses in your line cease starting up.

When you would rather have your own way and fail than take advice and win.

A Candid Caller.

A small boy had been coerced into making an afternoon call with his mother. He had rebelled vehemently over the calling business, saying: "Aw, what you want to make me go there for? She hasn't any boys, and it won't be any fun."

But, dressed in his best suit, he had put on his company manners and had behaved very well indeed, and when their hostess served refreshments he began to feel glad that he had come.

When it came time to leave he held out his hand, saying gallantly:

"Goodby; I've had a good time"—and then, right while his young mother was beaming her approval, he added honestly—"a whole lot better time than I expected to have."—Indianapolis News.

A Benevolent Refusal.

"Senator, I wish you would give me a job as your private secretary."

"Oh, my boy," responded the oily senator, "don't get mixed up with the government service. Nothing to it. Ruins a young man. Besides, I have promised that position to my son."—Kansas City Journal.

Cynical.

"Is he a good after dinner speaker?"

"If there is such a thing as a good after dinner speaker I presume you'd call him one."—Detroit Free Press.

RALLY DAY AT THE CHURCHES

At the Presbyterian church, Sunday was Rally Day both for the church and Sunday school. Special effort was made to invite each member of the church and Sunday-school with the result that a large congregation listened to the fine address by Rev. W. A. Rex on "Alone in the Yoke." A full choir gave some splendid selections. The church was elaborately decorated with flags.

At the Sunday-school hour was given a program of songs and congregational readings. Leon McLachlin's class gave a missionary dialogue which showed much study and training on the part of both teacher and pupils.

In the evening the pastor presented a stereopticon lecture with Elisha the subject. Two beautifully illustrated songs added to the evening's program.

Last Sunday Dr. Hartsog began his 7th year as pastor of the Baptist church. At the morning service there was an unusually large attendance of the Sunday-school and members of the church. The Rally Day program included special music by a chorus choir, recitations by the children and speeches by Dr. L. G. North, A. O. Howard and the pastor. J. W. Morse, superintendent of the Sunday-school, presided.

At 5 o'clock a large audience gathered to hear the music and the lecture. Special numbers were rendered by John Taylor of Chicago and Royal DeWolf of Detroit.

The attendance at the Young People's meeting filled the chapel. Miss Lula Stahler the leader had planned a fine program.

OPTION QUESTION AN ISSUE IN WASHTENAW

Ann Arbor, Mich. Sept. 27.—Local option will be a factor in the election in Washtenaw county next April. This is assured by results of the canvass that has been conducted in this county for signers to petitions which were posted today. 2,807 signatures were needed on the local option petitions and 3,035 were secured.

The city of Ann Arbor furnished 747 of these signatures while Ypsilanti contributed 454. The townships and villages of the county furnished 1,834.

In Augusta, Salem and Superior townships the numbers of signatures is nearly 85 per cent. of the vote cast in those townships for governor in 1914. In Ypsilanti township the signatures to the petition are 25 per cent in excess of the vote for governor in 1914.

More signed the petition for statewide prohibition than signed the one for the submission of the question in this county.—Jackson Citizen Press.

SUNDAY EVENING LECTURES

At The Baptist Church. Non-Christian Religions and Christianity Compared. W. B. Hartsog Minister.

In these lectures we will briefly explain their principal tenets, their moral worth of power for evil, the character of their adherents and the points at which they are inferior to Christianity.

This course of lectures will be an important contribution to our religious education and will reveal the unique excellence of Biblical Religion as represented in the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

Services began at 5 p. m. You are invited.

The Tail of a Fish.

A fish's tail is its wings. Owing to the machinery of muscle set along its spine and to its cleaving form a trout or salmon can dart through the water at a tremendous pace, though its rapid flights, unlike the bird's, are not long ones. It is soon tired. The water is not so friendly to flight as the air. The stroke of the fish's tail is one of great power, and by means of it and the writhing, snakelike flexion of the body a high speed is reached. The strength behind this speed is shown in the way a fish or sea mammal out of the water will raise its tail and strike the ground or boat.

THE HIGH SCHOOL

Rev. Rex gave a very interesting talk to the High School the other day taking for his subject "The Misquito." On Friday Rev. Hewitt also addressed the students on "The Influence of Our Will on Ourselves."

School now closes at 3:30 instead of 3:15 as formerly, the first 15 minutes of the afternoon session being taken for a little amusement. The working up of a high school chorus has begun, arranged in quart[illegible], in charge of Miss Coldwell. The students also enjoy some fine selections by great composers on the Victrola, noticing in particular the blending of the different instruments.

Examinations seem to be very popular with the teachers if not with the students.

According to "Professor" Lowry a new rule has been added to the German language. "Der Bruder," meaning "brother," he declines in both feminine and neuter gender as well as masculine.

It can't be true that the Juniors were out very late Monday night on their joy ride in a lumber wagon as not one of them failed to have their lessons the next day. Nevertheless they enjoyed themselves famously sliding down straw stacks and falling over fences, at the same time losing their hats, coats and shoes. They were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Gove sister of the class president Muza Rice.

The Girls' Glee Club has been reorganized and, as they are already engaged to sing are obliged to practice frequently.

The girls are more enthusiastic over basket ball this year than last. The Freshmen, Sophomores and Seniors have organized teams and are practicing every night after school with the hopes of organizing a high school team to meet outside teams.

It would be wise for the young ladies to fasten their slippers on more securely. Think how surprised one girl was when she reached the top of the stairs to find one slipper gone.

Come up to the high school and see the latest in wall paper decorations.

The students of the high school had the opportunity of listening to Dr. Steele give a splendid address Wednesday. His talk was on "Health" in which he emphasized strongly the responsibility of each individual toward the protection of his community against physical, mental and moral diseases.

Assembly was called Thursday afternoon for the purpose of reorganizing the Athletic Association. All in the high school are eligible to the association, the only requirement being that they pay their dues. The following officers were elected:

President—Seymour Babcock
Vice President—Ralph Cuthbert
Secretary—Joseph Satterthwaite
Treasurer—Camilla Hayden
Yell Master—Perry Hayden

Friday after school the high school foot ball team met the Clinton boys on the local diamond. As at last year's first game, the score ended 7 to 7. Of course the referee was not at all popular but would not give in an inch. Only one accident is reported. Percy McNeil was kicked in the ribs and had to see a physician after the game. He found the ribs cracked but Percy is coming along all right now.

CEMENT ROAD BUILDING

Arrangements have been made with our local theaters to run, on October 16 next, films showing concrete road building. These roads are rapidly gaining favor both for cities and country.

Wayne County has built miles of cement roads in the last few years and and these roads have attracted a good deal of attention. Permanent road building is the cry of the hours.

These pictures should be of interest to our people as something will have to be done with Evans Street in our Village in the near future. Should cement be used or should it be paved?

PENS OF THE PAST.

The Old Time Quill and the Art of Putting a Point on It.

Quill pens are no longer used except in rare old fashioned instances, but people still use "penknives"—you can see the name any day in the cutlery store windows—but they do not use them to make or mend pens. In fact, where is there a man or woman who knows how to put a point on a quill? It was once an art which every man had to master, though women were generally bad at it, as they are now at sharpening pencils.

In the old days the first question asked of a schoolmaster was the one whether he was skillful in pointing quills, for he had to sharpen the pens of his whole school and incidentally instruct his pupils in the art. Alas! There is no modern pen of steel or gold that is so smooth, so swift, so alluring as a good quill pen. The writer is very sure of that, for his father used to tell him so.

The art of handwriting has certainly declined since the quill pen went out of use. The old fellows could really write. We still pay them an unconscious tribute by calling a writer a "quill driver" and picturing the pen, whenever we have to make an abstract representation of it, as a quill.—New York Mail.

A Busy Season

The farmer is about the busiest man there is just now with his threshing not done, silos to fill, fall plowing delay, wheat to sow, and corn to cut, he has his hands full. It's up to him to save all the time he can. Would'nt it be a good idea to get a corn binder and cut one of those jobs short? It will take at least five days to do by hand what a corn binder will do in one.

A DEERING CORN BINDER

will handle tall and short corn with equal ease, and bind the bundles squarely in the middle. It has a 21 inch range for tying bundles where other machines have but eight.

It has a main frame of angle steel, firmly bolted and braced, made to withstand heavy strain. At the same time it is comparatively light in weight. Both roller and ball bearings are use to eliminate friction.

There are no chain belts to tangle and gather mud. Gears are all protected.

It leaves a clean, even stubble, and knocks off less ears than other binders because it ties the bundles while the corn lies flat on the binder deck like a grain binder.

With every Binder we promise you Free Repair Service for One Year.

"HYPOCRITES"

The most wonderful woman producer of the world of motion pictures, Lois Weber, had for her inspiration in the production of the world's master piece of motion picture art, "Hypocrites," Faugeron's famous painting, "The Truth" which now graces the wall of one of the rooms in the Paris Salon, a companion to the most wonderful in art as collected from the entire world. "The Truth" at the time of its introduction to the world caused more discussion than any painting of late years. Much was written of it by the daily press and it was the subject of great debate among the art masters of the world. Produced under the personal direction of Miss Weber, "Hypocrites" is one of the most extraordinary pictures ever placed before the public. It flays, with out cessation, those people who, faulty and evil themselves, yet dare to condemn the seeker after Truth Daring in its absolute frankness, it has been handled by Miss Weber with the most exquisite delicacy, thus causing it to be without offense to the most critical.

Lois Weber, the director of this most wonderful production, has always been noted for the delicacy and inspiration with which she has approached her work "Hypocrites" is the masterpiece of her brilliant career thus far. Her reputation as one of the most artistic and original directors in motion picture devotees to expect something superlatively fine in the production of "Hypocrites."

Particularly happy has been the choice of the producers in the selection of the talanted young English actor, Courtenay Foote for the role of "Gabriel." He not only looks the part, but enacts it with the exquisite finesse and technique of the finished artist that he is. He endows the character with a fervor and glow of inspiration that make for this characterization, a lasting triumph.

Equally fortunate was the selection of the beautiful Marguerite Edwards to protray the most delicate and unusual role of "Truth." Miss Edwards has been called the most perfectly formed girl on the stage and some of the scenes in which she appears among the branches of the trees, or dances through the forest, are wonderfully dainty and eautiful.

"Hypocrites" has set a new standard for plays which combine the art of allegory and the thrill of pure drama. It is a severe arraignment of the hypocrisy of modern life, and in the play, that is accomplished which has never been attempted before.

"Hypocrites" will be shown in Tecumseh at an early date.

MILAN VS TECUMSEH

The Tecumseh Independents were defeated at Milan Sunday 8 to 0. It was a onesided game with Tecumseh on the off side. The Tecumseh team was a little weak as several players who were to be with our team did not show up and Milan strengthened their team with several leaguers.

Batteries for Milan were Crossman and Hammershmidt and for Tecumseh, Martin and VanGeison. Attendance 500. Quite a number from Tecumseh motored over to see the game.

EARLY FIRE

Monday morning about 6:45 the fire department was called to the home of Chas. Hastings on East Chicago street. It was found the fire was up stairs in the room occupied by the boys and was probably caused by the explosion of a lamp. The fire was well underway but by prompt action was extinquished before the lower rooms caught fire.

The household furniture was all removed from the house. The boys lost all their clothes except those they had on and Miss Ruth's clothes were badly smoked. The loss is estimated at $100. No insurance was carried.

DOUBLY PROVEN

Tecumseh Readers Can No Longer Doubt the Evidence.

This Tecumseh citizen testified long ago.

Told of quick relief—of undoubted benefit.

The facts are now confirmed.

Such testimony is complete—the evidence conclusive

It forms convincing proof of merit.

Mrs. C. Stevenson, Wyandotte & Pottawatamie Sts., Tecumseh, says: "The first symptom of kidney complaint in my case was a sharp shooting pain across the small of my back, which made it almost impossible for me to lie down. Someone advised me to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial and I did, procuring my supply at C. A. Wright & Son's Drug Store. After I had taken this remedy a short time, the pains and aches left and gravel that had been a source of constant suffering, no longer troubled me. In fact, I felt like a different person. I have since recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to a number of my friends and shall continue to do so. My former endorsement holds good."

BULGARIA GIVEN RUSS ULTIMATUM

Czar Gives Ferdinand 24 Hours to Comply.

"BREAK WITH KAISER," ORDER

All Teuton Officers Must Be Expelled in One Day is Bellicose Message from Petrograd—Cannot Sanction Preparations for Aggression Against Serbia.

London, Oct. 4.—The Russian Minister at Sofia has delivered a formal ultimatum to Bulgaria demanding that she break with Germany and expel all German officers in Bulgaria within twenty-four hours.

The text of the ultimatum follows:

"The events which are taking place in Bulgaria at this moment give evidence of a definite decision of King Ferdinand's government to place the fate of his country in the hands of Germany.

"The presence of German and Austrian officers at the war ministry and on the staff of the army, the concentration of troops on the Serbian border and the extensive financial support accepted from our enemies by the Sofia cabinet no longer leave any doubt as to the object of the military preparations of Bulgaria.

Facts Contradict Bulgar Assurances.

"The powers of the entente, who have at heart the realization of the aspiration of the Bulgarian people, have, on many occasions, warned M. Rodoslavoff that any hostile act against Serbia would be considered as directed against themselves. The assurances given by the head of the Bulgarian cabinet in reply to these warnings are contradicted by the facts.

"The representative of Russia, which is bound to Bulgaria by the imperishable memory of her liberation from the Turkish yoke, cannot sanction his present preparations for fratricidal aggression against a Slav and allied people. The Russian Minister, therefore, has received orders to leave Bulgaria with all the staffs of the legation and consulates if the Bulgarian government does not, within twenty-four hours, openly break with the enemies of the Slav cause and of Russia, and does not at once proceed to send away officers belonging to the armies of states which are at war with the powers of the entente."

TO PROBE SALVATION ARMY

Application for Solicitors' Licenses Are Held Up at Lansing.

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 27.—The question of licensing the various charitable organizations for soliciting purposes is still held up by the state board of corrections and charities.

It is about the outside concerns that the board is worried. The Salvation Army has been picked as a test case, and Secretary Mari T. Murray is at work trying to find out exactly where he can get the information he wants about that organization. Under the Salvation Army system, so its officials aver, nearly all money collected is spent right in the place of its collection. The state now wants to know just what becomes of that money, whether it is paid out in salaries or whether it goes for something else.

SENORITA MOLINA

A Story of the Cuban Revolution

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

While the revolution that brought independence to Cuba was brewing the government of Spain through the governor of the island used every effort to secure the adhesion of prominent Cubans. Among those whom it was deemed desirable to win over was a lawyer named Enrique Fernandes, who was becoming prominent in his profession. One Jose Molina was summoned one day before Captain General Weyler and ordered either to win Fernandes by argument or bribery or force. Weyler at the time had unlimited power, and his orders were not to be disobeyed.

Molina was an elderly man and the father of a family of children, one of whom, Rosa, was grown. Fernandes was about thirty years old and unmarried. Molina invited Fernandes to his house that he might have an opportunity to persuade him to align himself on the side of the Spanish government. Fernandez accepted the invitation, listened to his host's arguments, but was unconvinced.

Molina noticed that Fernandes cast admiring eyes on Senorita Rosa, and it occurred to him that what he himself could not accomplish by argument his daughter might bring about by persuasion. The father therefore held a private interview with her, at which he said:

"My child, I have been ordered by the captain general to bring Senor Fernandez to the support of the Spanish cause either by argument or force. I have tried the former and failed. The latter course remains. I must tell my guest that the Spanish government demands his adhesion or his life. At times a woman may accomplish by persuasion what a man cannot effect by argument. If you could win over Senor Fernandez you might save his life."

"But, father," asked Rosa, "why are you obliged to do this work?"

"General Weyler is an autocrat in Cuba. He may send me to prison or to death, whichever he chooses."

The girl paled. She did not speak for some time. Then she said:

"Do you wish me to win Senor Fernandez's adhesion to the crown by first winning his love?"

"I do not. I would rather suffer than have you do anything dishonorable."

Again there was a silence, at the end of which Rosa threw her arms about her father's neck and assured him that she would do anything honorable to save him from the consequences of failure.

What made this duty odious to Rosa Molina was that she was heart and soul for the cause of Cuba. One morning she sat on the veranda of her home with Fernandez and began to reason with him why he should embrace the cause of Spain. He listened to her while she spoke hesitatingly and without animation, and when she came to a halt he said:

"Tell me the truth. Your heart is not with Spain; it is with Cuba. There is some reason why you are endeavoring to win me to a cause with which you do not sympathize yourself."

Rosa did not dare tell him what he wished to know. If she should do so he might betake himself beyond her father's reach, and the latter would have to suffer for his failure. She would not tell an untruth. Rising from her seat, she went into the house, leaving Fernandez wondering what all this meant.

Senorita Molina sought her father and told him that she had tried to influence Fernandez, but had failed because she was unfitted to plead a cause to which she was bitterly opposed. Molina sighed, but the sigh was his only reply. Rosa was much troubled. She asked him many questions. If he reported a failure to the governor would he be imprisoned? What would be her next move in respect to Fernandez? What did General Weyler mean by using force to secure the latter's adhesion? She received no reply. Whether her father was himself uncertain in regard to these matters she did not know. The only information she received was that [illegible]ther or Fernandez must suffer.

Rosa left her father to shut herself up in her room that she might form some plan of action. Would it not be best for her to tell Fernandes of the situation and trust to him to find some way to save her father? This would be trusting too much to a man whom she had known but a short while. If he should take himself off to the revolutionists Rosa would feel that she had betrayed her father.

[illegible] of this pressure which had been brought to bear upon him, would have departed had he not been interested in these persons who he believed were made the unwitting tools of the Spanish government. More than this, he was powerfully drawn toward Rosa. It occurred to him to pretend to be uncertain as to which cause he would espouse in order that he might gain time for observation in the hope that he would be able to solve the mystery. So long as there was any hope of a willing surrender there was no reason to use force, and day after day passed with no change in the situation.

Meanwhile the attorney was falling in love with Rosa Molina. Nevertheless he could see no evidence that she regarded him in the same light. For some reason unknown to him she seemed to look upon him with a sort of dread. One day he said to her:

"Senorita, you and your father have some interest in wishing me to support the Spanish government. To convince you that you can safely confide in me I will tell you something which you do not suspect. I love you. Tell me the source of your efforts to convert me to a cause that you not approve. I swear to you not only on the honor of a gentleman, but as one who loves you, that I will not betray you; that if either you or your father or I must suffer it shall be I."

"You have only added to the complication that besets us all," she said. "If I could assure you that your love was returned it might simplify matters, for we might then come to a mutual understanding. As it is, to tell you what threatens us would be to invite a sacrifice on your part without being able to reward you for making it. If you have seen anything in me to warrant your avowal you have been mistaken."

"I have seen nothing to warrant an avowal, and I am not surprised to receive an unfavorable response. I have made my confession that you may understand that you have nothing to fear from me—that my life is at your service."

Naturally these words had a powerful effect upon Rosa Molina. She fixed her gaze on the speaker with an expression that it was difficult for him to interpret. It seemed to be a mingling of awe and reverence. But there was no love in it. After thus looking intently at him for a few moments she said:

"Leave me to think over all this. So many strange things have followed upon one another so closely that I am bewildered."

Meanwhile Senor Molina was acting irrespective of anything that was taking place between these two. Weyler had become impatient and given him a definite and imperative order. One morning Molina summoned Fernandez into his private room and said to him:

"Senor, the government demands your influence and your efforts to assist in putting down this rebellion against the authority of the king of Spain."

"And what if I refuse?"

"You will pass into the hands of the governor general. I cannot answer for your life."

"You can answer for my death. Those who go into General Weyler's parlors never come out. You have my reply. Long live Cuba and Cuban independence!"

With this Fernandez turned to leave the apartment. Molina stopped him.

"You cannot leave this house."

"Why not?"

"It is surrounded by Spanish soldiers."

Fernandez paused. He had been hasty in giving a definite answer.

"Am I to be taken from here immediately?" he asked.

"Unless you recall your reply."

"Give me time."

"My instructions are to require an answer within twenty-four hours."

"Very well. Before tomorrow noon I will choose between life for Spain or death for Cuba."

* * * * * * *

The Spanish fleet had been destroyed. Santiago had fallen. Cuban independence had been achieved. Sufficient time had elapsed for the Pearl of the Antilles to become the pearl of her own people. Enrique Fernandes was now a judge on the bench. Quite often it was his duty to pass upon a matter arising from the antagonism existing between Cuban liberators and Spanish adherents during the revolution. A man whose hair was prematurely white was brought before the judge on a charge of having legally executed a man by order of the king of Spain. The culprit was supported by his daughter, who was doing all in her power to encourage him.

"Jose Molina," said the judge, "do you remember me?"

"I do."

"When last we met you demanded my support of the Spanish cause or my life. I was given a day in which to arrive at a final decision. The decision was not given, for that night I escaped from your house. You were only partly to blame for these acts of tyranny, for you were the unwilling tool of the tyrant. You gave me my choice between Spain and death, and yet I am under a great obligation to you, not to you directly, but through a member of your family."

The prisoner stood waiting for the judge to explain.

"It is to your daughter that you owe the life that I am about to give you, for it was she who provided for me the means of escape from your home. What I owe to her I give to you. Go free. We have had enough of these reprisals since the revolution. I will hear no more of them."

"Senorita, I once offered to give my life to solve a problem that distressed you. You repaid me by giving me a freedom which enabled me to fight for Cuba. If I had a hundred lives with which to repay this debt I would give them all to you."

As Senorita Molina led her father out of the courtroom she turned and looked at the judge. What was in that look he understood, for not long afterward when she and her father had returned to her home a wedding was celebrated there. Judge Fernandes being the groom and Senorita Molina the bride.

To Build $30,000 Addition.

SEAMAN'S ACT MUST NOT HAMPER TRADE

Secretary Redfield Says Commerce Will Not Be Crippled.

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Comerce Redfield, in issuing instructions to Collector of Customs Lawson, at Detroit, and to other collectors on the lakes regarding enforcement of the seamen's law from November 4, when it goes into effect, until close of navigation, throws out a very strong hint of forthcoming legislation to repeal the troublesome measure.

Secretary Redfield gives specific instructions that no one shall be permitted to defer compliance "in the possible thought that changes in the law may be secured during the coming winter."

At the same time the secretary shows appreciation of the fact that there is going to be a heavy movement of freight during the closing days of the season and he gives instructions that officers enforcing the law must avoid crippling the commerce of the nation. Insofar as passenger ships are concerned, the law will have no effect this fall, because all the excursion boats will be laid up by November 4, and the few passenger vessels running at that time will be operating under company rules superior in every way to anything aimed at in the seamen's bill.

LIQUOR LAW TO BE TESTED

Grand Rapids Attorney Carries Township Act to High Court.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. — A test of the recently enacted Soure law, which gives township boards power to refuse saloon licenses, is involved in a writ of mandamus granted by the Michigan supreme court to Attorney Fred C. Temple, of this city. Temple is representing Raymond A. Price, of Harvard, who is seeking a saloon license in his township.

Circuit Judge McDonald recently refused to issue a writ of mandamus to compel the granting of the license.

The supreme court action compels a review of the case.

VANDERVEEN IS EXONERATED

Muskegon Court Dismisses Gravel Pit Investigation.

MUSKEGON, MICH. — Finding absolutely unsubstantiated all the charges of false pretense made against Henry Vanderveen, of Grand Rapids, wealthy contractor of that city, who sold to Muskegon county the Larsey gravel pit, thereby doubling $5,000 in less than twenty-four hours, Justice Willard H. Howe of Muskegon Heights dismissed the case against him.

With this dismissal it is asserted that the investigation of the gravel pit purchase by this county is ended.

FORFEITS HIS CITIZENSHIP

Naturalized American Forgets to Register; Forced Into Austrian Army.

CALUMET, MICH. — Efforts of John Malnar, a prominent business man of Calumet, to secure the release of his brother, Simon Malnar, a naturalized American citizen, from serving in the Austrian army, likely will prove fruitless, according to advices received from the state department at Washington. Simon Malnar acquired his final citizenship papers here in 1906, but two years later returned to Austria to spend a short time with his parents in their declining years.

He neglected, it is said, to register as an American citizen upon his return to Austria and has probably forfeited his American citizenship thereby.

ROUMANIA JOINS FOES OF KAISER

GREATEST POWER IN BALKANS

Best Small Army in Europe Will Take Field Moment Bulgaria Strikes—French Land Troops—Allies Expeditionary Force at Saloniki—More to Come.

LONDON. — In the absence of official news the London newspapers assume that Bulgaria has ignored the ultimatum sent Sunday by Russia and that war is consequently certain.

LONDON — Roumania, the key to the great struggle that virtually began in the Balkans, will throw in her lot with the entente allies.

Of the more than a million splendidly drilled and armed men that Bulgaria's action has hurled into the great new struggle that will again make the Balkan peninsula the cockpit of Europe, at least 650,000 will fight on the side of the allies.

Big Gain For Allies.

The great battle of intrigue and diplomacy is ended, and what seemed for a while to be a Germanic victory looks today like a great triumph for the allies. With Roumania, the real master of the near east, [illegible] Greece and Serbia, the central powers are farther from their object than they were while the three Balkan states remained neutral and Serbia fought her battles alone against Austria and Turkey, with the natural advantages of the Dardanelles, fought off the allies' fleet and army at Gallipoli.

Three hundred and fifty thousand seasoned veterans are assured to the Germanic cause by the acquisition of Bulgaria, but against that must be figured the Greek army, at least 200,000 of the finest soldiers in Europe, and Roumania's 450,000 men, considered by military men the best drilled and best equipped small army in the world.

To Defend Serbia.

Roumania has made a technical condition that she be not required to enter the war unless Bulgaria attacks Greece or Serbia. Since Bulgaria is practically engaged in hostile operations and Greece has aligned herself with the entente allies in self-defense, the entrance of Roumania into the struggle is no longer to be questioned.

French Land Troops.

France and England have answered the Bulgarian challenge, not with words but with men. A French expeditionary force has been landed at Saloniki, Greece, to march into Serbian territory. How many men the French landed is not known. But it is known that a large French force has been waiting for weeks at several bases in the Aegean, not knowing whether its destination would be the Dardanelles or Greece. A large body of Kitchener's troops is also said to be ready to sail from the training camps in Egypt.

Greece Is Ready.

A telegram from Athens to the Tribuna says that General Sir Ian Hamilton, British commander at the Dardanelles, has been at Saloniki to inspect arrangements made for the landing of more troops.

A dispatch from Athens says: "All doubt as to the entrance of Greece in the war on the side of the entente allies has now been disposed of. The official organ of the government says that the landing of French troops at Saloniki is for the purpose of assisting Greece.

As Friends of Greece.

In regard to the landing of the French troops the governmental organ says that if for the present the government considers the assistance of the allies as premature, it is none the less to aid and support Greece that the allies are at Saloniki. France and England enter the Balkans as traditional friends of Greece and not otherwise.

The Greek government has seized the Macedonia railroads, of which two are Austrian and one French.

Czar's Fleet Off Bulgaria.

Two powerful Russian squadrons are reported to have appeared off the Bulgarian coast, near Varna, on the Black Sea. This announcement is made by the Tribuna of Rome, according to the correspondent there of the Exchange Telegraph company.

This demonstration by Russia follows the twenty-four-hour ultimatum sent by the czar to King Ferdinand demanding that he break with his Germanic allies and expert German army officers or else face a rupture of diplomatic relations with Russia, meaning war.

Ford Answers Canadian Critics.

TORONTO. — Henry Ford, head of the Ford automobile industry in Detroit, has issued a statement to the Toronto Globe to the effect that while he cares neither to affirm nor deny the statement attributed to him, in connection with the Anglo-French war loan, he stands on record as opposed to militarism and everything in connection with it, particularly preparedness.

Glazier Cottage Burns.

CHELSEA, MICH. — The summer home of Frank P. Glazier, former state treasurer, at Cavanaugh lake where he has been living continuously since his return from Jackson, has burned.

Auto Truck Driver Badly Hurt.

BAY CITY, MICH. — Charles Krause, thirty, auto truck driver of the Bay City Grocer company, was badly injured when a motorcyclist ran him down. Krause was thrown some 30 feet.

Prisoner Skips Courtroom.

KALAMAZOO, MICH. — When a jury brought in a verdict of guilty, the prisoner, Joseph Stonochi, wasn't present to hear it and so far the officers haven't been able to find him.

CHICAGO BARS WILL BE CLOSED SUNDAYS

Mayor Thompson Issues Order For Next Sabbath.

CHICAGO, ILL.—Mayor Thompson has informed the city council that all saloons in Chicago must hereafter be closed on Sundays, and that the police will enforce the state law in this regard.

It was clearly inferred from this statement by the Mayor, contained in his annual message to the council, that he will revoke the license of any saloonkeeper hereafter found selling wine, beer or liquor on Sundays.

He stated that he had received numerous complaints from private citizens and from various organizations to the effect that the state law is being violated by licensed saloonkeepers, who keep their places open at all hours on the Sabbath, and dispense liquors, beers and wines openly. These complaints, Mayor Thompson told the council, he had referred to the corporation counsel, Richard S. Folsom, who had delivered a written opinion advising the Mayor that, despite the fact the city ordinances allow saloonkeepers to sell liquor on Sunday, this ordinance is of no effect, as it is in conflict with the state law.

FOURTH MURDER IN A WEEK

Man Is Killed With Pair of Knucks in Muncie, Ind., "Tiger."

MUNCIE, IND. — The fourth murder in Muncie in a week, and the sixth in as many weeks, was committed, when Isaac Cox, aged fifty-three, was struck with a pair of knucks in the course of what is believed to have been a drunken brawl, in or near the alleged "blind tiger" of Roy Kremean, a local politician. Six men who told conflicting stories in regard to the affray are held in jail while the affair is being investigated. They are Mike Brumback, his brother, Albert, Roy Kremean, Richard Persinger, James Dawson and Harrison Williams.

Cox lived only ten minutes after being struck. He left a widow and seven children.

STORM DEAD TOTAL NEAR 500

Probably When All Sections Report It Will Be Increased.

NEW ORLEANS, LA. — The dead and missing from Wednesday's hurricane total approximately 500. That this number will be increased is certain. Little has been heard from a considerable area southwest of New Orleans.

Hundreds of persons are still marooned in the flooded sections along the coast. More than one hundred and fifty schooners were wrecked between Gulfport and New Orleans.

MAYOR INDICTED AS FIREBUG

R. M. B. Tidd of Webster Groves, Mo., and Seven Others Accused of Plot.

ST. LOUIS — Roy M. B. Tidd, mayor of Webster Groves, Mo., a suburb of 10,000 inhabitants, and president of the Nixon-Jones Printing company, was indicted on a charge of arson with seven others.

The Nixon-Jones plant was destroyed by fire Sept. 4.

Canada Bars Hyphenated Newspapers.

CHICAGO. — An order notifying Postmaster D. A. Campbell that the Abendpost and the Illinois Staats-Zeitung, German newspapers of Chicago, have been barred from the use of the Canadian mails, was received from the office of Postmaster General Burleson.

CHEMICALS BOOMED BY WAR

MIDLAND, MICH. — The Dow Chemical company, of Midland, having a surplus of $900,000 on hand has declared an extra dividend of 60 per cent. War orders for chloroform and the increased volume of home demand for other chemicals owing to cutting off the foreign supply, are responsible for the remarkable prosperity of the company.

At a stockholders meeting here an increase of capital stock from $1,500,000 to $3,000,000 was voted.

Housekeeping by Correspondence.

EAST LANSING, MICH. — A special department of household engineering at Michigan Agricultural college will have a correspondence department through which any housewife may receive solutions of knotty domestic problems.

BANKS REPORT BUSINESS GAIN

Federal Reserve Agents Find Conditions Improving.

COTTON SITUATION IS BETTER

Reserve Board Finds Confidence Is Increasing Throughout Nation—Conditions in Chicago District Good—Iron and Steel Industry Booms—Good Reports from All Districts.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Reports from the reserve agents in the twelve districts made public by the federal reserve board indicate improved business conditions throughout the country. The three southern districts where cotton is the principal factor find that the advance in cotton prices and assurances of ample financing for the new crop have benefited all trade activities.

Boston reports general improvement in all lines over last month which is "very slight," but is in addition and apart from European orders, which is taken as an encouraging sign.

New York reports retail business poor in certain sections, but wholesalers say trade is expanding, and the outlook is good for fall and winter business.

General Trade Improves.

Improved conditions confined to special lines in the Cleveland district have found their way into general trade. The steel business continues to boom, but little domestic business for 1916 is reported.

With cotton at present prices, Richmond reports, a large part of the district's crops will move from first hands, and the consequent liquidation of seasonal trade obligations will be generally helpful. Leaf tobacco prices are said to be holding well. Conditions are described as sound and with excellent promise.

Bright outlook in the cotton market in the Atlanta district, says the report, is an important factor. Railroads show considerable increase in freight traffic. The tobacco belt indicates a crop in good condition, with an average better than last year.

Confidence in Chicago.

Chicago notes that any change in general conditions is for the better, and that there is apparent a feeling of more confidence in the future. Crops continue to look good.

The wholesale trade of the St. Louis district shows increased activity, with a large jobbing business, and commercial failures decreasing in number. A feeling of doubt is said to be turning to one of confidence among merchants.

Minneapolis says the district will contribute between 290,000,000 and 300,000,000 bushels of hard wheat to the 1915 crop, compared with about 160,000,000 bushels a year ago.

INDICT RIGGS BANK HEADS FOR PERJURY

Action Grows Out of Controversy With Secretary McAdoo.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Charles G. Glover, president of the Riggs National bank; William J. Flather, vice president and H. H. Flather, cashier, were indicted for perjury in connection with the bank's recent suit against Secretary McAdoo and Comptroller Williams.

Four indictments were returned against each of the bank officials, who are charged with perjury in making an affidavit which set forth that the bank never had engaged in stock market transactions and had no transactions with Lewis, Johnson & Co., a defunct firm of local stockholders.

ASKS $7,500,000 OF R. I. MEN

Receiver Dickinson Sues Directors of the Road for This Sum.

NEW YORK — Jacob M. Dickinson, receiver of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway company, brought suit in the supreme court here to recover $7,500,000 from the directors of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway company.

HOG CHOLERA MAXIMS

Measures to Observe for Preventing Infection, Treating the Disease, and Disinfecting Premises.

Hog cholera is most prevalent at this season of the year, and the U S. Department of Agriculture offers the following suggestions to those who are interested in combating the disease.

TO KEEP HOG CHOLERA OUT OF THE HERD.

1. Locate your hog lots and pastures away from streams and public highways and do not allow the hogs to run free range.

2 Do not visit your neighbor or allow him to visit you, if either of you have hog cholera on your premises.

3 Do not drive into hog lots when returning from market or after driving on public highways.

4. Do not use hog lots for yarding wagons and farm implements.

5 Do not place newly purchased stock, stock secured or loaned for breeding purposes, or stock exhibited at county fairs with your herd Keep such stock quarantined at least two weeks, and use care to prevent carrying infection from these to other pens in feeding and attending stock.

6. Burn to ashes or cover with quicklime and bury under 4 feet of earth all dead animals and the viscera removed from animals at butchering time they attract the attention of buzzards, dogs, etc., which are liable to carry hog cholera infection.

7. Confine your dogs and do not keep pigeons unless you congne them

PRESBYTERIAN ANNUAL MEETING

Good Reports—Much Interest Manifested

On Tuesday evening was held the annual congregational meeting of the Presbyterian church. A big potluck supper was served at 6 o'clock and after an hour of visiting R. A. Heesen chairman of the board of trustees, called the meeting to order.

Rev. Rex opened the meeting with prayer and each society of the church was represented with reports showing the different organizations doing splendid work. The following gave reports:

J H Smith, treasurer of the church, reporting over $200 in the bank after all bills were paid

Report of year's work—Rev. Rex

Ladies Aid—Mrs. J, R. Nyland

Westminster Guild—Miss Rector

Benevolences—R. M. Molles

Woman's Missionary society—Mrs Molles

Junior Guild—Miss Gladys Theilan

Sunday school—Mr. Molles

It was decided to hold the Sunday-school at 10 o'clock instead of 11 beginning November 1st for a four months' trial.

R. M Molles was elected to succeed himself as treasurer of benevolences and J. H. Smith and Jas. Lowry to succeed themselves as trustees.

Each member of the congregation left the meeting fully satisfied both with the excellent report of the year's labor of Rev. Rex and that the trustees are conducting the business of the church splendidly.

Miss Mae LaPorte, heading her excellent company, at the Bradley Opera House, all next week.

GOOD STOCK COMPANY COMING

Dainty Mae LaPorte at the Bradley All Next Week

Commencing Monday, October 11th and for the entire week, the management of the Bradley will offer the theatre goers of Tecumseh and vicinity, Miss Mae LaPorte and her clever company in a a repertoire of all new plays with a special scenic production carried for each play. This company must not be classed with the majority of stock companies which usually play the week stands, as they are, perhaps, the largest company of this kind on the road this season Miss LaPorte has a wonderful reputation in the cities where the company has played before, having played stock in Pittsburg for 12 weeks, Wheeling West Va, 23 weeks and commencing November 1st will open an indefinite engagement at Louisville, Ky

Manager McEnroe has surrounded Miss LaPorte with one of the strongest companies available and will back the local management on anything in the way of a guarentee as to the strength of the company. Not content with giving all new, high class royalty plays M. McEnroe has added a special number of vaudeville acts, including McCoy and Jackson, recruited from the front ranks of vaudeville artists, in one of the cleverest musical acts before the public today

Joe McEnroe, "The Whittlin Boy" in a few moments of real comedy, Larry Conoyer, "Violin Virtuoso" Tex Perry (late of the Miller Brothers 101 ranch) in a fancy roping act, Jim McCoy magician, and hoop rolling, Will McEnroe sweet voiced baritone in classical as well as the latest selections, and last but not the least. Little "Jiggers" the dancing wonder in all the latest as well as classical dances, A real hit you will admit. There will be a change of progam each night, both play and vaudeville, "THE GOOSE GIRL" 'ISHMAEL', "THE THREE TWIN", "THE GIRL AND THE SINNER", "THE CALL OF THE WOODS", "FANCHON THE CRICKET", and "THE GRAFTERS" comprise the repertoire for the week, The prices will be within reach of all, 10, 20, 30 and a few at 50 with ladies free Monday night with each paid ticket on the lower floor. A trial will convince you that the manager is giving you your moneys worth. Miss LaPorte plays Kalamazoo the following week, where she is a strong favorite.

LIBRARY NOTES

Within the last month 53 books have been purchased for the library, 20 of them for children including three new "Motor Boys" books, "Boy Scouts of Birch Bark Island," "Jack in the Rockies," "Famous Scouts," "The Story of Betty," "Little Jarvis" and others. For the very little people are attractive editions of "Mother Goose's Melodies," the "Golden Goose Book," "Indian Child Life," "Red Folk and Wild Folk," "The Story of Little Black Sambo," the famous "Caldecott Picture Book No. 2" and "This Little Pig's Picture Book" with Walter Crane's delightful illustrations.

Mothers and teachers will be interested in reading Winnifred St. Stoner's book "Natural Education." There has also been added an interesting biography of Edward McDowell which piano students will doubtless welcome.

Other books worthy of mention and of general interest are "American Women in Civic Work," "What Pictures to see in America," "How to Know Period Styles in Furniture" (well illustrated) and Dr. Cabot's "What We Live By"

Besides these are about 20 books of popular fiction of which the best ones are "Jaffery" by W. J Locke, "Victory" by Joseph Conrad, "The Landloper" by Holman Day and "Daybreak" by Elizabeth Miller "His Official Fiancee" and "Michael O'Halloran" are prime favorites.

"HYPOCRITES"

"A Darling, frank screen classic. The most artistic ever seen" Thus is the summing up of "The Hypocrites" by the New York Sun in its issue of the 21st of January, after viewing the private performance given for the press and prominent personages at the Long Acre Theatre in New York City. And right well does this criticism apply to this film masterpiece, for with the time that the subject has been exhibited, it has become the talk, not only of the great metropolis but of the entire country as well. The Long Acre Theatre is is jammed to the doors at almost every performance and it has been found, after careful investigation, that a goodly percentage of those who are waiting in line to purchase tickets have already seen the picture at least once "The Hypocrites" is indeed a most peculiar subject. A subject never before presented upon the screen and in all probability, there will never again be another like it. You see it once—and lo! you wish to see it again, Each time that the presentation is witnessed, the more wonderful does it become. The stoy told cannot be properly digested with seeing it once. The production is too wonderful, the technical detail too great, the strong, convincing, powerful moral taught, too spellbinding, to be really understood after once witnessing this masterpiece.

There is an unprecedented frankness about "The Hypocrites" that causes one to gasp, There is a finished artistry about the picture that leaves one in a spell of adject wonderment, a wonderment that remains for hours after.

"The Hypocrites" was created with a serious purpose in mind and in the mothering and bringing forth of this purpose, its director, Lois Weber, has given to the screen and to the world, a masterpiece which will remain for all time.

"Hypocrites" will be at the Bradley on Tuesday evening, October 19, for one night.

BIG DAY

ON that day, at 3 P. M. in the afternoon, we will hold the biggest demonstration that this town has ever seen.

Every so often, there is brought forth in this world a revolutionizing invention. The spinning wheel, the battle axe, the hand written parchment, all gave way to an article which did the work easier and better.

The Old Style Sewing Machine Must Go!

An expert from The FREE Sewing Machine Co., has promised to be here, and he is going to tell the women of Tecumseh the story of

The FREE Sewing Machines

(Invented and Patented by W. C. Free)

that epoch-making invention that is shaking the sewing machine world to its very foundations. The FREE will supplant the old style sewing machine as surely as the rifle has replaced the battle axe.

During the Demonstration Sale We will buy your old machine at a liberal price, apply on the special introductory price of The FREE, and allow you to pay the small remaining difference on terms as low as $1.00 a week

A Busy Season

The farmer is about the busiest man there is just now with his threshing got done, silos to fill, fall plowing delay, wheat to sow, and corn to cut, he has his hands full. It's up to him to save all the time he can. Would'nt it be a good idea to get a corn binder and cut one of those jobs short? It will take at least five days to do by hand what a corn binder will do in one.

A DEERING CORN BINDER

will handle tall and short corn with equal ease, and bind the bundles squarely in the middle. It has a 21 inch range for tying bundles where other machines have but eight.

It has a main frame of angle steel, firmly bolted and braced, made to withstand heavy strain. At the same time it is comparatively light in weight. Both roller and ball bearings are use to eliminate friction.

There are no chain belts to tangle and gather mud. Gears are all protected.

It leaves a clean, even stubble, and knocks off less ears than other binders because it ties the bundles while the corn lies flat on the binder deck like a grain binder.

With every Binder we promise you Free Repair Service for One Year.

ATTEMPTED BURGLARY

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Pliny Gratz was the scene of a near burglary Monday evening. While the family were at the supper table, they heard a crash and at once started to see what it might be, Mr. Gratz went out side and around the house but did not find anything, Mrs. Gratz went into the front room and found the outside door open also the door to the stair way, going up stairs she found a door into a room used by the family on the other side of the house as a storeroom broken open, and an open window explained how the intruder had made his escape, nothing was found missing and so far no trace of the would be thief has been discovered

SPECIAL FOR MEN SUNDAY

There will be a union meeting of men at the auditorium of the Methodist church at 11:30 to be addressed by N. L. Rockey of India, a representative of the Laymen's Movement. Last Sunday they held meetings in 100 Michigan towns. Tecumseh men will want to know about it. Every man in town is invited.

At 7 p. m. the same speaker will address a union meeting at the Presbyterian church. At the latter meeting the ladies are invited.

THE RESEARCH CIRCLE

There was a good attendance at the opening meeting of the Research Circle Wednesday afternoon. The ladies met at Belcher's store and were taken in autos to the home of the newly elected president Mrs. J. O. Eaton, who at 3:30 called the club to order.

A short business meeting followed at which time three new members were added.

The leader Mrs. Belcher called on the president for a few words of greeting. Mrs. M. Smeltzer then followed with a fine paper on "A Year of War."

Roll call was responded to by the members. Mrs. Bryan, at the request of the leader, gave a short account of her western trip this summer.

Potluck supper was enjoyed by all, the president leaves in a short time for an extended trip in the west and the vice president will have charge of the club in her absence. The club starts with bright prospects for a pleasant and instructive year of work.

JAPAN TEAS

More than forty years ago this house established an enviable reputation for selling strictly high grade Japan Teas.

This reputation was gained by buying, from year to year, Teas in Bulk from crops grown in the most favored gardens in old Japan, thus insuring a superior and uniform drinking quality, which has been a source of satisfaction to discriminate tea drinkers in this locality for years.

We have persisted in the policy of QUALITY FIRST regardless of the varying cost of these Teas and are still selling our two best grades respectively at 50 cts. and 60 cts. per lb.

To convince YOU of there excellent quality, we offer a FREE DRAWING, for a limited time, of either of the above grades.

Activities of Women.

Philadelphia has a woman barber who has a lucrative business.

The British war department now recognizes women to the extent of giving them rank as noncommissioned officers in the army.

Women have so far supplanted men in some of the large industries of Germany that there are now 7,000 doing the ordinary work of their husbands and brothers. Out of this total 6,000 are in the iron works and have to do work customarily considered too heavy for women.

DOUBLY PROVEN

Tecumseh Readers Can No Longer Doubt the Evidence.

This Tecumseh citizen testified long ago,

Told of quick relief—of undoubted benefit.

The facts are now confirmed

Such testimony is complete—the evidence conclusive

It forms convincing proof of merit.

Mrs. C. Stevenson, Wyandotte & Pottawatamie Sts., Tecumseh, says: "The first symptom of kidney complaint in my case was a sharp shooting pain across the small of my back, which made it almost impossible for me to lie down. Someone advised me to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial and I did, procuring my supply at C. A. Wright & Son's Drug Store. After I had taken this remedy a short time, the pains and aches left and gravel that had been a source of constant suffering, no longer troubled me. In fact, I felt like a different person. I have since recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to a number of my friends and shall continue to do so. My former endorsement holds good."

Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills the same that Mrs. Stevenson had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props. Buffalo, N. Y. adv

Making the Little Farm Pay

By C. C. BOWSFIELD

A Michigan family named De Rocher, occupying fifty acres at Big Bear Lake, is giving a good illustration of how to manage a small farm for profit.

Mr. and Mrs. De Rocher at first depended on bush fruits and vegetables for their living while bringing on an orchard of apples, pears and plums. Their main income now is from the larger fruits, which are sold mostly to private customers.

They keep little live stock or poultry because their taste runs to growing and handling fruits. Much of their product is canned, and by this means they are able to obtain retail prices. The most unique feature of their farming enterprise is the business which has been built up in fancy canned fruit. This is where Mrs. De Rocher wields the power. She has studied her fruits and her market and carries the information in her mind ready to use at all times. A particular phase of her work has been to determine which varieties of fruit give best results in supplying a family trade. She has decided that no other kind of strawberry will hold its color so well or make such excellent preserves as the Warfield and the Senator Dunlap. These are similar varieties, but the Dunlap has a perfect blossom, while the Warfield needs fertilization from some other variety. For that reason the Dunlap is perhaps a little more favored, even though the Warfield has a slight advantage as a canning variety.

THE ORCHARD HELPS OUT.

The De Rochers make a specialty of grape juice, and they use tons and tons of Concord grapes to make juice to supply their trade. Their finished product is as clear as crystal and of most delicious quality. They have a special way of making their grape juice and their jellies. They do not make the juice or jelly entirely at canning time, but just extract the juice from the fruit, heat and seal it in jugs or jars, with no sugar or anything else added. When it comes to the time of shipment they siphon the juice out and then add the sugar, heat and bottle for customers. This method has many advantages, and Mrs. De Rocher considers it one of the greatest helps to successful work. It saves considerable labor in rush times when they receive the fruit, and also, by siphoning, just the clear juice is drawn off and all of the settlings are left in the jug. This insures a very clear product of grape juice and jellies.

All of the canning products of this farm are put up in glass. The preserves, marmalades and canned goods are put up in pints and seven ounce sealed jars. Strawberry, plum and peach preserves are also put up in four ounce jars, commonly called individuals, and are put up for the dining car trade. When customers are served with either of these products in the dining car they get them in the original package, which is not opened until it gets to the table. The jellies are put up in eight ounce screw top jars, and the grape juice is put up in pint and quart bottles with the metal top cork.

Their trade for these canned products consists of railroad dining cars, fashionable clubs and restaurants of Chicago and numerous wealthy families in Chicago and elsewhere. Some of these families have standing, yearly orders. All of the products are sold before they are made. Mr. De Rocher goes to the regular customers in the spring and takes their orders for the season. After the canning business opens they take no orders, and the canning is done just to fill the orders they have on hand. Shipping is attended to as customers require the goods, so that some of the product is going forward all winter.

The annual profits at this farm are up in the thousands of dollars, for the orchard is now bearing, and there is a large output of apples, pears and plums to be added to the berries and garden truck. By the system in force for handling fruit there is little waste. Stock that is not marketed when picked is saved by preserving and canning methods. It is seldom that a farm family has as large an income as the De Rochers enjoy, and if they cared to go more extensively into gardening they could double the earnings of their little place.

Were They Clay?

The maiden from Toledo sighed
And murmured, with an air of pride,
"My Pete
Says I'm a poem, all complete."

The maid from Boston raised her eyes
And answered her in some surprise:
"How neat!
Pray, tell me, did he scan your feet?"

Woman's World

Beautiful Ex-Queen of Portugal Does War Work as Trained Nurse.

AMELIE, PORTUGAL'S EX-QUEEN.

Concealing her identity in cap and stripe for several weeks, Portugal's ex-queen has been working as a trained nurse in the Third London general hospital at Wandsworth, England.

Entering the hospital as a probationer and insisting that her identity be kept secret, her majesty has been working eight hours a day, performing all the heavy work assigned to other nurses. Every morning she motors to the hospital from Richmond.

For weeks her patients, not recognizing the ex-queen, addressed her as plain "ma'am." Only the sister in charge of her ward knew the secret till recently.

A Diplomatic Official.

During the reign of Emperor Napoleon III. he and the empress visited Normandy and had arranged to spend a couple of days at Evreux. M. Janvier de la Monte, who was the prefect, learned that the revolutionaries intended to hiss the sovereigns as they passed, and so he summoned the leaders of the movement and told them that he knew of their plot. "If you carry out your plan," said he to them, "you will get six months in prison. If you do not your friends will accuse you of cowardice and treason. As a way out of the difficulty I propose to lock you up at once until the emperor has gone." The conspirators accepted the terms offered them, and so the emperor was greeted only by cheers, as the revolutionaries, frightened at the arrest of their chiefs, had not dared to utter a sound.

My Fairy Godmother

She Gave Me Three Riddles.

By F. A. MITCHEL

Having tried various ways of spending the month I put aside each year for an outing, and tired of them all, I was casting about for some new method when I saw an advertisement of a cabin situated on an island on the coast of Maine. The price was so reasonable that it attracted my attention. I entered into correspondence with the owner and engaged it.

My reason for doing so was that I met so many people at home that I desired to go where I would see no one. All day long I was hounded by persons eager to get a word with me to tell me something, and in the evening I was engaged in various social matters. A cabin hidden in a wood with a view of the ocean appealed to me. To lie at night listening to the breakers on the beach was a pleasing fancy.

I found the location what I had dreamed it. The cabin was well enough, but the furnishings were execrable. A cheap bedstead, a rickety bureau, a table on which to eat, a cook stove and a lot of cheap dishes completed the furnishings. There was no other abode near me, but scattered about were summer cottages, some of which were fairly pretentious. I saw no reason why I should be troubled by the inmates of any of them so long as I let them alone, which I proposed to do.

I had spent a week with only myself for company when one day, after a long tramp, on returning to my cabin I stood on the threshold astonished at a transformation of the interior. Disorder had been accumulating ever since my arrival; the bed had never been made; the dishes had not been washed. There were enough of the latter to last one person a week without being used more than once, and I had about finished the lot. I found on my return the bed made, the dishes washed, the cooking utensils scoured and hanging spick and span on the shelves.

I felt myself to be the hero of a fairy story and almost expected to see a little old woman drop down the chimney and stand upon the hearth.

Several days passed, during which disorder was again looming up about me, when, after an absence, I returned to find all set to rights, as before. Still not finding any clew, I wrote on a piece of cardboard a message and pinned it up against the wall for my next absence:

> Fairy Godmother—Thank you very much for your attention. I need only one thing. Will you give it to me? If so, leave word when next you come and I will make it known.

I went away again very soon, and when I returned beneath what I had written were penciled in letters apparently in the hand of an old person the following:

> Your single wish is granted; name it.

Before going away again I wrote:

> Some one to love—me.

The answer to this was:

> Love is not singular; it is plural.

I found on the rude mantel of my cabin a skein of fine thread, tangled, and pinned to it the words:

> Unravel this and you shall have your wish.

This fairy business was not gratifying my curiosity. I spent no time trying to unravel the thread, but spent considerable thought in laying a plan to find out who was my fairy godmother. I did not doubt that it was some girl from one of the cottages—possibly several girls who were deriving a lot of amusement in playing fairy. The only plan I could think of was to go away early in the day and hide near by. This I did. There was a dense thicket a short distance from my cabin, and one morning, having breakfasted at 5 o'clock, taking a book, pipe and tobacco and a lunch, I went into the thicket prepared to wait and watch.

About 11 o'clock in the morning I heard a child's voice calling, "He's gone!" I peeped through an opening and saw a girl about ten years old near the cabin beckoning to some one I could not see. Presently I saw a girl of perhaps twenty concealed from the hut by a tree, but visible to me, evidently fearful of advancing. But the child ran into the cabin and out again, beckoned eagerly, and the young woman timidly left her hiding place and went into the cabin.

Now I did not propose to give away the advantage I held by cornering my fairy godmother. I waited till she had left the cabin, then stole cautiously after her, my object being to locate her home. I followed her and her companion for two miles and saw her go into a cottage situated on a bluff overlooking the ocean. Then I returned to my habitation to see what was her last message.

I had left the tangled skein on the table and near it a sheet of writing paper on which I had sprinkled drops of water and written "Tears" and below:

> Fairy Godmother—I am wearing myself out trying to unravel the skein. Give me something easier.

A reply to this had been written on the "tear" bespattered paper:

> Idle tears. Square the circle and you shall have your wish.

It was evident that the young lady had no intention of giving me a sweetheart. Anyway I knew enough not to tackle an insoluble problem. I chuckled, for I had her secret and she did not have mine. Lighting a pipe in order to sharpen my inventive faculties, I set to work to think out my next move. I did not spend much time on deciding upon one.

The next evening just before dark I was passing the cottage where dwelt my fairy godmother. The little girl who had aided her in her visits to my cabin was playing in the yard. Seating myself by the gate, I called to the child. She came, and I asked her if she could get me some milk. She ran to the house and returned with an elderly lady, who asked if I had been injured.

"Only a sprained ankle from slipping off a smooth stone," I said. "A little arnica will fix it. Indeed, I don't know that anything is needed." I arose, with pretended difficulty, took one step and sank down again.

"I will call help," said the lady. "You must be carried to the house."

"No, no," I protested. "I'm sure I can walk that far if you will kindly allow me to put a hand on your arm."

The lady consented. With her assistance I got to the house and was placed in an easy chair on the porch. The fairy godmother came out, but I pretended not to notice her. She started on seeing me, and I saw color come and go in her face. I made a grimace in pretense of suffering, and the expression of uneasiness at my presence gave way to one of sympathy. I carefully concealed any recognition of her, and she was soon ministering to me with the others.

"I fear," I said, "that if you have a vehicle on the premises I shall have to ask some one to drive me to my cabin. It is a couple of miles from here on the eastern end of the island."

Now, I was quite sure there was no vehicle on the premises, for there was neither barn nor garage. The elder lady informed me that there was no means of conveyance at hand, and since it was growing dark, I would be welcome to remain till one could be found. I pretended to demur to this, but was overruled. My "sprained" ankle was propped up on a foot rest with pillows. I remembered to wince occasionally, fearful that my benefactors might suspect the part I was playing.

Soon after I had got settled my fairy godmother brought me out a dainty supper which she placed on a stand beside me. I felt quite confident that she knew me for the person whose cabin she had visited in my absence, but I was equally sure that she believed me to be ignorant that she was the person she had favored. In order to convince her of this I told her about my cabin and how I was spending an outing there alone. She made no comment, seemingly preferring to chat on other subjects.

I spent a pleasant evening, not mentioning that I had received kindness from an unknown person, nor did my fairy godmother give any hint that she had even ever seen or heard of me before. No conveyance was forthcoming, and I was urged to abandon any idea of going to my cabin till morning, when it was suggested I might ride over with a farmer who supplied the family with milk each morning. After trying to step with the injured ankle and demonstrating that I could not possibly use it without great agony, I yielded to persuasion and consented to remain the night.

By this time a stout cane had been provided for me, and I insisted on hobbling to my room without other assistance. In the morning I came downstairs, still keeping up the hobbling, and about 10 o'clock the farmer came with the milk. I expressed my heartfelt thanks to my benefactors and hired him to drive me to my cabin. My fairy godmother was solicitous lest I would need attention and be without it, living alone as I did, but I assured her that I would be back soon to thank her and the others again for the kindness that had been bestowed upon me. Then the farmer lifted me into his wagon and I was driven away, followed by smiling goodbys from all the family.

The next day, since I did not expect another visit from my fairy godmother and not wishing to spend the day lounging about my cabin, I went out for some deep sea fishing. As usual I left everything in disorder. On my return shortly before dark I met with a surprise. My household had been put to rights and the paper on which I corresponded with my fairy godmother bore a message:

> Since you have done neither of the tasks given you by your fairy godmother you cannot have any one to love you. You shall have one more opportunity. Tell how a sprained ankle can be made well within twelve hours.

I was dumfounded. Never had I so prided myself on playing a part as palming myself off as a sufferer. Talk about men being deceivers of women! I doubt if any man ever did any such thing. The girl had seen through my ruse and had played me a far better game than I had played her, or, rather, I had tried to play her.

Well, the fairy godmother business was ended. There was nothing for me to do but go to her abode and confess myself beaten. This I did the next morning. I longed for an offering to take with me, but in that wilderness no such thing was to be had. I was received with a look of amusement mingled with triumph. My first words were, "How did you discover my game?" The reply was: "Don't ask a woman how she discovers things. She either knows them by intuition or not at all."

Notwithstanding that I did not solve any of the riddles, I got some one to love and to love me.

CHARM OF VENICE.

"The White Swan of Cities" It Was Called by Longfellow.

Venice is the mecca of tourists because of its beauty and its history. It was the link connecting Rome and Athens. It felt the influence of Arabia and of Persia. It saved some of the Greek masterpieces from oblivion. Its architecture shows the effect of all the ancient civilizations. Seated on its 117 islands, with canals for streets, it has been renowned as—

The pleasant place of all festivity,
The revel of the earth, the masque of Italy.

Longfellow called it the "white swan of cities," and other poets have celebrated its glories above those of any other city of the world. Its political history is of entrancing interest. It is saturated with romantic traditions. The numerous churches, the bridges, the tombs, the palace of the doges, the old library, the campanile and the Academy of the Arts are among the most attractive show places of Europe. The masterpieces of those master artists of the sixteenth century, Titian, Tintoretto, Giorgione, Bellini, Paolo Veronese, Sansovino, Palladio and Daponte, have given city undying glory.

In Venice the renaissance is seen at its best and at its worst. Realism and idealism have vied for mastery. Perhaps in no other city of the world is there preserved such a rich collection of the styles of painting and architecture of the different centuries.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

English Mead.

A drink very little known in this country is an old English mead, according to Farm and Home. It allows any number of variations and to the children is as entertaining as the corner drug store with its soda fountain. The foundation is a sirup made of two pounds of sugar, two ounces of tartaric acid, half a cupful of flour, the juice of one lemon and three pints of water. Boil five minutes. When cool stir in the beaten whites of three eggs and flavor with wintergreen. Bottle cool. Use two tablespoonfuls of this in a glass nearly full of water. Foam with a quarter of a teaspoonful of soda. Instead of filling the glass full of water you may add a tablespoonful of any fresh or bottled fruit juices—orange or lemon, chocolate, etc.

MRS. [illegible] GALT

President's Fiancee Whom He Will Wed in November.

© 1915, by Arnold Genthe.

WEDDING MAY BE THIS WEEK

Wilson-Galt Nuptials Likely to Take Place in Ten Days.

Washington, Oct. 11.—The belief is growing in official and social circles here that the wedding of President Wilson and Mrs. Norman Galt will take place within the next ten days. Washington would not be the least bit surprised if it occurred before Tuesday evening.

It is generally understood that the ceremony will as as private as possible.

CARRANZA WINS TWO AMERICAS' SUPPORT

Supreme Chief Will Be Recognized in Mexico.

Washington, Oct. 11.—Recognition of General Venustiano Carranza was recommended by the conference of Secretary of State Lansing and the Latin-American diplomats, which at the conclusion of the session issued the following statement:

"The conferees, after careful consideration of the facts, have found that the Carranzista party is the only party possessing the essentials for recognition as the de facto government of Mexico, and they have so reported to their respective governments."

When the United States recognizes Carranza, Villa and Zapata will become outlaws in the eyes of this nation and the American government will be under obligation to prevent them from obtaining aid in this country for the support of their insurrecting operations.

The first step taken by the president after recognizing Carranza, therefore, will be the reimposition of the embargo on the export of arms and ammunition from the United States to any persons opposing the Carranza government.

NEGRO CONFESSES ASSAULT

Black Gives Sheriff Admission After Being Whisked from Mob.

Pana, Ill., Oct. 11.—Will Spencer, a southern negro, charged with attacking Dott Hilliard, thirteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hilliard of Dunn Station, northeast of Pana, and who was rushed to the Hillsboro jail from the Shelbyville jail early Saturday morning by Sheriff Syd Biggs, upon information of Sheriff Funston of Moultrie county that a mob was forming there to march upon the Shelbyville jail and lynch Spencer, made a full confession to Sheriff Biggs. The sheriff said to Spencer when he arrived in Hillsboro: "They are going to get you for this and you had better make a full breast of the affair."

This alarmed Spencer and he admitted the crime and said he was willing to go back to the scene of his crime and take his penalty, no matter how severe.

FRENCH TROOPS GAIN, PARIS

New German Trench Is Reported Won Near Tahure.

Paris, Oct. 11.—French troops have made further gains in Champagne but elsewhere on the front there have been no infantry actions. The gains in Champagne were made northeast of Tahure and to the southeast. In the latter direction a new German trench was won by a brilliant assault.

A German aeroplane was brought down behind the French lines south of Pont a Mousson, both of the occupants being killed in the fall.

Mary Quinlan Brady Weds.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—The marriage of Mrs. Mary Quinlan Brady, "Michigan wife" of James J. Brady, state auditor, is reported. Mrs. Brady is said to have been married to Detective Thomas H. Lynch, formerly detailed at the state's attorney's office.

"ALL BELGRADE IS OURS," BERLIN

Germans Report That Serbian Defense Has Failed.

NISH CLAIMS ONE VICTORY

Serbian Statement Says That Attacks by Teutons on Lower Drina Were Beaten Off—Foe's Loss Reported Heavy—Berlin Says Captured City Suffered Little.

London, Oct. 11.—The Austro-Germans are in possession of all Belgrade as well as heights southeast and southwest of the city, according to the official report of the Berlin war office. East of Bulgaria the Serbians also were beaten back.

The Germans admit that the Serbians are offering determined resistance, but say their efforts thus far have failed.

Repulse of the Germans with heavy loss to the invaders, however, is claimed in the official Serbian report, which says that the Teutonic forces, after unsuccessful attacks on the lower Drina, were thrown back on an island which had been occupied before opening operations.

Fierce Battle Raging.

Fighting continues all along the Danube and Save fronts. The Serbian statement adds that it is the purpose of the Austro-Germans to advance through the Morava Valley, separating Kostolac, thirty-eight miles southeast of Belgrade from Bubrabatsa, which is on the Danube, thirty-five miles east of Belgrade, where the chief of the invading force is concentrated.

It also is announced from Berlin that Belgrade was not damaged greatly by the bombardment which preceded the capture of the city. A number of private buildings were destroyed.

A dispatch from Sebastapol sent through Petrograd reports that bases for German submarines have been established at Varna and Burgas, the principal Bulgarian ports on the Black Sea. It is assumed that it was from these bases that the German submarines, which were driven off by Russian destroyers, approached the Crimean coast.

Aeroplanes Cross Serbia.

A large number of Austrian and German aeroplanes, it is reported, have crossed Serbian territory in the direction of Bulgaria.

Six thousand men described as Bulgarian reservists from Germany have been stopped at the Roumanian frontier on suspicion that they are Austrian and German engineers and officers. The Roumanian government has demanded that these men be identified.

BOTH SIDES REPORT GAINS IN CHAMPAGNE

Germans Claim 2 1-2 Miles of Trenches Taken.

London, Oct. 11.—One of the most desperate battles of the recent campaign in France is raging around Tahure, in the Champagne district. Both sides claim local successes, according to the official statements from Paris and Berlin.

The midnight communique from Paris is more specific than the German statement, announcing progress northeast of Tahure, the vital point on the lateral railroad supplying the Crown Prince's army. Paris also announces the capture of a new German trench to the southeast of Tahure, where a French force by a brilliant assault stormed the German positions and took possession of the defensive works.

Germany, on the other hand, announces the recapture of several hundred metres of trench over a front of about two and one-half miles at Tahure, but does not give the exact location. Beyond this claim Berlin makes little comment on the developments in the western theater of war, except to announce the capture of several trenches and one machine gun from the French in an action fought "on a hill to the east of Souchez."

CHICAGO HAS FIRST DRY DAY IN 43 YEARS

Judge Matchett Refuses Injunction; Closing Law Good.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—The saloons, defeated in an effort Saturday to secure an injunction to prevent closing of bars Sunday, accepted the situation and Sunday every saloon in the city was closed from midnight Saturday until midnight Sunday, the first time it has occurred in forty-three years.

After warning an attorney that the court was "hostile to his cause," Circuit Judge Matchett heard the reading of the application for an injunction Saturday and then lost no time in rendering his decision.

He declared that he would not issue [illegible] for the contemplated action of the wets against a law that is a "good" law. He called attention to the fact that the law had been upheld by the state supreme court and informed Attorney Anderson that he might go to a higher court to file his request.

"I do not think there is a judge in Cook county who has any doubt regarding the law in this matter," said Judge Matchett, "and inasmuch as I was elected as a judge and not as a legislator, I will enforce the law. If you wish the law changed you should go to Springfield and [illegible]

"The Coller Bunch"

WRITES OF SOME OF THERE EXPERIENCES

Placerville Cal.

Dear Cousins:—

Well I suppose you received the cards I sent you from Frisco and Oakland, we were at the fair for a week. I won't attempt to tell you much about it as I suppose you have heard all about it from others who have recently returned from there, the buildings are beautiful the exhibits, Ernest says are far ahead of the Chicago Worlds Fair and there are 30 states represented, but Michigan is not among them.

After leaving the fair we came back to Sacramento and then over to Woodland which lies west of Sacramento and is the great fruit belt of California there we visited one fruit ranch of 1000 acres and drove through an avenue of almonds several miles long, where the tops of trees touched, it was a very pretty sight, but between Sacramento and Woodland there are miles of waste marsh land, (in the Sacramento Valley) which, they tell us in winter is a raging torrent of water; then we came back to Sacramento and took the State Highway again toward Placerville, between these two places are foot hills of the Sierra Nevadas [illegible], and there is a great deal of hydraulic mining going on, and mountains of nothing but stone for miles after they have taken out the gold they level it off to some extent, and plant Eucalyptus trees which seem to thrive and grow quickly, they claim to be able to sell the timber which grows to be ten to twelve inches through in ten years. In this section also, there are acres of hops and grapes which crops they were harvesting at that time, by this you may gather the wine industry is a big item in this section also.

Well on our return from there, we were invited to go, with a neighbor, Mr. Owen, to his camp up in the mountains about 40 miles, so on September 20th we started out with the machine, we took the State Highway again for 28 miles, leaving the machine at a Road House called Kyberg, we there took pack, and saddle horses and went into the heart of the mountains for about 8 miles, this was some ride through this National forest the trail being so crooked that you cannot see anyone four rods ahead of you. but don't you think I did not keep some one in sight all the time, I was so afraid of getting lost, it seemed as if we were set back in the time of old pioneers when they came from the east to take up land and the hardships they had to endure, I can realize better than ever before, but still this was a novelty to us.

These great mountain ranges towering above ones head and others still higher above and beyond them. We were at an elevation of about 6500 feet, and trees set almost as thick as they could be which measured from 5 to 8 foot through. In this "forest reserve" they keep "forest rangers" stationed every 30 to 40 miles, to look out for fires. These men are paid $60.00 per month and their board, there are telephones at each station, and these men are supposed to be on the lookout all the time, no company perhaps for weeks and they told us one man had his station in the top of a tree a hundred foot high and here he has to sit all day the whole summer season.

We reached our destination the camp about 4 p. m. with six in the party. The cabin of two large rooms was very comfortable. It was made of shakes, which are used in this locality a great deal in the place of shingle and about 3 feet long, they are put on like shingle and nailed at both ends, the beds and tables had all been hued out from timber. The beds were six in number and were covered with canvas then on this canvas they placed pine boughs, with plenty of bedding and one could sleep as peacefully as on the finest mattress.

Mr. Owen looked after everything in the eating line and we had everything in the fruit and vegtable line packed in to us on donkeys. Now I come to the game, trout fishing galore the stream ran about ¼ mile from the cabin and we had more fish than we could eat, fifty per day is the limit to each man. The hunting also is fine, our party getting two deer, we had plenty of venison. There are also plenty of bear, mountain lions and coyotes in this section although we only saw one of each and killed nine rattle snakes. I never dared leave the cabin alone, but the other woman of the crowd is a genuine mountaineer she can hunt, fish and shoot a gun as well as any man. One day our pack donkey broke loose and ran away and this woman chased him on foot for eight miles then hired a saddle horse and caught him seven miles further on.

We were in this camp five days before we saw any one outside of our own party, then one day along came a man and woman on saddle horses, they pulled up in front of the cabin and in course of conversation said, they were graduates of Ann Arbor. I said we only lived 25 miles from there at Tecumseh, "Is that so", said he "I have been there, do you know the Slaytons and did you know Miss Welch that taught there several years." I replied I counted the Slaytons among my friends and also knew Miss Welch—then says he "She is my sister-in-law married my brother, Mr. Evans of Detroit." Again I thought this a small world after all. Well this Mr. Evans is one of the Forest Commission employed by the government, and he and his wife have been in 18 different camps since the 12th of August.

We returned from this trip the 30th of September.

I did not think it necessary to write the proper of our trip through in the auto, because while our experiences were many and varied, thousands of people were making the same trip, and probably each one could tell a different story, there were four thousand cars passed through Placerville (from the east on their way to the exposition) during the month of July.

It is reported that the fair management are now clear from debt and what is taken in from now on is clear gain.

Well the days are still very warm here and the nights cool, I am wondering how the weather is back there There has been only one tiny rain here since June so you may imagine it is also very dry as well as warm. The ranchers are now planting their winter vegtable such as cabbage and beats etc, and we can hardly comprehend they will grow on and not freeze. They take no precaution for anything freezing for while they have snow, it never stays and only cold enough for light frosts.

Well with best wishes to you all we are,

Sincerely Yours,
"THE COLLER BUNCH"

NEW GARAGE

McIntyre and Marsh.

John McIntyre and Homer Marsh who has severed his connection with the Garlinghouse garage, are moving into the Bidwell barn on Pearl St., where they will open up a garage and will have the agency for the Dodge car. Mr. Marsh will do all repair work being well equipped for the business

In the years past this barn was used as a Livery and sales stable, the Bidwells doing a large business in raising fine horses, and to day it is being used for the horseless carriage or automobile. A few short years makes wondrous changes.

THE YOUNG MEN'S CLUB

The annual meeting of the Young Men's Club was held Sunday afternoon and the following were elected to office:

President—Oley Hanna
Vice President—Dale Hodges
Sec'y and Treas.—Thos. Elliott, Jr.
Board of Governors—Glenn Tansley chairman, Allen McNeil.

NATIONAL APPLE DAY

October 20 is National Apple Day and will be observed all over the country, the object being to create the apple eating habit. Last year was reported as a great success wherever the day was observed, Prizes were offered for the best window display.

With the fine apples that are being brought into our market, it would seem that Tecumseh could make a great showing and no doubt could work up quite a class for an apple eating contest.

WATCH AND WAIT

For the Biggest, Best, Most Startling, Bona Fide Sale ever known in all Past History, at ADRIAN, MICH. Thousands of Dollars will be saved to the buying public of LENAWEE COUNTY in a gigantic Double Combination

BANKRUPT SALE

ON 2 BIG STOCKS

By extremely good fortune The Standard Merchandise Co. has secured another big bankrupt stock and Adrian folks and the people of the surrounding community are to reap the benefit. The entire stock of The Addison Company, 327-335 Euclid Ave., Cleveland, Ohio, bought from the receivers, Irving and Lozier, in connection with their own big stock of new fall and winter Merchandise will be thrown on the market in one big sale, starting Thursday, Oct. 14th and for 15 days only, at the most astounding, rediculous sacrifices ever made and at such powerful reductions that never met moral man's eyes before.

Time may roll on, business may be dull, but bills come due just the same and the day when you must pay is just as sure as taxes and death. Unlooked for business conditions forced The Addison Co., of Cleveland, O. out of business and their entire stock was purchased by The Standard Merchandise Co. and shipped to their Addison store for quick sale.

Set up close, now and listen. Opportunity isn't merely knocking at your door this time—its hammering.

THURSDAY, OCT. 14

at 8:30 A. M., is the opening day of the SALE. The supreme sensation since the beginning of time. Combined Stocks, amounting to $75,000.00 will be offered for 15 days at absolutely the lowest prices ever named. This sale has great economic advantages for every article in the store, both The Addison Co. stock and our own big superb stock of new fall and winter Merchandise will be cut to the forcing point.

Words fail to convey the importance of such an event to everyone within hearing of this announcement. There will be no further cry of high living if you attend this sale for a dollar could never be made more elastic. It will be worth while making more than the usual effort to get here. In such a crisis the true proportions of things are lost and the one thought is to sell, sell, sell.

The memory of such bargains will spoil you forever for never again will you want to pay other stores regular prices and you wont have to if you are wise and lay in your supply for months to come. Our representations are on the highways and by-ways with large 4 page circulars, giving you all the particulars and details of this great sale. Be sure and read one of the circulars, then plan to be here. Thursday, Oct. 14th is the day of the monster double Bankrupt Sale at The Standard Merchandise Co., Adrian, Michigan. It will continue for 15 days only.

MORE MARVELS IN MERCHANDISE MANEUVERING than Any Previous Attempts in the Whole State of Michigan.

The Day of Reckoning has Come! An unsurpassed opportunity to save a lot of money is here! The most sensational and daring price slaughter ever witnessed starts Thursday, Oct. 14th at The Stadard Merchandise Co., Adrian, Michigan.

2 big stocks of high grade Merchandise will be offered in our big sale, all under one roof. To stay away is just like throwing dollars to the winds. These 15 days of big sale bargains will bring excellent joy and pleasure to the all-mighty public in the countless host of big round dollars, this they will save on any purchase made. Make your plans to be here. Hitch your dollars to the largest load a dollar ever drew. Be among the thousands to attend this wild, reckless cut price sale that cold type cannot describe. Good reliable Merchandise of all kinds will be sold at prices that beggar description and stagger belief. It is without question the most astounding array of worth values ever attempted. These bargains will be a revelation to the buying public.

Cast your eyes on the few items below—stretch your imagination as far as you like—leave your mind open to conviction and there will be no room for doubt.

Be sure and read over one of our 4 page sale bills. They tell an interesting and fascinating story of monderful savings.

Below we quote only a few of the Sale items. SEE Large 4-page Bills now being distributed broadcast, for a Complete List of the GREATEST BARGAINS ever set into type! Then Come! Remember the Opening Date—THURSDAY, OCT. 14th, and for 15 DAYS ONLY, to and including SATURDAY, OCT. 30th.

Died in Her Buggy

While Driving along the Road Monday Death Meets

MRS. MILLS HATCH

Persis Reimann Hatch, aged 48 years, was called Home suddenly Monday afternoon while she and her mother Mrs. Sarver were driving along the road, death resulting from heart [illegible]

As near as can be discovered they had [illegible] out [illegible] as there were quite a few [illegible] puts in the buggy. Some men who were ditching noticed something peculiar about Mrs. Hatch and spoke to Mrs. Sarvey telling her that her daughter had passed away. In her dazed condition Mrs. Sarver could not realize the fact and it was some moments before the men could find out who they were, but finally she told them to call Mills Hatch.

The body was taken into the house on the Chas. Nobles' farm where a doctor was called at once, but it was too late. Neighbors hearing the report, were soon at the house and when Mrs. Harold Hatch arrived she was shocked to find that the dead woman was her own sister-in-law. Mr. Hatch, with the men of the neighborhood were away filling silos.

Guy Belding was called and the body was taken in the ambulance to her home where the funeral will be held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

MONDAY CLUB

The Monday Club held their regular meeting at Grange Hall yesterday afternoon with a large attendance. At the business meeting eleven new members were voted into the club. Mesdames Mary E. Gove, John Nyland John Pentecost, Channing Beebe, Maynard Mulvaney, Chas. Avery, R. K. Anderson, S. E. Pulver, Mary Ives and the Misses Fern Hanford and Nettie Southworth.

A program under the leadership of Mrs. F. S. Turner on "Colonization" was then given with papers on Spanish and French Pioneers, English in Virginia, Mrs. Emilie Hall, New England, Middle Zone and far South, Mrs E. D. Brown which were very interesting. Mrs. C. A. Wright will leave for Lansing Monday as delegates to the State Federation.

SUNDAY IN THE CHURCHES

Sunday was a busy day in our churches, speakers being present from out of town who spoke in the interest of the Anti-Saloon movements Dr Martin of Hillsdale spoke at the Presbyterian church, Dr Hall of Detroit at the Baptist and W. V. Waltman of Grand Rapids, Supt., of the Grand Rapids Anti-Saloon league, at the Methodist church.

Rev. Cole of China spoke on the Laymens movement to the men at the M. E church at 11:30 a. m. and in the evening addressed the general public at a union meeting at the Presbyterian church.

Thursday there will be a union meeting of the Laymen of our village at the M. E. church, Rev. Rockey a Missionary from India will speak on the same subject. These meetings are to awaken an interest in the interdenominational laymens meeting to be held in Detroit October 21.

At St. Peters Episcopal church the mens class was addressed by Stuart H. Perry of the Adrian Telegram, who spoke on "Our Boys." There was a large attendance. Mr. Perry gave a very fine talk treating the subject in a general way. He spoke of the unfortunate experience we have been having with three of our boys, and said this was only a similar experience which is happening all over the country.

A lack of disipline in the home, not enough attention to the spiritual training of the child, to much eagerness for gain, for the almighty dollar, to the utter neglect of home duties. Mr Perry was very earnest in his talk and was listened to with close attention.

RECORD PEACH SHIPMENTS

Slump in Market, However, Hits Michigan Farmers Hard.

MUSKEGON, MICH. — In a fortnight the greatest fruit shipping season in the history of this side of Lake Michigan will have been completed, with the result that much of the service now furnished many of the west state ports will be eliminated almost altogether for the present season, or at least reduced to a large extent.

Word received from ports all up and down this shore reveal that the total shipments will reach figures never before even approached. In spite of these totals, however, the fruit grower generally has experienced a very poor year of it, the peach market slumping at the height of the season, with most dangerous results and a loss of not less than $1,000,000 to the farmer in this portion of Michigan it is conservatively estimated.

Unfilled Tonnage, 5,317,618.

New York, Oct. 11.—The unfilled tonnage of the United States Steel corporation on Sept. 30 totaled 5,317,618 tons, an increase of 409,163 tons over August.

Dennis Sullivan Is Dead.

Denver, Oct. 11.—Dennis Sullivan, director of the Denver National bank and multi-millionaire mining man, died here following an operation two weeks ago for appendicitis.

Let Her In on This.

"I believe a man should be master in his own house," said the newly married man. "There can be only one head in a family, and I mean to be it."

"That's a very good idea," answered his friend, who had been married more years than the other had lived. "A very good idea indeed. Have you spoken to your wife about it?"—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Tree Leaves and Water.

Ash leaves are capable of taking up more water than those of most other trees. In a hundred pounds of ash leaves are eighty-five of water, in the same weight of beech leaves seventy-five, of maple sixty, of pine fourteen and of fir ten.

THE MAE LaPORTE STOCK CO.

Miss Mae LaPorte and her excellent company opened a week's engagement at the Bradley opera house last night. They play all the week with a change of program each night and will give a matinee Saturday afternoon.

Tonight they will present "Ishmael" and again tonight ladies are to be admitted free when accompanying a paid ticket.

Last night the company was seen in "The Girl and the Sinner." From the initial performance and the reception given, it would appear that Manager Mark has made no mistake in bringing this company here. The cast was unusually good and Miss LaPorte as "Nanime Mildare" clearly showed marked ability and was well supported Joe McEnro as "Joe Swiggs" surely acted the part and warranted the applause which he received.

Between acts the company put on a vaudeville sketch which alone was worth the price of admission. The musical act and Jim McCoy as magician were as good as have ever been seen in Tecumseh. The singing and dancing of little Flora McCoy brought down the house.

This is one of the strongest stock companies to play here in several years and should receive the hearty support of the theater going public.

There's so much bad in the best of us
And so much good in the worst of us,
It hardly behooves any of us
To speak ill of the rest of us.

JAPAN TEAS

More than forty years ago this house established an enviable reputation for selling strictly high grade Japan Teas.

This reputation was gained by buying, from year to year, Teas in Bulk from crops grown in the most [illegible] gardens in old Japan, thus insuring a superior and uniform drinking quality, which has been a source of satisfaction to discriminate tea drinkers in this locality for years.

We have persisted in the policy of QUALITY FIRST regardless of the varying cost of these Teas and are still selling our two grades respectively at [illegible] cts. and [illegible] cts. per lb.

To convince YOU of there excellent quality, we offer a FREE DRAWING, for a limited time, of either of the above grades.

SITUATIONS FOR YOUNG MEN AND WOMEN IN DETROIT.

The rapid growth of Detroit manufacturing industries has created a large number of office positions for capable young men and women. The business colleges are unable to supply the many calls for positions. The Business Institute alone has had nearly a thousand calls during the past six months for stenographers, bookkeepers and bank positions, which gives one an idea as to the opportunities offered young men and young women who are qualified to fill positions. The Business Institute enjoys an enviable reputation for educating young men and women for positions in offices, banks, mercantile houses, etc. Fathers and mothers who wish to give their children a thorough business education should write for full particulars regarding the educational training of this school. Illustrated catalogue will be mailed free to any person sending their address to Mr. A. F. Tull, President The Business Institute, Cor. Cass and Michigan Avenues, Detroit.

DOUBLY PROVEN

Tecumseh Readers Can No Longer Doubt the Evidence

This Tecumseh citizen testified long ago,

Told of quick relief—of undoubted benefit.

The facts are now confirmed.

Such testimony is complete—the evidence conclusive

It forms convincing proof of merit.

Mrs. C. Stevenson, Wyandotte & Pottawatamie Sts., Tecumseh, says: "The first symptom of kidney complaint in my case was a sharp shooting pain across the small of my back, which made it almost impossible for me to lie down. Someone advised me to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial and I did, procuring my supply at C. A. Wright & Son's Drug Store. After I had taken this remedy a short time, the pains and aches left and gravel that had been a source of constant suffering, no longer troubled me, in fact, I felt like a different person. I have since recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to a number of my friends and shall continue to do so. My former endorsement holds good."

Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills the same that Mrs Stevenson had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props. Buffalo. N. Y. adv

Preacher was Laid Up

SAY TURK SOLDIERS STARVE

Allies Renew Offensive in Dardanelles; Moslems in Bad Way.

London, Oct. 11.—Heavy firing along the Dardanelles by both land and naval guns is reported from Mitylene to be still in progress. An extremely heavy bombardment, begun in that region Saturday, led to the assumption that the allies have renewed their offensive, and later news indicates that the operations are still in progress.

Dispatches from Athens say that the Turkish forces at the Dardanelles are in worse straights than ever and that the food supply has been so sorely diminished that many of the troops are on the verge of starvation. It is probable that these reports are somewhat exaggerated but there seems to be good grounds for the statement that many desertions are occurring within the Turkish ranks.

BANDIT HAUL NOT $100,000

B. & O. Robbers in West Virginia Miss Over $1,000,000.

Washington, Oct. 11.—A statement by the postoffice department reduces the maximum loss by the West Virginia train robbery to less than $100,000. There were 151 packages on the train, of which the bandits took 90.

In 118 packages were bank notes aggregating a little over $100,000 and in the other 33 miscellaneous matter not of great value. Whether or not the bandits got any of the miscellaneous packages by mistake is not known.

Packages of federal reserve bank notes of over $1,000,000 were not taken.

CAR OVERTURNS; CHICAGOANS DIE

Big Machine Drops Wheel and Rolls Into Cornfield.

TWO MILWAUKEEANS ARE HURT

Engine Hits Auto and Kills Chauffeur as He Is On Way to Notify Family of Mother's Death—Race to Gain Crossing First Causes Crash With Locomotive.

Aurora, Ill., Oct. 11.—Two men were killed and three others were injured when a forty-eight horse power automobile in which they were driving left the road a mile south of Aurora and rolled over and over into a corn field.

List of Victims.

The dead: Gold Williams, thirty-five years old, 5710 Blackstone avenue, Chicago, sales manager of the Marquette Cement company; M. S. Peterson, forty years old, believed to be proprietor of a garage on the south side, Chicago. The injured: B. A. MacDonald, 7052 Vernon avenue, Chicago, head badly injured, will recover; Herman Prange, 161 Woodward street, Milwaukee, badly cut about the head and face, nose broken; William Witte, 1084 Twenty-first street, Milwaukee, head and face badly lacerated and back injured.

Belongs to Many Clubs.

Williams, a member of the Hamilton, Flossmor Country and Chicago Traffic clubs, was the owner of the machine.

The party was returning from La Salle, Ill. Williams, who was driving the machine, was following the Starved Rock trail. Peterson was diring with him in the front seat.

The left front wheel of the machine broke off, and the big car swerved and rolled down an embankment four feet high. It rolled over and over and finally plunged through a fence and came to a stop bottom side up in a corn field.

Williams Instantly Killed.

Williams, who also is a member of the Chicago Automobile club, the Chicago Motor club and the University of Chicago alumni, was instantly killed. His neck was broken and his skull fractured. Peterson died in the Aurora City hospital.

The injured were removed to St. Charles hospital.

Killed Carrying News of Death.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—Mrs. Augusta Kuppenheimer, widow of Bernard Kuppenheimer, founder of the clothing manufacturing firm which bears his name, died Sunday at her residence, 3240 Michigan avenue. Her death was the occasion of the death, fifteen minutes later, of Carl Heinle, chauffeur for Louis Kuppenheimer of Hubbard Woods.

Mr. and Mrs. Kuppenheimer had spent the night at the North Shore Country club and had not returned home when word of Mrs. Kuppenheimer's death was telephoned to the Hubbard Woods residence. Heinle was ordered to take the limousine, go to the club and tell Mr. Kuppenheimer that his mother was dead and take the couple to the Michigan avenue house.

In his haste he tried to beat a Chicago & North Western passenger train to the Scott avenue crossing, on the dividing line between Winnetka and Glenco. His machine was struck by a locomotive and Heinle killed instantly.

$1,000,000 DAMAGE TO CROPS

Freezing Weather Causes Heavy Loss to Iowa Farmers.

Davenport, Ia., Oct. 11.—The damage to Scott county's corn crop by the freezing weather is estimated at $1,000,000 by G. A. Bliss, agent for the Scott county farm improvement league. Only about half the crop was saved, according to Mr. Bliss.

Advices from Clinton county to the north are that the damage was almost equally severe there. In Muscatine and other counties south to Keokuk, most of the corn had matured and the damage is slight, according to Mr. Bliss. The temperature here was twenty-eight degrees.

Bell Trial Nears End.

Indianapolis, Oct. 11.—The case of Mayor Joseph E. Bell, charged with election conspiracy, probably will go to the jury late Tuesday. About nine of the sixteen hours given to both sides for argument remain.

Rich Man Is Killed.

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 11.—W. H. De Baun, a wealthy business man, was assassinated in a drug store at Cornishville, Ky. The assassin fired through a window.

FOREIGN STUDENTS FEWER

Enrollment from Across Seas Drops for Many Countries.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 11.—The European war has made itself felt in the enrollment at Michigan this year, the total being about 40 behind what it was at a corresponding date last year.

China has dropped off [illegible] in her representation. The other countries follow: South Africa, one ahead; Japan, 4 ahead; Canada, 53 less; India, 3 less; Bulgaria, [illegible] ahead; [illegible], 1 ahead; Central America, 3 ahead; Brazil, 1 ahead; Germany, 1 less; Greece, 1 ahead; Peru, 1 ahead; England, 4 less; Ireland, 1 ahead; Hawaii, Turkey, Argentina, Australia, Mexico, Persia and Russia each have the same enrollment they had last year.

ATHLETES KEPT KEYED UP

Student Tutors to Hold Aggies Up in Their Class Work.

East Lansing, Mich., Oct. 11.—Coach Macklin's gridiron performers are hitting it up at a terrific pace in the class rooms. A hasty review of their academic work for the first two weeks showed them about five points ahead of the average.

A quiet investigation was conducted by one of the college professors to discover the cause of such a great reversal of form in a couple of the veteran gridders' work. The result of his inquiry was the discovery of a board of student tutors organized at the beginning of the fall term with one duty to perform, that of keeping the scholastic records of the Aggies above reproach.

FATE OF SALOONS IS IN HANDS OF COURT

Highest Tribunal Will Decide Alger County Case.

Munising Mich., Oct. 11.—Whether saloons have a legal right to exist in Alger county will be determined by the state supreme court during the October term.

The tribunal will decide whether Circuit Judge Fead's order sustaining the recount of the local option votes by the board of supervisors is correct. Alger county, according to the returns, voted for prohibition in last spring's election by a majority of two votes. The supervisors held a recount and declared that the result made the county wet by a majority of two.

The drys have carried the case to the higher tribunal. The court will decide on the right of the board to recount ballots from certain ballot boxes. Judge Fead ruled that the board possesses this right.

MANY DIPHTHERIA CARRIERS

One in Every 100 Individuals Transport Germs Inquiry Shows.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 11.—Approximately one person in every hundred is a "diphtheria carrier." That is the finding after a thorough and painstaking investigation made by the public health service among the residents of the city of Detroit during the winter of 1913-14. The public health service has no reason to assure other communities that that rate does not universally prevail.

It has long been recognized that diphtheria germs are present in the throats of many perfectly healthy individuals, and that many cases of disease are to be accounted for only from infection from such "carriers." To determine the extent of such infection of the apparently healthy, the public health service undertook to investigate the prevalence of "diphtheria carriers," selecting Detroit for the purpose.

Will Soon Be Paroled.

Menominee, Mich., Oct. 11.—Joe Ellore, over whom M. J. Doyle, the most prominent Democrat in the upper peninsula, and Governor W. N. Ferris had a word battle resulting in the former's severing his connection with the administration, will soon be paroled by the state board.

Good Samaritan Fleeced.

Hancock, Mich., Oct. 11.—John Sarinen met a youth of sixteen years on a train and offered to share his hotel room when they reached Hancock. Sarinen woke up the next morning to find the youth and a pocketbook containing $70 missing.

Well Known Mining Man Dead.

Calumet, Mich., Oct. 11.—Captain Patrick P. Kerns, sixty-five years old, is dead after a few days' illness with paralysis. He was one of the best known mining men in the district.

Five Hurt in Auto Collision.

Menominee, Mich., Oct. 11.—Mrs. Peter Felch sustained severe injuries, and four others were cut and bruised when two automobiles collided near the city limits.

Worst Storm of Year.

Marquette, Mich., Oct. 11.—A forty mile gale, accompanying a heavy snowfall, prevailed on Lake Superior. The storm was the worst of the year.

WILSON AND CABINET PRAYED

Bishop Tells of Incident at White House—Information by Senator.

Indianapolis.—How President Wilson went down on his knees and led his cabinet in prayer at a recent meeting was told here by Bishop William F. Anderson of Cincinnati at a session of the Indiana Methodist Episcopal conference.

A United States senator told the bishop of the incident: The senator had heard it from one of the cabinet members who had prayed with the president.

"When the president arrived at the cabinet meeting," said Bishop Anderson, "his face was solemn. It was evident that serious affairs of the nation were on his mind. He said to the cabinet members:

"'I don't know whether you men believe in prayer or not. I do. Let us pray and ask the help of God.'

"And right there the president of the United States fell upon his knees, and the members of the cabinet did the same, and the president offered a prayer to God."

MAKE MUDHOLES FOR LIVING.

Missourians Cultivate Them for Autoists, Official Charges.

Jefferson City, Mo.—That mudholes in the road are carefully nurtured in many communities in Missouri by persons who find it profitable to pull automobiles out of them when they get stuck is charged by State Highway Commissioner Buffum in a road bulletin.

The issuance of this bulletin followed the action of a Callaway county farmer, who refused to pull the automobile of Mrs. James Houchin out of a creek bed until she gave him $25.

THIRTEEN EXPLAINS DEFEAT!

Unlucky Number Was Also Aided by Killing Black Cat.

California, Pa. — T. J. Underwood, comptroller of Washington county, ascribes to "thirteens" his defeat as candidate for sheriff at the primaries.

In the first place his name, Tom J. Underwood, contains thirteen letters. The license number of his yellow campaign car was 113. On Friday, Aug. 13, while riding in his car with another candidate now numbered among the also rans, he ran over and killed a black cat. The number of signers on Mr. Underwood's petition was 113.

CHICAGO HAS FIRST DRY DAY IN 43 YEARS

Judge Matchett Refuses Injunction; Closing Law Good.

CHICAGO, ILL. — The saloons, defeated in an effort Saturday to secure an injunction to prevent closing of bars Sunday, accepted the situation and Sunday every saloon in the city was closed from midnight Saturday until midnight Sunday, the first time it has occurred in forty-three years.

After warning an attorney that the court was "hostile to his cause," Circuit Judge Matchett heard the reading of the application for an injunction Saturday and then lost no time in rendering his decisio.

He declared that he would not issue permission for the contemplated action of the wets against a law that is a "good" law. He called attention to the fact that the law had been upheld by the state supreme court and informed Attorney Anderson that he might go to a higher court to file his request.

"I do not think there is a judge in Cook county who has any doubt regarding the law in this matter," said Judge Matchett, "and inasmuch as I was elected as a judge and not as a legislator, I will enforce the law. If you wish the law changed you should go to Springfield and not to the courts."

BANDIT HAUL NOT $100,000

B. & O. Robbers in West Virginia Miss Over $1,000,000.

WASHINGTON — A statement by the postoffice department reduces the maximum loss by the West Virginia train robbery to less than $100,000. There were 151 packages on the train, of which the bandits took 90.

In 118 packages were bank notes aggregating a little over $100,000 and in the other 33 miscellaneous matter not of great value. Whether or not the bandits got any of the miscellaneous packages by mistake is not known.

Packages of federal reserve bank notes of over $1,000,000 were not taken.

Unfilled Tonnage, 5,317,618.

NEW YORK, N. Y. — The unfilled tonnage of the United States Steel corporation on Sept. 30 totaled 5,317,118 tons, an increase of 409,163 tons over August.

MICHIGAN SNOOZER IS WORLD CHAMPION

Dreams Shop Afire, Jumps 2 Stories Without Waking.

HOUGHTON, MICH. — The champion sleeper of the world has been discovered. He is Fred Austin of Atlantic, a small town near here.

Fred, who is employed at the Superior mine, went to sleep and dreamed that the Superior blacksmith shop was on fire. Without taking the trouble to wake up, he rushed out of the house through a second story window. He lit in the yard fifteen feet beneath without shocking his objective mind back to consciousness, and had walked a distance of fifty feet through the front gate of a neighbor's yard when he awakened.

Members of the family heard the crush of breaking glass as Fred went through the window, and rushed out into the yard just as Fred was returning shamefaced from his sleep walking expedition.

It developed that Fred had escaped without a scratch.

LAST OF OLD FAMILY DIES

Funeral in Ann Arbor Monday for Miss Betsey Mason.

ANN ARBOR, MICH. — Funeral services were held Monday afternoon from Dolph's chapel, for Miss Betsey E. Mason, last surviving member of one of Michigan's oldest families, who died Saturday in Kalamazoo.

Miss Mason was born in New York state about 1825, and while still very young, came with her people to Michigan. She lived in Detroit for many years and was well known to many of its old families. The family later moved to Ann Arbor, where her late brother, Erastus T. Mason, was at one time very prominent. For some years she had lived in Kalamazoo.

FIND NEW CATTLE SCOURGE

Forage Poisoning Diagnosed by Saginaw Physician; Farmers Warned.

SAGINAW, MICH. — Another forage poisoning which has attacked young cattle in Bridgeport township has been diagnosed by Dr. Snell, city food inspector, as cocidiosis.

A warning has been issued to farmers to take their young stock off the low lands and feed them dry forage. A parasite seems to have caused the disease.

FROST RUINS MANY CROPS

Western Michigan Is Hard Hit by Sudden Cold.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. — The first heavy frost killed many late crops throughout western Michigan.

Late tomatoes, peppers and other vegetables, still on the vines and plants were withered by the cold.

HOUGHTON, MICH. — The Houghton road commission will ask the county board of supervisors for $100,000, to be spent on roads in the county during the next year.

CAN RUN TRUCK FARM AND YET USE NO LAND

Says He Found Way to Grow Plants on Chemical Diet.

Cleveland, O.—J. A. Smith, manager of a drug store here, claims to have growing in his greenhouse healthy sweet corn planted in absorbent cotton which has been treated only with the proper chemical food the corn requires. In another greenhouse, he declares, he has tomatoes thriving in washed lake sand.

Mr. Smith has worked on his discovery for seven years. He believes he has learned just what food each plant requires and in just what proportions to feed it nitrogen, potash and the other necessary chemicals. He claims to have a diet formula for almost every known plant and vegetable.

Having made an analysis of the soil, he introduces the chemicals in which that soil is weak for the production of a given plant. Any kind of soil will do. Even cinders will suffice. The only use for the soil in Mr. Smith's process is to support the plant stalk just as a trellis supports the grapes or sweet peas.

This is why, Mr. Smith contends, it is possible to grow plants in absorbent cotton. He merely saturates the cotton with a solution of the natural food for the plant it is intended to grow.

Mr. Smith is negotiating with men who, he declares, are planning to commercialize his discovery. He would establish service stations in Cleveland and other cities.

Does your lawn refuse to become green in a soil of hard clay? Send for Mr. Smith and let him put the grass on a diet. Do you own a greenhouse, and is it expensive to haul fertile soil from a distance? Send for Mr. Smith. He'll show you how to raise carnations in lake sand. "It's easy," he says, with a smile, "when you know the food carnations need."

SERB HEIGHTS IN TEUTONIC HANDS

British Are Driven Back in Belgrade Advance.

GRAND DUKE WILL COMMAND

Belgrade Nearly Destroyed in Bombardment—Serbs Put Up Fierce Resistance—Invaders' Losses Heavy—Allies Still Landing Troops at Saloniki—Mackensen Seizes Railroads.

LONDON — The Teutonic armies of invasion under Field Marshal von Mackensen, which are advancing into Serbia, have won further victories south of Belgrade.

The Germans and Austrians, after taking the heights between Zarkowo and Mirijewo, south of the former Serbian capital, and seized the railway from Belgrade to Nish also took the railway that stretches into the interior of Serbia from Semendria.

All of the promontory of Serbian territory formed by the junction of the Danube and Suave Rivers, is now in Teutonic hands, despite the violent resistance of the Serbs in rear guard actions.

British Beaten Back.

British artillery and forces of marines under Admiral Ernest Troubridge of the English navy, that were defending Belgrade, are reported to have retreated in the direction of Kragujevac.

It is reported from Bucharest via Zurich that Grand Duke Nicholas of Russia will be put in supreme command of the allies in the Balkans to check the German drive.

The crossing of the Danube by the Teutonic forces has been completed, it is announced by the German war office.

One hundred and fifty thousand Austro-German troops have crossed the Save and Danube Rivers in Serbia, according to reports in diplomatic circles at Athens. These troops were stopped by Serbian artillery before they could penetrate beyond the border, it is asserted, and Belgrade is the only point at which they have gained a foothold on Servian soil.

Belgrade in Ruins.

Three-quarters of the city of Belgrade has been destroyed by 6,000 Austro-German shells and the fighting continues, according to an Athens dispatch to the Matin. Telephone communication between Belgrade and Nish has been cut off.

Military experts declare the effect of the capture of Belgrade will be very important, not only from a political standpoint, but also because it gives the Teutons a good crossing over the Danube and an excellent base.

Public buildings in Belgrade are being turned into military hospitals. Among the buildings which will be used for such a purpose are the Palace, the Maryaktar Mosque and the Skupshtina Building.

QUIZ IMPENDS OVER SLIDES

Colonel Gaillard Reported as Saying His Plans Were Vetoed.

WASHINGTON — Definite word from Panama that there are 10,000,000 cubic yards of earth in motion in the Gaillard cut at Gold Hill, and that the canal will be useless for months, is likely to bring the question of responsibility to a focus and possibly may lead to an inquiry.

Two months before he was stricken with the illness which caused his death Colonel Gaillard, the digger of the cut which bears his name told a Washington newspaper man specifically that he was utterly opposed to turning the water into the cut until the excavation had been completed by dry cutting, and that he doubted the efficacy of dredging operations to complete the work. Colonel Gaillard said that he had done all that he could to induce his superiors to allow him to complete the work with steam shovels, but that he had been overruled.

CRIME DECREASES 15-FOLD

Closed Sunday in Chicago Shows Lowest Record in City's History.

CHICAGO — Closing of saloons in Chicago on Sunday for the first time in forty-four years resulted in the day passing with the lowest crime record in the history of the police department, Chief of Police Healy announced.

There were only sixteen arrests made for drunkenness Sunday and forty-seven on Saturday, as compared with an average of 243 for these two days during the last several months.

U. S. Army Aviator Falls to Death.

SAN DIEGO, ARIZ. — Lieutenant Walter D. Taliaferro, stationed at the United States army aviation corps school at North Island, fell 1,000 feet into San Diego bay and was killed.

RATTLER'S FANGS MISS HIM.

Snake Strikes Negro's Overalls and Can't Get Loose.

Jefferson City, Mo.—A negro farm hand cutting corn felt several sharp tugs at his overalls and thought he had become caught in briars. Glancing over his shoulder, he saw a rattlesnake five feet long. Reaching around with his corn knife, he managed to sever the snake just back of the head.

The snake had buried its curved fangs, nearly an inch in length, in the slack of the negro's overalls and could not disengage them.

At Eighty-three Drives 400 Miles.

Glen Easton, W. Va.—George W. Grant, eighty-three years old, who drove 400 miles with a thirty-six-year-old horse from here to Wilmington, Del., has returned to this city by rail. It required sixty-one days to make the drive. Mr. Grant drove to Delaware to see his children, whom he had not seen in forty-six years.

The public health service has no reason to assure other communities that that rate does not universally prevail.

It has long been recognized that diphtheria germs are present in the throats of many perfectly healthy individuals, and that many cases of disease are to be accounted for only from infection from such "carriers." To determine the extent of such infection of the apparently healthy, the public health service undertook to investigate the prevalence of "diphtheria carriers," selecting Detroit for the purpose.

ATHLETES KEPT KEYED UP

Student Tutors to Hold Aggies Up in Their Class Work.

EAST LANSING, MICH. — Coach Macklin's gridiron performers are hitting it up at a terrific pace in the class rooms. A hasty review of their academic work for the first two weeks showed them about five points ahead of the average.

A quiet investigation was conducted by one of the college professors to discover the cause of such a great reversal of form in a couple of the veteran gridders' work. The result of his inquiry was the discovery of a board of student tutors organized at the beginning of the fall term with one duty to perform, that of keeping the scholastic records of the Aggies above reproach.

THREE BAY SCHOOLS CLOSED

Infantile Paralysis Death and Two Cases Cause Fear.

BAY CITY, MICH. — Eastern High school and Garfield and Dolsen ward schools were closed for fumigation as a protection against infantile paralysis which has caused a scare of big proportions here.

The Corbin school was also closed for fumigation, three cases of diphtheria having developed among pupils there. The fact that the thirteen-year-old daughter of W. W. Williams, died from infantile paralysis and that two other cases exist in different sections of the city were reported is the cause of the anxiety.

PROTEST TO BRITAIN IS SENT

President Approves Note on Trade Interference.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — President Wilson approved the new note to Great Britain protesting against interferences with neutral trade. It will go to London at once. Arrangements for publication will be made later.

The note is very long and goes into details of some cases of which American protests are founded.

Threatens to Seize American Mines.

CHICAGO — A petition was received in Juarez that the Villa governor, Avila, at Chihuahua City has demanded of the American Smelting and Refining company that it refine and coin "government ores," under penalty of confiscation and operation by the Villa forces there.

THE HIGH SCHOOL

Every Senior possesses at least one bright spot. Some "nifty" little class pins those.

A high school orchestra has been organized which is in charge of Miss Caldwell. The players are as follows:

Violins—Lester Waring, Wiley McCann, Wilbur Boyce, Harold Lowry
Clarionet—Gordon Bachman
Flute—Parker Comfort
Piano—Burton Garlinghouse

Several others plan to join soon.

There has been considerable confusion recently in translating German, in regard to the correct use of the verb "trogen" which means in one sense "to carry" and in another "to wear."

Basket ball practice has been discontinued for some time due to the cold and wet weather. If anyone in the community having a vacant barn would suggest it to the girls they will see that it is occupied at least a good share of the time.

The foot ball boys play Clinton again this afternoon which is the third game of the season. Last Friday the boys lost at Blissfield 33 to 6. But they nor we have lost courage with that game and here's hoping the whole high school gets out and cheers for them. They have lost only the one game. Keep in mind "A bad beginning, a good ending."

JUNIOR DEBATE

"Honorable judges, worthy opponents, ladies and gentlemen—"

"For Heaven's sake! Don't let us be run by public opinion—"

"The question is undebatable—"

"Time is up—"

These and like things might have been heard Thursday morning in the vicinity of Miss Pavey's room. The Juniors were in the height of their glory—they were having a debate.

This was the interesting question, "Resolved, examination should be abolished from the schools." The negative side, in spite of having the unpopular side, won with 142 points to their credit while the affirmative side followed closely with 136.

Doris Kloffenstein acted as leader on the negative aided by Clara Bancroft, Ruth Young, Leslie Johnson and Harold Lowry. On the affirmative were Ralph Cuthbert leader, Fern Murphy, Arthur Brown, Zorah Dickinson and Fay VanValkenburg.

Three dignified Seniors, Gordon Bachman, Parker Comfort and Jason Meads, were the judges.

This was the first debate of the year but we hope to have many more as splendidly given and as peaceful as this one.

ONE CENT LETTER POSTAGE

"Letter postage users of the United States particularly those who have a large volume of letter mail are clearly entitled to a one cent letter rate, and a determined fight will be made in congress this winter to secure it."

R. A. Heesen, Manager of the Heesen Brothers & Company made the above statement lately accompanying it with the information that the business men of this city are joining the ranks of th National One Cent Letter Postage Association, for the purpose of securing a one cent letter rate.

He declared that already the association has strong and representative memberships in every city and town throughout the United States, and that every effort is to be directed toward securing action on a one cent letter rate at the approaching session of congress.

"The time has arrived" he declared, "when officials at Washington should take cognizance of the demand made by the users of first class letter mail for a readjustment of rates so that ordinary letters, which are now being charged two cents each shall be carried at cost, or about one cent each."

"It has been amply demonstrated by statistics and actual investigation that a one cent letter rate throughout the United States will pay, and that the extra cent now being demanded for the carriage of a letter is nothing less than a tax.

"The United States post office department was primarily organized for the carriage of letters, and in the early days the charges made were on a basis of actual cost of transportation. When the department was organized transportation difficulties were immense, and a high rate had to be charged. Years have passed, wonderful inventions have revolutionized the transportation business and the cost of carriage has been lowered until now it is known letters can be carried at one cent instead of at two cents, which is the present charge.

"For the purpose of crystalizing sentiment throughout the United States so that this reform can be brought about, there has been formed the National One Cent Letter Postage Association, of which Charles Wm. Burrows, Cleveland, is president, and George T. McIntosh, Cleveland, is secretary, treasurer and manager of the campaign. This organization has been in existence for a number of years and has been steadily working for a one cent letter rate. Substantial progress has been made, and it is hoped that definite action on this important matter may be had at the approaching session of congress.

"Users of letter postage of the country, who are now heavily taxed for the carriage of their letters, should rally to the support of this work, and it is my intention to arouse interest in the work of this association locally, so that we may be properly represented when the time for action at Washington comes.

"I feel certain that we can present this matter in a proper light, so that our representatives at the national capitol will be sufficiently impressed to support this work."

"HYPOCRITES" POWERFUL SERMON

As Naked Truth Holds Her Mirror Up to Nature the Shams and Veneer of Society are Torn off and Sins Soul is Shown.

By Rev. Thomas B. Gregory.

"Hypocrites," the motion picture drama that is now on at the Longacre Theatre, Forty-eighth street and Broadway, is preaching the Gospel as it is but seldom preached from any pulpit.

The chances are a thousand to one that the minister who should talk as the pictures do at the Longacre Theatre would be instantly asked to resign.

The pictures have no wife and children to feed and clothe, no house rent to pay, no bills to meet, and they can hew to the line regardless of where the chips may fly.

The story of the "Hypocrites," briefly told, is as follows:

Gabriel, an ascetic monk of the olden times, with infinite toil and midst deepest secrecy, perfects an image of Truth—a beautiful woman in the nude—a rather strange piece of work for a monk, and an ascetic monk at that. But so runs the story.

The unveiling is made a fete day, and and all gether to listen to the address of the Abbot, who little dreaming of what Gabriel had been working at for so long, consented to unveil the statue. The covering is pulled aside there stands a figure of Truth—naked.

The consequences of the unveiling are most disastrous to Gabreil—the monks and populace rush upon him and kill him.

After the lapse of a thousand years or so, we see Gabriel again as the minister of a modern church. The same ideal light shines in his eyes. He is still seeking Truth and his congregation is made up of the very same people, who in the long ago stoned him to death.

Left alone after service, the minister finds a newspaper, dropped by a member of the choir, which contains a reproduction of Faugeron's painting, "The Truth." Stirred by the picture, the minister falls into revery. He becomes Gabriel again, and attended by Truth with her Mirror visits the various scenes of the story Truth, with her wondrous Mirror, showing him the real actions of the characters.

And such scenes! And such actions! O, that wonderful Mirror of Truth! What tales it does unfold. What secrets it does unfold. What a tale of duplicity and double-dealing it brings to light.

Jesus told the truth—the naked truth—and we know what happened to Him. And the very same thing happens to the present day minister who has the temerity to attempt to tell the same sort of naked truth that Jesus told.

A political orator harananguing the crowd, roars out, "Honesty is my platform!" and while the poor dupes are applauding the scamp, Truth flashes her mirror and the orator is seen in the back room of a gin mill raking in the "graft" that is being brought in to him by his scoundrelly henchman.

At the same time you will be given the opportunity to see the "base uses" to which Love is far too often turned.

Later on the Minister and Truth find themselves down by the seashore, where Truth flashes her mirror, and the "very nice" are seen at a fashionable watering-place in anything but modest costume carrying on like a pack of Satyrs under the chaperonage of Pan and Silenus, with Pan and Silenus in a [illegible] goatish mood.

"Great God!" you find yourself exclaiming to yourself. "It's mighty bad MIGHTY bad! But never mind. It's all coming out right in the end. There is such thing as Truth—and by and by we shall see her face to face—the naked truth, no longer hung about with the painted rags of insincerity and pretence."

Such are the thoughts that are forced into the mind by the wonderful pictures appearing at the Longacre Theatre. They make us hate hypocrisy and love the sincere and the true, and better still, they make us feel that somehow or other the true and the right are bound to win.

All success to the grand purpose that Bosworth had in mind when he launched "Hypocrites."

"Hypocrites" will be shown at the Bradley Opera House, for one night, Tuesday October 19. Arrange to see it.

OLD AND NEW WAY TO TREAT CATARRH

Breathing a Germ Killing Air Endorsed Actual Results.

The discovery of Hyomei has wrought a wonderful change in the treatment of catarrh.

Prior to three years ago the medicines ordinarily employed in the cure of this disease were drugs, sprays, lotions, etc. In some instances they benefited, but the improvement was not lasting.

With Hyomei you take into the air passages of your throat and head a balsamic air that goes into the minutest cells, and should effectually kill all germs and microbes of catarrh. Its purpose is to enter the blood with the oxygen, killing the germs in the blood, and restore health to the whole system. Many astonishing testimonials have been received from those who have been helped by Hyomei.

A complete outfit is inexpensive and includes an inhaler, dropper and sufficient Hyomei for several weeks' treatment.

Perhaps the strongest evidence that can be given to doubters, is the fact that C. A. Wright & Son have so much faith in Hyomei that they sell every package under a positive guarantee to refund the money if it does not relieve.

GUARD YOUR HOGS AGAINST HOG CHOLERA

Newspapers in many districts contain articles about hog cholera raging in their sections. Don't wait until your hogs are infected. Guard against this destructive disease now. Curing it has been shown to be impossible in most instances. Prevention is safest and best. Rawleighs' all-medicine Hog Mixture fed to your pigs, shoats and hog according to directions, and dipping them and disinfecting the pens yards, etc., with Rawleigh's Dip and Disinfectant has been shown again and again to be a sure way of protecting them against hog cholera, even if the disease is prevailing in the immediate neighborhood. 25 lbs. will last 10 animals about 50 days, 100 lbs. will last 20 animals 100 days.

WOMAN ALL RUN DOWN

Made Strong and Well By Vinol

Waynesboro, Pa.—"I was all run down after a hard spell of bronchitis so it was hard for me to keep about. I had pains in my chest and took cold easily. A friend asked me to try Vinol. I did and it built me up so I am strong and well and I am able to do my housework which I had not done for three months before taking Vinol."—Mrs. Y. R. HOLBOUGH, Waynesboro, Pa.

ANOTHER CLUB

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Wright entertained a party of gentlemen and ladies on Tuesday evening at what proved to be an announcement party of the birth of a new club. The new arrival was a strong husky one, being composed of some 38 or 40 members.

Some difficulty arose (as usual) over the name of the new arrival and the decision was postponed until the next meeting.

This new club will meet once in two weeks until after the Holidays when they will meet every week, each member entertaining in turn. The game will be "500."

This first evening was a very pleasant one. After the business session the company played several games of 500. Later the hostess served light refreshments. The company then adjourned to meet in two weeks.

ENTERTAINED

Mrs. C. H. Bramble entertained a company of young people Wednesday evening honoring her son LeRoy and wife. Those present were Messrs. and Mesdames Floyd Bryan, Wilfred Waldron, Albert VanDoren and Maynard Mulvaney, the Misses Lulu Stahler, Edyth Rector and Beth Satterthwaite and Percy Bowen and Earl Rector.

After a social hour the company played several games of flinch and 500. A two course luncheon was served at the close of the games.

"TOPPS"

Depty. Sheriff John Smith was called to the Keeney farm Wednesday afternoon to look after a character that had drifted in upon them, sleeping in the straw stack the night before. He was in a demented condition, gave his name as "Topps" and said he lived in the woods.

Mr Smith took him to Adrian and his father Robt. Topps, who lives near Hudson, seeing a write-up in the Telegram about the young man, came and took him home. He has been in a weak condition mentally since an attack of fever and had wandered away but has usually been very quiet and peaceful.

RESEARCH CIRCLE

The Research Club held its regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Mary Smeltzer. The program as laid down in the calendar was given with but one exception and that paper is to be given at a later date. The study for the coming year is South America and it is exceedingly interesting.

The next meeting will be at Mrs. John McIntyre's with the following program:

Conquests and Colonization of South America—Mrs. John Kingan

The National Value of Billy Sunday—Mrs. Ed Smalledge

What is Pure English?—Mrs. Andrew Taylor

TEXAN GLAD

Old Remedy Cures His Horses and Cattle.

Michigan horse owners are apt to swop experiences. They tell each other of any good idea they have hit on for the better care of horses. Here is a suggestion from far away. It is from Mr. W. A. Langham of Beaumont, Texas, who says: "I have used Hanfords Balsam of Myrrh in my stable about two years and find it the best liniment I have ever tried."

What Cures Eczema?

We have had so many inquiries lately regarding Eczema and other skin diseases, that we are glad to make our answer public. After careful investigation we have found that a simple wash of Oil of Wintergreen, as compounded in D. D. D. Prescription, can be relied upon. We would not make this statement to our patrons, friends and neighbors unless we were sure of it—and although there are many so-called Eczema remedies sold, we ourselves unhesitatingly recommend D. D. D. Prescription.

Drop into our store today, just to talk over the merits of this wonderful Prescription.

STATE BOYS CONFERENCE

KALAMAZOO, MICH.

There are some new features of the State Boys' Conference that every boy in the county should know of. The conference is one for select older boys, [illegible] may go as a delegate, providing the boys should be 17 and 18 years of age. All boys should go with the idea of getting something that will enable them to render greater service in their home communities.

The second feature is in the matter of registrations. All registrations outside of the city of Adrian must go through the office of the County Y. M. C. A. No cards will be given to the State Conference to any community that [illegible] for every five boys. This adult leadership is absolutely necessary with such a large gathering as the State Boys' Conference is.

County Secretary, Arnot, now has registration cards and literature that he will be glad to furnish to any one that is interested.

RED BAND LUMP

is giving great satisfaction, no reason why it should not as it burns like the old fashioned shell bark hickory wood, snaps and crackles, burns up to a fine ash and as for giving out heat there is nothing like it.

The price is $5.50 delivered.

PLYMOUTH HARD COAL

is pleasing new buyers the same as the RED BAND. It is the best grade of hard coal mined. Free from slate and gives out a steady heat. Try a ton and see the difference.

FASHION VS COMFORT
In Furniture

Some people put fashion above comfort; others put it below. WE INSIST ON BOTH. There is a certain dignity and attractiveness about a home with furniture that is made just right in line—that harmonizes all over the house—and there is an immense amount of satisfaction in knowing that your visitor is comfortable, no matter what chair, or couch, or daveoport she picks out. It is just as easy, if you are careful in selecting, to get this combination in YOUR home, and we have tried to help you by making our selection carefully in advance. This is an important feature of our service,

A PRETTY WEDDING

At the Home of the Bride's Parents Last Evening

MISS IVA B. WALDRON AND LEON M. VAN VALKENBURG

United in Marriage

Thursday evening, Oct. 14, 1915, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jonas Waldron was the scene of a pretty wedding when their daughter Iva B. and Leon M. VanValkenburg were united in marriage in the presence of about 60 relatives of the two families,

As the wedding march was played by Mrs. Wilfred Waldron the couple took their places and Rev. W. B Hartzog performed the ceremony using the ring service. They were unattended except by little Marjorie Foor who carried the ring in the heart of a rose. The bride wore a gown of cream crepe de chene and carried bride's roses

After congratulations a three course supper was served by the Misses Lula Stahler, Lillian Cole and Bessie VanAntwerp. The presents were many and beautiful.

The young couple left later by auto (from which most of the gasoline had been removed by friends(?)) for parts unknown, but will soon be at home to theirs friends on the VanValkenburg farm west of town.

IN JUSTICE COURT

A few days ago Mrs. Thos. Wyrill caused the arrest of Miss Fern Bissell on the charge of stealing some dresses and other articles from a room occupied by her. She was arrested in Grand Rapids and brought here for examination. Her trial was set for October 15. She protested that she was innocent of the charge. Later developments have proved that she was not the guilty one.

Dept. Sheriff Wood of Jackson was in Tecumseh Wednesday looking for a party who had stolen goods from a residence in Jackson. With the help of Dept. John Smith who had a girl under surveillance Miss Luella Fairbanks, working in Smith's restaurant here, was arrested and taken to her rooms to pack her suitcases before going to Jackson

Mr. Smith however had her taken before Judge Hosmer and then proceeded to search her rooms where he found Mrs. Wyrill's missing dresses The Fairbanks girl was taken to Jackson later

THE MAE LaPORTE STOCK CO.

The Mae LaPorte company at the Bradley all this week, are certainly giving an excellent account of themselves It is seldom that a stock company of this class is secured for a town the size of Tecumseh, but they are here never the less and reports are all to the effect that they are the best ever in Tecumseh We have heard many say that the vaudeville between acts is well worth the admission charged without saying a word about the plays themselves. Last night the musical McCoys again pleased the large audience with their excellent musical number. The McCoys are especially good in this line and little "Jiggers" the little eight year old actress, is a hit in her singing and dancing, from the minute she appears on the stage. The other vaudeville acts are extra good, especially the magic, juggling and hoop rolling acts.

To-night the company present "The Goose Girl" with Miss LaPorte playing is presented with all special scenery exactly as presented by Baker & Castles big one night company which played here some three or four years ago. All special scenery and costumes are carried for this production and in fact Mr. McEnroe told the manager that they carry everything but the two geese.

Saturday afternoon "Fanchon the Cricket" will be presented as a matinee bill. This is the same play that the Paramount Film Co. have just starred Little Mary Pickford in. The play will be given complete with the special vaudeville acts the same as the night shows are given.

Saturday night the closing bill will be "The Three Twins" which is a screaming comedy—not a dull moment in the entire bill. Tecumseh is certainly getting one whole week of the best in amusements and if ever a company deserved capacity houses the LaPorte company does You will say so too, after seeing "The Goose Girl" to-night

THE TECUMSEH LAKE ICE CO. INCREASING THEIR CAPACITY

Erecting a New Ice House

For the last few weeks the Tecumseh Lake Ice Co. have been busy constructing a large ice house on the north shore of the Red Mill pond in Brownville. The company has found their ice houses far too small to accommodate enough ice to fill the demands made upon them. The last season's crop, owing to the fact that the water was low in the Globe pond, was not satisfactory to the company

The new building is 40 x 100 ft and 28 ft. high The building rests on cement piers, has a foot space between the outside and inside walls which will be packed with shavings. The inside walls and ceilings are of matched cypress. No sawdust will be used in packing the ice.

At the west end of the building shutes are being built equipped with an endless chain for carrying the ice. As the ice goes up this elevator it passes through sets of knives that trim off all the snow and rough edges. On the east end of the building a loading device has been arranged for.

This building will be nearly twice the size of the present ice houses, With this new addition to their plant the company hope to meet all demands of their customers 'The ice in this new house will be used exclusively for domestic service, that from the old building for iceing cars etc 'They expect to harvest and put on the market for next season a strictly high grade of ice.

The Guild of Scriveners.

Little is heard, as a general rule, of the Guild of Scriveners. The company consists entirely of members of the legal profession, the duty of the scrivener being "to make charters and deeds concerning lands, tenements and inheritances and all other writings which by law are required to be sealed." No notary can, it seems, practice within ten miles of the Royal Exchange unless he is a member of the company.—Pall Mall Gazette.

DOUBLY PROVEN

Tecumseh Readers Can No Longer Doubt the Evidence.

This Tecumseh citizen testified long ago,

Told of quick relief—of undoubted benefit.

The facts are now confirmed.

Such testimony is complete—the evidence conclusive.

It forms convincing proof of merit.

Mrs. C. Stevenson, Wyandotte & Pottawatamie Sts., Tecumseh, says: "The first symptom of kidney complaint in my case was a sharp shooting pain across the small of my back, which made it almost impossible for me to lie down. Someone advised me to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial and I did, procuring my supply at C. A. Wright & Son's Drug Store. After I had taken this remedy a short time, the pains and aches left and gravel that had been a source of constant suffering, no longer troubled me. In fact, I felt like a different person. I have since recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to a number of my friends and shall continue to do so. My former endorsement holds good."

Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills the same that Mrs. Stevenson had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props. Buffalo, N. Y. adv

CANAL WILL NOT OPEN TILL 1916

Giant Panama Slides Will Obstuct For Months.

BOTTOM BULGES ABOVE WATER

Pressure of Earth Causes Upheaval 15 Feet Over Surface—Over Hundred Vessels Forced to Ship Cargoes by Rail—10,000,000 Yards of Dirt Shifting Into Waterway.

PANAMA — A careful survey of the slide area in the Gaillard cut reveals the fact that there are probably 10,000,000 cubic yards of earth in motion, which must be taken out by dredging operations before a permanent channel through the cut is possible.

The canal engineers concede little hope of opening the water way, even temporarily, much before the first of the year.

Million Yards Per Month.

The present rate of wet excavation is, 1,000,000 yards per month, and at this rate it would require not less than ten months to remove the mass which is now sliding into the canal considerably faster than the dredges can take it out.

It is said that often the canal bottom bulges up to a height of fifteen feet above the surface of the water, due to the tremendous weight of the hillsides.

175 Acres Sliding.

The area motion is roughly calculated to be in the neighborhood of 175 acres, which constitutes the greatest slide area in the history of the canal. It extends 2,600 feet along both banks of the water way and 1,500 feet back.

Ship Cargoes by Rail.

One hundred and eleven steamships are held up on both sides of the Panama canal because of the recent slides and their cargoes are being transferred across the isthmus by rail. But the rush of business is so great that the railroad facilities are by no means self confident to meet the demands and the transfer is progressing but slowly.

RED MIKE'S HAUL

How a Burglar Was Trapped by a Girl

By F. A. MITCHEL

I was visiting at the Middletons' country place. It was in the sweet summer time, when one's especial desire is to loll in a hammock or paddle about in a boat or do anything that requires no exertion. Then, too, the warm season is particularly adapted to spooning. Miss Georgia Middleton was apparently not averse to that sort of thing, so I spooned with her. In fact, she began it. I am always distrustful of a girl who doesn't wait for a man to enter upon a flirtation. It is prima facie evidence that she is in for a bit of fun at his expense.

Mr. Middleton owned a ranch in the west and had spent much of his time there. The consequence was that Georgia, who took a liking to ranch life, was with her father in the west more than in the east. She was therefore a mixture of lady and boyden. Conventionality she spurned. She had spent enough of her life in civilization to become familiar with good manners and enough time in the west to cause her to practice them only when it suited her own sweet will.

The eastern country home of the Middletons was in sizable grounds, covered with virgin timber. Georgia was as much at home on a horse's back as on her feet and scoured the country mounted and alone. When her father suggested her taking her groom with her she replied: "No, thanks. I have no mind to bring sorrow on my dear papa's head by exposing myself to the blandishments of a good looking stableman. I'd rather run the [illegible] of a cowboy." Since it was well known that when any lovemaking was in the wind Miss Georgia was the aggressor this statement was taken for what it was worth.

One day the cook and chambermaid fell out and left the premises short of servants. I came down to breakfast to find Miss Georgia in the kitchen in spotless white, a paper cap on her head, handling the cooking utensils with the handiness of a chef. The costume was very becoming, and I complimented her on her appearance in it.

"That's the reason I put it on," she said. "I've plenty of old clothes that serve the purpose better, but I wouldn't look as well in them."

By such frank speeches Georgia won the confidence of those about her, but there was usually a method in them.

Having prepared an excellent breakfast, it suddenly occurred to this wayward young lady to have a ride on her cob about the grounds in her cook's costume. She usually rode astride; but, not having on her bloomers on this occasion, she used a saddle with a horn. Galloping along through the timber, she saw a man skulking in the distance. Riding toward him, she observed that he was by no means well looking. Indeed, he had the appearance of belonging to the criminal classes.

"Good mornin' to you," he said. "Exercisin' the missis' saddle horse?"

It occurred to Georgia that, being in cook's costume, she had been mistaken for a servant.

"Yes," she replied. "The missis isn't well. If the cob isn't taken out every day he gets fractious."

"You're a nice lookin' girl, too nice lookin' for a cook. You ought to be a lady's maid."

"I am a lady's maid. The cook went away yesterday, and I had to go into the kitchen. But what are you doing here?"

"Well, this lookin' like a fine place I thought there might be some chance for a meal."

"Like enough you're looking for something better than a meal," replied Georgia in a dry tone.

"What's that you're sayin'?"

"I'm on to the likes of you. I've been a partner in such jobs myself."

"What kind o' jobs?"

"Oh, I know you're looking for a crib to crack, and I know the safest way to get the swag out handy and without getting caught is to have a helper among the servants."

The man scrutinized the girl's face, hesitating to trust her.

"How's a man to know you won't give him away?" he said presently.

"He doesn't know it. He's got to go in on faith. If he wants to be treated right he must do the right thing by his helper."

"What d'you call the right thing?"

"Well, he's got to put up something beforehand and agree to divide the profits after the job's done."

"Suppose he hasn't anything to put up?"

"Then I can't see how he can get started on the job."

But finally the supposed lady's maid threw off her demand for a guarantee fund and agreed to turn over her mistress' jewels provided the party of the first part would agree to dispose of the plunder and divide the profits. She told the man where he would find a ladder in an outhouse, how he could climb to a certain window on the second floor, which he would find open; how he could enter a room where there would be a box of jewels on a dresser. When this agreement had been made the man retreated and Georgia rode back to the house to report the interview.

She was reproved by her mother, who did not for a moment suppose that she had the remotest idea of carrying her prank any further, nor did I. Mrs. Middleton proposed that on the night appointed for the robbery the gate should be locked and the police be called to protect the premises. Mr. Middleton was in the city and not expected at home for several days. I, being the only man present, ventured to suggest to Mrs. Middleton that the man would not be so gullible as to trust himself in the hands of a stranger and nothing would come of it, but the lady declared that she believed many robberies were committed by connivance of the servants and this was a case in point.

After the matter had been duly discussed by all except its perpetrator, who had maintained a modest silence, Georgia as soon as she got me alone told me that she believed the man was a jailbird who had escaped or had ended his term and that she had completely deceived him. She asked me to assist her in carrying out her scheme. I told her that the police would be only too glad to be interested in it with a view to capturing the man red handed. I volunteered to sound them and learn what they would prefer to do.

I did so and was told, after giving them Georgia's description of the man, that he was probably Red Mike, who had recently been discharged after doing a term in state prison. They begged me to secure them an opportunity to trap him. I suggested that they put a guard around the Middleton grounds and take him as he entered, but they said that by this course they would have no charge to make against him, whereas if he were permitted to enter the house and was caught there carrying away property he could be sent back to prison for another term.

When I reported these facts to Georgia she asked me to grant the request of the police, but declared that the matter must be kept from her mother. I did not like to be mixed in a matter of dissimulation, but Georgia said it could be managed with her mother's knowledge of it. I finally left her to do as she pleased. She determined to communicate with her father, who, returning from the city, after hearing the story and giving his daughter the usual scolding upon one of her unusual pranks, decided to give the police the opportunity, if it occurred, to get in a criminal who was bent on making a dishonest living.

On the night of the expected burglary we amused ourselves as usual till about 11 o'clock, when we all went to our rooms, agreeing that all lights should be turned off at 12. The robbery was to be committed at 1. I turned off my light at the appointed time and sat in the dark in my clothes. My room overlooked the outhouse where the ladder that the burglar was to use was kept, and the window through which he was to enter was on the same side of the house. Shortly before 1 o'clock I began a watch upon the outhouse, but when ten minutes after the appointed time had elapsed and all was quiet I made up my mind that it was Georgia who had been fooled instead of the criminal.

At seventeen minutes of 2, when I was about to give up the watch and go to bed, I saw a figure stealing to the outhouse. The door had been purposely left ajar by the police, who were in a room overlooking the outhouse. I saw the figure carrying something which I presumed to be the ladder, though it was too dark to discern what it was, and by his motions I knew that he was raising one end against the house. Then I saw him slowly mount the rounds.

I had left my door open so that I could look into the hall and now went to take position at the door. It was not a minute, though it seemed longer, after this change that the electric lights on that floor were turned on, the police sprang from the room they occupied into the hall and thence into the room the burglar had entered. I ran to the door of the room they were in, reaching it just in time to see them seize the man and take from him a box, which one of them opened. It was filled with pebbles.

The household was up and about. No one had gone to bed, and as the burglar was led out through the hall he passed us all. When he came to Georgia I saw him start, for he saw her, not in cook's apparel, but dressed as a lady. He scowled at her, but with a policeman on either side of him and handcuffed he had no opportunity for reproaches. So he uttered no word.

Georgia, having played her prank, now regretted that she had been instrumental in returning a man to prison and began to urge her father to use his influence to prevent the rascal being prosecuted. But Mr. Middleton told her that the matter was not in his hands. The police had caught the robber red handed and had the necessary evidence to convict him.

Nevertheless, Georgia did not give up. She hired a lawyer to defend the man she had trapped, and the thief got off on the ground that he had been persuaded to rob the person who had persuaded him, which was a conspiracy.

Georgia wound up her summer's amusements by bringing me to a declaration and refusing me. I suppose I should have condemned her, but I did not. I pretended that I had also been amusing myself, though I took care to show this by my bearing and not by words. The ruse was successful, and in time I married her.

I am happy to say that since our marriage my wife has behaved herself to my entire satisfaction. She plays no pranks—indeed, she has forgotten those she played in her girlhood. Our daughter, Georgia, is now approaching the age that her mother was when she scooped Red Mike, but her mother does not propose that her daughter shall scoop any one—that is, unless he should be a man with a fortune.

CARRANZA WINS TWO AMERICAS' SUPPORT

Supreme Chief Will Be Recognized in Mexico.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Recognition of General Venustiano Carranza was recommended by the conference of Secretary of State Lansing and the Latin-American diplomats, which at the conclusion of the session issued the following statement:

"The conferees, after careful consideration of the facts, have found that the Carranzista party is the only party possessing the essentials for recognition as the de facto government of Mexico, and they have so reported to their respective governments."

When the United States recognizes Carranza, Villa and Zapata will become outlaws in the eyes of this nation and the American government will be under obligation to prevent them from obtaining aid in this country for the support of their insurrecting operations.

The first step taken by the president after recognizing Carranza, therefore, will be the reimposition of the embargo on the export of arms and ammunition from the United States to any persons opposing the Carranza government.

SERBIANS LOSE STRONG HEIGHTS

Teutons Gain Complete Possession of Fortified Places.

BULGARIANS TAKE MOUNTAIN

Ferdinand's Men Force Passage of Frontier Impediments and Cut Nish-Danube Railway— Glogovica, Captured Heights, Commands Important Railway—Germans Report Gains.

London, Oct. 18.—The Germans and Austrians have gained complete possession of the strongly fortified heights south of Belgrade and have occupied Avala, a town on the Orient railway, eight miles south of the Austrian frontier.

Southeast of Semendria the troops under General von Gallwitz have thrown the Serbians across the Ralpa river, thus breaking through one of their strongest lines of defense in this region.

Bulgars in Big Coup.

It has remained, however, for the Bulgarian forces to effect the most strategically important advance of the last twenty-four hours. They have forced a passage of the frontier mountains between Svetigar and Kniazevac, at a point about thirty miles northeast of Nish, have descended into the Timok valley and cut the Nish-Danube railway and have ascended the sides of Glogovica mountain, six miles farther west, capturing the crest.

The position on Glogovica mountain is of peculiar importance because it commands the railway which runs from Zacitus almost due west to the Orient railway at Paracin.

Germans Take 1,000 Prisoners.

"The Russians were driven back as far as Misse. North and northeast of Greatrakau, we took five officers and over 1,000 men. Strong Russian attacks before Dvinsk were repulsed. We took four officers and 440 men. From the army group of Prince Leopold of Bavaria there is nothing to report. The army group under General von Linsingen threw the Russians over the Styr near Mulycese.

The German official statement respecting operations in the Balkans is as follows: "We have taken Petrovgrob, Kamen and Avala and the heights of both of the Belgrade-Palanka railway, also the hill south of Ripotsk. The heights south of Belgrade are therefore ours. The army group under General von Gallwitz threw the enemy from behind Ralja, southwest of Semendria, as well as from the Sapina and Makoo hills. The Bulgarian forces under General Bojadjeff have forced a passage of the lower Timsok and stormed Glogovica mountain, taking eight guns and 200 men. The armies under Field Marshal von Mackensen have taken sixty-eight Serbian guns."

Russ Claim Big Vivtory.

London, Oct. 18.—The Petrograd announcement follows:

"Eastward from Mitau the Germans who crossed the Eckau have been repulsed. Along the railway to the southeast of Riga and west of the Misshoff farm, there has been a heavy bombardment. German attempts to cross to the left bank of the Missa, southwest of Misshoff were repulsed. German aeroplanes bombarded the railway station at Rotemershof, north of Friedrichstadt. On the Dvinsk front German attacks along the Illukst road and to the south of Lake Madun, are unsuccessful. Between the lakes of Demmen and Drisviaty we captured the farm of Gareni, taking a number of prisoners and machine guns. Near Lakes Demmon, Drisiaty and Bogkine the enemy's recent losses have been very great. Thursday a Zeppelin dropped fifteen bombs on Minsk. It was driven off."

Attorney General Gets Dry Petition.

Escanaba, Mich., Oct. 18.—Following the lead set by Menominee county supervisors, the Delta county board referred the petitions of the drys for a local option election to the attorney general for a decision on some disputed points.

Soo Has Curfew.

Sault Ste Marie, Mich., Oct. 18.—Soo city officials have established a curfew and all persons seventeen years or under must be off the streets by 9 o'clock or face arrest. This is the oldest age limit known for curfew warnings.

City Appeals Taxes.

Gladstone, Mich., Oct. 18.—The Michigan state tax commission will be appealed to by Gladstone city as a result of the action of the Delta county supervisors in raising the assessed valuation of the city $62,500.

Hotel Changes Hands.

Milford, Mich., Oct. 18.—The Hotel Central at Milford, which has been conducted by the Gleason family for twenty-five years, has been leased to Frank Dedley, of Milford.

PROMINENT WOMEN OF MICHIGAN

MISS BINA M. WEST.
MRS. ALBERTA V. DROELLE.

Miss Bina M. West, twenty-three years ago, organized the Woman's Benefit Association of the Maccabees. On October 22, the cornerstone of a beautiful $200,000 home office building for the society will be laid with great ceremonies at Port Huron.

Miss West is a Michigan woman. She began her work on October 1, 1892, with no members and no funds. Today there are over 180,000 women enrolled in membership, and the reserve fund of the society reaches nearly the nine million dollar mark. She has signed away with her own hand over twelve millions of dollars in benefits.

Mrs. Alberta V. Droelle, of 447 St. Aubin Avenue, Detroit, is the great commander for Michigan, and she is to be congratulated on the success she has attained for the society in this State.

Members from all parts of the State are taking a great interest, and nearly every review will be represented. A class of candidates numbering 500 will be presented to Miss West from Detroit alone, at the large public meeting to be held the evening of October 22, at Maccabee Temple, Port Huron.

SOME BAD WOMEN 18, JUDGE

Court in Quandary What to Do With Girl Forger.

Port Huron, Mich., Oct. 18.—Judge Harvey Tappan is in a quandary as to what to do with Margaret Williams, eighteen years old, who has pleaded guilty to passing worthless checks. The judge says there is not an institution in the state where the girl can be sent and still be given a chance to reform.

"I would rather release her than send her to the Detroit house of correction," he said, "even if the county did have a contract with that institution to care for its prisoners."

MINE FATALITIES DECREASE

Marquette Shows Lowest Record Since Establishment of Inspection.

Marquette, Mich., Oct. 18.—During the year which ended on Oct. 1 only nine deaths were caused by accidents in mines in Marquette county, according to the annual report of Mine Inspector John T. Quine.

This is the lowest record since the establishment of mine inspection here in 1887, and is a percentage of 2.38 fatalities for every 1,000 men employed in the mining industry, underground or in surface work.

BANK WON'T PROSECUTE HIM

But Guaranty Company Who Paid Teller's Shortage Will.

Evansville, Ind., Oct. 18.—Henry F. Flentke, teller of the Commercial bank here, who has been missing since last Monday and who, according to bank officials, is short in his accounts about $2,500 will not be prosecuted by the bank it was announced by Gustave A. Hartmetz its president.

The United States Fidelity & Guaranty company of Indianapolis, which bonded Flentke, is expectetd to press the case.

Bankers Back War on Plague.

Joliet, Ill., Oct. 18.—The Illinois Bankers' association, in its closing session, adopted resolutions pledging the support of the organization to the work of the state and federal bureaus of live-stock commissioners in attempting to eradicate the foot-and-mouth disease within the state.

Mailcarrier Drops Dead.

Evansville, Ind., Oct. 18.—Jacob Schneider, sixty-one years old, one of the eldest mail carriers on the local force in point of years served, dropped dead while delivering mail.

Too Timid.

Green—Has fortune never knocked at Brown's door? White—Oh, yes, but Brown didn't dare open it for fear 'twas a bill collector!—New York American.

Swift and Stubborn.

Absalom rode a "mule." Some of the safest, strongest, swiftest riding animals in the country still are mules, and a fine white mule brings a price equal to the finest horse. When the Egyptian army invaded Syria in 1839 its leader, Ibrahim Pasha, rode a remarkable mule, which covered almost unbelievable distances in a single day. Mules are phenomenal in their toughness and were no doubt as stubborn and unmanageable in Absalom's day as in ours, so that there was no holding the animal back after Absalom became entangled in the oak undergrowth.—Christian Herald.

3,000,000 NEW MEN NEEDED BY BRITAIN

Recruiting Director Says They Must Come By Spring.

London, Oct. 17.—"Great Britain needs 3,000,000 more men by spring." This declaration was made by Brigadier General Sir Eric Swayne, director of recruiting in the northern command, in a speech at Hull. General Swayne estimated that Germany still has between 6,000,000 and 10,000,000 men from the ages of 18 to 45, and that therefore it was useless to talk about wearing out Germany.

In the spring, said he, Germany would lose more men than the allies, which would balance the numbers of the allies and the central powers, but if Great Britain should raise 3,000,000 additional, Germany probably would recognize that it would be fruitless to continue.

Great Britain, he added, did not want compulsion, but unless 3,000,000 more men were recruited by the spring the military authorities could not be responsible for the war.

18 KILLED IN KANSAS WRECK

Union Pacific Train Plunges on End Into Creek.

Randolph, Kan., Oct. 18.—Of the sixty-five occupants of a Union Pacific motor train who slid into a heap at the bottom of a passenger car when it plunged on end into Fancy Creek, eighteen lost their lives. Most of these were drowned in the car. Only four escaped unhurt.

A revised list of the recovered dead: Dr. Louis Atwood, Topeka; Mary Giles, Manhattan, Kan.; Mrs. Stelle Chapman, Manhattan; Miss Alma J. Jellis, Garrison, Kan.; Miss Ethel Repass, Stockdale, Kan; A. O. Shaw, Tecumseh, Neb.; Theodore Smith, Tecumseh, Neb.; an unidentified woman.

WISHES EILEEN DUNNE JOY

Col. Roosevelt Writes Letter to Illinois Governor's Daughter.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 18.—Miss Eileen Mary Dunne, daughter of Governor Dunne, who received a letter from President Wilson extending his best wishes for her marriage with William Corboy of Chicago told her friends that she had received one from Colonel Roosevelt also.

In his letter the colonel said: "Whenever I see a sweet, good, pretty girl I always hope that the right man may woo and win her, and that they may live always as happy married lovers. You were just such a girl; I felt in just that way about you, and now I congratulate Mr. Corboy with all my heart." In another letter to Governor Dunne, Colonel Roosevelt said: "Three cheers for Miss Eileen."

Dedicating $250,000 Court House.

Edwardsville, Ill., Oct. 18.—Madison county, Ill., is taking a holiday today, the occasion for which is the dedication of the new $250,000 county courthouse at Edwardsville. Ten thousand persons from all parts of the county are attending the dedication and heard former Speaker "Uncle Joe" Cannon, who was the principal speaker.

LOAN TO ALLIES ACT OF CREDITOR NATION

J. H. Choate and Others Explain America's New Position.

New York, Oct. 18.—Joseph H. Choate made public the appended statement explaining what, in the opinion of himself and thirteen others who signed the document, the Anglo-French loan means to the United States.

The statement sets forth that the security is absolute and that the United States is lending Great Britain and France $500,000,000 so that those countries may purchase from us things that we want to sell them. The loan means that not one dollar of the money will leave Uncle Sam's shores; that some American, directly or indirectly will come into possession of the mone yin cash payment for goods sold; that a commercial credit will be established in this country that will be used in increasing our trade and permit the outflow of our surplus products and that this country recognizes that in order to further American trade it must become a creditor nation.

FIVE ARE BURNED TO DEATH

Two Others May Die as Result of Tenement Fire.

New York, Oct. 18.—Five persons were burned to death early in the day in a fire that swept through a five-story tenement at No. 2137 Third avenue. Two others are dying and a score or more are suffering from severe injuries. The lives of many others who were imperiled were saved by the formation of a human chain by firemen and detectives.

The dead: Mrs. Nettie Glochal, thirty-four years old; Irving Glochal, four years old; Mrs. Julia Wens, thirty-eight year sold; Anna Wens, fifteen years old; Mae Wens, thirteen years old. Seriously hurt: Charles O'Brien, thirty years old; Mrs. Carrie O. O'Brien, twenty-six years old.

FRENCH CAPTURE FOE'S POSITIONS

Barricade and Trenches Taken at Artois and Lorraine.

FORCE TEUTONS TO FALL BACK

Berlin Admits Foe's Gain, but Declares Germans Abandoned Captured Places—Correspondent Says German Forces in West and Their Equipment Are Below Standard.

London, Oct. 18.—French troops are engaged in a battle with the Bulgarian army at Ghevgheli, according to a dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company from Athens.

The scene of the battle is on the Nish-Saloniki railway line in Serbia, about nine miles north of the Greek border.

Another news agency dispatch to London from Athens stated that British troops had left Saloniki Saturday for the Serbo-Bulgarian frontier.

France has announced that a state of war exists between that nation and Bulgria, dating from 6 a. m. Oct. 16.

Paris, Oct. 18.—Successes for the French in the Artois district and in Lorraine are reported in the official statement by the war office. Southeast of Neuville St. Vaast, in the former region, a strong barricade was seized and held against counter attacks.

In Lorraine 100 meters of trenches were captured to the north of Reillon.

French War Report.

Paris, Oct. 18.—The afternoon's war office statement on the progress of the war in France and Lorraine says: "In Artois we seized a strong barricade last night to the southeast of Neuvville St. Vaast and maintained ourselves there after having repulsed two counteratt acks in the course of the night. In the sector of Lihons there was a violent bombardment on both sides. There is no incident to report from the Aisne front, in Champagne nor in the Argonne. In Lorraine we again captured 100 metres of trenches to the north of Reillon in the course of stubborn combats fought at close quarters. During the night of the 16th. our aviators bombarded the German army provision post of Maizieres in the Ascudange and the railroad station at Avricourt."

Berlin Admits Evacuation.

Berlin, Oct. 18.—Evacuation of the west slope of Hartmanns-Weilerkopf after the destruction of the trenches recently captured from the French are told of in the German official communication made public.

German Force Weak?

Geneva, Oct. 18.—Military writers declare that the German troops bearing the brunt of the attack by the French along the Champagne front are a heterogeneous assemblage of regulars, landwehr, reservists and guards, some of whom have just arrived from the Russian front.

The German forces are made up of fifty-six regiments hastily formed from scattered units of many others. The equipment is said to be below the standard.

ITALIANS CONTINUE DRIVE

Latins Take City of Pregasina in Advance Toward Riga.

Rome, Oct. 18.—Continuing their heavy offensive to relieve the Austrian pressure on Serbia while the Russians are exerting new pressure in Eastern Galicia, the Italian forces advanced by a violent attack upon the Austrian positions on both sides of Lake Garda, aiming at the important city of Riva, on the northern end of the lake.

The City of Pregasina was taken by storm, and driving northward on both sides of the lake, the Italians captured the precipitous height of Mount Altissimia, on the east, and established themselves on the heights commanding the Ledro Valley on the west.

MICHIGAN MAYOR IS OUSTED

Voters Use Recall First Time Against Michigan City Head.

Munsing, Mich., Oct. 18.—Mayor Thomas G. Sullivan, elected under the commission form of government last January, was ousted from office in the recall election. Dr. G. A. Trueman was elected to succeed him. The plurality against Sullivan was ninety-eight votes.

Sullivan is the first Michigan mayor who has been recalled.

Indianapolis, Oct. 18.—Postmaster Robert Springsteen will represent Indiana at the United States postmasters' annual convention at Washington, which opens Wednesday.

Spanish Gunboat Is Sunk.

London, Oct. 18.—A wireless message received here reports that the Spanish gunboat Ponce de Leon has been rammed and sunk. The crew of the gunboat was saved.

Stonehenge.

No sooner had we set foot on the first swell of plain than I became aware of what looked like a herd of elephants, half a mile ahead. They did not move, and slowly it dawned upon me that this was Stonehenge. A few minutes later, seated within the circles of those enormous stones, I was asking myself the old questions that so many travelers have asked. For worship, at least, these rude masses were erected; that seems fairly certain. And to commemorate a battle, if one may judge from the barrows that crowh the neighboring hillocks. Religion and war—the two powers that have charmed and ruled and tortured the world. So mysterious is the whole of life, alike moral and physical, that the haunting wonder of Stonehenge was neither increased nor lessened by what then I saw.—Scribner's.

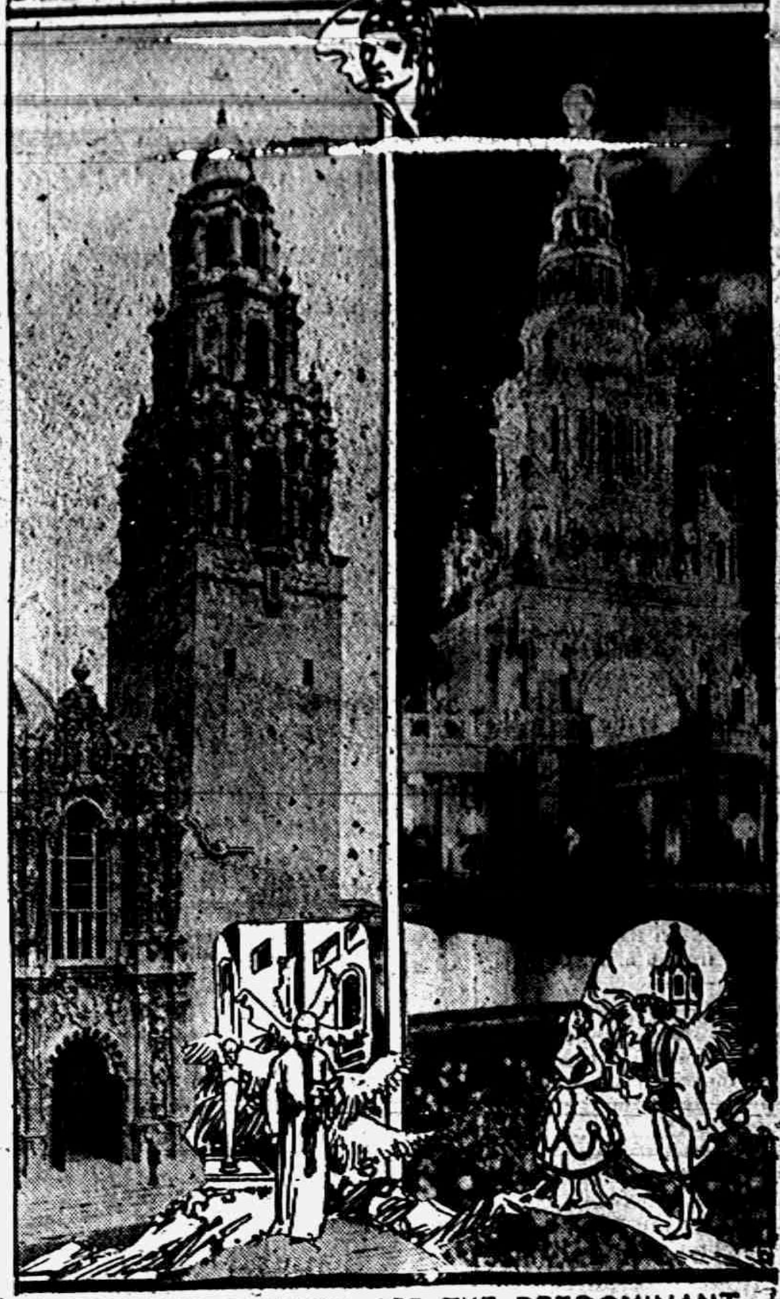
MAGICAL BEAUTY OF CALIFORNIA EXPOSITIONS SHOWN BY LYMAN H. HOWE



THESE TWO TOWERS ARE THE PREDOMINANT ARCHITECTURAL FEATURES OF THE TWO PANAMA EXPOSITIONS. THE ONE ON THE LEFT IN THE MISSION STYLE, TYPIFIES THE EXPOSITION AT SAN DIEGO JUST AS THE ONE ON THE RIGHT—THE TOWER OF JEWELS, IS CHARACTERISTIC OF THE EXPOSITION AT SAN FRANCISCO. BOTH WILL BE SHOWN HERE BY HOWE'S TRAVEL FESTIVAL.

LYMAN H. HOWE'S TRAVEL FESTIVAL

The timely feature of Lyman H. Howe's Travel Festival which comes to the Bradley Opera House next Tuesday October 26 commemorates the completion of the mightiest enterprise ever undertaken for the benefit of the world's commerce—the Panama Canal. Howe's film shows it in full operation as a big modern steamship wends its way through the series of gigantic locks, Culebra Cut, etc. The event has been made memorable by the two notable celebrations in California. Most fittingly "Howe travelers" will also have the privilege and pleasure of reviewing the splendors of both Expositions from a comfortable theatre chair and will see films of faultless photography portraying "the 50,000,000, show" at San Francisco at the infinitesimal expense of 50c or less—not to mention that other most quaint and fascinating Exposition at San Diego. The scenes of the San Francisco Exposition reveal vast palaces and courts that are adorned by imposing colonnades, archways, towers, domes, minarets, statuary, etc., which are often mirrored perfectly in placid lagoons and sylvan lakes.

There are many reasons that explain why no one can afford to miss the opportunity afforded by Howe's reproduction. First, the San Francisco Exposition is the greatest of all time. Second, it is quite probable that no other really great Exposition will be seen in our day considering how rapidly the nations of the world are exhausting their wealth and mortgaging future generations by the great conflict abroad. Third, the San Diego Exposition in its own way and because of its sheer beauty, is in itself worth transcontinental journey and certainly many times the admission to Howe's Travel Festival. Fourth, it is the only time that two Expositions of such magnitude have been conducted simultaneously, and are combined and portrayed in one production for a single admission. Fifth since the printed page and still pictures fail entirely to depict the real glories of these Expositions, only the filmization as made by Howe's camera men can convey a truly adequate conception. Lastly, to gratify your sense of beauty by a new revelation of what the mind and hand has created, and because you will never have another opportunity such as Mr. Howe's exhibition affords.

There will also be the usual variety of other features in the Lyman H Howe program, in one of which an intimate acquaintance is formed with that most talked of vessel of nowadays the submarine. The scenes cover the most recent maneuvres of the U. S. submarine fleet at Pensacola, Florida and were photographed since Mr. Howe's last engagement here. The flotilla is seen ploughing through the sea at full speed and some of them are shown sinking below the surface while others are seen emerging. Still others may be seen racing through the deep with absolutely nothing in sight but the tip of the periscope or rather a small trail of foam created by it.

Another feature, and one of surpassing charm, takes spectators to ever-quaint Holland where acquaintance is made with youthful Holland—very youthful—in a series of portrait studies that are so wondrously perfect they are "speaking likenesses" indeed. This series, like another by boat through the enchanting canals of ancient Bruges, Belgium, is shown in the colors of nature.

Supplementing these and many other subjects are entirely new animated cartoons that are always so distinctive of Howe's exhibition. They satirize and burlesque the more serious and sedate subject matter with a humor that simply is irresistible, and last—but certainly not least—comes the pleasant news that the audience may once more revel at the merry antics of that delightful masterpiece of babydom entitled, "Our Baby," which Mr. Howe exhibited on a previous engagement. It is his policy not to repeat any subjects, but he has agreed to make an exception to his rule in this instance because of the number and insistence of the requests received for another opportunity to see, "The Baby."

A CARD FROM MRS. J. F. N. BOWEN

Parkersburg. W. Va.

Says: Dear Tecumseh friends:—We reached our destination without a hitch. My sister Mrs. W. E. Wright of Coldwater met me at Adrian. At Toledo Mrs. B. R. Weld met me at the station and we had a delightful 2 hours visit. The Finch family met us with an auto (through the kindness of a friend) and in 10 minutes we were at their pretty little home and how we did visit, then a hot bath and a good night's sleep and we are feeling fine and ready for a good time.

What Cures Eczema?

We have had so many inquiries lately regarding Eczema and other skin diseases, that we are glad to make our answer public. After careful investigation we have found that a simple wash of Oil of Wintergreen, as compounded in D. D. D. Prescription, can be relied upon. We would not make this statement to our patrons, friends and neighbors unless we were sure of it—and although there are many so-called Eczema remedies sold, we ourselves unhesitatingly recommend D. D. D. Prescription.

ART OF BAIT CASTING.

Landing the Lure That Coaxes the Battling Black Bass.

The bait caster! What memories of lilypadded lakes, shimmering in the burnished gold of the setting sun, of a roseate twilight peace, when the lake is one vast mirror; of furious battles with that bulldog of the sweet waters, the black bass, are his!

A most difficult art, one that requires more than a modicum of practice to acquire—to place that lure precisely in a given spot, forty or fifty feet away, where a bass may lurk—not near the spot but right in it, mind you—to land that lure so as to simulate a frog or minnow naturally leaping or jumping to escape possible attack by a bass; to do all this with a short rod and high speed reel—casting the lure as a small boy throws an apple from the end of a stick—to do this with accuracy and deftness is no unworthy ambition.

And after the strike comes a battle between a five pound fish and a 150 pound man, equalized by fair tackle, that will put the exhilaration of eternal youth into any man—especially if he proves himself worthy to beat the fish at his own game—to take him with all the handicaps imposed by the necessary tackle and win out against all the snags, tactics, leaps and plunges, rushes and feints employed by the battling bass.—Warren H. Miller in American Forestry.

Something Saved.

"What success did you have raising chickens?"

"Very little. Some escaped, thieves stole others and a large number died of a mysterious disease."

"That was tough luck."

"However, I beat the jinx to the last one."

"How was that?"

"Before anything could happen to it I had it killed and put in a pie."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

ENGLAND'S THRONE.

As One of the Heirs to It, the German Emperor Is Very Remote.

In answer to the question, "Was the emperor of Germany ever considered an heir to the English throne and did Queen Victoria have a law passed to exclude him from the succession?" the Philadelphia Press says:

"The possibility of the German emperor ever succeeding to the throne of England is so very remote as to cause little thought. There was more or less talk on the subject at the time of the marriage of the kaiser's mother to the heir to the German throne in 1858, but we are unable to find that any parliamentary action was taken even then.

"After King George come his five sons and one daughter and their children, if any; then King George's sister Louise, Duchess of Fife, her two daughters and the son of the elder; then Princess Victoria; then Queen Maud of Norway and her son, making thirteen at present living in the line of succession. After that the succession reverts to the descendants of the late King Edward's brother, Alfred, duke of Edinburgh; Arthur, duke of Connaught, and Leopold, duke of Albany. As these all married and had numerous children and grandchildren, there is a long line of heirs to the throne before the succession would come to the descendants of the oldest sister of King Edward, the late Empress Frederick of Germany, the first of which line is Emperor William."

PITCHING IN BASEBALL.

Lack of Control Will Render Useless All Other Ability.

"In my ten years' connection with the American league as umpire I have seen the fact proved again and again that control is absolutely necessary to win success," writes Billy Evans in St. Nicholas.

"The more one studies the different features of the art of pitching the more clearly does he see the value that control plays in the success of the pitcher.

"If the pitcher knows the weakness of the batter and intends giving him a fast ball on the inside and then deliberately pitches to the opposite side his knowledge of the batter is of no use to him. Lack of control has rendered his knowledge useless.

"If he knows the shortstop is to cover and then pitches a ball to the batter that makes it easy for him to hit through the position vacated by the shortstop he nullifies the strength of his infield. Lack of control is again the cause.

"If the catcher signals for a waste ball in order to be in a better position to throw out a runner trying to steal and instead he gets the ball right over the plate he is handicapping the catcher. Lack of control is again the cause.

"After all, most of the finer points of pitching are based on ability to control the ball."

SONG OF THE SHREW.

It Is Pitched So High That Only Sharp Ears Can Hear It.

The high pitched squeaking or whistling of the shrew is a curious sound and frequently acquires quite a songlike character. More often, however, the voice of the shrew is raised in anger, for it is a pugnacious little animal, and the males have fierce combats in the spring of the year. It is a curious fact that many people are unable to hear the shrew's squeaking, not that the sound is not loud enough, but because it is so highly pitched that only sharp ears can record the vibrations.

Though often spoken of as a mouse, the shrew is of an entirely different species, being insectivorous and having sharp teeth on each side of the mouth instead of front teeth, suitable for gnawing, such as are possessed by mice and other rodents.

Though it exists in very great numbers and can very frequently be observed, much remains to be discovered regarding the life of this little creature, an Italian species of which is our smallest known mammal. It is still a mystery why so many dead shrews should be found about the roadsides and pathways. They are fearless little animals, and even when disturbed in their spring journeys from one place to another they do not allow themselves to be put out of their course by a trifle. —London Spectator.

SIX MEALS A DAY.

This Husky Old Laborer Had a Fairly Healthy Appetite.

Undoubtedly it is better as a general rule to take food sparingly than to eat to repletion, and there are some people who even advocate living on one meal a day and who practice what they preach. But there was no "one meal a day" nonsense about the aged Sussex laborer whom E. V. Lucas met. Thus he described his daily round and common task:

"Out in the morning at 4 o'clock, mouthful of bread and cheese and pint of ale; then off to the harvest field, ripping and moen (reaping and mowing) till 8; then morning breakfast and small beer—a piece of fat pork as thick as your hat is wide; then work till 10 o'clock; then a mouthful of bread and cheese and a pint of strong beer (forenooner—'farnooner's lunch,' we call it); work till 12; then at dinner in the farmhouse, sometimes a leg of mutton, sometimes a piece of ham and plum pudding; then work till 5; then a nunch and a quart of ale (nunch was cheese, 'twas skimmed cheese, though); then work till sunset; then home and have supper and a pint of ale."—London Chronicle.

Mean.

Miss Passe—Have you heard of my engagement? Miss Cutting—No—er—who's the plucky man?—Judge.

The Way to Conquer.

"I'll master it," said the ax, and his blows fell heavily on the iron.

But every blow made his edge more blunt till he ceased to strike.

"Leave it to me," said the saw, and with his relentless teeth he worked backward and forward on its surface till they were all worn down and broken, and he fell aside.

"Ha, ha!" said the hammer. "I knew you wouldn't succeed. I'll show you the way."

But at the first fierce stroke off flew his head, and the iron remained as before.

"Shall I try?" asked the soft, small flame.

They all despised the flame, but he curled gently round the iron and embraced it, and never left it till it melted under his irresistible influence.

There are hearts hard enough to resist the force of wrath, the malice of persecution and the fury of pride so as to make their acts recoil on their adversaries; but there is a power stronger than any of those, and hard indeed is the heart that can resist love.—St. Joseph News Press.

MRS. THOMAS HAVENS

Just at the close of day Friday, October 15, Helen A. Havens passed from among us to her home in the better country. For more than a year she has been in failing health from heart trouble, and when tired nature could bear no more, she fell asleep.

The funeral was held from the home Monday afternoon, Rev. G. W. Jennings of the M. E. church officiating. The funeral was on the family lot in Ridgeway.

Helen was the only daughter of Burtis and Mary Bird and was born in Macon in 1845 here the early years of her life were spent. In 1883 she was united in marriage to Thomas Havens, spending a few years in Blissfield. After his death in 1895 she with the daughter Lina moved back to Tecumseh which has since been their home. Hers was a cheerful happy nature, and no matter what her suffering might be she greeted her friends with a pleasant smile. As a member of the T. B. A. she was ever ready to do her part, while she was able to attend. She leaves to mourn her loss, her daughter Lina and three brothers Chas and Hobart who made their home with her and Frank of Meads, Kansas.

Just gone before, into the better country,
She waits our coming on the other side,
And we who mourn her here are only waiting
To launch our boats upon the foaming tide.
A little while and we shall join our dear one
A little while, we bide on earth alone,
And wait the summons that shall call us over,
Where tears and parting never more are known.
A little while we trust, with patient waiting
Till heaven its pearly gates shall open wide,
And then we'll meet and greet the dear ones,
Safe, safe at home upon the other side.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to thank our friends and neighbors for the many kindnesses and sympathy shown us during our mother and sister's sickness and death.

MISS LINA HAVENS,
CHARLES AND HOBART BIRD

MRS. JAMES GLASGOW

Mary Baird Glasgow passed away at the home of her daughter Mrs. Minnie Boland in Adrian, Saturday morning, October 16.

Mary Baird was born in County Antrim Ireland, April 27, 1837, and came to America when about 14 years of age, coming to Michigan in 1866. In 1869 she was united in marriage to James Glasgow of Tecumseh who died several years ago. Four children were born to this union two of whom survive her Mrs. Minnie Boland of Adrian and Margaret Glasgow of Kalamazoo. Mrs. Glasgow was for years a resident of Tecumseh, but for the last 16 years has lived with Minnie in Adrian. While in feeble health for some time, yet her last illness was only 8 days duration, from ptomaine poisoning from eating salmon.

The funeral was held at the home this morning at eleven o'clock, with burial on the family lot in Brookside cemetery in Tecumseh.

WM. H. BURRILL

Wm. H. Burrill died at his home on South Maumee street Friday evening October 15. Had he lived until the 19th he would have completed his 68th year. He leaves a widow and one son. The funeral was held from the home Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

For the past forty years he has resided in the same house. He was a carpenter by trade and well known in this vicinity.

MONDAY CLUB

The regular meeting of the Monday club was held Monday afternoon with Mrs. Fred Rosacrans leader. The program was of Colonial times. First was the singing of America by the whole club. Mrs. D. R. Wright then gave a very fine paper on Home Life in Colonial days. Solo, My own United States Mrs. R. S. Moore.

Paper, Benjamin Franklin by Mrs. Leon Rosacrans was very interesting.

Roll call, Quotations from Poor Richard Almanac brought out many sayings both witty and wise. At the close of the program several ladies in colonial dress served a colonial tea to the company.

LOST AUTO

Mr. and Mrs. Art Dove and Mr. and Mrs. Rob Russell motored to Detroit for a Sunday visit with Earl Russell. In the afternoon they attended one of the theaters leaving their auto as they thought safely parked, on reaching the place where they had left it, they found it missing and at last accounts it has not been found. The two couple returned by train Sunday evening.

STOMACH MISERY QUICKLY VANISHES

Your money back if you want it is the way in which C. A. Wright & Son the popular druggist are selling Mi-o-na the great dyspepsia remedy.

This is an unusual plan, but Mi-o-na has so much merit and is so almost invariably successful in relieving all forms of indigestion that they run but little risk in selling under a guarantee of this kind.

Do not be miserable or make your friends miserable with your dyspepsia. Mi-o-na will help you. If it doesn't, tell C. A. Wright that you want your money back and they will cheerfully refund it.

A change for the better will be seen from the first few doses of Mi-o-na and its continued use will soon start you on the road to perfect digestion and enjoyment of food.

Mi-o-na has been so uniformly successful that every box is sold under a positive guarantee to refund the money if it does not relieve. What fairer proposition could be made?

C. A. Wright & Son give their personal guarantee of "money back if you want it" with every box of Mi-o-na that they sell. A guarantee like this speaks volumes for the merit of the remedy.

Dewey refused to go and it was necessary to make out requisition papers.

GYPSY ROSSINI

With Cal Stewart's company at the Bradley opera house Wednesday and Thursday, October 20-21.

CAL STEWART

The Man who Made the "Uncle Josh" Records for the Phonograph.

An entertainment which is entirely new to Tecumseh theatre goers will be the offering at the Bradley Opera House this week Wednesday and Thursday, October 20 and 21st when Cal Stewart, he of the "Uncle Josh" stories and his company of vaudeville people will be presented. Probably every man, woman and child who have ever heard a phonograph have heard the famous "Uncle Josh" records, this will give you a chance to see and hear the man who made these records, himself. He is without a doubt one of the best entertainers on the vaudeville stage today. His records are funny but when you hear him entertain you in person you will get the full benefit of all of his comedy

With Mr. Stewart's company of entertainers is Gypsy Rossini, Miss Rossini is known as the "daughter of Roumania" and to hear her classical and popular selections on the violin is the event of a life time. Gypsy Rossini was featured for two years on the Chautauqua platform.

Other numbers of great importance are Augusto Dello Mollo, known from coast to coast as the Caruso of the Accordion also Miss Marjorie Stewart who will be found to be a very capable pianist and her numbers will be highly appreciated by those who hear her.

The vaudeville entertainment will be given in connection with moving pictures and the local management has booked some exceedingly good films for this engagement. The entire program will be changed each evening both vaudeville and pictures The admission is 10 cents for children and 20 cents for adults, any seat in the house—Doors open at 7:00 p. m. Come early and get good seats. A continuous show each evening.

TRUNK LINE ROADS

A great deal of interest is being shown over the allotment of trunk line roads in Lenawee county. There still remains about 12 miles of these roads to be planned for in the county. The road has already been decided on to the south of Adrian through Riga to the Ohio line and a petition is being presented to the state highway commission at Lansing to have the road built out of Adrian passed the Industrial Home to Birdsall and then straight north on the town line to the Chicago turnpike west of Clinton. This would practically complete this trunk line

Tecumseh people "got in touch" with the proposition Saturday and took the matter up with Adrian parties in hopes that the trunk line might be located on the angling road between Adrian and this town. Later they telephoned to the highway commissioner at Lansing who promised not to locate this road until he had called a meeting of the various townships interested and a thorough investigation made.

Whether the town line road is built or not this direct road between Tecumseh and Adrian is in a deplorable condition and as it gets as much travel as any road in the county, should be improved. As these trunk lines have to be put to a vote of the various townships, it is up to the voters.

Rack For Airing Milk Pans.

A slatted rack for airing milk pans and other milk utensils may be made easily. A shelf 2 by 4½ feet will hold a good many vessels. The slats are made of 1 by 2 inch strips placed four inches apart. The shelf or rack may be put on posts as illustrated, writes T. L. Bailey in the Missouri Valley Farmer. Vessels may be turned upside down upon it, and they will catch the air from underneath.

Corn For the Silo.

The best time to cut corn for the silo is when the ears are well ripened and before the leaves have become dry, says A. C. Arny of the Minnesota experiment station.

This conclusion has been reached as the result of experience. The early practice was to cut corn while it was still quite green. But analysis revealed the fact that the feed value increased as maturity of the plant approached, and the practice therefore changed, in some cases to the other extreme. The best results, however, seem to be from corn cut as indicated.

NINE FAVOR GRAND RAPIDS JURY PROBE

New Angle in City Treasurer's Tax Title Deals.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 18.—At least nine of the twenty-four members of the city council will vote tonight in favor of calling a grand jury to probe the many rumors of crookedness in local offices.

A poll disclosed nine definitely in favor of the resolution introduced last Monday by Alderman Etheridge to request Circuit Judge Brown to call a grand jury, while only five definitely came out in opposition to such a probe. The remaining ten said they were in doubt as to how they would vote. Of this number several expressed themselves as favoring a grand jury probe, if any evidence or need for a probe is shown tonight. Thirteen votes constitute a majority of the council.

A new angle in the case against City Treasurer Hawkins was brought to light when the following telegram was received from the chief of police of Portland, Ind.: "Lucy Clark is a niece to James Hawkins."

Lucy Lee Clark has been the mysterious figure in the entire Hawkins investigation. It was "L. Lee Clark" who bought up title deed and conducted negotiations with Dell Wood, local dealer in tax titles. She has never been known personally in local dealings, the matters being arranged always by mail. When asked regarding relationship to Lucy Lee Clark, Mr. Hawkins denied the report and then referred his questioner to Attorney Chase.

TOO GOOD TO KEEP

A Story of Intentions Turned Awry.

By EUNICE BLAKE

Edgar Beverly, from the time he was born, was all boy. There was absolutely nothing feminine about him. When he was three years old a doting aunt presented him with a doll. His father was not in sympathy with this gift, averring that dolls were exclusively for girls. But the aunt insisted that boys, as well as girls, in their infancy played with dolls. So a doll was provided, with a china head, flaxen locks and a pair of beautiful blue eyes. Edgar accepted it, but showed a lack of intelligence as to what it was for. Ten minutes after it had been given him he took it by the ankles and brought the head down on a stone step, scattering fragments of the china head over the garden walk.

When Edgar was ten years old he lost his mother and was turned over to a bachelor uncle of thirty. Robert Cooledge, the uncle, had been a wild fellow and was just beginning to realize the chances he had taken and the time he had wasted in sowing his wild oats. He had barely escaped losing at the gaming table a fortune he had inherited and had just in time put a check on himself in too close association with the bottle. He had madly loved three different women, any one of whom, if he had married her, would have wrecked his life.

When Robert Cooledge assumed the care of his little nephew he had become fully aware of his own imperfections and realized by what a narrow margin on many occasions he had escaped calamity. His experiences with the women he had loved, or thought he loved, had caused him to believe that he was a very poor judge between good and bad women. Nevertheless he considered matrimony, the wife being a good woman, as a sheet anchor for men. Having convinced himself of his own inability to discover the good or the bad in a woman, and being horrified at the mistakes he had made, he eschewed matrimony for himself, while he advocated it for others.

For these reasons he determined that Edgar Beverly should be brought up very carefully, that some woman, who knew her own sex perfectly, should select a wife for the boy and that he should marry the girl selected, whether he loved her or not, when he came to manhood. He would bring the boy up to consider him more as a companion than an uncle, and in this way would be the better able to shield him from the dangers through which he himself had passed.

When Edgar came to be eighteen years old he displayed the same proclivities his uncle had displayed in his youth. He was not bad, but reckless. He was very generous, and when his own interests came in collision with those of any one weaker than himself he would invariably give way. He did not conceal what he was doing from his uncle, and Cooledge had every advantage in guiding him, having from the first invited his confidence.

But it is one thing to have an advantage and another to attain success. Edgar benefited by the advice of his uncle so far as to escape certain pitfalls, but the trend of his disposition could not be turned. He had inherited the same wild oats fever as his uncle and it must run its course.

For several years the uncle was in a constant state of anxiety with regard to his nephew, for such was the relationship between them that Cooledge knew exactly what Beverly was doing. Finally he determined to make an effort to put in practice the expedient he had intended from the time when Edgar had come to him as a little boy. He would try to marry him to some good girl.

But, since he had failed to manage his own affairs in this respect, he did not see how he would have better success in managing those of his nephew. He determined to consult the wife of a friend of his, a Mrs. Jernegan. The lady heard his story and promised to think the matter over. Matchmaking, she said, was a risky and thankless task. In the case of a young man inclined to be wild it was very difficult. However, she would try to think of some young woman of good sense, good character and amiable disposition for the purpose.

Mrs. Jernegan was herself a woman possessing what is commonly called horse sense. She did not especially relish advising any girl to marry a man for the purpose of reforming him. He might make an excellent husband after being reformed, but suppose the reformation never took place? Mr. Cooledge had passed safely through the danger period of a man's life and had arrived at an age wherein he saw those dangers in their true light. The fascination of danger inherent in a manly man had passed and left him a splendid fellow. But that was no reason why his nephew could run the same course and escape ruin.

These were some of the thoughts that passed through Mrs. Jernegan's mind before she acted upon Mr. Cooledge's request. Then when she had the matter all thought out she sent for a young lady friend of hers, Miss Laura Dudley, and the two had a long conversation on the subject of snatching young Edgar Beverly as a brand from the burning.

The next day Mr. Cooledge received an invitation to call on Mrs. Jernegan and upon doing so was informed that she had fixed upon a young lady who would be a fit person to reform his nephew. The only question was, Would she consent to make the effort? She was three or four years older than Edgar, but Mrs. Jernegan recognized the fact that very young men are more easily won by women older than themselves than by immature girls. She proposed that the young woman upon whom she had decided meet the uncle and the nephew, and after the meeting, if she consented to make the desired attempt, that Mr. Cooledge be informed of the fact and give her every opportunity to accomplish her mission.

The result of these interviews was that Mr. Cooledge, Mr. Beverly and Miss Dudley met at Mrs. Jernegan's at dinner. Cooledge kept a close eye on Miss Dudley to observe whether or no she seemed pleased with his nephew. He saw no evidence that she was pleased or displeased with him. As for Edgar, there was evidence that he was not averse to Miss Dudley. The dinner passed very pleasantly, and since Miss Dudley was to go home alone in Mrs. Jernegan's runabout, Edgar Beverly accompanied her.

A few days later Mr. Cooledge was informed that Miss Dudley had acceded to his request, and Mrs. Jernegan suggested that he call upon the young lady for the purpose of talking the matter over. He lost no time in making the call and found Miss Dudley in a very complaisant frame of mind.

"I was much pleased with your nephew, Mr. Cooledge," she said, "and since our mutual friend, Mrs. Jernegan, has apprised me of your intentions, we may as well begin where she left off. If I am to win your nephew I can only do it by being thrown a good deal in his company. This, of course, cannot be without management. Now, I propose that we make up a little party for the balance of the summer to go to the mountains. That there may be two men and two women I propose to invite a lady friend of mine—for chaperon if you like—and I feel great confidence that your plan of marrying your nephew will succeed before the end of the summer."

Mr. Cooledge fell in with the plan, and in due time a party of four was domesticated in a mountain hotel. Mr. Cooledge was somewhat surprised to find the lady who was added to the party to be several years younger than Miss Dudley, but the latter explained that she was the only one of her friends whom she could get to make up the party. She was scarcely out of her teens and a very attractive young woman. She was introduced as Kate Millard, and the name Kate is often synonomous with the word fascinating.

The quartet passed a very enjoyable month together. But from the first the plan to marry Beverly to Miss Dudley went awry, because he preferred Kate Millard. Cooledge was much put out at the turn the affair had taken, for he approved very highly of Miss Dudley, but considered her friend of very light caliber. Instead of his nephew being attentive to Miss Dudley he was devoted to her friend. This left Cooledge and Miss Dudley in constant companionship. Cooledge after awhile instead of being troubled at this turn of his intentions was so delighted with Miss Dudley's companionship that when one day his nephew swung to her from his friend he showed his spleen perceptibly.

Not only did Beverly notice his uncle's being ruffled by his attentions to Miss Dudley, but Kate was immensely delighted with it. The two younger persons were evidently out for a frolic, and if they could get any fun at the older man's expense they were quite incline to do so. Beverly would for a time leave Miss Dudley quite free to receive the attentions of Mr. Cooledge, then he would veer about and appropriate her to himself. To make matters worse, Miss Dudley made no objection to being monopolized by the young scapegrace, and when he was devoted to her his uncle was left out in the cold.

And so the game went on. Mr. Cooledge when his nephew was devoting himself to Miss Dudley declared that the plan was working out admirably, but he felt like throwing the young rascal over a precipice. Then when Beverly swung back to Kate Millard and left the field to him he voted the boy a fool, but in his heart was delighted.

When the autumn came round and the party returned to the city Mr. Cooledge one day received a message from Mrs. Jernegan asking why he had not called upon her. He at once put in an appearance, and the following dialogue ensued:

"How did the plan for marrying your nephew work?" asked the lady.

"It didn't work at all. Miss Dudley invited a friend of hers, a chit, to be of our party in the mountains, and the chit got away with Edgar."

"Indeed!" said the lady. "That was very hard on Laura, wasn't it? Who was the friend that Laura invited to complete your party?"

"A Miss Kate Millard."

"You mean Mrs. Kate Millard."

"What?"

"Kate Millard is a widow."

Mr. Cooledge was thunderstruck.

"You wished to marry off your nephew, and I wished to give you a wife. I got up this party for a summer outing myself. It was all arranged beforehand that Kate Millard should win your nephew and Laura Dudley should win you. The plan has been successful in both its parts. Edgar Beverly is engaged to Kate Millard, and you are engaged to Laura Dudley."

"Well, I'll be jinged!" exclaimed Mr. Cooledge. "How did you learn that?"

"From both Laura and Kate. It was too good to keep."

PRESIDENT MISSES CHURCH

Evades Secret Service Men, Walks Alone, Autos With Mrs. Galt.

Washington, Oct. 18.—President Wilson took a walk Sunday morning and for the first time in many months failed to attend church at the Central Presbyterian. The President stole out of the White House for his walk so quietly that he eluded the secret service men. One of them went to the church to wait for the president, but he did not appear. He walked alone.

In the afternoon the president took an automobile ride in the vicinity of Washington accompanied by Mrs. Galt and the Misses Smith, guests at the White House.

ANTICIPATES HARD BATTLE

National Security League Has Many Pledges for Larger Armament.

New York, Oct. 18.—That many congressmen from all sections of the country will support President Wilson and his advisers in the fight for an increased armament is shown by letters from senators and representatives to the National Security League.

Despite the favorable replies from many of the legislators the league anticipates a hard struggle in congress.

Delcasse Quit Over Greece.

Paris, Oct. 18.—Georges Clemenceau, former premier, said the reason M. Delcasse resigned as foreign minister was that he disagreed with the cabinet on the advisability of sending an expeditionary force to Saloniki when it was known that Freece would remain neutral.

Bombard Oldest German City.

London, Oct. 18.—Traves, called the oldest city in Germany, was bombarded by a squadron of the French aeroplanes and thirty projectiles were dropped on it. The Paris war office states that the attack was in reprisal for the Zeppelin raid on London.

Many Species of Banana.

The banana as a substitute for the potato would have one drawback. It has been found that those who live mainly upon this article of diet soon tend to become what is politely called "tubby." The banana with which we are all familiar is only one of many useful species. Cochin China produces a single fruit that is an ample meal for three men, and in East Africa an intoxicating drink is made from the native banana.—London Chronicle.

The Woman's Benefit Association Of The Maccabees

The Largest, Strongest, and most Progressive Society of Women in the World.

Non-political and non-sectarian. Offers more opportunities to women than any other society. Good training and future success, love of humanity and protection of helpless little ones.

A splendid opportunity for broad-minded and sympathetic women to join this great fraternal chain of one hundred and eighty-six thousand women banded together for the betterment of their own sex. This Organizaton has a national reputation for this great work in the interest of women, and has already paid into homes of deceased and distressed members over twelve million dollars, every dollar going into some home in time of want and distress. We cannot begin to record the deeds of loving kindness and sympathy that have gone hand in hand with these disbursements.

This Organization has risen to high position in Fraternal Insurance through the hearty co-operation of its members and has built up by the management of its officers, a reserve of over eight million dollars.

The Woman's Benefit Association of the Maccabees was founded in Michigan by Michigan women in 1892; the cornerstone of its own building, laid in Port Huron, October 22, 1915, being the first woman's benefit association in the world to erect its own building.

Your loved ones are protected by our death benefits; we will see that you have proper burial with our burial benefits. We will take care of you when sick through sick benefits and hospital service.

The Secret of a Good Figure often lies in the brassiere. Hundreds of thousands of women wear the Bien Jolie Brassiere for the reason that they regard it as necessary as a corset. It supports the bust and back and gives the figure the youthful outline fashion decrees.
Bien Jolie Brassieres are the daintiest, most serviceable garments imaginable. Only the best of materials are used—for instance, "Walohn," a flexible boning of great durability—absolutely rustless—permitting laundering without removal.
They come in all styles, and your local Dry Goods dealer will show them to you on request. If he does not carry them, he can easily get them for you by writing to us. Send for an illustrated booklet showing styles that are in high favor.

ALLIES' TROOPS DEFEAT BULGARS

Ferdinand's Men Hurled Back Across Own Border.

ANGLO-FRENCH SEIZE ENOS

Land at Port in European Turkey That Guards Railroad to Dedeaghatch—Germans Gain in Northern Serbia—Bulgarian Loss of Stronghold Is Admitted.

BUKHAREST — There has been great diplomatic activity here in the last twenty-four hours. The ministers representing the nations of the quadruple entente have held a lengthy conference with Foreign Minister Bratiano and the Serbian minister was received in audience by King Ferdinand.

ROME — Recent reports from the Russian front permit the belief that the Russian armies are again invading Bukowina and are threatening to invade Transylvania.

LONDON, ENG. — The Bulgarians have been repulsed along their whole line, the Serbians are now considered secure, and the allies are advancing against King Ferdinand's forces, according to a late dispatch from Athens. More allied troops are being rushed to the front with all possible speed.

This news, following confirmation of the capture of the Bulgarian stronghold of Strumnitza, thirty miles north of Saloniki, has relieved the tension here concerning the Balkan situation, which has grown more serious with the news that Roumania had refused passage through her territory for Russian troops sent to the aid of the hard-pressed Serbians.

Allies Seize Railroad.

Prominent among the day's developments was the announcement that the entente allies have effected a landing at Enos on the Aegean Sea in European Turkey, close to the Bulgarian border, and have seized the railroad at that point. This railroad would be needed for operation in Turkey or Bulgaria, and its capture is considered of great importance. It is considered likely that a heavy allied drive into Bulgaria from this point will be made.

The Bulgarians are attacking the positions at Detsiani, Cledenats, Thernemblo, Gleva and Covatz, all between Pirot and Negotin. The attacks in several places have been repulsed and in other places the Bulgarians have entered Serbia.

The main objective of the Austro-German drive is Kragujevatz, where the army headquarters, munition plants and arsenal are situated. This natural stronghold is now heavily defended by four lines of fortifications. At this point the Serbians are at least capable of ferocious resistance.

IS SENTENCED TO BE SHOT

Joseph Hillstrom, for Whom President Interceded, to Die Nov. 19.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH — Joseph Hillstrom, convicted of the murder of J. G. Morrison and Morrison's son here Jan. 19, 1914, was brought before Judge M. L. Ritchie in the district court and sentenced to be shot to death Friday, Nov. 19.

Hillstrom originally was sentenced to be executed Oct. 1. A respite was granted by Governor Spry at the request of President Wilson, whose action was on a request of the Swedish minister to the United States. The respite was terminated and Hillstrom's application for commutation of sentence was denied by the state board of pardons Saturday, as no new evidence was presented.

18 KILLED IN KANSAS WRECK

Union Pacific Train Plunges on End Into Creek.

RANDOLPH, KAN. — Of the sixty-five occupants of a Union Pacific motor train who slid into a heap at the bottom of a passenger car when it plunged on end into Fancy Creek, eighteen lost their lives. Most of these were drowned in the car. Only four escaped unhurt.

A revised list of the recovered dead: Dr. Louis Atwood, Topeka; Mary Giles, Manhattan, Kan.; Mrs. Stella Chapman, Manhattan; Miss Alma J. Jellin, Garrison, Kan.; Miss Ethel Repser, Stockdale, Kan.; A. O. Shaw, Tecumseh, Neb.; Theodore Smith, Tecumseh, Neb.; an unidentified woman.

MICHIGAN MAYOR IS OUSTED

Voters Use Recall First Time Against Michigan City Head.

MUNSING, MICH. — Mayor Thomas G. Sullivan, elected under the commission form of government last January, was ousted from office in the recall election. Dr. G. A. Trueman was elected to succeed him. The plurality against Sullivan was ninety-eight votes.

Sullivan is the first Michigan mayor who has been recalled.

SUNDAY COURT FOR SPEEDERS IN TEST

Legality of Such Proceeding Interests Michigan Autoists.

ANN ARBOR, MICH. — Justice William G. Doty, of Ann Arbor, by disposing of a speeding case, raised a legal question which, it is believed here, will be investigated all over the state where speeding problems confront a community.

A motorcycle policeman arrested William Hidey, of Detroit, while the latter was driving his car at the rate of twenty-eight miles an hour on Liberty street, and brought the case before Justice Doty.

The court was opened Sunday sufficiently long to have a warrant drawn and receive a plea from Hidey of not guilty. The judge accepted the plea and also $18.46 as a deposit for the appearance of the defendant in court Monday morning. All this on a Sunday afternoon, a day on which, it has always been the belief over the state, that no legal business can be transacted.

SPIES' ESTATE OVER MILLION

Schedule of Menominee's Richest Man's Holdings Filed by Appraisers.

MENOMINEE, MICH. — The estate of Augustus Spies, one of Menominee's richest men, who died a few weeks ago, is well over the $1,000,000 mark, according to personal property and real estate estimates filed by C. A. Bleach and Edward Daniell, appraisers. The personal property is placed at $800,000 and no estimate is made of the real estate, which would total the estate much higher in value. However, some extensive holdings in Wisconsin, as well as several upper peninsula counties, are listed.

Mr. Spies was a stockholder in seventeen different enterprises. The state will receive an inheritance tax of approximately $8,000 from the Spies estate.

CHEAP BOAT GETS BIG FINE

$500 Imposed on Lad Whose Shell Wouldn't Hold Requirements.

MUSKEGON, MICH. — To aid a youth running a boat, which cost him only $24 complete, who seeks relief from a $500 fine assessed against him by the federal authorities, Congressman James C. McLaughlin has interceded for John Smith, nineteen-year-old factory hand. The boat is a 15-foot open rowboat, carrying an outboard motor.

Smith, ignorant of the law and of federal regulations, had offended in not carrying life preservers, fire extinguisher, lights, fog horn, whistle and copies of the pilot rules. He arrived in this county three years ago, is in poor circumstances and unable to pay the fine.

SOME BAD WOMEN 18, JUDGE

Court in Quandary What to Do With Girl Forger.

PORT HURON, MICH. — Judge Harvey Tappan is in a quandary as to what to do with Margaret Williams, eighteen years old, who has pleaded guilty to passing worthless checks. The judge says there is not an institution in the state where the girl can be sent and still be given a chance to reform.

"I would rather release her than send her to the Detroit house of correction," he said, "even if the county did have a contract with that institution to care for its prisoners."

DEDICATE HOWELL CHURCH

New $75,000 Structure Will Be Center of Celebration Nov. 21.

HOWELL, MICH. — Plans are going forward for the dedication Sunday, November 21, of the handsome new $75,000 Presbyterian church.

Of timely interest to the congregation was the announcement that the pastor, Rev. L. S. Brooke, had succeeded in getting for Howell the 1916 meeting of the Presbyterian senate of the state which met at the Soo last week.

Muskegon Man Dies at Club.

MUSKEGON, MICH. — C. Eugene Young, of this city, walked into the Douglas club rooms and talked with several of his friends there. He had been talking about 10 minutes when he suddenly fell over dead.

Shot by His Own Trap.

NEWBERRY, MICH. — Abeli W. Hakkinen, a Finlander, was fatally injured when he received a charge of buckshot from a gun he had set in the woods for killing deer. He tripped over a string attached to the trigger.

City Appeals Taxes.

GLADSTONE, MICH. — The Michigan state tax commission will be appealed to by Gladstone city as a result of the action of the Delta county supervisors in raising the assessed valuation of the city $62,500.

Aged 95, Found Dead.

IONIA, MICH. — George Walters, aged ninety-five years, a pioneer resident of Boston township, was found dead in bed at his home near Saranac. He was one of the leading Republicans of the county.

Rock Train Kills Child.

Very Much "Scope."

HANCOCK, MICH. — As a possible means of overcoming the submarine, Dr. Koplowitz has invented a subseascope. Through it, he says, objects under water can be seen fourteen miles away.

BRITAIN FACING CABINET CRISIS

Sir Edward Carson Resigns as Attorney General.

CONSCRIPTION BELIEVED CAUSE

British Coalition Government Facing Disruption—Failure of Diplomacy in Balkans Causes Unrest—Too Many Lawyers in Office—"At War With Germany, Not at Law."

LONDON, ENG. — Sir Edward Carson, attorney general, has resigned from the British cabinet.

The news of his resignation came upon the heels of a whirlwind of speculation and rumors conjured up by his absence at the cabinet meeting. It was the fourth time that he had failed to appear at the cabinet's session. Full explanation of the differences between him and the rest of the cabinet is now looked for as inevitable. Moreover, there are few optimists left in London who hope any longer that the cabinet crisis, which has been imminent ever since the Balkan developments were added to the question of conscription as seemingly insurmountable obstacles to harmony among the ministers, can be staved off many more days.

The immediate cause of Sir Edward's resignation is generally believed to be a disagreement between him and others in the cabinet over the conscription issue.

GENERAL HAMILTON OUSTED

British General at Dardanelles Is Blamed for Failures.

LONDON, ENG. — Simultaneously with the announcement by Sir Edward Carson of his resignation came the announcement that General Sir Ian Hamilton had been relieved of his command of the allied troops in the Mediterranean and replaced by General Sir C. C. Monro.

This action is believed to be the direct result of the widespread criticism of the allies' failure to break through the Dardanelles. The tremendous casualties which this effort has cost, estimated to be 96,000, have been attributed to poor generalship.

U. S. SUBSEA CONTRACTS LET

Provide for Sixteen Submarines and Also for Six Destroyers.

WASHINGTON — Contracts for sixteen submarines and six destroyers were awarded by the navy department. One destroyer will be built at the Norfolk navy yard and one at Mare Island, California.

Six of the submarines will be built on the Pacific coast. The Bremerton (Wash.) and the Portsmouth (N. H.) navy yards each will build one.

GERMANY CLAIMS 23 ALLIED SHIPS SUNK

Count Von Bernstorff Says Submarines Have Wrought Havoc.

NEW YORK, N. Y. — Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, announces that an official communication from Berlin stated German submarines had recently sunk twenty-three vessels, including four transports of the allies in the Mediterranean.

The message received by the ambassador read:

"During the last few weeks German submarines, operating in the Mediterranean have sunk twenty-three vessels, having an aggregate tonnage of 100,000. Of the vessels sunk, four were transports of the allies."

No statement was made as to the loss of life incident to the sinking of the various vessels.

GRIEF OVER EASTLAND FATAL

U. S. Inspector I. B. Mansfield Dies from Worry Over Disaster.

CHICAGO, ILL. — Captain Ira B. Mansfield, United States inspector of steamboat hulls in the Chicago district, died at his home, 726 Sheridan road, from grief caused by the Eastland disaster.

He died at 11 a. m. from a sudden attack of heart failure, superinduced by worry over the loss of nearly 1,000 lives by the overturning of the vessel, the subsequent action of state and federal grand juries and the investigation by his own department.

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Lansing made a strong denial of the report that Ambassador Page at London expects to resign.

Apologizes for Zeppelin "Trespass."

BERLIN — The German government has apologized to Holland for the passage of Zeppelins over Dutch territory.

Second Crop of Strawberries.

ESCANABA, MICH. — Members of the dock office crew at No. 5 North Western dock are carefully guarding a patch of wild strawberries that is bearing fruit for the second time this season.

Grand Rapids Press Editor Weds.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. — Bert F. Post, assistant city editor of the Grand Rapids Press, was married to Miss Hope Judson, of New York. His bride resided in Detroit until a year ago.

Think Incendiary Fired Barn.

LAPEER, MICH. — Fire destroyed the barns of Will Siley, a prominent farmer east of town. The fire is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary.

WIPE OUT TURK NAVY, ONLY 1 CRUISER LEFT

Traveler From Constantinople Reports Sultan's Ship Loss.

COPENHAGEN — A Danish gentleman just returned from Constantinople states that the Turkish fleet no longer exists. The former German battle cruiser Goeben has been disabled and the Breslau's engines have been destroyed. Both have been disarmed and their crews sent to the Dardanelles.

The cruiser Medjidieh was wrecked during an expedition in the Black Sea and was torpedoed by the Turks themselves. Later the Russians set her afloat and took her to Odessa. The Hairredin Barbarosse, an armored cruiser of 10,000 tons, while on her way to the Dardanelles with a German crew and German officers, was torpedoed with a smaller cruiser and a destroyer. In this disaster 1,000 men perished.

The Torgud Reis was disabled by the explosion of her own guns and twenty-five men were killed. Many smaller cruisers and torpedo boats have been destroyed by mines. The Hamidieh is the only cruiser remaining. Nearly the whole of the Turkish merchant fleet has been destroyed by the allies' submarines. According to this same authority Turkish ammunition is very scarce. It is said that the big guns at the Dardanelles have only sixteen shots each to fire.

Football Captain in Serious Condition.

GALESBURG, ILL. — William H. Foedisch, captain of the Lombard college football team, was reported to be in a serious condition from injuries to the spine received in Saturday's game with Illinois Wesleyan.

For Suffrage and Prohibition.

ROME — Orval S. Dorman, 101 years old, went to the polling place and registered. He said he will vote for prohibition and woman suffrage.

NINE FAVOR GRAND RAPIDS JURY PROBE

New Angle in City Treasurer's Tax Title Deals.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. — At least nine of the twenty-four members of the city council will vote tonight in favor of calling a grand jury to probe the many rumors of crookedness in local offices.

A poll disclosed nine definitely in favor of the resolution introduced last Monday by Alderman Etheridge to request Circuit Judge Brown to call a grand jury, while only five definitely came out in opposition to such a probe. The remaining ten said they were in doubt as to how they would vote. Of this number several expressed themselves as favoring a grand jury probe, if any evidence or need for a probe is shown tonight. Thirteen votes constitute a majority of the council.

A new angle in the case against City Treasurer Hawkins was brought to light when the following telegram was received from the chief of police of Portland, Ind.: "Lucy Clark is a niece to James Hawkins."

Lucy Lee Clark has been the mysterious figure in the entire Hawkins investigation. It was "L. Lee Clark" who bought up title deed and conducted negotiations with Dell Wood, local dealer in tax titles. She has never been known personally in local dealings, the matters being arranged always by mail. When asked regarding relationship to Lucy Lee Clark, Mr Hawkins denied the report and then referred his questioner to Attorney Chase.

UNVEILS STONE TO FOUNDER

Pioneer Day Celebrated at Sturgis by Honoring John Sturgis' Memory.

STURGIS, MICH. — Pioneer Day, today, was observed in this city by the unveiling of a monument erected in memory of Judge Sturgis, who founded this city in 1827.

A huge boulder was donated by a grandson, Heber Sturgis, which is being erected on the site where Judge Sturgis camped when he emigrated west. The site is a half mile east of the city and is now owned by Charles Lockwood.

MINE FATALITIES DECREASE

Marquette Shows Lowest Record Since Establishment of Inspection.

MARQUETTE, MICH. — During the year which ended on Oct. 1 only nine deaths were caused by accidents in mines in Marquette county, according to the annual report of Mine Inspector John T. Quine.

This is the lowest record since the establishment of mine inspection here in 1887, and is a percentage of 2.38 fatalities for every 1,000 men employed in the mining industry, underground or in surface work.

LAINGSBURG MAN A SUICIDE

A mighty army of eager buyers, several thousand strong, mobilized and ready to make a grand drive, are making up their minds to come and capture the forts of big bargains all this week and next.

Great Downpour of Merchandise Crashed Through Our Doors

in the last few days, now on sale at unheard-of prices. On account of delayed freight shipments a goodly portion of The Bankrupt Addison Co. stock did not arrive till after the sale opened and same is now ready for the lively selling this announcement will cause.

Remember This Sale runs this week and all next week to and including Saturday, October 30th.

but we advise you to come at once. The yellow and black signs stand out like a searchlight in mid-ocean, guarding you safely to the biggest history making and record-breaking sale ever witnessed in the whole State of Michigan.

Our big store has been crowded to capacity since our doors opened on this monster Bankrupt Sale. Thousands and thousands of people came from every destination just as we predicted and bought their winter' supply. Its little wonder when you stop to consider how recklessly we are slaughtering 2 big stocks of brand new goods in one big sale. Read the big circulars over again. They tell an interesting and fascinating story of wonderful savings on new Clothing, Boy's Clothing, Ladies' Suits, Coats, Dresses. Skirts, Waists, Millinery, Furs, Dry Goods, Dress Goods, Silks, Domestics, Comforts, Blankets, Men's and Ladies' Furnishings, Rugs, Carpets, Lace Curtains etc., etc.—are being slaughtered and sold at scandalous sacrifices, No time to quote prices. Our advertising man is too busy. Just come tomorrow, come every day. Look for yellow and black sale signs. Remember this big colossal event closes Saturday, Oct. 30th. A word to the wise is sufficient.

"LYMAN H. HOWE DAY" AT PANAMA—CALIFORNIA EXPOSITION

In recognition of the sheer excellence of the films of the Panama—California Exposition made by Lyman H. Lowe the Exposition officials set aside a "Lyman H Howe Day" which was fittingly observed on July 7th on the wonderful plaza and avenues of the great Exposition at San Diego. The honor was conferred on Mr. Howe because the films which will be shown here at the Bradley Opera House on Tuesday, October 26th surpassed the expectations of the officials not merely in perfection of photography and "composition" but what is equally important—in giving every spectator such a comprehensive and adequate knowledge of the magical beauty of the Exposition. As part of the ceremonies an address was made by Mr. Howe's representative during which reference was made to still another feature in the following words:–"Mr. Howe, interested in the spirit that prompted the creation of the Panama—California Exposition presents to the Exposition's historian, a moving picture print—the first from the moving picture negatives that have been made during the last few months showing the Panama Canal in operation."

"These pictures depict the principal incidents of the day to day operation of the great waterway now open for the commerce of the world. These film records were made possible through the co operation of the Hon. Lindley M. Garrison, Secretary of War."

"The scenes in the series of moving pictures which Mr. Howe has the honor to present to you show each step in the passing of a modern steamer through the Panama Canal, both at the Pacific and Atlantic entrances, their passage in both directions through the Great Gatun Locks Gatun Lake, Culebra Cut, Pedro Miguel Locks, Miraflores Lake and the Miraflores Locks."

"The picture gives one the experience of passing through the Canal and also of being at points along the Canal when ships are passing. They also show U S. Army life on the canal."

These moving picture records of the Panama Canal are enclosed in a copper box which is so sealed that the films should be in excellent state of preservation when they are intended to be opened in 1965 and viewed by the people then living at San Diego, California In addition to the moving picture films of the Panama Canal in this receptacle there is placed a moving picture record of this day at the Panama—California Exposition, July 7th, 1915, which the directors of the Exposition have so kindly named in Mr. Howe's honor as "Lyman H. Howe Day". These films, preserved for a future generation's instruction and entertainment, are the first to be placed in the archives of an international exposition."

Hundreds of people followed the automobiles about the grounds while Howe's photographers were filming the splendors of the Exposition.

Another distinct achievement in motion photography included in the program, but of an entirely different and more intimate character, is a series of delightful child-life in Holland. Children always make a direct appeal to heart and mind but these are so exceptionally captivating in their mann[illegible]ms and dress, and the photography is so perfect, that no one can witness the film without feeling the more joyous for it. Then, too, another portion of this feature will take the audience on a boat ride through quaint Bruges in Belgium, past stately and time-honored edifices and underneath innumerable bridges from which the city derives its name. Every view is reminiscent of fifteenth century splendor when the city rivalled the capitals of Europe in wealth, fashion and commercial supremacy.

Furthermore, a wealth of humor and mirth will be embodied in the program by those ever popular animated cartoons which, as created by Howe's merry-making artists, are always hailed with delight. The audience will also have one more opportunity to laugh at the greatest comedian of all times entitled "our Baby" since Mr. Howe is deference to so many urgent requests has decided to make an exception to his general rule by repeating this films.

TREAT CATARRH BY NATURE'S METHOD

Every Breath of Hyomei Carries Healing Medicated Air to the Infected Membrane.

Nearly every one who has catarrh knows how foolish it is to try and cure it with sprays, lotions, and the like. Temporary relief may be given, but a cure seldom comes

Until recently your physician would probably have said the only way to help catarrh would be to have a change of climate, but now with a simple preparation called Hyomei you can carry a health-giving climate in your vest pocket and by breathing it a few minutes four times a day successfully treat yourself

The complete Hyomei outfit is inexpensive and consists of an inhaler that can be carried in the vest pocket, a medicine dropper and a bottle of Hyomei. The inhaler lasts a life time, and if one bottle does not give permanent relief, an extra bottle of Hyomei can be obtained at any time for a trifling sum It is more economical than all remedies advertised for the cure of catarrh, and is the only treatment known to us that follows nature in her method of treating diseases of the respiratory organs.

C. A. Wright & Son have sold a great many Hyomei outfits and the more they sell, the more convinced they are that they are perfectly safe in guaranteeing to refund the money if Hyomei does not relieve. adv

'DOLPH "PINCHED."

Adrian, Mich., Oct. 18, 1915.

Mr. R. A. Heesen,
Tecumseh, Mich.

DEAR SIR:

SOME ONE was driving Reo touring car license No. 42115 Mich., Sunday evening on Broad street of this city at 7.50 p. m. at 30 miles per hour Now I don't know whether you were in car or not but motor cop has that number, time and place so it will be best to come or send driver over to settle for it and save expense.

Yours truly,
A. D. WALKER,
Acting Chief of Police

Upon receipt of the above our Friend Heesen directly drove to the county seat, hunted up Mr. Chief of Police and waltzed up before Justice Bennett.

Upon inquiry of "What's up?" R. A. said "I'm pinched."

When told to plead guilty he said, "Not on your life! I'll pay the shot, but I'm not guilty."

Four big hard silver dollars he left as souvenirs of his call, but he still thinks he has been hoodwinked, fleeced or most any old thing for he can't see the reason for the graft yet. The letter admits they don't know the driver, the car is a Buick not a Reo and the party left Adrian at 7:30 so could not possibly have been there at 7:50. Oh! Tecumsehites are "easy money."

RESEARCH CIRCLE

The Research Circle held their regular meeting on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John McIntyre with about 30 in attendance. Mrs. Andrew Taylor acted as leader, in the absence of Mrs. Ernest Pangburn, who was at the State Federation of Clubs at Lansing. The following was the program given.

"Conquest and Colonization of South America" "The National value of Billy Sunday."

Roll call. A generally mispronounced world. The next meeting will be held with Mrs. Floyd Freeman Tuesday Oct. 26.

FUNERAL OF MRS. GLASGOW

The funeral of Mrs. James Glasgow was held from the home on S. Winter St. Adrian, Tuesday at 11 a m. Rev. Perry of the M. P. church presiding. He also came with his friends to Tecumseh and officiated at the grave The bearers were nephews of the deceased, Will, Earl and Ernest Taylor and Leon Kniffen,

Mr. and Mrs Frank Neeley, Miss Agnes Neeley and Mrs. Geo. Powers of Brooklyn and Mrs. A. M. Lamb of Grand Rapids were among those who mourned the loss of their dear one.

The motion picture "Hypocrites" as presented at the Opera house Tuesday evening was one of the greatest sermons of the times and should work for the good of every community wherever shown. In our issue of the 15th we had an article written by Rey Thos B. Gregory which tells the story in full, and his comments upon it are good. As the story proceeds the audience is held spell bound, with the magnitude of the theme. There was a full house and comments on the street were most favorable. Those who failed to see this picture missed a rare treat.

SUDDEN DEATH

The community was much shocked Wednesday afternoon when the news was received of the sudden death of Albert G. Heidenreich. He has been in failing health for some time, but had kept at his work, even going up to the cigar shop Wednesday morning.

While there he complained of severe pains in his head and sudden blindness. He returned to his home and while his wife went up town to get some medicine for him, he sat on the porch smoking a cigar. Later a neighbor saw him fall from the porch to the ground and when picked up life was extinct Death was due to heart failure.

Mr. Heidenreich was born in Utica, N. Y. and was 56 years of age. He came to Michigan about 30 years ago and for many years has been in the employ of J J. Freeman in his cigar factory. He is survived by the widow and two sons, Percy and Leland, both of whom are employed in a jewelry store in Jackson, also three brothers, Edward of Utica, George and Fred of Albany, N. Y.

The funeral will be held at the home Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. W. A. Rex officiating. Burial in Brookside cemetery.

At the regular meeting held last Monday night by local tent No. 142, K. O T. M. the hall was well filled by both local and visiting members.

There was much enthusiasm displayed in starting the machinery in motion for a campaign to enlarge the membership. A uniformed rank for Tecumseh is a sure thing in the near future. The opening gun will be fired on Nov. 1st, when Division No. 13 of Adrian will give an exhibition drill on the down town streets after which a banquet will be served in the hall followed by a smoker.

Members of the local tent will go to Britton on Tuesday October 26 to initiate a large class that has been formed by District Deputy White of the Detroit District.

After the regular business meeting a fine banquet was served followed by a smoker and cards.

Those present from Adrian uniformed rank were Lieut. Col. Wm Brown, Maj. Henry Freer, Capt. Leo White, Second Lieut Chas. Brown, Serg't Charles Mudge, Sergt Bronson Aldrich also District Deputy White who gave talks on the work to be done by the local tent

THE HIGH SCHOOL

Two members of the Senior class apparently have not forgotten the romantic situations of "As You Like It" as expounded by Miss Harris that was, for they are still acting the parts of Rosalind and Orlando with great fervor.

Miss Norma Moody is some busy, having the honor (?) of the position of school librarian added to her other duties.

Inquisitive physics pupil, "You said that the sun is the source of all energy."

Mr. Goodrich, briskly, "Yes."

Pupil, "Well, then, why is it that a feller don't feel like working on a hot day?"

Miss Pavey's curiosity was very naturally aroused by the hunched up position of Perry Hayden with his coat over his head.

"What are you doing, Perry, she asked.

"Getting ready to hibernate," was the reply.

A movement has been started requesting each class upon its graduation to donate $5.00 toward a fund for the erection of a new high school.

The latest species of a pet is told in an English II paper, "A woman came into the train carrying a large white puddle."

The T. H. S. students are still pondering why the roof of the school remains solid Orchestra practice twice a week.

A basket ball team is to be organized by the boys of each class. Perchance they'll find a hall which would aid the girls very much.

SOUVENIR FROM THE CHILDREN OF BELGIUM

The following letter was received by Mrs. J. C. Law Hardy, as secretary for the Belgian Relief Fund.

"Dear Madam:—

We are sending you herewith a souvenir, printed with the original types of the sixteenth century, from the children of Belgium to the children of the United States.

The supply of these souvenirs is so limited that it would be impossible to send one to every child who made a gift, even if we had the full list of donors, and we would therefore appreciate it if you would give this souvenir to some child who has shown an active interest in this relief work

There is no present prospect that there will be any cessation of the needs of the Belgians, and we are making active preparations for a campaign of indefinite length. The charity of the world is likely to be more sorely needed during the coming fall and winter than it was early in the fall and winter of last year, and while the present necessities of the destitute are being met and they are being fed by the Commission together with what grain they have been able to harvest from their crops, the supply of food in Belgium will soon be depleted and the Belgians will again be dependent on the efforts of the Commission.

May we not expect that you will keep alive the spark of interest in Belgian relief work in your community until such time as the need has entirely disappeared?

Again assuring you of our deep appreciation of the great assistance your community has rendered in this most worthy cause, we are,

Yours very truly.

BACKER OF FEDERAL BALL LEAGUE DEAD

Robert B. Ward of Brooklyn Passes Away.

NEW YORK, N. Y. — Robert Boyd Ward, president of the Ward Baking company, vice president of the Federal Baseball league and president and chief owner of the Brooklyn Fed team, died suddenly of heart trouble at his home in Homewood. Mr. Ward was sixty-three years of age and had apparently been in good health.

The death of Mr. Ward, who has been considered the real backer of the Federal league, may have considerable to do with changing the baseball map. Mr. Ward has been an uncompromising foe of organized baseball since the independents came into the field, and it has been largely through his liberality that the new league has been able to wage the fight.

Mr. Ward was at all times willing to make an agreement, but only on the condition that the Federal league be recognized as a major league.

His Best.

A small boy, who had been allowed to run much in the streets, had so improved his opportunities that before he was five years old it was commonly said by the neighbors that he swore like a little pirate. Parental discipline did not avail to break him of the habit. One day when he was to visit his grandmother in the next street he was implored by his mother to behave himself properly, and especially not to indulge in bad language. He promised to try to remember. On his return at night the anxious mother asked if he had been a good boy. He replied emphatically that he had, clinching the statement by adding:

Her Leap Year Privilege

How a Fortune Was Lost.

By CLARISSA MACKIE

"Tum-te-tum, tum-te-tum!"

Angela Winton watched the little fingers wander uncertainly up and down the piano keys.

When the pupil had gone Angela closed the piano with a sigh of relief. Twenty years of teaching music had worn her nerves to a fine edge.

"I wonder if it will always be the same?" she thought as she went to open her letter box. There was a letter.

A little color flashed into her pale cheeks as she read the name in one corner of the business envelope:

JOHN T. CATESBY
Attorney and Counselor at Law

John Catesby was an old friend of Angela's, and she tore open the letter with a feeling of impatience at her swift conclusion that John's unexpected letter was in direct response to her query of the moment before. Very likely it had to do with the bridge club to which they both belonged. The letter read:

Dear Miss Winton—Please call at my office immediately, as I wish to consult with you concerning an important matter of business. Faithfully yours,
JOHN T. CATESBY.

"Dear me! I wonder what he wants to see me about? I may as well dress and go downtown now," she thought as she folded the letter.

An hour later Angela presented herself at Catesby's office. She was a small, timid looking woman with soft brown eyes and a wealth of glistening brown hair. Twenty years of battling with the world had made Angela bold of heart and unafraid, but the appealing look remained in her eyes.

An office boy took her into John Catesby's private office, and Catesby grasped her little gloved fingers in his large hand and forgot to release them for a moment.

"You wished to see me?" asked Angela, and, thus reminded, he drew forward a chair beside his own.

"Listen to this," he said in an odd tone, picking up an open letter:

Sydney, Australia, Jan. 18, 1915.
Dear Sir—Kindly inform my niece and only relative, Miss Angela Winton, that it is my intention to bequeath my entire fortune of $1,000,000 to her, provided she is married at the time of my death. She is the only old maid in the Winton family, and if she is still unmarried when the announcement of my death is made she will merely receive a small annuity, while the remainder of my estate goes to charity. As I am suffering from an incurable disease it behooves my niece to hasten to the altar.
JOSEPH HENRY WINTON.

"How utterly absurd!" cried Angela as rosy blushes invaded her smooth cheeks. "The very idea! He might as well cut me off with an annuity and be done with it!"

Another letter had been received by Catesby on the same subject. The lawyer had been a protege of Winton, who had sent him to school, to college and had paid his way while he studied his profession. Winton never married, and, as stated in his letter, Angela was his only relative. He was very fond of her and had noticed what Angela had not even suspected—that his protege loved his niece. He was in hopes that the two would make a match. In this event they would inherit his fortune together, and John would make a capital manager of the estate.

Finding that death was not far distant, he had written the two letters, the one intending to influence his niece, the other to advise Catesby of his desire to leave them his property jointly. In the one for John's private reading he had told him that it was his intention to place his niece in a position which would place Catesby in a position to marry her.

"Excuse me just a moment," said Catesby, rising. "I am called away on a matter of business."

He went into the outside office, where a client was waiting for a few words of advice, and Angela was left alone with her startled thoughts.

How glorious to be the owner of a great fortune! What bliss to travel, to have beautiful clothes, to help the needy!

How sordid it was to consider that she must marry and lose her freedom, but who on earth would marry her? Common sense told her that many unscrupulous men would embrace the opportunity to become the husband of an heiress.

From an adjoining office came the lowered voices of two stenographers.

"I saw the letter!" insisted one impatiently. "It said she must marry before he died or she would lose the money! The idea!"

"As if such an old maid could find a husband quick as a wink!" giggled the other. "Did you ever see such a little brown mouse of a woman?"

"I wonder if she knows it's leap year and she has the privilege of asking some man to marry her? It's her only chance to get the million, believe me!"

When Catesby returned to his desk he found Angela drawing down her veil. Through the filmy meshes her cheeks were pink and her eyes flashed dangerously. All Angela's fighting instincts were aroused. She must have that million at the price of her pride, at any price!

For the time avarice possessed her soul.

"And now, Miss Winton," smiled Catesby ruefully, "let us plan how we can agree to your uncle's eccentric proposition. Of course you do not want to lose a fortune."

"Of course not," said Angela crisply. "I shall not lose it, Mr. Catesby."

He stared at her.

"You mean that you are going to be married?" he asked.

Angela nodded.

"Then the matter is simplified," he said brusquely. "Perhaps you can arrange to be married immediately so as to gain the fortune. You may as well have it."

"Yes," said Angela mechanically.

He opened the door for her.

"You will let me know at once?" he asked in such an altered tone that Angela flashed a glance at him. His face was pale and stern, and the friendly look was gone from his dark blue eyes.

It was almost as if he had guessed Angela's bold intention.

"I've got to—I've got to look out for the future," thought Angela all the way home.

That evening Angela sat and thought and thought of all the men she knew who were eligible. When she had weighed and sifted them and discarded the impossibles and the undesirables there remained but two—Roger Frame and Dr. Deering.

Roger Frame was a civil engineer, or, rather, an uncivil one—brusque and bad mannered, but withal a fine, strong character and a good friend.

"And," debated Angela, "it must be desirable to have one's husband a good friend as well."

Dr. Deering was her minister, the middle aged rector of her church.

"I will explain to them," thought Angela, with hot cheeks. "They will understand, and, as that office girl said, it is leap year. I am only taking advantage of my privilege."

The next morning Angela arrayed herself in her best frock, happily a new one of soft gray with a hat to match. The hat was trimmed with violets, and at her breast she pinned a bunch of the same sweet purple blossoms.

Who could guess the panic in Angela's heart when she stood before Roger Frame's office door? All her principles were in revolt, in arms against the fear that she would lose Uncle Joseph's money.

Facing Roger Frame in his private office, Angela's panic found refuge in hasty speech. Her words tumbled desperately from her lips.

"You have done me such a great honor, Miss Winton," he said gently, "that I am proud of your confidence in me. But, you see, I've complicated matters by engaging myself to Mrs. Weed, but sit down and let us talk it over."

Angela smiled bravely and shook her head. "I've another name on my list," she said hardily. "The rector."

"Dear lady," said Frame earnestly, "I wish you much joy and success in your quest. Dr. Deering is a good fellow, but I'd like to wring your uncle's neck for placing you in such a position!"

Angela's lip quivered. "If Mr. Catesby had only thought of some other way out of it," she said piteously.

"Catesby? He's the lawyer in the case?" asked Frame quickly.

She nodded. "You see, I must do something, Mr. Frame," and with one shamed look over her shoulder, she slipped out and closed the door upon a very angry man.

Roger Frame jerked the telephone receiver from its hook and called John Catesby's number.

Dr. Deering's reception room was bathed in mellow sunshine when a trim maid ushered an agitated Angela into the room.

"Dr. Deering is engaged at present," said the servant. "He will be at liberty in a little while."

Left alone, Angela could hear the frightened thumping of her heart.

There was the purr of a motorcar outside and the sound was instantly stilled. The rector had another visitor. Angela's courage waned rapidly. She had arisen in a panic when the servant ushered a man into the room with the same explanatory formula.

The man was John T. Catesby.

"Ah!" he cried quickly. "Have you seen him? Am I in time?"

"I haven't seen him yet," admitted Angela faintly.

"Then—then"— he stammered excitedly, "why not marry me, Angela? I love you. I want you for my wife." He held out his hands. Angela placed her trembling hands in his. "If I have to marry any one," she faltered; "I'm so glad it's you!"

He drew her closer.

"Suppose your uncle had never written you? Suppose there had been no fortune involved?" he whispered.

"Your love would have been riches enough," said Angela, her face against his arm and her pretty hat all crooked.

He smiled contentedly.

"Then you may read this," he said drawing a cablegram from his pocket. "It came half an hour ago."

It was from Sydney, Australia, and dated the day before. It announced the death of Joseph Henry Winton.

Angela would have drawn away from his arm, but he held her closely.

"And you come to me after that?" she asked.

"Didn't I say I loved you?" he retorted gruffly. "I've been screwing up my courage to tell you. Your becoming an heiress was a dash of cold water."

"But what shall we say to Dr. Deering?" questioned Angela.

"Why, we'll ask him to officiate at our wedding next week!" was Catesby's brilliant suggestion.

EXPLOSIVES OF WARFARE.

To a Great Extent They Are a Development of Fireworks.

War is a wholesale fireworks celebration. A giant firecracker is really a dangerous bomb, and rifle grenades are but small rockets, carrying high explosives and fired from rifles. Great fort destroying projectiles look simply like gigantic rockets.

The first magazine gun was a Roman candle. The first projectile propelled by an explosive was a rocket. The first shrapnel was a bomb discharging luminous stars instead of bullets.

Modern warfare is, so to speak, a development of Fourth of July ideas.

However, gunpowder—the first explosive—was itself mere play stuff for at least a thousand years before anybody thought of using it for war purposes. It was commonly employed in China for fireworks and crackers during the earliest centuries of the Christian era. The bombs nowadays dropped by military aviators are children's torpedoes magnified to make them deadly.

It has been said that shrapnel is a modified fireworks bomb. It has the form of a cylinder, which, at a distance from the gun muzzle suitably timed by a fuse, blows its own head off, throwing out 250 or more lead bullets that travel on their own account with a velocity of 400 feet a second.—Philadelphia Record.

Cemeteries Where Women Gossip.

Friday, the Sabbath of the Moslems, when all true believers of the masculine gender make a point of going to church, their wives, sisters and daughters resort to the cemeteries and wail for the dead. But all their time is not spent in weeping, and sorrow is not the only emotion they display on these occasions. They take with them bunches and garlands of flowers and decorate the graves of their relatives and pray and weep over the dead for a time. Then when this pious duty is performed they gather in little groups and have a good time gossiping about the living. Thus the day of mourning is very popular among the Moslem women. It gives them almost the only opportunity they have of cultivating the acquaintance of their neighbors.

USKUP IS TAKEN BY BULGARIAN TROOPS

It Is Chief Serbian Town Between Nish and Saloniki.

Sofia, Oct. 24, via London, Oct. 25.—The Bulgarian troops have completely conquered Uskup, according to an official communication. Uskup is the chief Serbian town on the railway between Nish and Saloniki.

The statement adds that in the Timok Valley Bulgarian troops have reached the left bank of the Timok River, between Kniasevac and Zajiecar. Fighting continues for possession of the town of Kniasevac.

Paris, Oct. 25.—A dispatch from Saloniki to the Havas News Agency says that according to information obtained in official sources French troops attacked the Bulgarians Wednesday evening south of Strumitsa and captured Nabovo. Fighting, it is stated, is still going on in this region. The action of the Bulgarians in Old Serbia is said to be subsiding.

The Austro-German advance on the Serbian front, according to the official advices, has stopped. It is stated that it did not exceed seven miles in extent.

Carries Infirm Man Down Flight of Stairs to Safe Place.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 25.—John Haddock, father of Patrolman Ray Haddock of the Sixth Precinct, owes his life to the strength and courage of Mrs. John M. Scruts, who lives in the flat below the Haddocks at 166 Maybury avenue.

Mrs. Haddock went to look for something i nthe clothes closet of the room where her husband was lying in bed, too ill to move. She struck a match and the clothing caught fire. The blaze spread quickly and in a few moments the room was in flames. Mrs. Scruts, hearing her neighbor's cry of alarm, rushed upstairs, seized Mr. Haddock and, lifting him bodily, carried him downstairs and out of doors to safety. Firemen arrived soon after and extinguished the blaze.

SEVEN KILLED WHEN TRAIN STRIKES AUTO

Mother, Five Children and Sister Are Victims.

Mount Clemens, Mich., Oct. 25.—A mother, her five children and her sister were instantly killed and one man was fatally injured at Fraser Crossing of the Grand Trunk railroad, five miles from here, when a Grand Trunk passenger train struck an automobile driven by William Stoldt, a farmer of Avon Township.

The dead are: Mrs. Rachel Stoldt, Avon township, forty-four, mother of the children and wife of William Stoldt; Mrs. Minnie Engle, forty-seven, Romeo, sister of Mrs. Stoldt; Pearl Stoldt, seventeen years old; Esther Stoldt, fifteen years old; Hazel Stoldt, twelve years old; Mabel Stoldt, ten years old; Martha Stodlt, six years old.

The seven bodies were strewn along the railway tracks for a distance of a quarter of a mile. The train stopped and a hasty examination showed that probably all were dead with the exception of the man in the party. He was barely able to speak, giving his name as William Stoldt, a farmer of Avon township. He was taken on the train and brought to Washington hospital here, where it is said he will die.

Just how the accident occurred is all conjecture, but there are indications of carelessness on the part of the driver, Stoldt.

ACT WHILE CHILD IS BURIED

Parents Go Through Theatricals During Funeral Miles Away.

Duquoin, Ill., Oct. 25.—While Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Holtman, members of a theatrical troupe, played at a matinee, they did so with the knowledge that at the same hour the funeral of their three-year-old boy, Billy, was being held at Elgin.

The parents received a message apprising them of his death, but were unable to leave the show. They played their parts unflinchingly, though the mother was on the verge of a collapse several times.

KEY TO TRIESTE TAKEN BY ITALY

Goritz Falls to Hammering of Latins Guns.

BOMBARDED FOR FIVE MONTHS

Staff Officers from Front Report That Italian Offensive Is More Important Than Gen. Cadorna Has Given Out —Two Railroads to Trieste—Adriatic 22 Miles Away.

Rome, Oct. 25.—Goritz, the key to the entire campaign on the Isonzo, has fallen before the combined artillery and infantry attacks of the Italians according to news brought to Rome by staff officers who have just returned from field headquarters.

These officers further report that the results of the Italian offensive begun several days ago on the entire front from the Alps to the sea are much more important than has been announced in the official reports from General Cadorna, chief of staff, which have been given out by the war office here.

Official information on the extent of the Italian gains in Tyrol and on the Isonzo are, they say, withheld until the positions conquered by the Italian troops are consolidated and their advance is made a permanent victory. According to these officers Goritz, the Austrian stronghold on the Isonzo, fell three days ago.

Battered Five Months.

For five months the Italiain big guns have been hammering the strong forts on the steep hills around Goritz which, situated in a pocket formed by a bend in the Isonzo, its natural protection on the west, and the mountains stretching in a semi-circle north, east and south, has been regarded by the Austrians and the military experts of other countries as an impregnable fortress.

The Italian general staff has made no secret of its belief that the fall of Goritz means a clear road to Trieste, the great Austrian port at the head of the Adriatic, which is the Italian objective in the campaign. Hilaire Belloc, the British military expert, in discussing this phase of the Italian campaign three months ago, said:

"Until Goritz is taken the Italians cannot advance upon Trieste. That is why the attempt to capture or mask Goritz is for the moment the [illegible] Italian operation."

Two Railroads to Trieste.

Goritz is about twenty-two miles from the Adriatic port. From the stronghold run two railroads to Trieste. One of these roads, following the Isonzo to Sagrado south of Fradisca and thence turning eastward and following the Adriatic coast to the Adriatic port, is in the hands of the Italians as far as Monfalcone, twelve miles from Trieste. The other runs southeastward from Goritz across the Carso plateau.

The seizure of Goritz makes effective the advance made by the Italians on this plateau which have been very slow on account of the nature of the ground.

GERMANS IN EIGHTH ATTACK

Paris Says Foe Was Repulsed With Sanguinary Losses.

Paris, Oct. 25.—The eighth German attack in five days on the strong French positions in the woods of Givenchy, north of Arras, was repulsed with sanguinary losses, according to the official statement issued by the French war department. Many of the Germans were cut down the moment they left their trenches, states the report.

French batteries have destroyed some of the German trenches and works in the Champagne, to the southeast of Tahure; between the Meuse and the Moselle, to the north of Regneville and in Lorraine, near Embermenil and Domevre.

"SOO" IS IN THROES OF BIG REFORM WAVE

"Blind Pigs" Closed, Curfew Regulates Children's Hours.

Sault Ste Marie, Mich., Oct. 25.—The reform wave has hit the Soo in earnest. First it was the curfew law which compels all children under seventeen years of age to keep off the streets after 9 o'clock, then it was an edict against gambling, and now the police have started a campaign against "blind pigs."

That the "blind pig" business was thriving before the opening of the campaign was evident when two men operated separate liquor dispensaries in the same house, neither having a license.

Four persons so far have pleaded guilty when they faced Police Judge Rock D. Frederick, and each was fined $100 and costs. Powell was the only one of the quartet to pay his fine, the others taking a ninety day jail stay.

LUMBERMEN TO TALK TRADE

Hardwood Manufacturers from Wisconsin and Michigan to Meet.

Milwaukee, Oct. 25.—Men who produce $15,000,000 worth of finished material every year from their holdings in Wisconsin and northern Michigan will meet in Milwaukee Tuesday to discuss the problems which confront their trade, that of the manufacture of hemlock and hardwood, when the Northern Hemlock and Hardwood Manufacturers' association will hold a convention.

Plans were made on Friday for the convention and for a banquet Tuesday night, at which the lumbermen will put their problems before the builders, architects and others interested in the use of Wisconsin and Michigan wood for Wisconsin and Michigan buildings. There will, in addition to the banquet, be three sessions of the visitors, and the sessions will be open not only to members but those who are interested in the problems of the trade.

BULL DOG CHECKS CARESSES

Husband Says Wife's Pup Bit Off Much of His Weight.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 25.—Has a wife the right to keep a big bulldog at her side night and day to guard her from her husband's kisses? That is the question put up to the court by Edwin Batters, who, in his petition for divorce from Margaret Batters, says he loves her dearly, but that she was so shy that she got a bulldog to chew chunks out of his anatomy every time he ventured to embrace and kiss her.

Batters further cites that he lost considerable weight from the worry or from furnishing free lunches for the dog.

Character Forming In Youth.

It was a saying of Froebel's that the character of a man or woman is fixed at six years of age—thus putting the formative period very early in the development of the child.

Most mothers do not believe this dictum or ignore it, as they intrust their children to nurses more during those first six years than at any other time. There are, however, an increasing number of women who realize that good habits are more easily formed and good impressions more easily made in very early childhood than later on. So now careful mothers are arranging to supervise as thoroughly as possible the nurseries of their babies and to take an active share in the training of the little ones.

One modern mother, though possessed of ample means, refuses to employ a regular nurse. She takes entire charge of her two little children, a girl of four and a boy of two. This is not the result of theory on her part, but an outgrowth from her own experience. Brought up in a luxurious household, waited on "hand and foot" by an attentive nurse, she was suddenly sent off to boarding school at the age of fourteen.

"I shall never forget," she says, "my terrible mortification at not being able to dress myself properly or even to comb my own hair. I used to cry myself to sleep at night and dread getting up in the morning to encounter that awful problem of getting neatly into my clothes."

Determined that her children shall never be helpless, she has taught these little mites to look after themselves in quite a wonderful way.

Some years ago Punch had a picture of two small boys and a young lady asking one of them, "How old is your little friend, Tommy?" To which Tommy replies, "I do not know, but I think he must be pretty old, because he can blow his own nose!"

Judged by this standard, the boy of two referred to above would be "pretty old," while the girl would be positively aged. It has taken an infinity of patience to get these children to the point of efficiency which they now enjoy, but it has certainly paid the mother for all her trouble. It is much easier to take a child and dress it than it is to sit by and see it fumble itself into its garments. These two children are still bathed in the tub, but otherwise, as the Scotch say, they "sort" themselves.

There are many practical details to be considered in such work. Clothes must be made simple, so as to offer as few difficulties to little fingers as may be. The faucets in the bathroom are not only an obstacle to a child, but also a temptation to play with water and mess clean frocks, so a washing apparatus must be arranged.

The particular mother whose methods are quoted above obtained a kindergarten table such as that on which the children play their games. It has the advantage of being exactly the right height and at the same time of being both solid and stable. Painted white this answered for a washstand. Then came the question of utensils. Stoneware was too heavy, and china, though light enough to be easily handled, was quickly broken by inexpert little hands.

The answer to this problem came from enameled ware, which is made nowadays in a number of attractive colors. Pretty enameled basins and pitchers, not too large to be lifted even when full, make implements the children can safely manage. Soap dish, toothbrush mug and slop pail complete the outfit. Nothing can be broken, nothing is heavy, and yet all is clean, fresh and inviting.

The little girl worked her initials on her little face cloths in cross stitch, and "brother" will do the same when sufficiently advanced. Supper is always eaten in the nursery, and these tots set their own table, another kindergarten table, and their table utensils are also enameled ware in attractive colors, so that cups and saucers, plates and pitchers can be manipulated without risk.

They are very earnest about this task of setting table, and woe betide the child whose dishes are not set in the proper order by the waitress or waiter of the day!

Visitors say, "How cunning, how clever the dear little things are!" but not one in a dozen realizes the work and the patience that are put in the training.

Rich will be the reward when the children are older. The independence they have acquired will be more valuable to them than a fortune, for it will be a fortune that cannot be lost.

For the Housekeeper's File.

According to the September Woman's Home Companion September is the month for all housekeepers:

"To make the acquaintance of your children's new teachers.

"To plan varied and healthful school lunches.

"To see that the furnace and pipes are in working order.

"To do all necessary painting around the house and fences.

"To have the roof examined and repaired if necessary.

"To choose and order any new wall paper.

"To look over the winter bedding, renew comforts and mattresses." gram before breakfast. He left at once."

"What time did he come in last night?" asked Chief Lane.

"About 11 o'clock. I heard the front door close, and just as his footsteps creaked across the floor over my head the clock in the hall struck 11."

"Did you hear him go out again?"

"Mercy, no! I went sound asleep and didn't wake up until the messenger rang the doorbell and asked for Professor House. I signed the book and took the message up and put it under his door. Ten minutes afterward he came down carrying a small bag and saying he was called to New York for a few days."

"And about the school?"

"It's holiday time, you know, sir."

"Of course it is. You don't know the nature of the message he received?"

"I know it word for word. He left it on his bureau," she returned, taking a crumpled yellow paper from her apron pocket.

The two men bent over the telegram, reading the brief message contained therein:

Time is up. Do it now or receive your reward! KESTNER.

Lane turned to the woman.

"Was Professor House in good spirits when he went away this morning?"

"Oh, yes, and he smiled and seemed quite cheerful."

"Of course he didn't know that Gabriel Morse had been murdered," observed the doctor.

"No," said the woman in a dull voice. Dr. Gray looked at her coolly.

"Now, we will take a look at the professor's room, Mrs. Quayle."

Without a word she led the way upstairs, the men following.

"Here are his rooms," she said, throwing open a door into study and adjoining bedroom, "just as he left them."

Dr. Gray looked around at the orderly rooms and then at the unmade bed.

"Except that you have rumpled the bedclothes to make it appear that he slept here, when he did not," he said mildly.

"I don't know what you're driving at, Dr. Gray," said the woman sullenly.

"The truth, Mrs. Quayle," he said.

"I've told all I know," she insisted.

"Come, Lane," said the doctor curtly.

They went down the front stairs. In the corner behind the front door was the tall grandfather's clock.

"Your clock has stopped, Mrs. Quayle," said Dr. Gray.

"It does not keep good time, sir," she said in a strained voice.

"Perhaps I can mend it," said Dr. Gray, and before the woman could remonstrate he had pulled open the door. Something bulky filled the ancient clock case.

Chief Lane blinked dazedly.

"Why, it's the professor!" he cried. "He's unconscious or dead!"

"Dead in a few minutes if you don't hurry. Help me to put him on the couch yonder. Hand me my medicine case, open the windows, then lock that woman up securely."

Half an hour later Professor House was able to sit up and give a connected account of what had happened since he had left Gabriel Morse's home the night before.

"I said good night to Mr. Morse and came home at 11 o'clock. Just as I was entering the gate I met a man coming stealthily out. He did not see me until I placed my hand on his shoulder. Then he turned and struck savagely at me.

"In the moonlight I recognised him as Mrs. Quayle's son, Andrew, who, you know, is or was serving a long prison sentence for burglary.

"He wrenched away and vanished up the road. I supposed he had escaped from prison. I felt sorry for his mother.

"The house was quiet, and I went up to go to bed, but I didn't go after all. I sat by my open window, thinking about Gabriel Morse's splendid collection of diamonds which he had been showing me that evening.

"There was no light in my room and I must have nodded off to sleep. A touch on my face awakened me. Quayle was crouched on the piazza roof, holding something wet to my mouth and nose. I recognised the smell of chloroform and then lost consciousness. You tell me that you found a saturated sponge tied about my face?"

"Yes," said Dr. Gray. "In another hour it would have been too late to revive you."

"Then it was Quayle who murdered Gabriel Morse!" broke in Chief Lane.

"Gabriel dead?" echoed Professor House.

"Oh, no!" Dr. Gray smiled cheerfully. "We thought he was—but Quayle was a coward after all—he dared not finish the job he began.

"He got in through the unlocked front door and surprised Gabriel as he was putting away the unset diamonds. They fought all over the place and finally he choked the old man into insensibility. Then he got away.

"Gabriel Morse whispered the story to me just before I joined you in the library, chief."

Lane looked chagrined. "Then there hasn't been a murder, after all."

"I hope Mr. Morse will recover. In the meantime you might begin your hunt for Andrew Quayle."

"I'll try the railroad first," said the chief, moving toward the door.

"You might begin by searching this house," advised the doctor dryly. "I stepped on a loose diamond in the upper hall."

Half an hour afterward Chief Lane unearthed Andrew Quayle in the farthest corner of his mother's attic, and the stolen diamonds were recovered.

As for Professor House's telegram, it was a clumsy forgery, prepared by Andrew Quayle to draw suspicion away from his mother's house so he could escape.

LEARN HOW TO RELAX.

Nervous Women In Particular Should Be Kind to Themselves.

One of the important things to know in life, especially if you are a woman, is how to let yourself alone. The ability to relax, the art of being judiciously lazy, the tact to let herself alone, has saved many a woman from a nervous breakdown. We all know the housewife who nags herself into such a state of conscientiousness that she cannot rest. If she lies down she is continually worrying herself with thoughts of the work that she is neglecting.

Much of the blame for this state of affairs lies at the doors of the mothers. The mistake is in their training of their children, especially their daughters. They are taught from earliest infancy to be kind to others, to bear with them, to forgive them, to help them, but from birth to death no one ever tells them to be kind, also, to themselves.

The woman who nags herself can make herself more miserable than any one else possibly could. She can make her life more of a nightmare than any misfortune could possibly make it. If such women could learn to be kinder to themselves there is no doubt that their own lives would be lengthened, and not only that, but the lives of those with whom they come in close contact would be made far more pleasant.—Mary Carolyn Davies in Mother's Magazine.

Not the Usual Kind.

"What a fool exercise fencing must be for women."

"Why so? I always understood it was fine."

"Here Maude Binks is taking lessons, and she told me yesterday she was learning how to feint."

EQUAL SUFFRAGE MEETING A. A. FRIDAY OCT. 22

Friday afternoon several ladies from Tecumseh, Ridgeway, Tipton and Adrian attended the second congressional district Equal Suffrage meeting at Ann Arbor. Those from Tecumseh were Mrs. Jennie Law Hardy, Mrs. Harris, Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. Chas. Slayton, Mrs. H. Bredow and Miss Maude Ager.

One baby Marion Elizabeth Whelan from Tipton and the only baby there was made an honorary member.

At 4:30 the meeting was adjourned and they went in a body to Congressman Beakes' home and asked him to support the Susan B. Anthony amendment.

Among those who presented the subject were Mrs. Jennie Law Hardy of Tecumseh, Mrs. A. S. Blodgen of Jackson, Mrs. H. A. Hodge, who also represented the grange, and Mrs. E. Shippen of Detroit.

"We don't ask you to pledge yourself, Congressman Beakes," said Mrs. Hodge, "But we want to tell you that if you step over the motheaten tradition that binds your party and follow your President, you will have 50,000 grange members back of you.

In Mr. Beake's talk he said, Ladies, I am a Democrat and have a little respect for the Constitution of the U. S." There is no need of arguing with me for woman suffrage, because I am in favor of it. "The only point of difference between you and me is as to the best method of bringing it about."

THE SECRETARY BIRD.

It Kicks Like a Mule and Can Swallow a Snake Whole.

The rarest and most valuable birds in the New York zoological garden are the strange pair of secretary birds quartered in the ostrich house. "Secretary birds" they are called because of the crest of long dark plumes that rises from the back of their heads, giving them the appearance of a clerk with a bunch of quill feathers behind his ear. It's an aristocratic name, but the thing that makes the secretary bird valuable is not his looks. The natives of South Africa love him because he can kick like a mule.

Toss into his cage a snake, no matter how vicious, and the fight begins immediately. The bird cautiously approaches the snake with wings widespread to escape the sudden lunges by flight if necessary. Once, twice, three times perhaps the snake lunges. The bird darts back, waiting his chance. At last it comes, and one of those long, hard legs shoots out like the hoof of a mule, landing squarely on the snake's head. It reels and falls back, stunned to be knocked out completely by a second blow. And then its victor proceeds to swallow it whole.

In South Africa the birds are regarded as a great protection. They are affectionate mates and always travel together. When pursued they spread their wings and make off over the ground with the speed of a running horse.—Every Week.

INDIAN SUMMER.

The Term May Have Had Its Origin In the Far East.

The origin of the term "Indian summer," like that of the word "blizzard," has been the subject of much research. It has been traced back only as far as the latter part of the eighteenth century, and it did not become common until after the first decade of the nineteenth.

Many explanations of the name have been offered, all of which assume that the term "Indian" used in this connection refers to the American Indians.

A recent note in the Monthly Weather Review calls attention to a totally different use of this term, in which the reference is not to the American Indians, but to East India.

Under the British board of trade regulations one of the load lines marked on ships bears the initials "I. S." this being the maximum depth to which vessels can be loaded for voyages during the "Indian summer"—i. e., the fine season in the Indian seas.

How long has the term "Indian summer" been used in this sense? It is not recorded in any dictionary nor apparently in any work on meteorology. Is it possible that our autumnal Indian summer was so named by sailors or travelers who saw in it a resemblance to the fine weather attending the northeast monsoon in India?

FORESTS AND MOISTURE.

Trees Conserve Water, Aid Percolation and Retard Evaporation.

Trees drink in and transpire an enormous quantity of water. This giving off tempers the dryness of the nearby atmosphere. Moisture bearing currents of air are caught by forest areas as they are not by the heated plains. Local showers may thus become more frequent where trees abound, or at least the availability of whatever rain may fall is increased for the locality by forest growths.

Foliage, twigs and branches break the fall of the raindrops. So does the litter on the forest floor. Hence the soil under this cover is not compacted as in the open field, but is kept loose and granular, so water can readily penetrate and percolate. The water reaches the ground more slowly, dripping gradually from the leaves, branches and trunks, and thus more time is allowed for it to sink into the soil and appear again in springs or subsoil moisture lower down.

In forests there is much less evaporation of moisture than in the open country because sun and wind do not have such free play. It is estimated that forests have from 50 to 60 per cent of water supply more than the open fields because of increased percolation and decreased evaporation.—Country Gentleman.

Grenadiers.

Evelyn writes in his diary under date 1678: "Now were brot into service a new sort of soldiers called Grenadiers, who were dexterous in flinging hand grenades; they had furred caps with coped crowns, which made them look very fierce; and some had long hoods hanging down behind as we picture fools." The original grenadiers buried their grenades, and then charged the enemy with hatchets.—London Standard.

HALLOWE'EN PARTY FOR TEACHERS.

Supt. and Mrs. Reed entertained the teachers of the schools very cleverly Friday night. Upon their arrival the guests were greeted by a witch with a broom who carefully brushed off the cobwebs. Led by a ghost the guests went slowly through the rooms which were lighted with Jack o' lanterns and directed by another witch to the cloak rooms above. A ghost at the piano furnished weird music during the arrivals.

When all were present groups were formed and each given the name of an apple. They were required to write poetry of not less than four lines, each line rhyming with the name of their apple. The group composed of the Misses Nixon and Fay and Mr. McLaughlin proved the typical poets.

Selections from different books were pinned on the wall and each guest required to tell from what book it was taken. Then the lights were turned low again and talks were heard from the ghosts. In the kitchen the witches were stirring the boiling caldron, at which time they gave a short selection from Macbeth.

Those being entertained now busied themselves in seeing how many years before they would be married by blowing out lighted candles According to the candles Miss Caldwell will be married within a year, but Miss Wimple must wait eight years longer. Several eating apples which hung from strings and placed in water made much fun for the crowd.

Refreshments were served by the ghosts and witches and the party broke up after several selections on the victrola.

B. J. Pulver.

Much more is involved in the German purpose to master all Poland than the mere destruction of Russian forces or the beating back of enemies from the central passes to Berlin. A great military advantage for the Germans is gained by controlling the southern border of East Prussia and the northern border of the great Austrian province of Galicia, with its pass to Silesia via Cracow. To insure such control the kaiser should be firmly established in central Poland, the farther east the better, as was proved last year, when the Germans were twice driven from central Poland back to the Silesian border. Poland is a great producing country of copper, zinc, tin and sulphur. Warsaw is the third largest city of the Russian empire and is, moreover, a great railroad center, with lines reaching in westerly directions, as well as north and south. For successful operations against the Teutonic allies Warsaw is well nigh indispensable to the Russians as an advance base. It may change hands many times, as did Fredericksburg, on the Rappahannock, midway between Washington and Richmond, during the civil war.

DOES BASEBALL FOLLOW THE FLAG?

New York, Oct. 25:—Does baseball, one step in rear of the constitution, follow the flag?

United States Marine Corps representatives say that it does, and old B. B. is the greatest single factor in captivity for the perpetuation of peace, according to their views.

The bat, ball, and glove form part of a Marine's expeditionary equipment and it has been said that he carries baseball paraphernalia in his knapsack side by side with implements of a more serious nature. The Marine has been sent to all parts of the world on errands of duty. But, unlike other missionaries carrying the good work in dark places, he hasn't gotten himself into trouble through it, and he rates the glorious old pastime as 100 per cent efficient in the cause of peace

A grizzled old "soldier of the sea" who has played the game in every clime, gave expression yesterday to the following when interviewed at the Brooklyn Marine Barracks: Canned Caruso of the Symphony in F may have charms to soothe the savage breast, but when it comes to 'piping down' a hostile 'hombre' in his native lair, show him a man on third in the ninth inning with two down, and the score a tie. We've done it in China, Guam, the Philippines, Alaska and everywhere that a man may go, and it has always made for peace. Give your Uncle Samuel a few thousand more Marines with plenty of good baseball players to fill the ranks, and the warring nations of the world will be cemented closer together with the bonds of true sportsmanship."

HERE'S NEW VIGOR FOR OVERWORKED STOMACHS

C. A. Wright & Son, the popular druggist, have been in the drug business long enough to have their own opinion of the best way of selling medicines. He says the plan adopted by Mi-o-na, the great dyspepsia remedy, is the fairest they have ever heard of. He doesn't believe that a medicine ought to be paid for unless it does the user some good. And Mi-o-na is sold under a positive guarantee to relieve dyspepsia or to refund the money. You simply leave 50 cents on deposit with C. A. Wright and if, after you have used the box of Mi-o-na you decide that it has done you no good, all you have to do is to tell them so and they will return your money.

Hundreds of people have been relieved of stomach agonies by using this remarkable remedy. It is not simply a food digester; it is a medicine that puts all of the digestive organs into normal condition and gives ruddy, glowing, vigorous health. A change for the better will be seen after the first few doses of Mi-O-na, and its continued use will soon give the the power ta eat anything at any time and not suffer distress afterward. Use Mi-o-na and see how much more there is in life. adv

ONE DAY ONLY

HRS 10 A. M. TO 8 P. M.

Remarkable Success of These Talented Physicians in the Treatment of Chronic Diseases.

Offer their Services Free of Charge.

The United Doctors, licensed by the State of Michigan for the treatment of deformities and all nervous and chronic diseases of men, women and children, offer to all who call on this trip, consultation, examination, advice free, making no charge whatever except the actual cost of treatment. All that is asked in return for these valuable services is that every person treated will state the result obtained to their friend, and thus prove to the sick and afflicted in every city and locality, that at last treatments have been discovered that are reasonably sure and certain in their effect.

These doctors are among America's leading stomach and nerve specialists and are experts in the treatment of chronic diseases and so great and wonderful have been their results that in many cases it is hard to find the dividing line between skill and miracle.

Diseases of the stomach, intestines, liver, blood, skin, nerves, heart, spleen, kidneys or bladder, rheumatism, sciatica, diabetes, bed-wetting, tape worm, leg ulceers, weak lungs and those afflicted with long standing, deep seated, chronic diseases, that have baffled the skill of the family physicians, should not fail to call. Deafness often has been cured in sixty days.

According to their system no more operations for appendicitis, gall stones, tumors, goiter, piles, etc., as these diseases are treated without operation or hypodermic injection.

They were among the first in America to earn the name of "Bloodless Surgeons," by doing away with the knife with blood and with all pain in the successful treatment of these dangerous diseases.

If you have kidney or bladder troubles bring a two ounce bottle of your urine for chemical analysis and microscopic examination.

No matter what your ailment may be, no matter what others may have told you, no matter what experience you may have had with other physicians, it will be to your advantage to see them at once. Have it forever settled in your mind. If your case is incurable they will give you such advice as may relieve and stay the disease. Do not put off this duty you owe yourself or friends or relatives who are suffering because of your sickness, as a visit at this time may help you.

Worn-out and run-down men or women, no matter what your ailment, consult them. It costs you nothing.

Remember, this last free offer is for this visit only.

Married ladies come with their husbands and minors with their parents.

WEAK, AILING CHILD

Made Strong By Delicious Vinol

Lakeport, N. H.—"Our little girl 8 years of age was in a debilitated, run-down condition and had a stubborn cough so she was weak and ailing all the time. Nothing helped her until we tried Vinol. Then her appetite increased and she is strong and well, and I wish other parents of weak, delicate children would try Vinol."—Geo. A. Collins.

This is because Vinol contains the tissue building, strengthening cod liver elements and the tonic iron which a weak and run-down system needs.

SERIOUSLY BURNED

Little Wyman Haight, 3 Years Old, Victim of Bonfire.

Just after noon Friday little Wyman Haight, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Haight, was seriously burned in a bonfire. He had been to a neighbor's who was having a fire, but she had sent him home, telling him that little boys sometimes got burned in a bonfire. He went home with his father as he went to his dinner. Later he was missing and the mother and neighbors hearing a child scream rushed out to the street, finding him enveloped in flames. His body was badly burned, but Dr. Briegel who was called thinks he will recover. In putting out the blaze the mother was badly burned about the hands and arms. At last reports the little one was as comfortable as possible under the circumstances.

"A PAIR OF SIXES"

Wednesday, November 3.

Probably one of the most important events in the local theatrical season will be the presentation in this of H. H. Frazee's "A Pair of Sixes", which New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and Boston has unanimoufly declared to be "the funniest farce in the world". The book is by Edward People, who has contributed already such successes as "The Prince Chap" and "The Littlest Rebel."

The chief motive of "A Pair of Sixes" concerns the ingenious scheme of a young woman who, figuratively, shows how a queen of hearts is better than a pair of sixes All of which develops after two young men, partners in business, unable to agree as to their respective importance to the firm, decide to separate commercially. The lawyer for the firm is called in and he finds the condition aggravated to the point where no amicable agreement can be made, so he proposes a hand of show-down poker. The winner shall be known as the master and operate the business for one year, unmolested by the other who is, however, to be credited with his share of the profits.

The loser is to be known as the "man" and must serve the "master" in the capacity of servant for one year. They agree on the scheme and its details, the lawyer puts it in legal form and when the hand is dealt a pair of sixes proves to be high. From this promise, the complications develop new and laughable situations for the enduing two acts, in which the wife of one partner and the fiancee of the other take a hand in the affair, which, eventually, becomes more hopelessly involved by the office stenographer As an added feature to the coterie of seemingly endless complications, the English housemaid becomes innocently entangled in an affair with the "servant" partner, and the family finally evolves into a divorce mill. To unravel these complicated mixtures, the clever young woman of the plot surprises the lawyer at his own game and re-establishes the young men in their office,

"A Pair of Sixes" will be the attraction at the Bradley Opera House. Wednesday, November 3.

THE FREE MACHINE

A big crowd gathered at the Coller Music Store Friday afternoon for the drawing of the sewing machine that had been advertized for the last two weeks. The first ticket drawn was for Miss Margeret McCue but she was busy with her school work.

DO YOU WANT TO STAY POOR?

Get out of your head the idea that Poverty is something you cannot help. Just so long as you stick to that theory, just so long is poverty going to stick to you. People in most cases are poor because they are too indolent—too careless—too thoughtless. Sit down and figure what you are spending—and what you can do without. Not the things that cost dollars—but the articles that cost pennies. How many pennies do you waste a week? Multiply that by 52—multiply that in turn by 50. You will then get some idea why people stay poor all their lives. Fifty years of waste will turn even a millionaire into a pauper—while 50 years of economy will make a poor man rich.

SOME GOOD ADVICE

Strengthened by Tecumseh Experiences.

Kidney disease is to dangerous to neglect. At the first sign of backache, headache, dizziness or urinary disorders, you should give the weakened kidneys prompt attention. Eat [illegible] take [illegible] use a reliable kidney tonic. There's no other kidney medicine so well recommended as Doan's Kidney Pills. Tecumseh people rely on them. Here's one of the many statements from Tecumseh people.

W. W. Shurtz, Kilbuck St., Tecumseh, says: "I have taken Doan's Kidney Pills at different times during the past ten years and they have always given relief from distressing symptoms of kidney complaint. I have procured my supply of Doan's Kidney Pills from Wright & Son's Drug Store and my experience has been so satisfactory that I willingly give this public account of it."

OVER TWO YEARS LATER, Mr. Shurtz added: "I willingly re-endorse Doan's Kidney Pills. I have found this medicine acts just as represented."

Crowns by Wholesale.

It is told of one of the ancient kings of Egypt that his coronation procession occupied a whole day in passing through the city of Alexandria and that 3,200 crowns of gold were carried by the servants. One crown was three feet in height and twenty-four feet in circumference. There were also carried in the procession sixty-four suits of golden armor, two boots of gold, four and a half feet in length; twelve golden basins, ten large vases of perfumes for the baths, twelve ewers, fifty dishes and a large number of tables—all of gold. Twenty-three of the 3,200 crowns were valued at £334,400, and it is not surprising that the procession was guarded by 90,000 soldiers. —St. James' Gazette.

IMITATION DIAMONDS.

They Lose Their Sparkle When They Lose Their Sharp Edges.

Only the expert can tell an imitation diamond from a real stone when the imitation is new, but after the fake stone has been worn for a little time it soon loses its lustre. It is this which makes a real diamond valuable. No matter how long it is worn it will keep its sparkle almost as well as ever.

The real reason for this is the hardness of the diamond. It is not due to any special quality in the stone itself, except its transparency and its hardness.

The sparkle of a diamond depends on the sharpness of the edges and the points of its facets. When the light falls on one of these it is reflected to another facet, lying at a different angle and is refracted again, and so on, many times. Each time the light is reflected it gives a point of brilliance, and, in most instances, splits up the light so that the red and blue rays are seen.

The imitation stone, to begin with, seldom has as many facets as a diamond. But, even if it had, the sharpness of these edges would wear off. Even exposure to the air will wear away any substance that is not extremely hard. And just as soon as there is any dulling of the edges of a facet, so soon there is a dimming of the brilliance of the stone.—New York American.

CALLED THE GAME.

Two Foul Balls Shocked the Australian Sense of Propriety.

A game of baseball that was scheduled as a feature of the police and firemen's patriotic carnival at the agricultural show grounds came to an abrupt and dramatic conclusion almost before it was started. It was a match game, America versus Australia.

In America's second inning a player deflected a fast ball straight for the densest portion of the crowd, and a scream was heard. The ambulance men rushed to the spot and found that a woman had been struck on the head by the ball, but was not seriously injured.

Without waiting to see if any damage had been done the players coolly procured another ball and continued the game just as if nothing out of the ordinary had happened. A few moments later this ball was also deflected to the upper story of the pavilion, striking a man on the shoulder.

At this Mr. Flowers, the minister for health, who was present, rushed out on to the ground and called out, "Stop this silly game!"

The players promptly obeyed his orders, and play ceased.—Sydney (Australia) Herald.

BRITISH TORPEDO TEUTON CRUISER

Ship of Prinz Adalbert Type Is Sent to Bottom.

ACTION OCCURS NEAR LIBAU

Submarine, Cruising In Baltic, Adds One More to Victims of Kaiser—Vessel 9,000 Ton Warship, Carrying 557 Men and Costing $3,500,000—Petrograd Rejoices.

Petrograd, Oct. 25.—A British submarine has sunk a German cruiser of the Prinz Adalbert type near Libau, it was officially announced here.

This announcement, coming on the heels of many recent British submarine successes against German merchant ships in the Baltic seas, has been received with delight, as the result is expected to be the cutting off of all German naval activity in the Baltic, which has hitherto been somewhat of a menace to the Russian port of Riga.

The Prince Adalbert was a cruiser of 9,050 tons displacement, built in 1901. There was but one other ship of this class, the Friedrich Karl, in the German navy, and the victim of the British torpedo is believed to be one of these vessels.

They each carried a complement of 557 men, were 394 feet long and with a beam of 65 feet and a draught of 25 feet. They each carried four 8.2-inch guns and smaller ordnance. They cost $3,500,000 each.

FINANCIAL ECONOMY.

One Man's Scheme When He Found His Capital Was Shrinking.

What one man did when he discovered his capital was shrinking is told in the American Magazine:

"A friend let me into a secret of his financial economy which strikes me as valuable. He is of middle age, with a small family, and has an income of $3,500 a year. He has put by a few thousand dollars. His investments are in gilt edged securities.

"At the end of every six months he figures out exactly the value of his property. Each share of stock, each bond is reckoned at its present market price, and the sale value of his house is placed at the lowest figure. To the current value of his estate he adds his life insurance. The result is the capital which would be available for the support of his wife and children should he suddenly die.

"At the last three reckonings my friend found that his capital was shrinking. There had been declines in certain stocks and bonds and a falling off in the value of his real estate. What did he do? Commiserate himself? Not at all. He went to a life insurance company and took out a policy large enough more than to cover the shrinkage in his capital. Comparatively speaking, it cost him very little, but it added a neat sum to the value of his estate and guaranteed an unimpaired income to his wife."

CARLYLE'S FIRST LOVE.

She May Have Been the Blumine of "Sartor Resartus."

During the year 1818 Thomas Carlyle, the Scotch philosopher, was living at Kirkcaldy, and he seems then for the first time to have fallen in love. The lady appears not to have returned the attachment, although she, with great insight, at the age of twenty-two, perceived the genius of her suitor of twenty-five.

In the letter in which she took leave of her admirer she used these significant expressions: "Cultivate the milder dispositions of your heart, subdue the more extravagant visions of the brain. * * * Genius will render you great. May virtue render you beloved! 'Let your light shine before men,' and think them not unworthy this trouble."

Many years after, when Carlyle wrote his reminiscences, he described the episode. He says that Margaret Gordon "continued for, perhaps, some three years a figure hanging more or less in my fancy, on the usual romantic and latterly quite elegiac and silent terms."

The real interest of the story is: Was Margaret Gordon the original of the Blumine of "Sartor Resartus?" One critic would have us answer that, although Jane Welsh might have inspired some of the details, it was Margaret Gordon who was the true original.—New York Telegram.

SHARPENING A PENCIL.

The Way a Child Does It Is an Index to Its Character.

It is very often the little things that children do which give the best indication of what their future characters will be. Schoolteachers, for instance, have a first rate opportunity for watching the different traits in the children who come before them. In their work and in their play the sort of man or woman the child will become is daily unfolded. In such a small matter even as the sharpening of a pencil valuable hints may be obtained by [illegible] the least observant. Here it may easily be discovered whether a boy or girl is careful, destructive, wasteful or economical.

The boy, for instance, who sharpens his pencil into a stub is inclined to be economical, careful and quick in after life. The boy or girl who takes an inordinately long time to make a slender point, cutting very precisely and regularly all the time will usually prove to be of an artistic and dreamy disposition. The child who, regardless of the look of the pencil, gouges out great pieces in order to get to the lead will show impulsiveness and generosity.

More destructiveness, however, becomes apparent when a child takes a delight in sticking his knife in his pencil and splitting it or destroying it in some other way.

Parents, watch your children when sharpening their pencils, and correct and advise them accordingly.—Pearson's Weekly.

The Woman's Benefit Association Of The Maccabees

The Largest, Strongest, and most Progressive Society of Women in the World.

Non-political and non-sectarian. Offers more opportunities to women than any other society. Good training and future success, love of humanity and protection of helpless little ones.

A splendid opportunity for broad-minded and sympathetic women to join this great fraternal chain of one hundred and eighty-six thousand women banded together for the betterment of their own sex. This Organizaton has a national reputation for this great work in the interest of women, and has already paid into homes of deceased and distressed members over twelve million dollars, every dollar going into some home in time of want and distress. We cannot begin to record the deeds of loving kindness and sympathy that have gone hand in hand with these disbursements.

This Organization has risen to high position in Fraternal Insurance through the hearty co-operation of its members and has built up by the management of its officers, a reserve of over eight million dollars.

The Woman's Benefit Association of the Maccabees was founded in Michigan by Michigan women in 1892; the cornerstone of its own building, laid in Port Huron, October 22, 1915, being the first woman's benefit association in the world to erect its own building.

Your loved ones are protected by our death benefits; we will see that you have proper burial with our burial benefits. We will take care of you when sick through sick benefits and hospital service.

MODERN TEACHING IS SCORED BY GOVERNOR

Ferris Declares Weakest Point Is in Arithmatic.

CALUMET, MICH. — Our schools have made little headway in arithmetic in thirty years. Authorities would change the system, but public sentiment is against it. The average business man can't multiply, subtract, divide or add. Schools have no business fooling with arithmetic in the first, second, third or fourth grades. Eliminate useless questions. Teach some multiplication, not much long division and much short division. Eliminate the teaching of tables. People should go out in the world and find out if things aren't done in every way better than in the schoolroom.

These are the Ferrisisms on "Arithmetic" which Governor W. N. Ferris gave out to 1,000 teachers from Houghton and Keweenaw counties in an institute held at the Calumet High school.

The executive, who founded the Ferris institute and who is still head of that school, told his hearers that arithmetic had been neglected more than any other study in the schools and that it was about time that a change was made. He pointed to the poorness of the average man in adding to prove his contention.

WOMAN REAL FIRE HEROINE

Carries Infirm Man Down Flight of Stairs to Safe Place.

DETROIT, MICH. — John Haddock, father of Patrolman Ray Haddock of the Sixth Precinct, owes his life to the strength and courage of Mrs. John M. Scruts, who lives in the flat below the Haddocks at 168 Maybury avenue.

Mrs. Haddock went to look for something in the clothes closet of the room where her husband was lying in bed, too ill to move. She struck a match and the clothing caught fire. The blaze spread quickly and in a few moments the room was in flames. Mrs. Scruts, hearing her neighbor's cry of alarm, rushed upstairs, seized Mr. Haddock and, lifting him bodily, carried him downstairs and out of doors to safety. Firemen arrived soon after and extinguished the blaze.

AUTO VICTIMS TAKEN HOME

Mt. Clemens Football Players, Hurt at Richmond, Are Moved.

RICHMOND, MICH. — The victims of the auto accident, in which two members of the Mt. Clemens High school football team and their girl friends were injured, who had been too ill to be moved at the time their car was wrecked, were removed to their homes. Charles Nicholson suffered a broken leg. His brother, Roy, was injured about the head and body.

The three young women in the party, high school girls from Mt Clemens, Misses Pansy Ormerod, Katherine Broderick and Esther Miller, were not badly hurt, except in the latter's case. Miss Miller suffered a broken hip.

MICHIGAN TEACHER KILLED

Two Others Are Injured When Auto Skids on Sharp Curve.

DETROIT — Miss Nellie O'Connor was killed when an automobile in which she was riding crashed into a telegraph pole two miles west of Wayne. She was first assistant of the Houghton school and her home was in Mt. Morris, Mich.

Misses Mary E. Lennon and Alice Sheehan, Detroit high school teachers, were injured. The accident happened on a sharp curve and is believed to have resulted from the machine skidding.

MICHIGAN EX-SENATOR DIES

Charles Smith Passe Away at Calumet, Aged 76.

Dr. Koo was graduated with high honors from Columbia university in 1908 a year ahead of his class. He was one of the first of the students to be sent to America by the government of China through the Boxer rebellion fund and acquitted himself with great credit.

SEVEN KILLED WHEN TRAIN STRIKES AUTO

Mother, Five Children and Sister Are Victims.

MOUNT CLEMENS, MICH. — A mother, her five children and her sister were instantly killed and one man was fatally injured at Fraser Crossing of the Grand Trunk railroad, five miles from here, when a Grand Trunk passenger train struck an automobile driven by William Stoldt, a farmer of Avon Township.

The dead are: Mrs. Rachel Stoldt, Avon township, forty-four, mother of the children and wife of William Stoldt; Mrs. Minnie Engle, forty-seven, Romeo, sister of Mrs. Stoldt; Pearl Stoldt, seventeen years old; Esther Stoldt, fifteen years old; Hazel Stoldt, twelve years old; Mabel Stoldt, ten years old; Martha Stodlt, six years old.

The seven bodies were strewn along the railway tracks for a distance of a quarter of a mile. The train stopped and a hasty examination showed that probably all were dead with the exception of the man in the party. He was barely able to speak, giving his name as William Stoldt, a farmer of Avon township. He was taken on the train and brought to Washington hospital here, where it is said he will die.

Just how the accident occurred is all conjecture, but there are indications of carelessness on the part of the driver, Stoldt.

LUMBERMEN TO TALK TRADE

Hardwood Manufacturers from Wisconsin and Michigan to Meet.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—Men who produce $15,000,000 worth of finished material every year from their holdings in Wisconsin and northern Michigan will meet in Milwaukee Tuesday to discuss the problems which confront their trade, that of the manufacture of hemlock and hardwood, when the Northern Hemlock and Hardwood Manufacturers' association will hold a convention.

Plans were made on Friday for the convention and for a banquet Tuesday night, at which the lumbermen will put their problems before the builders, architects and others interested in the use of Wisconsin and Michigan wood for Wisconsin and Michigan buildings. There will, in addition to the banquet, be three sessions of the visitors, and the sessions will be open not only to members but those who are interested in the problems of the trade.

Husband Says Wife's Pup Bit Off Much of His Weight.

DETROIT, MICH. — Has a wife the right to keep a big bulldog at her side night and day to guard her from her husband's kisses? That is the question put up to the court by Edwin Batters, who, in his petition for divorce from Margaret Batters, says he loves her dearly, but that she was so shy that she got a bulldog to chew chunks out of his anatomy every time he ventured to embrace and kiss her.

Batters further cites that he lost considerable weight from the worry or from furnishing free lunches for the dog.

GERMAN PLOT TO DISABLE BOATS

Officer in Kaiser's Army and Aids Confess Conspiracy.

WIDESPREAD PLOT SUSPECTED

Robert Fay, German Officer, Planned to Attach Explosives to Ships Carrying Munitions to Allies and Disable Them at Sea—Scheme Seems More Fantastic Than Practical.

NEW YORK. — A tall, boyish looking German officer, who has faced the fire of the French 75 centimeter guns in the present war and won the iron cross, sat smiling and collected behind the bars of a cell in Weehawken police station and told how, with the permission of the German secret officers, he had been working for six months on plans in this country to tie mines to munition-carrying ships sailing from this country. He wished, he said, merely to incapacitate the ships and not to kill anybody. The officer—it was Lieutenant Robert Fay, of the 16th Prussian infantry, who with Walter Scholz had been arrested on Sunday—is the central figure in a carefully devised scheme for stopping the export of arms and ammunition to the allies. As a result of the information which the New York police, the Weehawken police and the secret service obtained in their talk with Fay and Scholz and their investigations the net has gathered four men accused of being in the plot. One other man is sought.

Five Men in Plot.

These five men—including Paul Daesche, a young and aristocratic German of twenty-one, who was arrested in Jersey City in the morning at day break, and Dr. Otto Kienzle, a clock maker of 309 West 86th street, are accused of plotting to destroy oversea liners. Dr. Kienzle, who has charge of the Kienzle Clock company of 41 Park Row and who is the son of a German owning a large clock works in the fatherland, was arrested in the afternoon upon a federal warrant. There still remains to be arrested a man named Max Breitung.

Think Plot Has Ramifications.

While, however, Lieutenant Fay and Scholz say they alone are to blame in the conspiracy to disable ships laden with munitions, and that they have been working absolutely on their own authority, the federal authorities in Washington are not inclined to take this view of the situation. Fay asserts he is the front and head of the whole scheme. Scholz says he is merely a hired assistant and a German reservist. From Washington comes the report that the federal authorities have under investigation similar plots by other groups similar to the one disclosed through the activity of the New York police. Fay asserts he acted with the permission of the German secret service. The federal authorities are awaiting to se if the men in the present group had any connection with other German agents spread throughout the country. Significance is attached to the fact that Fay had expected to start today for Massachusetts on important business.

A great mass of German correspondence seized among the effects of Fay and Scholz was being translated and studied. The local authorities insist that there is no clue leading from either Fay or Scholz to any persons connected indirectly with Frank Holt, who shot J. P. Morgan.

Big Facts Set Forth.

Out of the evidence discovered by the municipal and federal agents—the hundreds of pounds of materials that are the ingredients of high explosives, steel caskets for containing the explosives, delicate mechanical devices that detonate bombs and mines, percussion caps and wires, and hundreds of instruments used in the manufacture of those articles—big facts were set forth. Those facts were strengthened by apparently frank statements of both Fay and Scholz.

CZAR AUTHORIZES BIG LOAN

Imperial Ukase Orders Credit Transaction of Near $3,000,000,000.

PETROGRAD — An imperial ukase authorizes the Russian minister of finance to transact on foreign markets credit operations amounting to 5,500,000,000 rubles ($2,750,000,000), and also to issue abroad the necessary treasury bonds in pounds, francs and dollars.

Explaining his plans, Pierre Bark, the finance minister, said the whole fiscal system of Russia would be reformed on the basis of the income tax, which already had been approved by the duma and now was under consideration by the council of the empire.

SERBS' POSITION GROWING WORSE

Bulgars Capture Ridge Near Pirot in Advance.

FRENCH GAIN BIG VICTORIES

Soldiers of Republic Defeat Bulgarians in Three Battles—Bulgars and Teutons Only Within Few Miles of Junction—Bulgarian Port Bombarded by Allies Still Burning.

LONDON, ENG. — Each succeeding telegram from the Balkans tells of the increasing gravity of Serbia's position. To the north the Bulgarian and Austro-German forces are within thirty-five miles of joining hands. To the south, half of Serbian Macedonia is in possession of the Bulgarians. This would mean that the invaders have in their hands nearly all the means of communication.

Athens reports that the Greek crown prince has gone to Saloniki, where he will view the inpouring stream of French and British fighting men. It is thought here that the strength of the forces ultimately landed may decide whether Greece will throw her lot with the allies.

Bulgars Nearing Germans.

Although the Serbians officially have not admitted the loss of Uskup, the English press accepts it as a fact, as it does the announcement that the Germans have crossed the Danube at Orsava. This means that, with the Bulgarians holding Prahovo, union of their forces with the Austrians and Germans in this quarter is not far off. Unless the Serbians or their allies can strike a sudden blow the first link in the chain from Berlin to Constantinople will be forged.

Bulgars Capture Mountain.

BERLIN — Capture by the Bulgarians of a mountain ridge twelve miles north of Pirot, a Serbian town twenty miles west of the Bulgar frontier on the Nish-Constantinople railroad, was officially announced.

Furthern advances for the Austro-German troops on the Serbian front, including a successful forward movement by the new force which has crossed the Danube near the Roumanian frontier, were also announced.

French Rout Bulgars.

LONDON, ENG. — French troops routed three divisions of Bulgarians on Saturday on the front of Gradek-Volandove-Rabrovo, in southeastern Serbia, according to a dispatch filed at Saloniki Oct. 24 to the Havas News agency. The Bulgarian forces, the dispatch adds, were decimated.

Another French Victory.

French troops also gained a brilliant success by affecting junction with the Serbs at Krivolak, says a dispatch to the Petit Parisien from Athens.

Report Bulgars Fleeing.

A dispatch from Saloniki says: "French troops operating against the Bulgarians are following up their victory of last Friday and are now threatening Strumitsa, Bulgaria, to which place the Bulgarians retired in disorder. The French are now holding a line running from Barakli to Rabrovo.

"The Bulgarians suffered heavily, in the recent engagement from the fire of the French three-inch guns."

Bulgarian Port Still Burning.

Fire set by shells hurled into Dedeagatch by the allies' fleet is still raging there after destroying a large part of the Bulgarian port, according to advices from Saloniki.

WAS JUST CIGARETTE; CULVER'S HORSES DIE

Smoker Blamed for Incinerating 60 Fine Black Animals.

CULVER, IND. — It was just a cigarette, but it broke Culver's heart. Smoldering near a few wisps of hay in the commodious barn which housed the animals of the black horse troop, on the broad acreage of Culver military academy, the cigarette, supposed to have been dropped by a student or barn employe, fired the building.

The spurts of flames flung their reflections to the dormitories. The cadets were aroused. Three hundred ran out into the crisp, frosty air, not to escape the danger of a fire, but to rescue the pride of the school. It was too late. The place was all aflame. The sixty-five sleek, jetty quadrupeds who made up the mounts of the black horse troop and all the accoutrements of the troop were consumed.

Germans Retire at Courland.

LONDON, ENG.—The Germans in Courland are said to have retired from several important positions before the Russian forces which have been landed on the northern coast. Troops of the czar have been pushing forward for two days, says a dispatch from Copenhagen.

Muskegon Ex-Mayor Dies.

MUSKEGON, MICH. — John L. Torrent, eighty-two years old, one of Muskegon's former lumber barons and a former mayor of the city, died at his home here after a short illness. Mr. Torrent at one time operated eight saw mills in this city, and has also owned mills in Manistee, Ludington, Whitehall, Traverse City and Sault Ste. Marie.

Kills Bear, Then Flees.

MUNISING, MICH. — When James Clark, fifteen years old, met a large female bear face to face, he did not run until he had fired a load of buckshot at her. When he did start, he did not stop until he had reached home, half a mile away. The bear was found dead the next morning.

JANE MOORE as "The Stenographer" in "A PAIR OF SIXES" at The Bradley Opera House, next Wednesday Nov. 3.

"A PAIR OF SIXES"

At the Bradley Opera House, Wednesday, November 3.

The Bradley will have a noteworthy attraction next week in "A Pair of Sixes", the farce which ran for almost a year at the Long Acre Theatre, New York, and which excited a furore of fun and praise that has never been exceeded in the history of metropolitan theatricals In what has been termed "our national indoor game", a pair of sixes is not considered much of a hand, but the affair arranged by the author, Edward Peple, backed by a queen of hearts, has created a farce that has been declared "a royal flush" in the matter of fun. It has proven to be the biggest farce winner in the history of the English-speaking stage and the success which it has won in New York has been duplicated in Chicago and all the other cities where it has been presented. It has been received everywhere with praise, whose expression has been entirely in the superlative.

The story deals with the fortunes of two partners in the pill manufacturing business. Each claims to be the head and brains of the enterprise. After much squabbling, they agree to disagree and through the services of their attorney, decide to settle the dispute as to who shall be the head of the firm, by playing a show-down hand of poker. A Pair of Sixes wins. By the terms of the contract, the losing partner becomes the other man's servant for a period of one year. The latter is installed as butler in the winning partner's household, where his position is made the more embarrassing by the efforts of a funny Cockney servant, who makes violent love to him and is determined to capture him as a husband To add to the complications of his position, his sweetheart arrives as a guest in the household. He is unable to explain to her his presence as a menial for fear of sacrificing his share in the business by divulging the secret agreement which he has made. The entangling situation creates no end of amusing situations and the hilarious fun moves along with the speediest action until his clever little fiancee words out the means of his escape.

A complete scenic production is carried for the play.

"A Pair of Sixes" will be at the Bradley Opera House, Tecumseh, next Wednesday, November 3.

THE HIGH SCHOOL

A 1916 model of a Mitchell (?) was seen wandering around the High School Tuesday morning. The noticeable improvements over the former models was the red "head light"

Monthly examinations are in full force at the present writing.

Six of the High School girls must be fond of walking or else there is some great attraction in Clinton. They took this pleasant walk Wednesday night, returning on the 9 o'clock.

The school inspector visited here the other day and was very much pleased with the work being done

If one has ever read "Hoher als die Kirche," an interesting German story, they will remember the lone song of Hans Liefrink which he sang to his sweetheart Maria. This, however, is the translation by a member of the German II class:

On the thorn of the rose, on the thorn of the rose,
Right there my heart was caught
And, if to the little rose tree you come,
Sweet one, can't you pick it off?
Much fruit doth bear the fruit tree
For they wish you to please,
But no such fruit, You bet your neck!
Has yet been borne by trees.
Sweet Honey-bunch, please yank it off.
Don't let it too long stay,
For it must, By Heck! in the blazing sun,
Dry up and blow away.

RELIEVES THE WORST CASES OF CATARRH

Think "Hyomei the Most Wonderful Treatment for Catarrh Ever Discovered."

Do not try to cure catarrh by using sprays of lotions; it cannot be cured in that manner. The only way in which this too common disease can be fully relieved is through a direct application to the affected parts that will kill the bacilli of catarrh and prevent their growth.

Breathing the air of Hyomei is the only known method of treatment that can really accomplish this. It is the simplest, most pleasant and probably the most reliable treatment for catarrh that has ever been discovered.

The complete Hyomei outfit is inexpensive and consists of an inhaler, dropper and sufficient Hyomei to last several weeks. This will effect instant relief in ordinary cases, but for chronic and deep-seated cases of catarrh, longer use may be necessary, and then an extra bottle of Hyomei can be obtained for a trifling sum. It is not alone the best (it might be called the only) method of treating catarrh, but it is also the most economical.

C. A. Wright & Son have so much confidence in the power of Hyomei to relieve catarrh, that they will for a limited time, sell this medicine, under their personal guarantee to refund the money if the purchaser can say that it did not benefit. adv

LONG TERM

28 Years of Experience Give Weight to Statement.

Of all the external ills that Michigan horses can be subject to, there are few that a good liniment cannot heal. For instance, H. J. Gamlin of Orwell, Ohio says: In the 23 years of my experience with horses, I have cured collar boils, shoe boils scratches, wire cuts with a liniment which has never failed to heal any sore. This remedy is 'Hanford's Balsam of Myrrh." adv

14 KNOWN DEAD IN BIG FACTORY FIRE

Twelve of Victims In Pittsburg Blaze Are Girls.

PITTSBURGH — Twelve girls and two men are known to have lost their lives and a number of other employes of the Union Pacific Box company are missing as the result of a fire which destroyed the company's factory on the North Side. Some of the bodies recovered were so badly burned as to make identification difficult. It is believed the death list will reach twenty-two.

The fire started in the feed store of James Brown & Co., on the first floor of the three-story building in which the box factory was located, and burned so fiercely that escape by means of the stairways and fire escapes was cut off. A number of girls were caught as they jumped from the building, but many of them were injured. Firemen still searching the ruins feared that more bodies would be found, as not all the twenty-six girls and six men employed in the factory have been accounted for.

Knows Nothing of New Archbishopric.

MARQUETTE, MICH. — "I have heard nothing about printed stories to the effect that Michigan may be made an archbishopric, with several new bishoprics," said the Rt. Rev. Frederick Eis, bishop of the Marquette-Soo diocese, "and there isn't a word officially which has come to us." This was his statement concerning a printed article which held that the upper peninsula would be detached from the Milwaukee district and be made a part of the territory under a new prelate.

UNITED DOCTORS SPECIALISTS

Will be at the Barrett Hotel
Monday, November 15, 1915
ONE DAY ONLY
HRS 10 A. M. TO 8 P. M.

Remarkable Success of These Talented Physicians in the Treatment of Chronic Diseases.

Offer their Services
Free of Charge.

The United Doctors, licensed by the State of Michigan for the treatment of deformities and all nervous and chronic diseases of men, women and children, offer to all who call on this trip, consultation, examination, advice free, making no charge whatever except the actual cost of treatment. All that is asked in return for these valuable services is that every person treated will state the result obtained to their friend, and thus prove to the sick and afflicted in every city and locality, that at last treatments have been discovered that are reasonably sure and certain in their effect.

These doctors are among America's leading stomach and nerve specialists and are experts in the treatment of chronic diseases and so great and wonderful have been their results that in many cases it is hard to find the dividing line between skill and miracle.

Diseases of the stomach, intestines, liver, blood, skin, nerves, heart, spleen, kidneys or bladder, rheumatism, sciatica, diabetes, bed-wetting, tape worm, leg ulcers, weak lungs and those afflicted with long standing, deep seated, chronic diseases, that have baffled the skill of the family physicians, should not fail to call. Deafness often has been cured in sixty days.

According to their system no more operations for appendicitis, gall stones, tumors, goiter, piles, etc., as these diseases are treated without operation or hypodermic injection.

They were among the first in America to earn the name of "Bloodless Surgeons," by doing away with the knife with blood and with all pain in the successful treatment of these dangerous diseases.

If you have kidney or bladder troubles bring a two ounce bottle of your urine for chemical analysis and microscopic examination.

No matter what your ailment may be, no matter what others may have told you, no matter what experience you may have had with other physicians, it will be to your advantage to see them at once. Have it forever settled in your mind. If your case is incurable they will give you such advice as may relieve and stay the disease. Do not put off this duty you owe yourself or friends or relatives who are suffering because of your sickness, as a visit at this time may help you.

Worn-out and run-down men or women, no matter what your ailment, consult them. It costs you nothing.

Remember, this last free offer is for this visit only.

Married ladies come with their husbands and minors with their parents.

WEAK, AILING CHILD

Made Strong By Delicious Vinol

Lakeport, N. H.—"Our little girl 8 years of age was in a debilitated, run-down condition and had a stubborn cough so she was weak and ailing all the time. Nothing helped her until we tried Vinol. Then her appetite increased and she is strong and well, and I wish other parents of weak, delicate children would try Vinol."—GEO. A. COLLINS.

This is because Vinol contains the tissue building, strengthening cod liver elements and the tonic iron which a weak and run-down system needs.

UNIVERSAL

Insist that you see the name on every sack. A name that carries a guarantee of freshness, even work, a cement that has the largest sale, a cement that has been used on nearly every large contract in Tecumseh for several year.

You may be offered some other brand or a cement without a brand at all, still insist upon UNIVERSAL and you will be satisfied.

Some of these other kinds may be offered to you for less money, they may cost less and might be accordingly cheaper in quality, they might ruin your work. Why run the chance?

DO YOU WANT TO STAY POOR?

Get out of your head the idea that Poverty is something you cannot help. Just so long as you stick to that theory, just so long is poverty going to stick to you. People in most cases are poor because they are too indolent—too careless—too thoughtless. Sit down and figure what you are spending—and what you can do without. Not the things that cost dollars—but the articles that cost pennies. How many pennies do you waste a week? Multiply that by 52—multiply that in turn by 50. You will then get some idea why people stay poor all their lives. Fifty years of waste will turn even a millionaire into a pauper—while 50 years of economy will make a poor man rich.

FRANK R. HURST DEAD

Former College and "Y" Athlete Succumbs to Anaemia Attack

Frank R. Hurst, insurance agent identified with the Mutual Benefit Insurance Co and well known for his college and Y. M. C. A. activities throughout Michigan, died suddenly at his home, 2[illegible]0 Clairmount avenue, on Wednesday noon, Oct. 27, of pernicious anaemia. He had been ill only a few weeks. He was about 36 years old

Mr Hurst was a graduate of Alma college and was one of that school's best foot ball players. After coming to Detroit he became prominent in athletics through refereeing football games He was a member of the Presbyterian church and a Mason.

He was one of the most successful of the younger insurance agents in Detroit, ranking very high with his company.

It is with deep regret that we hear of the death of Mr. Hurst. While county secretary for the Y. M. C. A. he resided in Tecumseh and won a host of friends by his genial personality. He was a friend to all the young boys and entered into their sports and pleasures with a hearty zest. They will grieve to hear of his passingaway.

COMMERCE CLUB MEETING

A meeting of the Commerce Club was held Thursday evening at K. of P. Hall for the purpose of discussing the trunk line road proposition. The meeting was well attended and was called to order by Secretary H. S. Temple. Mr. Temple stated the object of the meeting and introduced J. H. Smith who told the Club of the proposed extension of the trunk line road running north from the Adrian corporation line, passed the Industrial Home to Birdsall, thence north on the town line to the Monroe Turnpike. Mr. Smith stated that the state highway commissioner had practically given his consent to have the road built east from the Town line on the Monroe Pike to Tecumseh's Corporation line.

If this road is built it would make a state road commencing from Adrian's north corporation line and running via of the angling road to Birdsall, thence north along the town line to the Monroe Pike and thence east on the Monroe Pike to the west line of Tecumseh's corporation line and route the travel from Adrian and the south through Tecumseh to connect with the Clinton Pike north.

W. A. Beebe and Dr. O. N. Rice of Tipton were present and Mr. Beebe was called on to tell the Club what had been done by the people in his section in regard to this trunk road. He stated that he had in his possession a petition favoring the trunk line which had been circulated along the proposed town line route and which was signed by every property owner along the line but two. He thought Tecumseh people could have this strip of road about two and a half miles built into Tecumseh for the asking.

Two resolutions were passed by the club as follows:

First: That the Tecumseh Commerce Club approves of the trunk line road as proposed, commencing from the north line of the City of Adrian, thence along the angling road to Birdsall, thence along the town line to the Monroe Pike.

Second: That the trunk line be extended from the intersection of the town line and the Monroe Pike east along the Monroe Pike to the west line of Tecumseh's corporation line.

If this road is built it would draw a double reward from the State, which we understand would be nearly enough to pay for the construction of a 16 foot road.

UNIQUE PARTY

A most unique party was that held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J J. Orr Monday evening when some twenty of the young people were invited for the evening and also to bring rakes with them. The first on the program was the raking of the lawn surrounding the home. When this was done the leaves were heaped in huge piles, and set afire.

The company regaled themselves meanwhile with roasting apples, frankforts etc. "Hot dog" sandwiches furnished part of the refreshments.

All sorts of out-of-doors games were played from pom-pom-pull-away to hide and seek. Later when the fires burned low they went indoors and passed an hour in singing old songs and dancing. It was sure a jolly evening and everyone made merry.

INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

In the Jackson Patriot of October 28, we find an item from Stockbridge telling of an auto accident in which Mrs. H. C. Daniels of Tecumseh was the victim, having both arms broken and her face badly cut.

Miss Vera Boyce of Stockbridge was driving the car and in going up a hill it overturned with the above result.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniels left town a few days ago for a visit with friends in Jackson and vicinity and their friends regret to hear of this unfortunate accident.

SOME GOOD ADVICE

Strengthened by Tecumseh Experiences.

Kidney disease is to dangerous to neglect. At the first sign of backache, headache, dizziness or urinary disorders, you should give the weakened kidneys prompt attention. Eat little meat, take things easier and use a reliable kidney tonic. There's no other kidney medicine so well recommended as Doan's Kidney Pills. Tecumseh people rely on them. Here's one of the many statements from Tecumseh people.

W. W. Shurtz, Kilbuck St., Tecumseh, says: "I have taken Doan's Kidney Pills at different times during the past ten years and they have always given relief from distressing symptoms of kidney complaint. I have procured my supply of Doan's Kidney Pills from Wright & Son's Drug Store and my experience has been so satisfactory that I willingly give this public account of it."

OVER TWO YEARS LATER, Mr. Shurtz added: "I willingly reendorse Doan's Kidney Pills. I have found this medicine acts just as represented."

Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills the same that Mr. Shurtz had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props. Buffalo, N. Y. adv

Preacher was Laid Up

Rev. C. M. Knighton, Havanna, Fla. writes: "For three months I suffered intense pain in the kidneys and back which at times laid me up entirely. I used 1½ bottles of Foley Kidney Pills and all the pain disappeared. I feel as if 20 years had been added to my life." Relieves rheumatism, backache, sore muscles, stiff joints. ESCAPES PAUPER'S DEATH; LOSES LIFE

Spanish War Veteran Dies on Way to Soldiers's Home.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Nov. 1.—Just as he was about to board the train at Lawton which was to take him from the poorhouse to the National Soldiers' home in Milwaukee, where he prayed that he might go to escape a pauper's death, William E. Johnson, veteran of the Spanish-American war, breathed his last.

Johnson's case is a pathetic one. A veteran of the Spanish-American war, [illegible] A painter by trade, he has wandered from place to place until a few weeks ago, when too weak to go further, he was taken to a hospital in South Haven. Penniless, friendless, bereft of every relative for the past eleven years, he was finally sent to the Van Buren county poor farm, where the members of Westnedge comp found him last week.

Commander Fred Appeldoorn had him removed to the county hospital and made application for his admission to the soldiers' home in Milwaukee.

Pitifully the victim pleaded that he might be spared a pauper's death. Despite the fact that he was told he would not be strong enough to go to Milwaukee he was determined to make the effort.

Before Pet Is Killed Stork Beats Out the Medic.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Nov. 1.—While the stork awaited a physician's aid within the house, Dr. H. E. Wolfe was barred from the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. Benjamin by the family dog.

Ordinarily the dog was gentle even to strangers, according to members of the family, but the police had to kill it before Dr. Wolfe could enter the home. The stork left a baby before aid arrived.

CHRISTIAN "U" FOR CAIRO

Definite Steps Taken to Found Institution to Cost $2,000,000.

New York, Nov. 1.—Definite steps have been taken to found a Christian university at Cairo, Egypt, at a cost of $2,000,000 by a group of prominent men from various sections of the country, who have been in session for two days at the Hotel Gramaton, Bronxville. George Innes, of Philadelphia, one of the secretaries, announced that the charter for the university has been perfected under the rules of the board of regents of the university of New York state. Of all the states in the Union, New York state was chosen as the place to secure the foreign charter.

The constitution and by-laws have all been drawn up and the work of carrying out the university plan will be started at once. Even before the charter was formulated $200,000 was raised principally in Pittsburgh to carrying out the project.

Aurora, Ill., Chemical Works Destroyed; Was Making High Explosives.

Aurora, Ill., Nov. 1.—Fire in the plant of the W. F. Jobbins Chemical company, which manufactures glycerin for use in high explosives, caused damage estimated at $100,000. Vice President Ben Randolph, after a thorough inspection of the scene, said that the fire was of incendiary origin.

Less than a year ago the company's glycerin refining plant was destroyed with a loss of $760,000.

FOUR BUSINESS MEN DIE IN AUTO CRASH

Train Strikes Car Killing Marshfield, Wis., Leading Citizens.

Marshfield, Wis., Nov. 1.—An automobile trip in a new machine cost the lives of four of Marshfield's best known business men when the car was struck by a fast train at a depressed railroad crossing near Unity. The dead:

Peter Daul, aged forty-seven, proprietor Eagle hotel; Philip Adler, aged sixty-five, owner Adler Opera house and several business blocks, director in two banks; Robert H. Schroeder, aged forty-three, alderman and leader of reform movement in city politics for last two years; Charles A. Githens, aged forty-two, real estate man.

All except Daul were killed instantly. Daul lived ten minutes. The party was on its way to Dorchester. Near Unity the road crosses the Soo line in a cut, about ten feet deep, with brush concealing the track on each side.

IOWAN KILLED BY LUNATIC

Paranoiac, Thought Harmless, Beats Helpless Patient to Death.

Chicago, Nov. 1.—Another "harmless lunatic" killed a man in Chicago. John Stockdale, seventy-two years old, a retired farmer of Lake Park, Ia., was lying in his bed in a ward of the Garfield Park sanitarium at 3813 Washington boulevard when Oliver Bennett, a paranoiac patient from Beloit, Wis., entered from the room [illegible]

Bennett eyed Stockdale for a moment and then, with an inarticulate cry, seized a chair and advanced toward the bed. Stockdale turned to him in alarm, but before he could move from bed Bennett dealt him a crushing blow over the head with the chair. Stockdale's nose was broken, his left eye knocked out of its socket, and his skull fractured. He died within an hour.

TURKS TORPEDO ATTACKING SHIP

Constantinople Says Battleship Has Been Torpedoed.

WAS SHELLING BULGAR COAST

Disaster Said to Have Occurred to Czar's Fleet on Western Side of Black Sea—Vessel Carried 731 Officers and Men—Not Reported Whether Crew Was Lost.

London, Nov. 1.—Russia's effort to bombard the Bulgar coast and land an invading army to aid the Serbians has cost it one of the largest warships of its Black Sea fleet, according to an official report from Constantinople, reaching here.

The statement says a Turkish submarine attacked the Czar's fleet on the western side of the Black Sea on October 27 and torpedoed a battleship of the Pantelimon type.

Reports from Berlin stated that the Turkish fleet was engaging the Russians in a naval battle of extreme violence. Dispatches from Bucharest told of the departure from Odessa and Sebastopol of great fleets of Russian transports, convoyed by warships bearing troops for the invasion of Bulgaria.

The Turkish statement complains that the Russians persist in using hospital ships for transporting troops and also charges that tents used for military purposes fly the Red Cross flag.

Complement of 731.

There are three battleships in the Russian navy of the Pantelimon type. They are the Pantelimon, Ievstafi and Ioann Zlatousa. They have a displacement of 12,800 tons and a peace complement of 731 officers and men. Each carries four 12-inch, four 8-inch and twelve 6-inch guns, aside from fourteen 12-pounders, two machine guns and four torpedo tubes. The Pantelimon was reported sunk several months ago but this was denied from Petrograd.

The Turkish statement makes no mention of the fate of the crew of the torpedoed warship.

HESPERIAN WAS TORPEDOED

So State Department Announces After Expert Examines Shell Fragment.

Washington, Nov. 1.—Secretary Lansing has announced that the navy department indicated that the fragment of the engine of war which sank the Allan liner Hesperian was a part of a torpedo. The German government has persistently denied that the Hesperian was torpedoed. In the opinion of United States naval experts the fragment could not have been a part of a marine mine.

The secretary said the result of the navy department's investigation would immediately be communicated either to the German government directly or to Ambassador Bernstorff.

Corunna, Mich., Nov. 1.—Liquor confiscated from local option law violators will not hereafter be destroyed by the county authorities. On recommendation of the prosecuting attorney, at the request of Superintendent Clarence Case, of the county poor farm, it will be used hereafter at the county infirmary for medical purposes.

$15,000 Fire on Farm.

Tekonsha, Mich., Nov. 1.—Fire destroyed five large barns on the 300-acre farm of R. W. Osborn, one mile and a half west of Tekonsha, causing a loss of $15,000. There was no insurance. Overheating of the crop from 25 acres of beans is blamed for the fire.

POISON GAS NEARLY GETS MRS. BOLLING

President's Fiancee's Mother Narrowly Escapes Death.

Washington, Nov. 1.—Mrs. W. Bolling, mother of President Wilson's fiancee, with her son, Wm. H. Bolling, and his wife narrowly escaped death from hydrocyanic gas poisoning here in their rooms in the Cordova apartment house.

Miss Louise Roberts, twenty-three years old, living in an apartment directly under that occupied by Mrs. Norman Galt's mother and other relatives, was killed by the gas, which escaped from a basement room where it was being used as an insectide. The gas penetrated to the halls of the building and filtered into the room occupied by Miss Roberts, causing her death. The Bollings and other families in the apartment house were aroused by the fumes and upon making an investigation found Miss Roberts had succumbed.

Through the discovery of the fumes at an early hour the members of the Bolling family suffered no more harm than nausea, and counted themselves exceedingly fortunate that they had escaped.

SHIPS TO COMPLY WITH LAW

Seamen's Act Operative Thursday; War Makes Situation Easier.

New York, Nov. 1.—The seamen's law becomes operative in regard to American owned vessels next Thursday and [illegible] lines plying out of New York have been busily preparing for it until now they are practically ready.

As far as can be learned all the steamship companies plan to comply with the law, at least so long as they are able to. The enormous demand for American bottoms and the brisk business in freight which American registered vessels have been doing since shortly after the beginning of the war offer a ray of hope to the steamship men. Conditions are much better than normal, and because of this the burdens of the new bill are more lightly felt than they would be in usual times.

SAZANOFF OUT OF CABINET

M. Goremykin Will Become Chancellor in Russ Government.

London, Nov. 1.—Following the resignation of the Theophile Delcasse, French foreign minister, it is announced by the Boerse Gazette of Petrograd that Sergius Sazanoff, the Russian minister of foreign affairs, has surrendered his office. Emperor Nicholas, it is said, has accepted his resignation and it is understood in the Russian capital that Premier Jean Goremykin soon will be appointed chancellor of the empire with supreme control of foreign affairs.

M. Goremykin's coadjutor will be M. N. N. Shebeky, formerly Russian ambassador at Vienna, the Boerse Gazette adds. Alexei Khvostoff, minister of justice, will become premier, the newspaper says.

Predicts Great Car Shortage.

Alpena, Mich., Nov. 1.—That the coming winter will see the greatest car shortage in the history of the Detroit and Mackinac railway was the prediction of James D. Hawkes, vice president and general manager of the road, at the annual stockholders meeting here.

Berlin, Wis., Nov. 1.—George Berry of Redgranite in crossing the Chicago and North Western road tracks in an auto was struck by a freight train and killed.

M. C. HIRES GUARDS FOR CARS

Claim Is Made That Three of Strikers Have Returned.

Jackson, Mich., Nov. 1.—As a precautionary measure following the stripping of cards from freight cars in the Kalamazoo yards, the local Michigan Central officials placed 25 special officers on duty in the Jackson yards. Officials declare that anyone found tampering with shipments of freight in any way will be prosecuted under provisions of the interstate commerce act.

Three of the twelve freight office clerks who obeyed the strike order have returned to work. The places of the nine others have been permanently filled.

DROWNS IN HIS OWN WELL

Charlotte Man Tumbles In; Is Found by Little Son.

Charlotte, Mich., Nov. 1.—Fay Rullison, forty-eight, was drowned in four feet of water when he fell into the well near which he was working at his home.

His little son, going into the yard to call his father to dinner, discovered Rullison's feet protruding from the well. Rullison was employed in a local hardware store.

War Stranded Americans Who Won't Repay Uncle Sam.

YELLED LOUDLY ABOUT DUTY

But When It Comes to Fulfilling Their Duty Toward Their Benevolent Government They Hunt Their Holes—More Names Coming—Only Those Who Can and Won't.

Washington, Nov. 1.—The treasury department made public a list of names of citizens of the United States who called upon the government for aid to get them home from Europe when they found themselves stranded because of the war. The list contains the names of those who accepted aid and up to now have not reimbursed the government.

Statement by Treasury.

This is the statement issued by the treasury department:

"A number of persons who were caught in Europe at the time of the outbreak of the war in the summer of 1914 and to whom funds were advanced by the representatives of the United States government who were sent abroad or stationed abroad for that purpose have failed or refused to repay the money advanced them. It will be remembered that at that time a veritible panic overtook Americans who were in Europe and even though they had drafts or letters of credit they were unable to raise money on them.

$2,750,000 Sent to Stranded Americans.

"Representatives of the United States government in Europe were besieged by frantic Americans demanding that they be sent home and at once. Others clamored for money to provide themselves with food. The sacred duties of the American government to its citizens were appealed to. In this emergency congress acted. Two million, seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars was appropriated to relieve the necessities of American citizens abroad, with the provision that persons to whom relief was furnished should reimburse the United States if financially able to do so. Arrangements were made by cable by which our diplomatic and consular offices in Europe were provided with money to assist our citizens who came to them for relief. One million, five hundred thousand dollars in gold coin was loaded on the battleship Tennessee in New York harbor a few days after war was declared and sent to London, Paris, Berlin, Rome and other large cities of Europe, to be used in assisting our citibens. A large amount of money was advanced to persons asking relief and receipts or promises of repayment were taken from them.

Many Remain Unpaid.

"A considerable number of these obligations have been paid, but many still remain unpaid. Although there is no duty on the part of the government to look up the signers of these notes and demand payment, yet in the case of every person whose name appears on this list efforts has been made to find him through the post office. In many cases the persons could not be found or letters mailed to them were not answered.

"The collection of amounts due from these delinquents will be pushed where the person is fully able to repay the amount advanced. Each case is investigated and where the person is found to be financially able to repay the government the amount advanced it is the intention of the treasury department to make his name public. This list will be followed from time to time by other lists when it becomes apparent to the department that the persons who promises are held are refusing to pay though able to do so."

WHO'D EVER HAVE 'THUNK IT'

"Sid" Farrar, Old Ball Player, Is Prima Donna's Father.

New York, Nov. 1.—Miss Geraldine Farrar, the noted grand opera prima donna, early in the day raced to New York on board a special train to reach the bedside of her father, "Sid" Farrar, who had been removed hastily to Roosevelt hospital for an operation. At the same time Dr. James Russell, summoned from Virginia Hot Springs hurried to New York arriving at 8 o'clock. Within two hours the surgeon was operating upon Mr. Farrar.

The prima donna's father was once a famous baseball player. His determination to have his daughter's voice cultivated resulted in her becoming the greatest of modern "Carmens."

Milwaukee, Nov. 1.—Mrs. H. Rosamond Hawley, aged ninety-one, widow of the late R. B. "King" Hawley of abolitionist fame, died in Milwaukee.

"FAY" NOT GERMAN OFFICER

Berlin Announces It After Inquiry; But His Name Is "Fae."

Berlin, Nov. 1.—A special investigation by the German military authorities concerning Robert Fay, under arrest in New York charged with conspiracy to blow up ships carrying supplies for the entente allies, and who has declared he was a lieutenant in the German army, was followed by a statement from the authorities that there is not now and never was an officer called Fay in the German army.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system thereby destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Made Over Again

Mrs Jennie Miner, Davidson, Ind., writes: "I can truthfully say Foley Cathartic Tablets are the best I have ever used. They are so mild in action. I feel like I had been made over again." They keep stomach sweet, liver active and bowels regular. They banish constipation, indigestion, biliousness, sick headache. Sold everywhere in Tecumseh. adv

Sudden Muscular Aches and Pains—Need not be!

That is—if you use the right remedy. Sloan's Liniment is a real necessity in every home—for young and old. Its merit is praised in dozens of letters. A stiff neck from colds, children's sprains, those aching muscles, that sharp neuralgia pain—these find guaranteed relief in Sloan's Liniment. Every home meets with sudden aches and accidents. Your home needs a bottle. 25c 50c. and $1.00. adv

Complexion Blemish?

Yes, that sluggish liver often causes it. Dr. King's New Life Pills clears the complexion, throws off impurities and releases bile naturally and easily. Unless the bowels move freely and regularly all the powder in the world will not permanently cover "that muddy complexion." This laxative is mild yet effective. It does not gripe or sicken in its effects. You do not dispute the merits of Dr. King's New Life Pills. Start a treatment today. 25c. adv

Despondency Due to Indigestion

It is not at all surprising that persons who have indigestion become discouraged and despondent. Here are a few words of hope and cheer for them by Mrs. Blanche Bowers, Indiana, Pa. "For years my digestion was so poor that I could only eat the lightest foods. I tried everything that I heard of to get relief, but not until about a year ago when I saw Chamberlain's Tablets advertised and got a bottle of them, did I find the right treatment. I soon began to improve, and since taking a few bottles of them my digestion is fine." For sale by all dealers. adv

Cheaper than Home Made

You cannot make a good cough medicine at home for as little as you pay for Foley's Honey and Tar, nor can you be sure of getting the fresh, full strength, clean and pure materials. Did you ever hear of a homemade cough medicine doing the work that Foley's is doing every day all over the country? Sold everywhere in Tecumseh. adv

Colds do not Leave Willingly

Because a cold is stubborn is no reason why YOU should be. Instead of "wearing" it out, get sure relief by taking Dr. King's New Discovery. Dangerous bronchial and lung ailments often follow a cold which has been neglected at the beginning. As your body faithfully battles those cold germs, no better aid can be given than the use of this remedy. Its merit has been tested by old and young. Get a bottle today. 50c and $1.00. adv

Best Cough Medicine for Children

"Three years ago when I was living in Pittsburg one of my children had a hard cold and coughed dreadfully. Upon the advice of a druggist I purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and it benefited him at once. I find it the best cough medicine for children because it is pleasant to take. They do not object to taking it, writes Mrs. Lafayette Tuck, Homer City, Pa. This remedy contains no opium or other narcotic, and may be given to a child as confidently as to an adult. Sold by all dealers. adv

Irritable Children Often Need Kickapoo Worm Killer

There is a reason for the disagreeable and fretful nature of many children. Think of the unrest when the child's body is possessed by tiny worms sapping its vitality and clogging its functions. Whatever may be the cause—"that children have worms is a fact." Your child's peevishness and irritability has a cause. Give Kickapoo Worm Killer a chance and if worms are there this humanly harmless remedy will eliminate the annoying parasites. 25c. a box. adv

NEBRASKA IN THE LONG AGO.

What Is Now a Dry Plain Was Once the Bed of a Great Sea.

South of Platte river, opposite North Bend, Neb., the bluffs are conspicuous and consist of loess and glacial drift, overlying the Benton shale. This shale was formed when Nebraska was at the bottom of a sea. Evidence of the former presence here of sea water is found in the fossil shells of oysters and other animals that live in salt water and the bones of such sea monsters as the mosasaurus.

A comparison of these ancient conditions with those of the present day indicates the slow, continuous change that is now and always has been in progress. Where the tourist now travels comfortably over a dry plain these monsters sported in the water of the sea long ages ago. On the shores of this ancient sea lived equally strange beasts and birds of types that have long been extinct, and over its water sailed great flying dragons—the pterodactyls.

The animals of that day were strikingly different from those of the present. The birds, unlike any now living, had jaws armed with teeth. The monarchs of the air then were not in fact birds but flying reptiles, whose fore limbs had been modified into wings by the enormous elongation of fingers between which stretched thin membranes like the wings of a bat. These flying dragons, some of which had a stretch of eighteen feet, were carnivorous. They were animated engines of destruction that somewhat forcibly suggest the modern war airplanes, of which they were in a sense the prototypes.—Geological Survey Bulletin.

CORRECTED HIMSELF.

The Judge Made a Mistake and Was Quick to Admit It.

It was an action against an insurance company in a civil court to recover the value of a quartz mill that had been burned. The defendant introduced the former foreman of the mill, who testified that the plaintiff had admitted to him that he had set fire to the mill in order to get the insurance money.

The presiding judge knew the witness and had a very low opinion of his veracity. He also knew the plaintiff to be an honorable and upright man, wherefore he burst forth with the remark, "Everybody knows that to be a lie."

Whereupon the counsel for the insurance company sprang to his feet in a rage. "I object to the language of the court," said he, "and I demand that he be taken down and my objection entered in the record."

"Certainly, Colonel Brown," said the court. "You are quite right, and the court was altogether wrong in making such a remark. The court will endeavor to correct the effects of its inadvertence. Gentlemen of the jury, I instruct you that you must disregard my remark. You are the exclusive judges of the evidence and of the credibility of the witnesses, and it must have no weight with you that I commented as I did upon the fact that the witness told one of the most infernal lies that were ever uttered in a courtroom."—Case and Comment.

Placing His Kicks.

I do not wish to kick about this glad and smiling earth, for I have only landed here by circumstance of birth. I find it quite a pleasant place. I'm willing to remain. Please do not understand me as desiring to complain, and yet there are some changes I should like to recommend—not as a carping critic, but a calm, impartial friend.

The tropics are too beastly hot; the frigid zones too cold. Too much exertion is required to dig for iron and gold. The continents are far too large; the ocean's full of salt. The rocks and mountains constitute a very grievous fault. The scheme of raining water from an accidental cloud is wasteful, undependable and should not be allowed.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

CHOPSTICKS IN JAPAN.

How They Are Used and How They Are Served In Public Places.

The use of chopsticks is general in Japan, except among the richer classes, who have adopted European knives and forks, and, to some extent, the European cuisine. Small bowls of china or lacquered wood are the usual table equipment. After the various solid portions of the food have been lifted to the mouth with chopsticks the liquid remaining is sipped from the bowl.

In the case of rice, which would be tedious to pick up grain by grain, the bowl is often raised to the mouth and the rice shoveled or pushed in with the chopsticks. It is also customary to pour a little tea into the rice bowl after it has been nearly emptied, and in this way the few remaining grains of rice are washed down as the tea is drunk.

At public places the chopsticks at each meal must be new. This is indicated by the fact that the chopsticks are made from one piece of wood and are left joined together, as were matches at one time in the United States. These new chopsticks are incased in a thin paper envelope, sealed at the end, and bearing Japanese characters advertising either the hotel or some firm that has furnished them free to the proprietor for the sake of the publicity thus gained. Toothpicks, which are freely used by all Japanese at meals, are also inclosed in envelopes that frequently bear advertising matter.—New York Times.

In These Martial Days.

"You must not be so quarrelsome, Willie," said William's father impressively. "Remember that 'the meek shall inherit the earth.'"

"Maybe they will hereafter," responded the young militant, "but around in my school they are used to wipe up the earth."—Chicago Herald.

If there is any reason whatever for the national inspection service it is based upon the theory that it will enforce such precautions as will prevent marine tragedies from plainly foreseen and easily preventable causes. There are enough unavoidable horrors without adding to them the appalling toll of life involved in the turning turtle of an overloaded, top heavy boat before it leaves the passenger dock.

The people have a right to expect the United States inspection of steamships to mean something more than a pro forma and perfunctory O. K. on a veritable death trap.

FLEETEST OF ALL DOGS.

Greyhounds Can Run as Fast as Carrier Pigeons Can Fly.

Comparatively few people realize of what remarkable speed dogs are capable. The wolf can run between fifty and sixty miles in one night, and the arctic fox can do quite as well, if not better. Nansen met one of these foxes on the ice at a point more than seventy miles northwest of the Sannikow territory, which is 480 miles from the Asiatic coast. Eskimo and Siberian dogs can travel forty-five miles on the ice in five hours, and there is one case on record in which a team of Eskimo dogs traveled six and one-half miles in twenty-eight minutes.

English setters and pointers hunt at the rate of eighteen to nineteen miles an hour, and they can maintain the speed for at least two hours. Foxhounds are extraordinarily swift, as is proved by the fact that a dog of this breed once beat a thoroughbred horse, covering four miles in six and one-half minutes. Greyhounds are the swiftest of all four footed creatures, and their speed may be regarded as equal to that of carrier pigeons. English greyhounds which are carefully selected and which are used for coursing are able to cover at full gallop a space between eighteen and twenty-three yards every second. It is said that a hare at its greatest speed never goes faster than at the rate of eighteen yards a second. These interesting statistics fully prove the right of the greyhounds to rank as the swiftest of the quadrupeds.—Springfield Republican.

VIOLENT DEATHS.

One Indication Is the Immediate Setting In of Rigor Mortis.

More than once the question of whether a person has died a natural or unnatural death turns upon something grasped in the hand. The object is held because the hand stiffens through what is known as rigor mortis (pronounced rye-gor mor-tis), a stiffening of the muscles of the body after death.

Now, if a person dies naturally this stiffening of the muscles does not take place, as a rule, until two hours or more after death, and then it comes on slowly. In cases of violent death, however, rigor mortis sets in immediately. It is through this that many a murderer has been caught and many a so called accidental death proved to be intentional.

One of the most remarkable effects of this sudden stiffening after death appears in the account of the charge of Balaclava. Captain Nolan while riding at the head of the noble six hundred had his chest torn open by a Russian shell.

The arm he was waving in the air at the moment remained high uplifted, and he retained his seat on his horse, which wheeled around and passed some distance through the ranks before the rider fell.

Portions of the hair and clothing of a murderer have often been found in the hands of the victim, while bodies recovered from the water have brought with them clutched in their fingers weeds and mud from the bottom, showing that death occurred in the water and not on land.—London Answers.

Natural Age of Man.

The question as to what is the natural age of man is by no means settled, of course, but many are of the opinion that the Frenchman Flourens was not far out of the way in his estimate of the time a man should live. Taking his observations from the group mammalia, of the class vertebrata, as having the closest resemblance to man and such species as are permitted to live the full term of their natural life under circumstances not admitting of error or doubt, Flourens found that their natural life extended to about five times the period of their lives from birth up to maturity. Applying the rule thus obtained to human life and taking the age at which the body is fully matured to be twenty years, he concluded the natural duration of the life of man to be 100 years.

BASEBALL RECORDS.

Some Facts That Will Interest All Lovers of the Game.

The greatest number of bases on balls in a single season were given by Amos Rusie of the New York National league club in 1892. His total was 261.

Adrian C. Anson in the sixteen seasons between 1876 and 1892 played in 1,582 games and made 2,252 hits. His grand average for the entire sixteen seasons was .344.

A world's record no hit contest was played at Winchester, Ky., May 10, 1909, when in a Blue Grass league championship game Winchester defeated Lexington 1 to 0. The battle went seventeen innings, and not a hit was made off Toney, the Winchester twirler, who fanned nineteen men.

A record for speed in playing a regulation nine inning game was hung up Sept. 19, 1910, at Atlanta, Ga., on the last day of the Southern league season, when the Atlanta and Mobile teams finished a full contest in thirty-two minutes.

In 1880 eight "called balls" entitled a batter to first base. This was reduced to seven in 1882, to six in 1885, to five in 1887 and to four in 1889.

The Knickerbocker club of New York adopted the first baseball uniform in 1849. It was blue and white.

In a game played July 22, 1906, between the Quakers and Reds Cincinnati did not make a single assist, the Phillies going out on flies or strikes.—Ed A. Goewey in Leslie's.

SLIPS OF THE TONGUE.

One of Them Told a Bishop a Truth He Didn't Care to Hear.

The misguided old lady who would persist in misapplying words with ludicrous results is as much among us today as she was when Sheridan wrote of her in his play, "The Rivals," two centuries ago. One dear old lady recently inquired of a well known professor whether soda water should be written as two separate words or with a siphon between.

A well known bishop who is very stout tells the story of a maidservant who had been instructed to address the prelate as "your eminence." Imagine his horror, however, when the girl dropped a courtesy to him one morning with the words, "Yes, your immense!"

An American policeman became famous for his slips of the tongue. He used always to explain to recruits that "Third avenue ran paralyzed to Lexington," and on one occasion he proudly stated that he never paid any attention to "unanimous" letters.

A zealous temperance worker used to have a habit of confiding to her friends that certain persons were "adapted" to drink, while another gentleman in a mixed moment once asked a friend to open the window and "outrage" the air.—London Spectator.

ACCIDENTS OF FORTUNE.

Incidents That Led to the Rise of Two Famous Dramatic Stars.

More than 200 years ago a dramatist, sitting in the bar of a London tavern, overheard a girl in the next room reading aloud from a play book, and he was so much pleased by the sound of her voice and the fluency and sprightliness of her delivery that he sought an acquaintance with her, obtained her confidence and opened for her the way to a successful dramatic career. That girl, a dramatic genius thus accidentally discovered, was Anne Oldfield, who adorned the English stage for twenty-five years, whose ashes rest in the cloister of Westminster abbey and whose name is one of historic renown.

A theatrical manager in Cincinnati in the seventies, having planned to produce a popular comic opera with a chorus composed of pupils from the public schools, selected Sarah Frost, then a girl about twelve, perceived her theatrical aptitude and provided the opportunity for its development. The manager was Robert E. J. Miles, and under his direction she made her first appearance on the stage and passed her juvenile novitiate.

Her stage name at first was Fanny Brough. Later she adopted that of Julia Marlowe.—William Winter in Century Magazine.

BENEFITS FROM BOOKS.

Traveling Along the Roads That Lead Us Into Other Worlds.

The benefit of literature can hardly be overestimated. Books enlarge a man's horizon. They raise a mirage of water brooks and date palm to travelers in the desert. They are "the sick man's health, the prisoner's release." Shut within a narrow routine of dull necessity, sad at heart in a world where wrong triumphs, where beauty has no assurance of respect, where humanity toils terribly merely for its daily bread or the satisfaction of trivial appetites, the earthly pilgrim need do no more than pick up a book and, lo, he steps into another world.

Here he is free from sorrow and care, free from the burden of his body, from envy, jealousy, contempt, self satisfaction, from vain regrets, from wishes that can never wear the livery of hope, from narrowness of soul and hardness of heart.

He may mingle in the society of the good and great; he may listen to the wise man and the prophet; he may see all the conditions of human happiness and misery; he may watch the human spirit in its strife with circumstances nobly conquer or basely succumb; he may go down through the "gate of a hundred sorrows" or accompany Dante and Beatrice through the spheres of paradise.—Atlantic Monthly.

Tobacco Production.

India, second only to this country in the production of tobacco, consumes most of its own product and imports very little. Russia is third and raises practically all her supply, importing and exporting only a small quantity. Austria-Hungary is the fourth producing country, importing more than a fourth as much as it raises and exports one-eighth of its own crop. Germany is an extensive grower of tobacco, but imports two and a half times as much as it cultivates and does not export any. France raises considerable tobacco under government supervision and imports great quantities of the milder Virginia tobaccos to keep up the quality of the cigarettes and other products made under the state monopoly. Both France and Spain keep buyers in this market.

Not For Strangers.

"What in the world does that mean?" asked the traveler through a sparsely settled region on the Cape. "There's no such place on my road map."

The man whom he addressed first took a leisurely survey of the traveler and his horse and then turned his eyes toward the weatherbeaten sign, which bore the single word "Tolpom."

"That ain't a name," he said, with dignity; "it's jest an indication. It means 'To Long pond one mile.' It's plain enough to folks from nearby that's hunting for the pond, and we don't reckon on strangers taking much interest."—Youth's Companion.

A Master of One Art.

"Have you ever loved any other girl?" breathed the maiden tremulously.

"Well, I have attempted a few kindergarten, prep school and college courses in affection," responded the man in the case, "but this represents a real purpose to get rid of my bachelor's degree."

Whereupon he took a little firmer hold.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Professional Reticence.

"Did that man quote you correctly in that interview?"

"I can't tell," replied Senator Sorghum.

"Don't you know?"

"Yes, I know, but I can't tell until I have learned how my constituents like the article."—Washington Star.

THE TITLE "A PAIR OF SIXES"

Like all things which succeed, the title "A Pair of Sixes" seems to be just the exact name to fit the supremely funny farce [illegible] Wednesday night, at the Bradley Opera House.

It refers merely to the incident in the play which caused two partners to disagree and start a whirl of fun which is now being enjoyed the country over. Beyond that, the title has nothing to do with what has been termed our great American indoor card game. There is, of course, a queen of hearts in the cast. She is a mighty big card and is probably the only instance where a lone queen beat a pair of sixes.

Mr. H. H. Frazee will present "A Pair of Sixes" with an excellent cast and a complete production of special scenery. The play is by Edward Peple, the author of "The Littlest Rebel" which was a hit from coast to coast and with out a doubt "A Pair of Sixes" will prove as great a hit as his former success.

The seat sale foa "A Pair of Sixes" opened at Hay's this morning and from early indications and requests for tickets this great comedy will be greeted by a well filled house Wednesday evening.

GEORGE CLARK

George Clark was born in Monroe county Mich, August 27th, 1840 and died in Ridgeway, October 25, 1915 aged 75 years 1 month and 28 days. The early part of his life was spent on the farm where he was born, farming being the principal occupation of his lifetime. In 1864 he enlisted in Co. C 17th Michigan Infantry serving until the close of the war. His last years have been spent in Ridgeway among a large circle of acquaintances. Those who knew him best loved him for his outspoken manner and warm hearted generosity. He is survived by two sisters, two brothers and many friends.

The funeral was held at his home Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, Rev. Somers officiating, burial in Ridgeway cemetery.

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE

Thursday, October 28 was the 88th birthday of Mrs. Hannah Margeson and Mrs. Leslie VanDoren thought to make the day a happy one for her by giving her a surprise, which proved to be a genuine one. Sixteen old and young friends of the dear old lady were present.

Mesdames Jas. Nobles, W. Cleveland, Sam Boyce, Chas. Benedict, John Boyce, Vance Goheen, L. Scutt, Don Cleveland, Will Rector, Guy Nemire, John Sisson, Albert VanDoren, the Misses Emma Rogers and Edyth Rector, and little Alice Nemire and Doris VanDoren. A fine birthday dinner was served. Mrs. Margeson received a number of nice presents and the loving regards of her friends.

NOT ALL DEAD

In a late issue of the Free Press was the notice of the death of an old soldier, who it was claimed was the last one of the squad who captured Jeff Davis. This is a mistake as W. H. Crittenden of Macon better known as "Tip" in those days, a member of Co. E 4th Mich. Cavalry, is still living.

There are many in Tecumseh who will remember his return from the army and the big meeting held in the grove southeast of town, when he was lifted to the platform, and made a speech, telling the whole story. He discovered the boots just below the skirt worn by Jeff Davis at the time of his capture.

MONDAY CLUB

The following program was given, Jefferson & Hamilton, Mrs. C. A. Wright; Chief Tecumseh, War of 1812, paper by Miss Ethel Garlinghouse read by Mrs. Howard Bredow, Early Landscape Painters, paper by Mrs. Ernest Pangburn read by Mrs. Fred Rosecrans.

At the next meeting the reports of the Federations will be given by Mrs. G. R. Gillespie for the county; Mrs. C. A. Wright for the State.

ONE DAY ONLY

HRS 10 A. M. TO 8 P. M.

Remarkable Success of These Talented Physicians in the Treatment of Chronic Diseases.

Offer their Services Free of Charge.

The United Doctors, licensed by the State of Michigan for the treatment of deformities and all nervous and chronic diseases of men, women and children, offer to all who call on this trip, consultation, examination, advice free, making no charge whatever except the actual cost of treatment. All that is asked in return for these valuable services is that every person treated will state the result obtained to their friend, and thus prove to the sick and afflicted in every city and locality, that at last treatments have been discovered that are reasonably sure and certain in their effect.

These doctors are among America's leading stomach and nerve specialists and are experts in the treatment of chronic diseases and so great and wonderful have been their results that in many cases it is hard to find the dividing line between skill and miracle.

Diseases of the stomach, intestines liver, blood, skin, nerves, heart, spleen, kidneys or bladder, rheumatism, sciatica, diabetes, bed wetting, tape worm, leg ulcers, weak lungs and those afflicted with long standing, deep seated, chronic diseases, that have baffled the skill of the family physicians, should not fail to call. Deafness often has been cured in sixty days.

According to their system no more operations for appendicitis, gall stones, tumors, goiter, piles, etc., as these diseases are treated without operation or hypodermic injection.

They were among the first in America to earn the name of "Bloodless Surgeons," by doing away with the knife with blood and with all pain in the successful treatment of these dangerous diseases.

If you have kidney or bladder troubles bring a two ounce bottle of your urine for chemical analysis and microscopic examination.

No matter what your ailment may be, no matter what others may have told you, no matter what experience you may have had with other physicians, it will be to your advantage to see them at once. Have it forever settled in your mind. If your case is incurable they will give you such advice as may relieve and stay the disease. Do not put off this duty you owe yourself or friends or relatives who are suffering because of your sickness, as a visit at this time may help you.

Worn-out and run-down men or women, no matter what your ailment, consult them. It costs you nothing.

Remember, this last free offer is for this visit only.

Married ladies come with their husbands and minors with their parents.

MRS. MELTON'S LETTER

To Tired Worn-out Mothers

Jackson, Miss.—"I shall feel repaid for writing this letter if I can help any tired, worn-out mother or housekeeper to find health and strength as I have.

"I have a family of five, sew, cook and do my housework and I became very much run-down in health. A friend asked me to try Vinol. I did so and now I am well and strong and my old time energy has been restored. Vinol has no superior as a tonic for worn-out, run-down, tired mothers or housekeepers."—MRS. J. N. MELTON, Jackson, Miss.

CARRY STOMACH JOY IN YOUR VEST POCKET

C. A. Wright & Son has Such Faith in this Dyspepsia Remedy that They Guarantee It.

One of the greatest successes in the sale of medicine has been achieved by Mi-o-na, the standard dyspepsia remedy, and its sale is increasing so rapidly that C. A. Wright & Son, the popular druggist, has hard work to keep a stock on hand. It is very popular with bankers, ministers, lawyers and others whose business or profession keeps them closely confined, while those who have brought on indigestion through irregular eating, worry, or other causes, have found relief in this reliable remedy.

Mi-o-na comes in tablet form and is sold in a metal box especially designed for convenience in carrying the medicine in the pocket or purse. It is pleasant to take, gives quick relief, and should help any case, no matter of how long a standing. This remedy has been so uniformly successful that C. A. Wright & Son will in future sell Mi-o-na under a positive guarantee to refund the money if it should not prove entirely satisfactory. adv

Hard Coal

To a certain extent all coals look about alike. But that is the only resemblance. Some burn up quickly, some slowly, others have lots of foreign matter, and still others give out but little heat and make lots of ash.

*

is a medium burning coal, gives out extreme heat, has very little foreign matter, and burns up clean to a small amount of white ash. Don't ask just for Hard Coal, but if you want satisfaction insist on having PLYMOUTH.

STRAW STACK BURNED

Sunday afternoon about 4 o'clock a large straw stack on the Eccles farm north of town was discovered a fire. It was also found that a little grand child of Mr. and Mrs. Greenfield who are on the farm, had set it on fire. Becoming frightened he ran into the house and told them what he had done. The mother at once went to the phone and called the neighbors, while the grand mother started with pails to the creek near by and threw water until help arrived. Clinton was called and George Lancaster with twenty men and buckets were on the ground in 12 minutes after receiving the word. Mr. Lancaster also called Adrian but the bucket brigade did such good work that, Adrian was not needed. The creek running near the farm, with the buckets and pails, and the willing workers, saved the buildings on the farm from destruction. Mr. and Mrs. Eccles were at their cottage at the lake and knew nothing of the fire until they reached home. They wish to thank the many friends and neighbors, who worked so faithfully, and especially the Clinton fire brigade for their prompt response and good work.

With the strong wind that was blowing all day Sunday, it was a wonder that more damage was not done, as the straw stack was not more than ten feet from the barn.

It is estimated that there were at least 150 people on the grounds before the fire was extinguished and autos were lined up on the road side by the dozens.

HALLOWE'EN

Saturday was duly celebrated by the little folks in Tecumseh, several parties being given.

From 4 to 7 o'clock the little Misses Mary Eleanor Anderson, Esther Brewer and Catherine Heesen entertained about 62 guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Anderson. Each little one received a yellow cap on their arrival. Many games were played out of doors and in and later a fine supper was served.

The tables were prettily decorated and at each place was a fancy napkin, a quaint place card and as a favor, a witch. All sorts of Hallowe'en favors were used in decorating the home and jack lanterns furnished the light in the darkened rooms. Both old and young had a most delightful time.

From 7 to 9 o'clock the Misses Arlene and Geraldine Gillespie entertained some thirty of their young friends, each coming masked and in various costumes. First came a march down town to Hay's ice cream parlor where they were generously served to ice cream, then back to the home where they bobbed for apples in water, ate them from strings suspended from the ceiling, had a peanut hunt and other stunts.

All sorts of Jack o' lanterns, black cats and other decorations were displayed throughout the house. Pumpkin pies and other toothsome viands were served during the evening and a tired but happy company left for their homes somewhere between 9 and 10 o'clock, each one saying they had such a jolly good time.

Hattie, Metha and Mabel Allison and Albertine and Josephine Mobbs entertained a company of their young friends at a Hallowe'en party Saturday evening. The usual stunts were played and at the close refreshments were served.

The Misses Florence and Margaret VanWinkle were hostesses to a party of young people Friday evening. Goblins and ghosts were there and a jolly good time was enjoyed. The evening's fun closed with light refreshments.

Edward Nyland was host to the Intermediate department of the Presbyterian Sunday-school last evening at a Hallowe'en party. Various stunts occupied the hours and Mrs. Nyland served refreshments appropriate to the night. Miss Anna Cutting and Leon McLachlin, the teachers of the department, were present.

Ed Marks was quite down in the mouth Monday when he found that after all his efforts in advertising "A Pair of Sixes" for the Opera House for Wednesday evening, it had been transferred to the M. E. church, as bill boards were in front of the church Monday morning instead of the Opera house. Sorry!

JANE MOORE as "The Stenographer" in "A PAIR OF SIXES" at The Bradley Opera House Wednesday, Nov. 3rd.

THE TYPIST IN "PAIR OF SIXES"

The typist on the stage, (that is, the woman typist,) is always a delightful and interesting character. She is always jolly and sometimes pert. Authors never seem to put the serious kinds into their plays. There is one feature of the stage typist that jars—and that is her typewriting. The business portion of the audience shudder because they know the typist never knows how to type, but hold! Miss Jane Moore, who plays the prrt of the pretty typist in "A Pair of Sixes," the sensational farce success which will be seen at the Bradley Opera House, this week Wednesday, November 3, knows how to type. When she starts on the machine, a great sigh of relief and surprise wafts upward to balcony and gallery, with pure enjoyment of the educated clicks! The stage typewriter has absolutely written. Everyone in the audience immediately assumes that she must have been a typewriter before she became an actress. The truth is she had never struck a key until she began rehearsals for her part in the play.

Clyde Poulter, entertainer. M. E. church, Friday night Nov. 5.

"SPEED UP!"
to 60 minutes an hour by taking the "grind" out of typewriting!

AND smile! For here at last is the master machine that makes it easy for any stenographer to turn out MORE letters with LESS effort in the ordinary working day. The new Royal Master-Model "10" speeds up the day's work and sets the pace that pays!

Built for "Big Business" and its Great Army of Expert Operators

These new features of the Royal add to the sensitive fingers of the typist, the one vital thing that the old-style typewriter subtracts—speed!

The speed with brains behind it—the all-day speed of the expert typist in the day's work. Errorless speed is the kind of speed that counts. Commonsense has punctured the illusion of the other kind.

CHEERED BY HIS FOES.

An Incident In the Career of the Duke of Wellington.

While the Iron Duke was still Marquis of Wellington he went from Paris to Toulouse, where he had fought and won the last battle of the Peninsular war. He attended the opera that first evening, and, though he wore plain clothes and sat in the back of the box, he was almost immediately recognized by some one in the orchestra chairs who called out, "Wellington!"

The name was taken up by others, and at last the entire house rose, turned to the box and called, "Vive Wellington!"

Nor would the people be satisfied until he had stood up and bowed to them, when he was cheered and applauded again. At the conclusion of the performance the passage from the box was found to be crowded with people. The women of the party drew back nervously, but the duke said "Come along!" in his brusque way and conducted them on. While they were still in the corridor a man in the crowd was heard to say to his companion:

"But why are you applauding so much? He has always beaten us!"

This was very true, and the question seemed a natural one, but the answer was charming:

"Yes, but he has always beaten us like a gentleman."—Washington Star.

The Reason.

"The first year of married life is always the most troublesome. After a couple passes that safely the great danger of separation is over."

"Why do you say that?"

"It usually takes a man a year to learn the futility of arguing with his wife"—Detroit Free Press.

Tearing Sounds.

The ear can be trained to accustom itself to the sound of the tearing of various materials. The noise accompanying the tearing of cotton is unlike that of linen. The warp has its voice and the filling quite another, the former being shrill, while the latter is apt to be dull.

Woman's World

MRS. ROBERT LANSING.

Not since the days when Mrs. John Hay entertained official Washington as wife of the secretary of state has a cabinet hostess of this rank appeared who is as well equipped as Mrs. Robert Lansing, wife of President Wilson's new premier.

Mrs. Lansing will enjoy the unique experience of succeeding to the very exacting social duties which were so ably performed by her mother back in the Harrison administration when John W. Foster, her father, was secretary of state.

Mrs. Lansing, then Eleanor Foster, was just making her bow in society, having been graduated from Smith college. Her interest in her mother's duties was sufficient to give her an experience which she will now be able to turn to practical advantage.

The wife of the secretary of state is called upon for many exacting social duties, and Washington expects to see Mrs. Lansing make a notable place for herself as a cabinet hostess. She is a good conversationalist, quick at repartee and somewhat of a wit. Furthermore, Mrs. Lansing is the youngest woman upon whom the duty of leading the cabinet's social affairs has fallen in many years.

Mrs. Lansing was married to Mr. Lansing in 1890 in the home of her father on I street, where the Fosters lived for many years. The Lansing wedding was attended by a notable gathering, including President Harrison and family, Vice President Morton and his family and other prominent officials and diplomats.

Mr. Lansing took his bride to a new home in Watertown, N. Y., where they have always lived except for the time spent in Washington. They spent many winters with General and Mrs. Foster before Mr. Lansing was appointed counselor of the state department, and since then they have continued to make their home with the Fosters, who have built a spacious and luxurious home on Eighteenth street, just opposite the Austro-Hungarian embassy, in Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Lansing have no children.

Mrs. Lansing as the foremost of the cabinet wives will take precedence over many other women. She will take the lead in all things social in the cabinet circle. In social rank she comes next to the wife of the president or the president's hostess. Even the wife of the vice president does not have the social responsibility of the wife of the secretary of state. It is her duty to entertain the diplomatic corps, and it is to her that the wives and families of newly accredited ambassadors and ministers pay their respects after they have made their formal calls at the White House.

The most brilliant function of New Year's day next to the White House reception is the breakfast given by the secretary of state and his wife to the diplomatic corps.

Mrs. Lansing is known in Washington as a woman of exceptionally good taste, modesty and common sense.

Ways to Clean Silver.

One of the easiest ways to clean silver is to wash it with a soft cloth saturated with kerosene, then rinse it with scalding water. A long bath in sour milk will clean badly tarnished silver. If vinegar cruets are filled with it and left awhile the films on the inside will soon disappear.

Alcohol and salt will remove egg stains immediately, and alcohol and soda is also a good cleanser. Many prefer using alcohol to ammonia, though the latter does the work.

A chamois bag filled with powdered magnesia is very useful for polishing all silver articles. An old piece of velvet will prove wonderful for polishing silver, and a broken clothespin is a handy contrivance. Covered with a cloth, the flat, rounded tip will be more useful in working between the tines of the work and in moldings that require more friction than a brush can give.

Button Hooks.

For 5 cents buttonhooks with white bone handles can be bought. A supply of these might be laid in by many a housewife to advantage, for every room ought to be furnished with at least one shoe buttoner. Nothing is so aggravating as to be unable to find one's buttoner.

The Unexpected.

"Before engaging rooms in your house," said the bachelor, "I want to know if there are any families with crying babies staying here."

"I'm afraid there is," replied the landlady, "but we"—

"Well, I was just going to say," continued the other, "that if there are I want you to put me in the room next to theirs. I want to wake up in the night and hear their trouble, so that I can congratulate myself again that I'm not married."—London Telegraph.

Curiosity.

Gladys—Why are you going to all that trouble to open that letter so carefully, Maud? Maud—Oh, I had a quarrel with George and intended to send his letter back unopened, but I just thought I would see what he said before I returned it.

Never.

Mr. Willis—But why don't you take your bank book in to have it balanced?

Mrs. Willis—I don't want that snoopy looking cashier to know how much money I've got in there.—Pittsburgh Post.

Dislike Chief's Style, Strike.

Grand Ledge, Mich., Nov. 1.—Because they allege, they did not like the way in which the chief operator dressed her hair, and did not approve of her style of dress, four operators of the Grand Ledge Telephone company exchange went on strike.

Escanaba, Mich., Nov. 1.—That she may be near her husband, who has enlisted in the British army, Mrs. Vincent Eckles of this city will sail with her small son from New York this week for London.

Easily Arranged.

A man took the following telegram to a telegraph office: "Mrs. Brown, Center Street: I announce with grief the death of Uncle James. Come quickly to read the will. I believe we are his heirs. John Black."

The telegraph clerk, having counted the words, said, "There are two words too many, sir."

"Cut out 'with grief,'" was the reply.—Chicago News.

A QUEEN AND A STYLE.

Handkerchiefs Are Made Square Because of a Royal Whim.

It is not necessary to insist on the utility of the handkerchief, for no one will contest it, but why should it be eternally woven in the stereotyped form of a square? The square may be large, the square may be small, but why square instead of oval or oblong?

The unfortunate young Queen Marie Antoinette is responsible for the shape of the handkerchief.

On Jan. 2, 1785, a royal command was issued that henceforth the regulated form of the handkerchief should be in the form that we are so accustomed to see. Before this we are led to believe that divers forms were used—triangles, heart shaped, points of a star, etc.

These individual conceptions did not please her majesty. She carried her complaints to the pliable Louis XVI. It was her belief that the handkerchief in the form of a square was more elegant.

At the above date Louis had the following decree issued: "The length of all handkerchiefs manufactured in the kingdom shall be equal to their breadth."

During all the changes of government in France, from the revolution to the third republic, the law passed under Louis XVI. is the only one that has been immovable, as far as things to be worn are concerned. It has [illegible] every change, and the rest of the Christian world has in this respect faithfully followed the whims of Queen Marie Antoinette.—New York American.

ESCAPES PAUPER'S DEATH; LOSES LIFE

Spanish War Veteran Dies on Way to Soldiers' Home.

KALAMAZOO, MICH. — Just as he was about to board the train at Lawton which was to take him from the poorhouse to the National Soldiers' home in Milwaukee, where he prayed that he might go to escape a pauper's death, William E. Johnson, veteran of the Spanish-American war, breathed his last.

Johnson's case is a pathetic one. A veteran of the Spanish-American war, he came out a victim of tuberculosis. A painter by trade, he has wandered from place to place until a few weeks ago, when too weak to go further, he was taken to a hospital in South Haven. Penniless, friendless, bereft of every relative for the past eleven years, he was finally sent to the Van Buren county poor farm, where the members of Westnedge comp found him last week.

Commander Fred Appeldoorn had him removed to the county hospital and made application for his admission to the soldiers' home in Milwaukee.

Pitifully the victim pleaded that he might be spared a pauper's death. Despite the fact that he was told he would not be strong enough to go to Milwaukee he was determined to make the effort.

MAILS SHUT TO KAZOO FIRM

Old Trick of Giving Away Article Can't Fool Uncle Sam.

KALAMAZOO, MICH. — By order of the postal authorities at Washington the Jewell Novelty works, of this city, has been denied the use of the United States mails.

Delbert Jewell, the proprietor, is the inventor of a so-called magnetic divining rod which reveals presence of buried treasure. He had trouble once before with the postoffice department. He asserted that he was selling books, one entitled "Prospectors' Field Book and Guide" and that he only loaned the rods to each book buyer.

FLINT CHILD KILLED BY AUTO

Eldon Cross, 5, playing in Street, is Hit by Car.

FLINT, MICH. — While playing in the street Eldon Cross, five years old, son of Ray Cross, was crushed by an automobile driven by John C. Fox, superintendent of the local coal mine. The child died a few minutes later.

Fox had slowed his machine down to pass a wagon which was crossing the street in front of him. The child darted out from behind the wagon right into the patch of the automobile. Witnesses said Fox was blameless.

GENTLE DOG BARS DOCTOR

Before Pet is Killed Stork Beats Out the Medic.

GRAND RAPIDS, WIS. — While the stork awaited a physician's aid within the house, Dr. H. E. Wolfe was barred from the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. Benjamin by the family dog.

Ordinarily the dog was gentle even to strangers, according to members of the family, but the police had to kill it before Dr. Wolfe could enter the home. The stork left a baby before aid arrived.

DROWNS IN HIS OWN WELL

Charlotte Man Tumbles In; Is Found by Little Son.

CHARLOTTE, MICH. — Fay Rulison, forty-eight, was drowned in four feet of water when he fell into the well near which he was working at his home.

His little son, going into the yard to call his father to dinner, discovered Rulison's feet pretruding from the well. Rulison was employed in a local hardware store.

RUSS LAND ARMY ON BULGAR SOIL

Germans Capture Serbs' Chief Supply of Munitions.

KROGUYEVATZ ARSENAL TAKEN

Bulgarians Begin Attack on Nish—French Troops Repulse Attack in Vardar—Bulgarians Are Caught in French Cross Fire and Driven Into River—Many Drown.

LONDON — A Bucharest dispatch to the Times says it is reported in official naval quarters that the Russians have forced a landing at Varna on the Black Sea coast of Bulgaria.

Varna is the chief Bulgarian port on the Black Sea, lying about 200 miles overland from Constantinople. The Russian landing probably will relieve the Bulgarian pressure against Serbia, but as it is a long distance from the Serbian front no immediate developments are believed likely.

Heavy Blow Dealt Serbs.

The heaviest blow dealt to the Serbians since the beginning of the Teutonic and Bulgarian invasion was suffered in the loss of the great arsenal town of Kraguyevatz, the source of practically all arms and munitions manufactured in Serbia.

Jointly with this announcement made from Berlin, came the news that the Bulgarian troops advancing upon Nish had opened fire upon the outer defenses of the city. Civilians have been in flight from Nish for several days, and one of the fiercest battles of the Serbian campaign is expected at this point.

French Repulse Bulgars.

Repulse of the Bulgarians who attacked the heights around Krivolak, on the left bank of the Vardar River, occupied by the French, is officially announced in Paris. The statement adds that no event of importance occurred no the Rabova-Dedeli front nor in the Strumitza theater where the French expeditionary forces have been uniformly successful since they started activites.

The German capture of the Kraguyevatz arsenal, however, is the most important event of the day. Kraguyevatz is fifty-nine miles below Belgrade. It is connected by a branch line with the Belgrade-Nish railroad. Its population in 1901 was 15,500.

FOUR BUSINESS MEN DIE IN AUTO CRASH

Train Strikes Car Killing Marshfield, Wis., Leading Citizens.

MARSHFIELD, WIS. — An automobile trip in a new machine cost the lives of four of Marshfield's best known business men when the car was struck by a fast train at a depressed railroad crossing near Unity. The dead:

Peter Daul, aged forty-seven, proprietor Eagle hotel; Philip Adler, aged sixty-five, owner Adler Opera house and several business blocks, director in two banks; Robert H. Schroeder, aged forty-three, alderman and leader of reform movement in city politics for last two years; Charles A. Githens, aged forty-two, real estate man.

All except Daul were killed instantly. Daul lived ten minutes. The party was on its way to Dorchester. Near Unity the road crosses the Soo line in a cut, about ten feet deep, with brush concealing the track on each side.

HESPERIAN WAS TORPEDOED

So State Department Announces After Expert Examines Shell Fragment.

WASHINGTOn, D. C. — Secretary Lansing has announced that the navy department indicated that the fragment of the engine of war which sank the Allan liner Hesperian was a part of a torpedo. The German government has persistently denied that the Hesperian was torpedoed. In the opinion of United States naval experts the fragment could not have been a part of a marine mine.

The secretary said the result of the navy department's investigation would immediately be communicated either to the German government directly or to Ambassador Bernstorff.

M. C. HIRES GUARDS FOR CARS

Claim Is Made That Three of Strikers Have Returned.

JACKSON, MICH. — As a precautionary measure following the stripping of cards from freight cars in the Kalamazoo yards, the local Michigan Central officials placed 25 special officers on duty in the Jackson yards. Officials declare that anyone found tampering with shipments of freight in any way will be prosecuted under provisions of the interstate commerce act.

Three of the twelve freight office clerks who obeyed the strike order have returned to work. The places of the nine others have been permanently filled.

THEY DIDN'T READ IT RIGHT

Maud Muller's Man Was Not in the Potato Business.

HILLSDALE, MICH. — Longfellow's poem about Maud Muller, who "raked the meadows sweet with hay," which Mrs. Mildred Little of Jonesville and Mrs. Myrtle Cox of Jefferson used to read during their school days, no longer has any facination for them, they told the circuit court here.

Mrs. Little said that she had raked the hay, had husked the corn, had dug the potatoes, and had done most of the other farm chores which her husband, John O. Little, ought to have done, and all she got for it was abusive treatment. Mrs. Cox told a similar story. Both sought a divorce decree.

HAS FAITH IN QUICK REMEDY FOR CATARRH

C. A. Wright & Son Guarantee That Hyomei Will Relieve the Worst Cases of Catarrh in Tecumseh.

When one of the most reputable concerns in Tecumseh guarantees that a medicine will produce benefit or they will refund the money, it speaks volumes for the merits of that remedy. It is in this way that C. A. Wright & Son are selling Hyomei, the treatment that has helped so many cases of both acute and chronic catarrh in Tecumseh and vicinity.

Hyomei is not a pill nor is it a spray or a lotion that must be rubbed in. It is an oil, the air of which you just breathe in your nose, throat and lungs by the aid of an inhaler that comes with every outfit. Benefit will usually be seen from the very first treatment.

This air destroys all germ life in the air passages and lungs and enriches and purifies the blood with the additional ozone it supplies. It banishes catarrh of the head and throat and respiratory organs. Wherever these mucous membranes contain catarrhal germs, there Hyomei will do its work of healing.

The complete Hyomei outfit is inexpensive and includes an inhaler, dropper and sufficient Hyomei for several weeks treatment.

Remember that if Hyomei does not relieve you C. A. Wright & Son will refund your money.

WIT AND WISDOM

An unusual interesting meeting of the Wit and Wisdom club was held with Rev. and Mrs. W. A. Rex Monday evening when the subject of the Moving Picture business was presented, Rev. Rex acting as leader.

Mrs Rex read a brief history from the beginning of the picture business until the present day. She was followed by a piano duet by the Misses Mildred and Marian Brooks. Mrs. C. A. Slayton then gave a paper on The Educational Tendencies of the Moving Picture Shows.

Rev. Rex gave a very interesting and instructive talk on the moving picture machines and films which he illustrated with these articles before him. Roll call, echoes from the Chautauqua was very interesting; after light refreshments were served, a guessing contest called out lots of fun and merriment.

Complexion Blemish?

Yes, that sluggish liver often causes it. Dr. King's New Life Pills clears the complexion, throws off impurities and releases bile naturally and easily. Unless the bowels move freely and regularly all the powder in the world will not permanently cover "that muddy complexion." This laxative is mild yet effective. It does not gripe or sicken in its effects. You do not dispute the merits of Dr. King's New Life Pills. Start a treatment today. 25c. adv

TRUNK LINE SEEMS ASSURED

Determination Will Be Issued Establishing Road.

At a recent meeting of the Tecumseh Commerce Club a resolution was passed favoring the proposed trunk line running from the north line of the City of Adrian to the Monroe Pike via Birdsall and the town line. Another resolution was passed asking the state highway commissioner to continue this trunk line from the intersection of the town line and the Monroe Pike east to the west corporation line of the Village of Tecumseh. These resolutions were forwarded to Frank F. Rogers, state highway commissione.

Tuesday Sec'y H. S. Temple received a reply acknowledging receipt of the same and stating that he would be pleased to issue determination establishing this road in accordance with the Commerce Club's request, also that determinations have gone forward to the several townships.

From this it would seem that a state road or trunk line will be built between Tecumseh and the City of Adrian and, as a petition has been already signed by property owners along the town line to the Monroe Pike, it only remains necessary to get the signers along the Monroe Pike. This work is under way and it is understood that surveys will be made this fall so that the work may be started as soon as possible

A "Pair of Sixes" a force comedy in three acts was rich Wednesday evening at Bradley Opera house

A good house greeted the production and from the almost constant peal of laughter we take it that those who attended had little time to dwell upon the sober problems of life. A good laugh is good for a fellow once in a while.

The cast was good and there were no dull moments throughout the play.

Manager Marks has been looking some fine attractions and should have the support of this community. You are seeing the same class of shows here in Tecumseh that are showing in Toledo, Adrian and Jackson.

REO

Here's More Good News! The New Reos Are Here

IF YOU HURRY you may be one of the first to see, and to experience the sensation of a luxurious ride in our new Reo.

THEY ARE BOTH HERE--the new Reo the Fifth, the "Incomparable Four," which when announced recently at its new price---$875---created such a profound season in motoring circles.

AND THE NEW REO SIX: The $1,250 seven-passenger car--with its classy "sheer line" body with divided front seats and other features formerly obtainable only in cars of the highest prices --has created no less a sensation and has set a new standard in beauty as well as in mechanical value.

YOU'LL WANT TO SEE these new Reos. You'll want to get one; and to do that, you know it will be necessary to place your order long in advance of the time when you'll want delivery of the car.

TO-MORROW WON'T BE TOO EARLY--you know that the demand for Reos is always greatly in excess of the possible output of the big Reo facotres.

YOU KNOW THAT NEVER since the first Reo was made has it been possible to get enough Reos to supply all who want Reos; you know--all the world knows--that so great was the demand all last season every Reo was snapped up the minute it came from the factory, and for 60 days past it has not been possible to buy a new Reo of either model anywhere at any price.

SO DON'T DELAY--come in at once, see with your own eyes; satisfy your own self that in all the world eslewhere no such value can be had, and then--order--order at once and rest easy that you'll get your Reo when you want it.

COMING BACK To Tecumseh

UNITED DOCTORS SPECIALISTS

Will be at the Barrett Hotel Monday, November 15, 1915

ONE DAY ONLY

HRS 10 A. M. TO 8 P. M.

Remarkable Success of These Talented Physicians in the Treatment of Chronic Diseases.

Offer their Services Free of Charge.

The United Doctors, licensed by the State of Michigan for the treatment of deformities and all nervous and chronic diseases of men, women and children, offer to all who call on this trip, consultation, examination, advice free, making no charge whatever except the actual cost of treatment. All that is asked in return for these valuable services is that every person treated will state the result obtained to their friend, and thus prove to the sick and afflicted in every city and locality, that at last treatments have been discovered that are reasonably sure and certain in their effect.

These doctors are among America's leading stomach and nerve specialists and are experts in the treatment of chronic diseases and so great and wonderful have been their results that in many cases it is hard to find the dividing line between skill and miracle.

Diseases of the stomach, intestines liver, blood, skin, nerves, heart, spleen, kidneys or bladder, rheumatism, sciatica, diabetes, bed-wetting, tape worm, leg ulcers, weak lungs and those afflicted with long standing, deep seated, chronic diseases, that have baffled the skill of the family physicians, should not fail to call. Deafness often has been cured in sixty days.

According to their system no more operations for appendicitis, gall stones, tumors, goiter, piles, etc., as these diseases are treated without operation or hypodermic injection.

They were among the first in America to earn the name of "Bloodless Surgeons," by doing away with the knife with blood and with all pain in the successful treatment of these dangerous diseases

If you have kidney or bladder troubles bring a two ounce bottle of your urine for chemical analysis and microscopic examination.

No matter what your ailment may be, no matter what others may have told you, no matter what experience you may have had with other physicians, it will be to your advantage to see them at once Have it forever settled in your mind. If your case is incurable they will give you such advice as may relieve and stay the diseaes. Do not put off this duty you owe yourself or friends or relatives who are suffering because of your sickness; as a visit at this time may help you.

Worn-out and run-down men or women, no matter what your ailments consult them. It costs you nothing.

Remember, this last free offer is for this visit only.

Married ladies come with their husbands and minors with their parents.

THE RIGHT MERRY CLUB

The Right Merry club was entertained Tuesday evening by Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Lewis and Miss Louise Phelps at the Barrett Rest room. There were nine tables of players and ten games of 500 were played

Several names were suggested for this new club and the one most favorably received was the Right Merry, which is certainly most appropriate as the club is a merry one.

At the close of the games light refreshments were served the company.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and L. O. Hayden.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

November 3, being the 17th wedding anniveesary of Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Austin, a very pleasant evening was enjoyed.

The Sons of Veterans and wives came in to help celebrate the occasion, Light refreshments were served, and went well until Dr. W. B. Hartzog made a very appropriate speech for the occasion, and surprised the couple by presenting them with a beautiful rocker, and wishing them to live to be a hundred years old, and then for the good of the community they should leave this world." Hard Coal

To a certain extent all coals look about alike. But that is the only resemblance. Some burn up quickly, some slowly, others have lots of foreign matter, and still others give out but little heat and make lots of ash.

*

is a medium burning coal, gives out extreme heat, has very little foreign matter, and burns up clean to a small amount of white ash. Don't ask just for Hard Coal, but if you want satisfaction insist on having PLYMOUTH.

Whatever others may claim, you can rest assured ours is the genuine Plymouth.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system thereby destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

FISKE O'HARA

Each season the manager of a theatre has what perhaps might be called "a pet attraction" that is some special attraction which is bound to prove just a little better than any of the others and which will, at the end of the season, be remembered and talked of just a little more than any of the others. One season it might be "Classmates" another "Graustark" or "Within the Law" or some equally well know play or star. This season the management of the Bradley takes pleasure in announcing Mr. Fiske O'Hara, the famous Irish tenor in his new play "Kilkenny" as that special attraction. Mr. O'Hara is considered the world over, to be the best Irish-tenor singer on the stage, to hear him is to hear the best

Augustus Pitou, Jr., will present this clever singing star, Fisk O'Hara, at the Bradley Opera House, Tuesday, November 16, in the new romantic comedy entitled, "Kilkenny", emanating from the gifted pen of Augustus Pitou, Sr., the well known writer of the majority of W. J. Scanlan's and Chuancey Olcott's successes. "Kilkenny" is one of the best Irish stage romances that has produced in many years It is idyllic in character, yet pervaded throughout with the sparkling wit of the early part of the last century. There are many scenes of intense dramatic interest, and through it, the threads of humor, patriotism, pathos and interest wind and unwind in a pleasing and appealing way The splendid tenor voice of Fiske O'Hara will be heard in several new songs, among which are: "That's What an Irishman Means", "Contrary Mary Clary", "Ireland is Ireland to me", "Dear Mother Mine", and "Girl of My Heart".

The author has chosen Kilkenny, Ireland, for the locale of the play, and the period in 1810, when the Emerald Isle was in the heyday of its social glory. The scenic investiture of the piece is reported to be more than usually magnificent, and a most capable company of players surround Mr O'Hara, among whom are, Mabel Juline Scott, Marie Quinn, Mary Downs, Anna Nichols, Lisle Bloodgood, Eliza Mason W. T. Morgan, J. P. Sullivan, James Edwards, Henry Duffy, J. E. Miller and W. T. Shehan.

ROYAL NEIGHBORS

The Royal neighbors held an adoption meeting at their lodge rooms Wednesday afternoon. About 20 ladies from the Adrian lodge came on the 1 o'clock train for a fraternal visit and conferred the work on a class of three candidates, Mrs. Jas McDermott, Mrs Clifford Head and Mrs. R. B. Knouse. At the close of the work a fine pot luck supper was served and a social visit with the Adrian ladies was enjoyed by all.

Irritable Children Often Need Kickapoo Worm Killer

There is a reason for the disagreeable and fretful nature of many children. Think of the unrest when the child's body is possessed by tiny worms sapping its vitality and clogging its functions. Whatever may be the cause—"that children have worms is a fact." Your child's peevishness and irritability has a cause. Give Kickapoo Worm Killer a chance and if worms are there this humanly harmless remedy will eliminate the annoying parasites. 25c. a box. adv

Best Cough Medicine for Children

"Three years ago when I was living in Pittsburg one of my children had a hard cold and coughed dreadfully. Upon the advice of a druggist I purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and it benefited him at once. I find it the best cough medicine for children because it is pleasant to take. They do not object to taking it, writes Mrs. Lafayette Tuck, Homer City, Pa. This remedy contains no opium or other narcotic, and may be given to a child as confidently as to an adult Sold by all dealers adv

Colds do not Leave Willingly

Because a cold is stubborn is no reason why YOU should be. Instead of "wearing" it out, get sure relief by taking Dr. King's New Discovery. Dangerous bronchial and lung ailments often follow a cold which has been neglected at the beginning. As your body faithfully battles those cold germs, no better aid can be given than the use of this remedy Its merit has been tested by old and young. Get a bottle today. 50c and $1 00. adv

Cheaper than Home Made

You cannot make a good cough medicine at home for as little as you pay for Foley's Honey and Tar, nor can you be sure of getting the fresh, full strength, clean and pure materials. Did you ever hear of a home-made cough medicine doing the work that Foley's is doing every day all over the country? Sold everywhere in Tecumseh. adv

Despondency Due to Indigestion

It is not at all surprising that persons who have indigestion become discouraged and despondent. Here are a few words of hope and cheer for them by Mrs Blanche Bowers, Indiana, Pa. "For years my digestion was so poor that I could only eat the lightest foods. I tried everything that I heard of to get relief, but not until about a year ago when I saw Chamberlain's Tablets advertised and got a bottle of them, did I find the right treatment. I soon began to improve, and since taking a few bottles of them my digestion is fine." For sale by all dealers. adv

Made Over Again

FUNSTON RUSHES TO FIRING LINE

Report Villa Forces About to Attack U. S.

AMERICAN SHOT AT DOUGLAS

Custom House On Arizona Side of Border Riddled by Machine Gun Bullets—Agua Prieta Battle Opens in Earnest—Shells Burst on U. S. Side.

WASHINGTON — General Funston has taken command of the United States forces assembled at Douglas, Ariz., at which place he has just arrived.

Information has reached the government that General Villa is preparing to attack the American troops at that point.

General Funston is authorized to protect American property and resist aggression.

Fire on Custom House.

DOUGLAS, ARIZONA. — The battle of Agua Prieta began at 1:37 o'clock Monday afternoon, when guns of the garrison at Agua Prieta opened upon the rapidly advancing Villa forces.

Bullets soon began to fly across the United States line into Douglas.

L. F. Taylor, an American, was shot through the back by a machine gun bullet at the United States custom house. The machine guns were peppering the United States custom house at the time.

Taylor was taken to the American field hospital.

His spine was struck by the bullet, according to the American surgeon who made an examination. If not fatally wounded Taylor will be a cripple for life, it was said.

Fire on Custom House.

The machine gun fire on the custom house began at 3:40. At least thirty bullets sped among a throng of soldiers and Mexican women refugees who were passing toward the concentration camp on the American side. Five minutes later a score or more bullets flew by American soldiers. The Americans took cover in their trenches, taking the Mexican women and children with them.

When the Carranza garrison opened fire the Villa gunners returned shot for shot, aiming apparently at the southern salient of the Agua Prieta defenses.

One Villa shell burst in Agua Prieta within sixty yards of the United States custom house at 2:15.

PRESIDENT "QUIETS SPECULATION" AGAIN

To Wed at Bride's Home Near End of December.

WASHINGTON— It is formally announced at the white house that the marriage of President Wilson and Mrs. Norman Galt will take place "near the close of December," and that it will be private at Mrs. Galt's home here.

This statement was issued by Secretary Tumulty:

"In order to quiet speculation, President Wilson and Mrs. Norman Galt today authorize the announcement that their marriage will take place near the close of December. Their plans are for a very simple ceremony. It will be quietly performed at Mrs. Galt's residence. No invitations will be issued, and it is expected that the only guests will be the members of the two families."

BODY OF PASTOR IS FOUND

Pioneer Lutheran Minister Had Wandered to Banks of Mississippi.

PRESCOTT, WIS. — When a posse of searchers found the body of the Rev. Jacob Schadegg, pioneer Lutheran minister here on the banks of the Mississippi River it only deepened the mystery that surrounded his disappearance. No clews as to how he came to his death have been found.

His congregation faithfully gathered Sunday, and after waiting for him decided to visit his home. Breaking into his house, which he occupied alone, they found no trace of him and started the search. He had been a minister in this vicinity for fifty years.

WETS PROVE SUNDAY LID IS A FINE THING

Chief Pride in Monster Parade Is "Nobody Drunk."

Chicago, Nov. 8.—The advocates of a closed Sunday assert that the claim of the wet parade held here Sunday was most unwittingly the strongest demonstration for the decency and efficiency of the dry Sunday that could have been made.

The parade, one of the largest ever held in Chicago for any purpose, passed into history without a single complaint against it brought to the notice of the police, and this is lauded by the wets as the outstanding feature of the demonstration. There were no arrests and 100 men held in reserve at the First precinct police station passed the afternoon victims of ennui or played cards.

Acting Chief of Police Schuettler, who reviewed a section of the walking military and turner delegations, was delighted with the behavior of the thousands passing east on Randolph street.

"They were quiet and orderly," he said. "None could have been better behaved. We were prepared for any emergency that might arise, but I was not surprised that there was no trouble."

THREE HURT ON GRIDIRON

Chicagoan and Two Home Players Injured at Aurora.

Aurora, Ill., Nov. 8.—Two Aurora football players and one Chicagoan were injured in games here.

Myron Griffith of the Aurora Shamrocks had his right leg broken in one game, while Joe Wagner, also of Aurora, had his nose broken in another. Right Half Back Shaughnessy of the eleven of the Sportsmen's Club of America of Chicago was knocked unconscious in a game with the Aurora South Ends. He was taken to Chicago after he had regained consciousness. The South Ends won, 7 to 6.

CHARGED WITH HUGE FRAUD

J. E. Foster, Former Chicago Violinist, Returned to Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 8.—That J. E. Foster, former Chicago violinist and promoter, has obtained $180,000 from business men whom he deluded with schemes for increasing their sales is the belief of federal authorities.

Following his departure from Detroit three weeks ago, when postal authorities raided his office, he was traced to Pennsylvania. He was brought back from Wilkebarre, Pa.

BRYAN WILL HEAD WINONA

Assembly Cleared of Debts at Meeting of Creditors.

Warsaw, Ind., Nov. 8.—Winona assembly is ready for reorganization, having been freed from debt and relieved of property encumbrances at an auction sale attended by creditors. About $700,000 worth of property was distributed among the creditors of the bankrupt concern.

William J. Bryan has promised to become the head of the new organization.

P. A. B. Widener Passes Away.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 8.—P. A. B. Widener, widely known financier and former traction magnate, died at his home at Elkins Park, near here. Mr. Widener had been ill for some time. He would have been eighty-two years old had he lived until Nov. 13 of this year.

CAROTHERS PERSONA NON GRATA IN MEXICO

State Department Expects to Hear Carranza Protest.

Washington, Nov. 8.—Secretary Lansing is not yet advised of reports from the border that General Obregon has protested against the presence in Mexico of Geo. C. Carothers, who for nearly two years has been the United States special representative for communication with Villa.

Carothers and his activities in northern Mexico have been the subject of complaint and criticism at Washington and in Mexico for a long time. Since the Villa-Carranza split the Carranzistas have been particularly bitter against Carothers and some of the Carranza agents in this country have openly denounced him as a trouble maker in Mexico.

Carothers is understood to have large personal interests in Mexico while his regular rating on the state department list is only that of a consular agent. Should he become separated from the state department service and seek to remain in Mexico to devote himself to his personal interests, it is believed that difficulties with the Carranza government would arise which might cause some embarrassment to the state department.

DURAND HERD GETS RESPITE

Eleventh Hour Writ Again Saves Cattle from Slaughter.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—Circuit Judge Claire Edwards of Lake county issued an injunction preventing the Illinois live stock commission or state veterinarians from executing the $30,000 prize herd of Guernsey cattle belonging to Mrs. Scott Durand.

The injunction came as an eleventh hour reprieve for the cattle, which have been held in quarantine for months on the charge that they were infected with the foot and mouth disease. Their execution was prevented at one time by an injunction which was later set aside by the state supreme court.

HE HAS THE RUNAWAY HABIT

Indicted Police Chief Disappears Second Time; First Time Eloped.

Danville, Ill., Nov. 8.—Joseph Jakonis, former chief of police of Westville who eloped to Omaha last June with a Westville widow, and was indicted on charges of misappropriating the funds of the village, has disappeared, according to his bondsmen, who failed to produce him in court when the case was called.

Jakonis, after his arrest in Omaha, made a desperate effort to escape from the officers returning him here, and leaped from a Wabash passenger train while the train was passing through Taylorville, but was recaptured.

DOESN'T RECOGNIZE VALIDITY

"United States Cannot Submit to Curtailment of Its Neutral Rights by Such Measures, Admittedly Retaliatory"—Language Severe, but Not So Threatening as on Lusitania.

Washington, Nov. 8.—The long awaited note to Great Britain on British practices interfering with American trade has been made public. In it the United States serves notive on Great Britain:

1. That it does not recognize as legal and effective the British blockade of Germany and Austria-Hungary.

2. That it "cannot submit" to the curtailment of its neutral rights by measures which are "admittedly retaliatory and therefore illegal."

3. That it "must insist" that the relations between it and the British government be governed not by a policy of expediency but by established rules of international law.

4. That it unhesitatingly assumes the task of championing the intergrity of neutral rights and will devote its energies to that end.

The note as a whole is a vigorous denunciation of the British government for the illegality of its measures in regard to neutral shipping. "Without justification," "ineffective," "illegal," "indefensible" and "in violation of the law of nations," are some of this government's characterizations of the British practices.

Differs from Berlin Notes.

Contrasted with the notes to Germany in the submarine controversy the communication to Great Britain, however, contains no phrases such as "strict neutrality," "will omit no word or act" and similar expressions used by the President in pressing his demands on Berlin. The note to the London foreign office is devoid of implications such as were contained in the German note, of drastic action by the United States in the event that the grounds of complaint are not removed. The note to Great Britain as viewed here, still shows this government at a loss for means with which to bring upon England any stronger pressure than that of diplomatic representations.

Deals With Property, Not Lives.

That the note will be read in comparison with the communication to Germany and that it will be studied in Berlin for proof of partiality toward the belligerents is realized in official circles here. The administration holds, however, that it was impossible to address Great Britain in quite the same manner as Germany in the submarine issue for the reason that the latter controversy involved a question of human lives while the issues with Great Britain concern only property rights.

Points Out Specific Cases.

The note contains more than 10,000 words. It includes among other exhibits a long list of neutral ships which have been illegally interferred with by the British. This list, with the details in each case, constitutes in effect, the indictment against Great Britain on which the note proper is based. The note groups the causes for protest by the United States under three heads. Under these are covered all the acts which are held to have infringed upon American trade rights. The three groups of offenses are:

1. The seizure and detention on the high seas on mere suspicion.

2. The so-called blockade policy.

3. The unsatisfactory and unacceptable character of the regulations governing and the procedure of British prize courts.

GERMAN GIRLS ARE JAILED

Send Love Letters and Offers of Marriage to Russ Prisoners.

Berlin, Nov. 8.—Because they flirted with Russian prisoners of war Helene Kockert and Charlotte Wichmann, two German girls, have been sentenced to six and two months' imprisonment.

The girls made the acquaintance of two Russian noncommissioned officers in the prisoners' camp, and fell in love with them. Using children as messengers they sent photographs, love letters and offers of marriage until they were arrested.

Pennsylvania Car Cleaners Strike.

New York, Nov. 8.—Two hundred employes in the car cleaning and inspection department of the Pennsylvania railroad went on strike at the Sunnyside yards in Long Island City.

KITCHENER TRIP BACKED BY PARIS

Briand, Gallieni and Joffre Consulted by Briton.

GREECE HAS ANOTHER PREMIER

He Is M. Skouloudis and Besides Is Minister of Foreign Affairs—Teutons Push Further Into Serbia—Take 3,000 Prisoners and 160 Guns—Bulgarians Again Repulsed.

Paris, Nov. 8.—While on the way from London to the scene of war in the near east Field Marshal Earl Kitchener, British secretary of war, conferred with Premier Briand and General Gallieni, French minister of war, and also with General Joffre, French commander in chief.

This fact apparently confirmed the London report that Kitchener's mission includes an effort to co-ordinate the work of the general staffs of the allied armies in the whole campaign against the Germanic allies in the near east.

Meantime it was disclosed officially that the French troops were advancing in their attempt to relieve the Serbians. The official statement on this point reads:

"There is nothing to report regarding our advance from Krivolak. On the front of the Crena River we continue our progress on the Rabrova side."

Greece Gets New Premier.

Athens, Nov. 8.—M. Skouloudis, commissioned by King Constintine to form a new cabinet, has accomplished the task. All members of the Zaimis ministery were retained except the premier himself, and one other new man was added to it. The new prime minister took the portfolio of foreign affairs.

The formation of the new cabinet, it is assumed, will delay if not eliminate the crisis that might follow dissolution of the chamber of deputies by the king.

Favors Entente Allies.

M. Skouloudis is not a deputy, but is regarded as an able diplomat known chiefly for the part he played in the London peace conference in 1913 after the Balkan war. He was minister of foreign affairs in the Rhallis cabinet in 1897. He is reputed to be favorably disposed toward the quadruple entente.

Bulgars Try to Trap French.

London, Nov. 8.—A division of 25,000 Bulgarians is attempting to envelop the French force in the Valandovi region, is the information obtained from Bulgarian soldiers by a Greek outpost in the Balasico Mountain at the junction of the Greek, Serbian and Bulgarian frontiers, says a Reuter dispatch from Saloniki. Heavy artillery and rifle fire has been heard at the outpost station.

Allied re-enforcements are passing Guevgeli regularly, it is asserted. A Serbian official is quoted as declaring the Serbs are holding firm at Babuna Pass, where all Bulgarian onslaughts have been repulsed. The pass is said to be piled deep with Bulgarian dead. At one point a force of more than 1,000 Bulgarians was annihilated.

Serbians In Retreat.

Berlin, Nov. 8.—"Following the fall of Nish," says the Tageblatt's correspondent at Austrian press headquarters, "Serbian troops which have been holding the Morava sector, between Nish and Varvarin, are beginning to retreat beyond Krusevac."

Berlin claims 3,000 Serbs and 130 cannon were captured.

RIVER BOOSTERS TO MEET

Will Inspect New Steel Barge on Mississippi at Conference.

Quincy, Ill., Nov. 8.—The postponed fourteenth annual convention of the Upper Mississippi River Improvement association will be held in this city Dec. 1 and 2, according to an official call just issued from the office of L. B. Boswell, secretary of the organization.

The governors of Illinois, Missouri, Iowa, Minnesota and Wisconsin, the mayors of towns and villages in those states, all commercial and business men's organizations and representatives of the press, have been invited to attend or send delegates to represent them.

Wish to Attend Night School.

Calumet, Mich., Nov. 8.—There is unprecedented demand in Calumet and Houghton, among alien residents who desire to become naturalized, for opportunity to study in the night schools, that will be opened this month. The night schools, which are free, expect to tetach from 1,000 to 2,000 this term in these two towns.

REO

Here's More Good News! The New Reos Are Here

IF YOU HURRY you may be one of the first to see, and to experience the sensation of a luxurious ride in our new Reo.

THEY ARE BOTH HERE--the new Reo the Fifth, the "Incomparable Four," which when announced recently at its new price--$875--created such a profound season in motoring circles.

AND THE NEW REO SIX: The $1,250 seven-passenger car--with its classy "sheer line" body with divided front seats and other features formerly obtainable only in cars of the highest prices --has created no less a sensation and has set a new standard in beauty as well as in mechanical value.

YOU'LL WANT TO SEE these new Reos. You'll want to get one; and to do that, you know it will be necessary to place your order long in advance of the time when you'll want delivery of the car.

TO-MORROW WON'T BE TOO EARLY--you know that the demand for Reos is always greatly in excess of the possible output of the big Reo facotres.

YOU KNOW THAT NEVER since the first Reo was made has it been possible to get enough Reos to supply all who want Reos; you know--all the world knows--that so great was the demand all last season every Reo was snapped up the minute it came from the factory, and for 60 days past it has not been possible to buy a new Reo of either model anywhere at any price.

SO DON'T DELAY--come in at once, see with your own eyes; satisfy your own self that in all the world eslewhere no such value can be had, and then--order--order at once and rest easy that you'll get your Reo when you want it.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall s Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system thereby eestroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials,

DO YOU FEEL HEADACHY? LOOK TO YOUR STOMACH

It is an unusual thing for a druggist to sell medicine under a guarantee to refund the money if it does not cure. Yet this is the way C A. Wright & Son the popular druggusts, are selling Mi-o-na, the standard dyspepsia remedy.

Never before have they had so large a number of customers tell them that a medicine has been successful as with Mi-o-na. People who a few months ago looked like walking skeletons have put on flesh and today are ruddy and vigorous with perfect digestion and good health.

There is no longer any need for anyone suffering or making their friends suffer on account of dyspepsia. Mi-o-na can always be relied upon. The percentage of cures is so great that there is little risk to C. A. Wright & Son in guaranteeing to return the money if the medicine does not relieve. And they stand ready to do so without any questions.

Headaches, all forms of indigestion, specks before the eyes, dizzy feelings, and all forms of liver trouble are helped by Mi-o-na. A few days' treatment should show considerable gain in health while a complete cure often follows rapidly. adv.

THE HIGH SCHOOL

The Seniors are practicing for a play entitled "Mr. Bob" to be given Thursday evening, November 18.

Ten weeks examinations this week.

XYZ; (to a pupil in the Commercial Arithmetic class), How can you tell when a number is divided by three? Pupil: "Well, I know but I can't express it." XYZ: "Send it by freight then."

Mr. Reed has announced that those in the Freshmen room had the least percentage of "X's" on their cards for the month of November. They must certainly be a brilliant class, as the Seniors pondered for sometime, but could only find one "X" in their class.

Don't forget that date, something "new" and something "great" November 18th.

The treasurer of the Athletic Association threatened sometime ago, to place on the board the names of all those who had not paid their A. A dues. She carried out her threat which gave many pupils a chance to get their name before the public, for once.

The fact that Halloween was the last of October, the pupils and teachers were obliged either to freeze or to endure the odor of that "Well known" cheese, nearly all last week.

The long looked for Laboratory supplies have arrived at last.

FISKE O'HARA

At the Bradley Opera House, Tuesday, November 16.

In the coming engagement of Fiske O'Hara in the new play, "Kilkenny" which comes to the Bradley next Tuesday, November 16, Tecumseh people will have their first opportunity of seeing a real theatrical star in their own city. Mr. O'Hara can well be classed with Chauncy Olcott, Guy Bates Post, Forbes Robertson, Wm Faversham or any other star on the American stage today.

In is not Mr. O'Haras policy to play cities as small as Tecumseh but owing to the past business here on the better class of attractions. when Mr O'Haras business manager made a proposition regarding the playing of our home town I did not hesitate in closing the deal knowing that Tecumseh people always have been loyal in their support. Of course Mr. O'Hara is bringing to Tecumseh a bigger and better attraction that anything of its kind ever shown here before and therefor requires a larger guarentee than has been asked before but as the people always have been loyal supporters when I have guaranteed attractions in the past, I did not hesitate to secure Mr O'Hara for this engagement when the opportunity presented it's self and certainly expect the people of Tecumseh and vicinity to do their share in making this engagement a success. It means the return, season after season, of this excellent actor in his new plays

You can go to shows in Toledo, Detroit, Chicago or New York but you won't see anything better in its line than Fiske O'Hara in this famous Irish comedy, "Kilkenny," there are no better and to hear Mr. O'Hara sing his famous Irish pieces "Ireland is Ireland to Me," "Contrary Mary Clary," "Dear Mother Mine" and his old favorite "The Harp that once through Tara's Hall" is to hear the finest Irish-tenor in the world.

Mr. O'Hara is carrying one of the largest productions, for a single play, ever coming into Tecumseh. A special 60 foot baggage car being required for the transportation of the scenery, electrical effects and furniture The company carries everything used on the stage even a portable dressing room for the use of the star, Mr. O'Hara.

When Mr. Dunne, business manager for Mr. O'Hara, was here last Friday making arrangements for his engagement here arrangements were started for a special train from Clinton and Manchester which will undoubtly bring a large number from these two towns.

Give your order for what seats you will need as early as possible as we want our local people to have their choice seats but the out-of-town people will have to be looked after too therefore I ask local people to make their reservations as early as possible.

Respectfully,
Ed. L. Mark,

Remarkable Success of These Talented Physicians in the Treatment of Chronic Diseases.

Offer their Services
Free of Charge.

The United Doctors, licensed by the State of Michigan for the treatment of deformities and all nervous and chronic diseases of men, women and children, offer to all who call on this trip, consultation, examination, advice free, making no charge whatever except the actual cost of treatment. All that is asked in return for these valuable services is that every person treated will state the result obtained to their friend, and thus prove to the sick and afflicted in every city and locality, that at last treatments have been discovered that are reasonably sure and certain in their effect.

These doctors are among America's leading stomach and nerve specialists and are experts in the treatment of chronic diseases and so great and wonderful have been their results that in many cases it is hard to find the dividing line between skill and miracle.

Diseases of the stomach, intestines liver, blood, skin, nerves, heart, spleen, kidneys or bladder, rheumatism, sciatica, diabetes, bed-wetting, tape worm, leg ulceers, weak lungs and those afflicted with long standing, deep seated, chronic diseases, that have baffled the skill of the family physicians, should not fail to call. Deafness often has been cured in sixty days.

According to their system no more operations for appendicitis, gall stones, tumors, goiter, piles, etc., as these diseases are treated without operation or hypodermic injection.

They were among the first in America to earn the name of "Bloodless Surgeons," by doing away with the knife with blood and with all pain in the successful treatment of these dangerous diseases.

If you have kidney or bladder troubles bring a two ounce bottle of your urine for chemical analysis and microscopic examination.

No matter what your ailment may be, no matter what others may have told you, no matter what experience you may have had with other physicians, it will be to your advantage to see them at once Have it forever settled in your mind. If your case is incurable they will give you such advice as may relieve and stay the disease. Do not put off this duty you owe yourself or friends or relatives who are suffering because of your sickness, as a visit at this time may help you.

Worn-out and run-down men or women, no matter what your ailments, consult them. It costs you nothing.

Remember, this last free offer is for this visit only.

Mrs. H. H. Haliday brought her father and mother Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Daniels to their home Saturday where they greeted their old friends and neighbors, returning back to Clinton later where they will remain until Mrs. Daniels recovers the use of her arms. She is doing as well as can be expected from the nature of her injuries.

GOING OUT OF BUSINESS

This was the first thing that greeted our eyes Monday morning in the window of Spayde's Shoe Store "Going out of Business."

Twenty-eight years ago last September Alva Spayde and family came to Tecumseh, and on the 22 day of the same month, he opened up a Clothing Store in the Mills block now occupied by The People's Store. A year later he added a boot and shoe stock and continued in the business until ten years ago when he sold out his Clothing business to Heesep & Heesen continuing in the Shoe business with his daughter Miss Bessie Spayde as partner. He moved into his present quarters in 1894 on the completion of the Masonic block.

Spayde's Shoe Store has always carried the best in the Boot and Shoe line and every customer has met with pleasant and courteous dealings by the proprietors who have every endeavored to be the same to all. They will be missed from their accustomed place by a host of friends, who while regretting their absence will wish them the very best, whenever they may be in the future.

About twenty-five neighbors and friends of the McNeil sisters gathered at their home Friday afternoon. The time wos spent in sewing carpet rags and visiting and the visit closed with a pot luck supper to which all did justice.

The talk at the Parish house last Sunday afternoon to men only, was given by Supt. W. L. Reed, who took for his theme School Ideals. This talk was pronounced one of the finest and showed that Mr. Reed had given the subject deep thought and has his school work at heart.

The Bible Study class for men and women at the Parish house last Thursday evening was well attended. The class is free to all. The Bible is studied in the light of modern knowledge and in reference to practical living. Class meets Thursday evening at 7:30 and is led by the Rev. Frederic Hewitt.

Dr. VanDuzen of Ogden Center met with auto accident Saturday near E. T. Beans residence. The ladies of the party wedt into the house to get a darning needle and twine for repairs. Mrs. Bean ran across the street to her sisters to get the needle and ran into a telephone wire that had been hung up on a pole. She was knocked down and badly cut just below the eyes and otherwise hurt.

Saturday evening about twenty friends of Mrs. Harvey Doty gathered at the home of her daughter and husband Mr. and Mrs. Blesing to help her celebrate her birthday. The evening was spent in playing pedro, Miss Lellah Weurthner receiving 1st prize, Mrs. Will Chiverall, 2nd and William Best was given the consolation. A pot luck supper was served at the close of the games.

AUTO ACCIDENT

ONE DEATH AND FOUR INJURED SUNDAY EVENING

Miss Stella Weiss Died on Way to Bixby Hospital.

As an auto load of people were on on their way home to Adrian Sunday evening from Tecumseh, where they had been calling on Mr. and Mrs. Homer Marsh, they met with a serious accident when one life was lost and four other of the party were seriously injured. Those of the party were Mr. and Mrs. John Nuss, George Nuss and father Mathew Nuss of Adrian and Miss Stella Weiss of Monroe.

They had turned out to pass another auto and in getting back into the road, one of the back wheels collapsed, overturning the car. Miss Weiss was crushed underneath. Dr. Hardy was called, also Guy Belding with his ambulance who took Miss Weiss to Bixby hospital in Adrian but she passed away before they reached the city.

The accident occurred about 5 o'clock one mile and a half south of Tecumseh near the Tilton farm and the brick school house where the D. T. & I. crosses the road.

J. RAYNOR LILLEY

A telegram received Monday afternoon by Col. and Mrs. A. S. Cummins announced the sudden death of her brother J. Raynor Lilley in New York. Funeral services will be held in New York Wednesday with burial in Buffalo Thursday. Col. and Mrs. Cummins leave Wednesday morning and will meet the funeral party in Buffalo.

Mr. Lilley was a former Tecumseh boy and has made many visits to the old home, where he has a host of friends who will regret to hear of his sudden death.

ONSTED IN FOR GOOD ROADS

The Onsted News comes out with an article stating that Onsted parties had been out with a petition for a State Reward Road along the Monroe Pike. They started from Tipton and worked west to west line of Cambridge and secured 24 out of 25 signitures or more than the required percentage to establish a State Road. This places the matter up to the State Highway Commission for action.

This will be welcome news for Tecumseh people as if this road is built in connection with the road contemplated from the town line into Tecumseh, it will give the traveler practically an improved road through from Cambridge Jc. to Tecumseh.

THE HARVEST THANKSGIVING

St. Peters Episcopal church was most beautifully decorated Sunday for the Thanksgiving services, for the bounteous harvest that has been garnered this season. Golden sheaves of wheat, corn, pumpkins, squash, cabbage, in fact everything that nature has so generously provided in vegetables, fruits and flowers was displayed in lavish profusion. The music prepared for the occasion was exceptionally fine, especially the duet by Mrs. L. R. Kimball and Frank Burroughs of Clinton which was rendered in a most delightful manner.

Rev. F. Hewitt chose for his theme "Bread" which he treated not alone physically but also in its spiritual sense. His sermon abounded in deed thought and was an inspiration to all.

The day was a perfect one, and the service will be long remembered by those who met together for this Harvest Thanksgiving.

THE LITTLE GIANT

A fair audience greeted the appearance of Clyde Poulter the little giant Friday evening at the Methodist church. Mr. Poulter gave a number of selections in reading and impersonation.

He was well supported by Mrs. Ella Hodges and Miss Edna Taylor with musical selections both instrumental and vocal. It is to be regretted that there not more out for the entertainment.

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE

Sunday being the fifteenth birthday of Wylie McCann his mother invited Lucile Miller, Cecile Clark and Oliver Blum to help him celebrate. As he had been ill for the past week with catarrhal fever, a larger party was not thought best. The rooms were beautifully decorated with Chrystanthums and the dining table was very pretty with flowers and candles to mark the years. A very fine repast was served and a delightful afternoon spent with music and fun.

How Italian Soldiers Behave.

The Italian soldier gets a very high character from Richard Bagot in his "Italians of Today." "To see an Italian soldier drunk or in any way misconducting himself in a public place is exceedingly rare—so rare indeed that it would create a very disagreeable impression on the witnesses. Indeed, the men of any one of the more important Italian regiments who misconducted themselves in a public place would, in addition to the severe punishment administered by the regimental authorities, undergo a very bad time of it at the hands of their own comrades."—London Globe.

Her Idea.

"Ma, your bank account is overdrawn."

"What does that mean, pa?"

"Simply this. You've written checks for $13 more money than was in the bank."

"The idea! If $13 will break the bank I'd find another one to do business with. I supposed they had thousands of dollars on hand all the time."—Detroit Free Press.

Outlawed.

"How about paying me for that suit I made for you two years ago?" asked the tailor.

"You surely can't expect me to pay for that suit," said the impecunious young man. "Why, it's all out of style."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

China's Great River.

The Yangtse kiang, or Yangtse river, is as long as the Mississippi and is far more important as a highway of commerce. From the great port of Shanghai as far inland as the important city of Hankow, a distance of 600 miles, the Yangtse is navigable for ocean going vessels. For the greater portion of this distance the river is very broad, and for some of the journey a passenger in a boat in midstream would be unable to see either shore distinctly. From Hankow to Ichang, 280 miles farther, the Yangtse is navigable for small river steamers, and from Ichang up to Pingshanhsien, nearly 1,000 miles, it is in great part navigable. Some of the passenger steamers plying between Shanghai and Hankow are exceedingly modern and comfortable. Thousands of sailing craft are seen on the river daily on a trip between these two points and numbers of huge rafts which require each a whole village to bring them and their contents to the distant market. The Yangtse has many important tributaries. One of these, the Hanho, which flows into the Yangtse at Hankow, is itself navigable for 800 miles.

The President's Title.

In spite of our traditions and our pretenses Americans dearly love a title. It's a fair guess that a large part of the mail that goes to the White House is addressed to "His Excellency" or "His Eminence" or "the Honor." As a matter of fact his title is The President of the United States. That is title so great that the fathers decided that to add to it would be to detract from it. The fathers were wise. Taking their cue from the federal practice the constitution makers nor the statute makers of New York ever gave the chief executive of this commonwealth other title than the governor of New York. Every governor of the state has been content with that. Address him so in letter or in speech and you are right. Decorate him with an "excellency" or an "honor" and you are wrong. The governor of Massachusetts is His Excellency by warrant of the constitution of 1780, but he is the only excellency we have in America.—New York Sun.

Buffoonery In "Hamlet."

The buffoonery once tolerated in provincial theaters is illustrated in an anecdote set forth in the memoirs of Barry Sullivan. Wright, who was the first gravedigger, prepared himself to take the house by storm by having incased his person within a dozen or more waistcoats of all sorts of shapes and patterns. When about to commence the operation of digging the grave for the fair Ophelia Wright began to unwind by taking off waistcoat after waistcoat, which caused uproarious laughter among the audience. But as fast as he relieved himself of one waistcoat Paul Bedford, the second gravedigger, incased himself in the castoff vests, which increased the salvos of laughter, for as Wright was getting thinner Paul grew fatter and fatter. Wright, seeing himself outdone, kept on the remainder of the waistcoats and went on with his part quite crestfallen.

Irritable Children Often Need Kickapoo Worm Killer

There is a reason for the disagreeable and fretful nature of many children. Think of the unrest when the child's body is possessed by tiny worms sapping its vitality and clogging its functions. Whatever may be the cause—"that children have worms is a fact." Your child's peevishness and irritability has a cause. Give Kickapoo Worm Killer a chance and if worms are there this humanly harmless remedy will eliminate the annoying parasites. 25c. a box. adv

Best Cough Medicine for Children

"Three years ago when I was living in Pittsburg one of my children had a hard cold and coughed dreadfully. Upon the advice of a druggist I purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and it benefited him at once. I find it the best cough medicine for children because it is pleasant to take. They do not object to taking it, writes Mrs Lafayette Tuck, Homer City, Pa. This remedy contains no opium or other narcotic, and may be given to a child as confidently as to an adult Sold by all dealers. adv

Colds do not Leave Willingly

Because a cold is stubborn is no reason why YOU should be. Instead of "wearing" it out, get sure relief by taking Dr. King's New Discovery. Dangerous bronchial and lung ailments often follow a cold which has been neglected at the beginning. As your body faithfully battles those cold germs, no better aid can be given than the use of this remedy. Its merit has been tested by old and young. Get a bottle today. 50c and $1.00. adv

Cheaper than Home Made

You cannot make a good cough medicine at home for as little as you pay for Foley's Honey and Tar, nor can you be sure of getting the fresh, full strength, clean and pure materials. Did you ever hear of a home-made cough medicine doing the work that Foley's is doing every day all over the country? Sold everywhere in Tecumseh. adv

Despondency Due to Indigestion

It is not at all surprising that persons who have indigestion become discouraged and despondent. Here are a few words of hope and cheer for them by Mrs Blanche Bowers, Indiana, Pa. "For years my digestion was so poor that I could only eat the lightest foods. I tried everything that I heard of to get relief, but not until about a year ago when I saw Chamberlain's Tablets advertised and got a bottle of them, did I find the right treatment. I soon began to improve, and since taking a few bottles of them my digestion is fine." For sale by all dealers. adv

Made Over Again

Mrs Jennie Miner, Davidson, Ind., writes: "I can truthfully say Foley Cathartic Tablets are the best I have ever used. They are so mild in action, I feel like I had been made over again." They keep stomach sweet, liver active and bowels regular. They banish constipation, indigestion, biliousness, sick headache. Sold everywhere in Tecumseh. adv

JURORS DRAGGED BY TRAIN

Two Men Narrowly Escape Death When Engine Hits Auto.

Alma, Mich., Nov. 8.—Two jurors in the circuit court at Ithaca, James Mills and James Porterfield, nearly lost their lives at night when their automobile was struck by a freight train and wrecked. The train carried the car about sixty feet. When it stopped, Mills was pinned under the wreckage, making it necessary to move the train to get him out.

He was suffering from a broken shoulder and other injuries while Porterfield escaped with slight bruises.

MARY TOOK CHANCE, IS DEAD

Nellie Was Afraid to Cross Ahead of Train, She Lives.

Cadillac, Mich., Nov. 8.—Mary Stapleton, twenty, took a chance and is dead. Nellie Johnson, nineteen, was afraid and lives. The girls were walking along a railroad track from the Cadillac steam laundry plant, where they were employed, when a freight train came from behind.

"Let's get across the track before the train gets here," said Mary, but Nellie waited. Mary stumbled and fell and was ground to death.

BAD CROPS REPORTED BY MICHIGAN OFFICIAL

Harvest In All Products Poorest In Ten Years.

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 8.—The final estimated yield of wheat in Michigan is 19.91 bushels an acre, according to the crop report issued by Secretary of State Vaughan.

The estimated total yield for the state is 15,494,517 bushels and the condition of growing wheat as compared with the average per cent, is 83 for the state. During the past three months, it is estimated that 3,000,000 bushels of wheat have been marketed.

The estimated average yield of corn is 26.32 bushels an acre. Clover seed averages 1.41 bushels; beans 8.66 bushels, and potatoes 54.11 bushels.

"The yield of corn was 19 per cent, potatoes 40 per cent, and beans 32 per cent less than the 10-year average from 1905 to 1914," said Secretary of State Vaughan, "and the quality the poorest in that period. Corn did not ripen, potatoes rotted badly and beans were seriously affected by anthracnose and excessive moisture."

Breaking Law Proves Him Good Man.

Houghton, Mich., Nov. 8.—The removal of the body of Thomas Dally, one of the victims of the shooting at Painesdale, from a lot in Forest Hill cemetery, came near sending Bert Williams to prison. Williams married Mrs. Dally, and on her deathbed she asked him to place the body of her first husband at her side. He, not realizing that a law course was necessary, removed the body. His explanations were satisfactory in the court.

Will Probe Turkey Disease.

East Lansing, Mich., Nov. 8.—A poultry plant devoted to the study of diseases of turkeys will be established at the Michigan Agricultural college. "As it is now, the losses are so serious that one can never count on eating Turkey until he sees it on the table," says Professor C. H. Burgess of the M. A. C. poultry department.

A USEFUL PAIN

Tecumseh People Should Heed Its Warning.

Have you a sharp pain or a dull ache across the small of my back? Do you realize that it's often a timely sign of kidney weakness? Prompt treatment is a safe guard against more serious kidney troubles. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. Profit by a Tecumseh resident's experience.

J. B. Smith, E Chicago St., Tecumseh, says: I was caused a great deal of suffering by pains in the small of my back. When the attacks were present, it was all I could do to work. When stooping, I became very dizzy and spots of fire seemed to flash before my eyes. I rested poorly and in the morning when I got up, I was unrefreshed. I doctored and used remedies of various kinds, but got no benefit until I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills. They made me feel like a different person, ridding me of the trouble." (Statement given Dec. 1, 1908.)

MORE THAN FOUR YEARS LATER, Mr. Smith added: "I gladly confirm my former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills. This medicine never fails to act just as represented.

Twelve Bodies Identified.

New York, Nov. 8.—With twelve identified dead recovered and a renewed search being made of the ruins for the bodies of other victims, a report indicating that the fire, which swept the five-story factory building at 285-287 North Sixth street, Williamsburg, was of incendiary origin has become a matter of official investigation. Probably one other body is still in the ruins, the police think.

BAD CROPS REPORTED BY MICHIGAN OFFICIAL

Harvest In All Products Poorest In Ten Years.

LANSING, MICH. — The final estimated yield of wheat in Michigan is 19.91 bushels an acre, according to the crop report issued by Secretary of State Vaughan.

The estimated total yield for the state is 15,494,517 bushels and the condition of growing wheat as compared with the average per cent, is 83 for the state. During the past three months, it is estimated that 3,000,000 bushels of wheat have been marketed.

The estimated average yield of corn is 26.32 bushels an acre. Clover seed averages 1.41 bushels; beans 8.66 bushels, and potatoes 54.11 bushels.

"The yield of corn was 19 per cent, potatoes 40 per cent, and beans 82 per cent less than the 10-year average from 1905 to 1914," said Secretary of State Vaughan, "and the quality the poorest in that period. Corn did not ripen, potatoes rotted badly and beans were seriously affected by anthracnose and excessive moisture."

SAYS LINE SERVES RESORTS

Delta Would Bar Phone Company Patronized by Vice Dens.

ESCANABA, MICH. — Prosecutor H. J. Rushton, of Delta county, filed suit in circuit court here against the Michigan State Telephone company, seeking to enjoin that company from operation within the state under act 201 of the Public Acts.

The Delta county official charges that houses of ill-repute, saloons, houses of assignation and other shady resorts have been given service in direct violation of the statute. He stated that the local office of the company had been warned a year ago, and since that time to remove phones from certain candy kitchens, resorts and saloons in Escanaba, and had failed to do so.

Man Confronted With Job Would Suicide; Abolish Jobs.

LANSING, MICH. — Frederick Heller, of New York, did not like the taste of carbolic acid with which he decided to kill himself. Replacing the cork in the bottle he lay down in the Michigan Central railroad tracks where the police found him. He wrote a dramatic note to the effect that poison was better than troubles.

All the "trouble" the police can get him to refer to is a letter from his wife, which he received in Detroit, a tearful plea for him to come home and take the $19-a-week job she has for him and support her and their two children.

ROCHAMBEAU IS ON FIRE AT SEA

Radio Tells of Blaze In French Liner's Bunkers.

VESSEL CARRIES 721 PERSONS

Four Hundred and Twenty-one Are Passengers—Many Americans Are Aboard—New York Agent Thinks Fire Accidental—Vessel Not in Danger—May Continue Voyage.

NEW YORK, N. Y. — The French liner Rochambeau, a quadruple screw turbine and one of the most popular steamships in the Atlantic trade since the withdrawal of the big and swifter craft due to war, was reported with fire in her reserve coal bunker, in a position unnamed, but supposed to be east of Halifax and within less than half a day of that port. General Agent Faguet of the French line received this message from Captain Juham of the Rochambeau at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

"We are fighting fire in the reserve coal bunker. If we do not succeed we will put into Halifax. Everything all right. No danger."

Think It Spontaneous Combustion.

Mr. Faguet said that he believed it probably was caused by spontaneous combustion, and that in all probability few persons aboard the Rochambeau outside of Captain Juham and his officers knew of the existence of the fire. It had happened before on French and other liners that a bunker fire had been in existence a day or more and had been extinguished without passengers knowing anything about it until afterward. He was inclined to believe that the captain was on his way to Bordeaux. The concluding sentence of the message indicated that the fire was not to be regarded as serious.

Carried War Material.

The Rochambeau carries a cargo of about 9,000 tons, including a large quantity of war material. In the latter are four boxes of auto trucks, 2,541 cases of cartridges, 1,000 cases of empty cartridges, 20 cases of machine guns, 511 bundles of steel, 300 cases of brass and copper rods, 93 cases of copper rings, 7,280 reels of barbed wire, 254 flasks of quick silver and a large number of pumping and other machines for use in trenches and factories.

Has 721 Persons Aboard.

The Rochambeau has aboard 721 persons, including 171 cabin and 250 steerage passengers. The rest of the ship's company is made up of officers and crew. Thirty Americans are among the cabin passengers. Henri La France, an officer of the French aviation corps who was wounded in the Argonne and came here to purchase aeroplanes for his government and recuperate, is going home by the Rochambeau.

BRITISH WAR COUNCIL GIVEN LARGE POWER

Asquith, Lloyd-George and Balfour Are Inner Government.

LONDON — England's new war council has been chosen, the Evening News announces. The members are: Premier Asquith, acting temporarily as minister of war; first Lord of the admiralty, Balfour; minister of munitions, Lloyd-George.

Foreign Minister Sir Edward Grey, it is stated, will sit with this triumvirate whenever British foreign policies are involved.

The council—"the big three"—as the English are calling them already—will have direct charge of British military and naval operations. In ordinary matters they will act without consulting the rest of the cabinet. The entire ministry will be given an opportunity to take part in discussions and to exercise a voice when vital policies are under consideration.

GERMAN CRUISER IS SUNK BY SUBMARINE

British Also Lose Armed Merchantman and Steamer.

LONDON — The British armed merchantman Tara was attacked and sunk in the eastern Mediterranean by two German submarines on Friday last, according to an official announcement made by the official press bureau.

The steamship Tara, prior to receiving a commission in the British India Steam Navigation Company, Limited of Glasgow. The vessel was of 6,322 tons gross and was built in 1902. She was 446 feet long, 53 feet beam and was 29 feet deep. The British steamship Woolwich, 2,936 tons, owned by the British Steamship company and sailing from London, has been sunk by a German submarine. The crew was saved.

Berlin, Nov. 1.—The German cruiser Undine has been torpedoed and sunk by a submarine off the Swedish coast, on Nov. 7, it is officially announced.

The Undine was a protected cruiser of 2,672 tons displacement, 328 feet long and 15.8 feet depth. Her armament consisted of ten 4.1-inch guns and two 18-inch torpedo tubes. She was built in 1901 at Howaldt.

BARS WOULD ENJOIN MAYOR

Chicago Saloonkeepers Go Into U. S. Court on Sunday Lid.

CHICAGO — A bill for an injunction restraining Mayor William Hale Thompson and Chief of Police Charles C. Healey from preventing owners of saloons from selling nonintoxicating liquors and tobacco on Sundays and to prevent them from revoking the licenses of saloon owners on this ground was filed in the United States district court by Attorney W. G. Anderson on behalf of John McLaughlin and others.

The bill is directed against the mayor and the chief of police and is on behalf of McLaughlin, about ten other saloonkeepers and any others who find themselves similarly situated.

ILLINOIS SESSION DELAYED

Dunne Defers Calling Legislature for Extra Appropriation Work.

CHICAGO, ILL. — Governor Dunne will defer for a week or longer the convening of the legislature in special session. Word from Springfield was that the presence of the Odd Fellows convention at the capital next week has led to an alteration in the governor's plans, and that, instead of assembling the lawmakers next Monday he will not call the special session before Monday, Nov. 22.

In framing the call the governor may leave out some of the items knocked out by the supreme court in upholding one of the Fergus injunction suits attacking legislative appropriations.

Russ in Violent Drive.

LONDON — A determined offensive movement by the Russians near Riga and along the line of the Dvina River to Dvinsk is reported in the official statement by German army headquarters. It is asserted, however, that the attacks of the Russians were repulsed with heavy losses to the attacking force in some sectors.

The Russian statement says the Germans were forced to evacuate Olai, southwest of Riga.

"Shirkers" Denied Passage.

LONDON, ENG.—Following the example of the Cunard Steamship company, the White Star line announced that no further bookings on its steamships of emigrants of military age would be permitted.

THE HAGUE — The Berlin socialist newspaper Vorwaerts was supressed by the government.

FINDS RECORD MASS COPPER

Chunk Free Metal Weighing Near Ton Uncovered by Farmer.

CALUMET, MICH. — Officials of the Douglass Copper company shipped from Ahmeek to the Quincy smelter, on Portage lake, one of the largest pieces of free or float mass copper ever brought to light in the Keweenaw district. This mass, weighing close to a ton, was found the last week by a farmer, Michael Kurle, on land cultivated by him and leased from the Douglass company.

The mass lay a few feet below the surface of the ground in the vicinity of the big reservoir being constructed for the new water supply of the village of Ahmeek.

BULGARS ANNEX PART OF SERBIA

Flag Hoisted Forever Over Nish, Winning General Wires.

GERMANS KEEPING UP GAIN

Anglo-French Force, However, Is Pressing Enemy Hard In Desperate Fighting in the South—King Peter Near Capture—Greek Crisis Gets More Acute.

LONDON, ENG.—Formal announcement of the annexation of south and southwestern Serbia by Bulgaria is expected at any moment. Messages exchanged between Czar Ferdinand of Bulgaria, Premier Radoslavoff and the commander of the army that took Nish announce the actual annexation of the conquered territory. It is believed the Teutonic allies plan the dismemberment of Serbia, part to go to Bulgarlia, the rest to Austria-Hungary.

General J. Ecoff, conqueror of Nish, telegraphed to the premier: "After fierce and sanguinary fighting the fortress of Nish has been conquered by our brave, victorious troops and the Bulgarian flag has been hoisted to remain forever."

In Honor of Dynasty.

The premier replied:

"The capture of Nish, where the national flag will wave forever in honor of the emperor and the dynasty and to the glory of our brave Bulgarian soldiers, has afforded great joy to me and my colleagues."

Czar Ferdinand's reply to General Ecoff read:

"I congratulate you most sincerely upon the taking of Nish—that chief stronghold of treachery and untruth. God save our troops."

Allies Gain in South.

While the Germans are admittedly making great progress in the north and center, the fighting in the southern port of Serbia and in southwestern Bulgaria favors the allies. The Franco-British line there stretches for sixty miles from near Prilep, Serbia, to a point southeast of Strumitsa, Bulgaria. Where this line crosses the Nish-Saloniki railway heavy fighting is in progress with the Bulgars.

French troops have occupied Kosjak and Tabuna Heights and are expected to make a junction with the Serbians operating near by.

More German Gains.

BERLIN — The Serbian town of Krusevac, on the railroad about fifty miles northwest of Nish, has been occupied by German troops, according to the official statement.

More than 2,000 unwounded Serbians were made prisoners. More than 1,500 wounded were found in the hospitals. There was much booty, says the report.

DURAND HERD GETS RESPITE

Eleventh Hour Writ Again Saves Cattle from Slaughter.

CHICAGO, ILL. — Circuit Judge Claire Edwards of Lake county issued an injunction preventing the Illinois live stock commission or state veterinarians from executing the $30,000 prize herd of Guernsey cattle belonging to Mrs. Scott Durand.

The injunction came as an eleventh hour reprieve for the cattle, which have been held in quarantine for months on the charge that they were infected with the foot and mouth disease. Their execution was prevented at one time by an injunction which was later set aside by the state supreme court.

BRYAN WILL HEAD WINONA

Assembly Cleared of Debts at Meeting of Creditors.

WARSAW, IND. — Winona assembly is ready for reorganization, having been freed from debt and relieved of property encumbrances at an auction sale attended by creditors. About $700,000 worth of property was distributed among the creditors of the bankrupt concern.

William J. Bryan has promised to become the head of the new organization.

A PROCLAMATION

By The Governor

The people of the United States are grateful to the Infinite Father for their capacity and disposition to appreciate the bounties of nature. Through this appreciation, man cheerfully applies his labor to the earth in order that her bounties may serve as a means for realizing the essential joys of life. Abundant harvests are simply a necessary means to an end. The measuring unit of life is not to be found in bushels of grain, or potatoes or fruits, or coal or copper or silver, or gold, or houses, or lands, but in the laughter of children around the hearthstone, in the love and loyalty of the home. "Home is the nation's safety." In the year nineteen hundred fifteen, we are grateful for the benediction that rests upon the American home. In the great Commonwealth of Michigan we are, in common with all the other states, the recipients of the richest blessings. It is eminently fitting that we set apart November 25, as a special day for Thanksgiving, a day on which we may pray for "Peace on earth, good will to men."

Therefore, I, Woodbridge N. Ferris, Governor of the State of Michigan, do hereby designate Thursday, the twenty fifth of November, as a day for all the people of this Commonwealth to celebrate in thanksgiving and prayer.

[SEAL] Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the State, this 6st day of November, in the year of our Lord 1915 and of the Commonwealth the 79th

WOODBRIDGE N. FERRIS,

Coleman C. Vaughan,
Secretary of State

WIT AND WISDOM

The regular meeting of the Wit and Wisdom Club will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Turner. This will be ladies evening with Mrs Turner leader. Picnic supper will be served at 6 o'clock with roll call and anecdotes.

FISKE O'HARA

At the Bradley Opera House, Tuesday, November 16.

It is safe to say that a capacity house will greet Mr. Fiske O'Hara and his excellent company when they appear at the Bradley Opera House next Tuesday evening, November 16th, in Mr. O'Hara's new play "Kelkenny." This is the first time that a real theatrical star has ever appeared in Tecumseh.

The surrounding country and near by towns have been billed like a circus and from all indications the special train from Clinton and Manchester is a certainty. The advance sale of seats opens at Hay's bakery Saturday (tomorrow) morning at 8:00 o'clock and one of the largest advance sales of any time here is looked for.

"Kilkenny", Mr. O'Hara's play, is a charming Irish comedy and is one of the biggest attractions coming into Tecumseh. A 60 foot baggage car is required to carry the scenery, furniture and electrical effects used in the play. Not only is this the biggest but the best. When you see this production you will say so too. When you hear Mr. O'Hara sing his famous Irish songs you will say you have heard the best Irish tenor in the world. Mr. O'Hara has that honor.

The local management has given Mr. O'Hara a big guarantee to get him to play Tecumseh this first time. Give the management your hearty support and make it possible for Tecumseh to have these excellent attractions. Not only return dates for Mr. O'Hara, from year to year, but other of the big stars. There is no object in the local management throwing money away to get these big productions if the people rather have the cheaper ones. Show that you want the best by supporting them when they are secured. You wont see anything better, in this line, in Detroit, Toledo, Chicago or any other city than Mr. O'Hara in "Kilkenny," in fact this same O'Hara plays these very same cities and at a higher price than you are asked to pay because there are not enough people in the smaller towns that can afford the prices that are asked in cities when generally the entire first floor is $2.00 a seat, and the writer has often known them to be more.

Get your tickets early and get a friend to buy some and make this big attraction a success. It will mean more of the same caliber for Tecumseh. Right now the local management has a chance of securing Al H. Wilson in his latest play "As The Years Roll On" for a date in February but is holding the option until he sees how this engagement comes out. It will mean another big guarantee and if this one don't make good there is no use in trying another. The prices for this engagement will be only 50c, 75c. $1.00 and $1.50.

NOTICE

I am selling millinery goods at greatly reduced prices. Call and examine before purchasing elsewhere.

JUST ABOUT US

The old sheds that so long have ornamented the grounds back of the stores on the south side of East Chicago street have at last been torn down by order of the Common Council as they were a fine fire trap, and a menace to the business part of the village.

Right of way has been secured in the alley in the rear of the stores and Herald office on the north side of West Chicago street for the use of the fire department in case of emergency.

Gratz & Son have just installed a new boiler at their mill, as the one in use was found insufficient to do the work for the new dryer and the mill. It is in a brick building just north of the mill and will be a great addition to working capacity of the mill.

Kenneth Hay has been redecorating the interior of the City Bakery with new paint and paper. The old canvas that covered the ceiling has been removed and white paint substituted making it clean and neat.

ALICE BRADLEY

The community was greatly shocked this morning when the sad news was received of the death of Miss Alice Bradley in Lansing, where she went some three weeks ago for treatment. The seriousness of her condition was not generally known.

Thursday morning Dr. McNamara telephoned to her father F. E. Bradley and Arthur to come at once as she was failing fast. She was conscious when they reached her bedside but passed away at 4 p. m. Funeral services will be held at the home Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock with burial at Brookside.

RESEARCH CIRCLE

Tuesday afternoon the members of the Research Circle were entertained at the home of Mrs. Hugh Ager, when a very fine program was given under the leadership of Mrs. J. J. Belcher. Mrs. Chas. Orr gave a paper on "The Republic Equador." Mrs. Mary Smeltzer read a paper on "The Trend of the Times in Charity." Development of Character through Responsibility " was presented by Mrs. Andrew Wilson. Mrs. Will Waldron gave an interesting talk on her visit to the Exposition Roll Call. An invention useful to woman was well responded to. Mrs A. C. Bryan will entertain next Tuesday.

MONDAY CLUB

There was a good attendance at the meeting of the Monday Club Monday afternoon. In the absence of the president, Mrs. J. D. Shull, Mrs. F. G. Lewis, 1st vice president, presided, also leading the program.

The meeting opened with singing of Michigan My Michigan by the club. Mrs. G. R. Gillespie gave the report of the County Federation of Clubs which was followed by a piano duet by Mesdames Wood and Hodges.

Mrs C. A. Wright gave the report of the State Federation.

The meeting then adjourned to meet Monday November 15.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system thereby destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

STATE BOYS CONFERENCE

Nov. 26, 27, 28, 1915.

Kalamazoo

A house to house canvass is being made by a hundred older boys to find enough accomodations for all the delegates who will attend the 13th Annual Conference of the older boys of Michigan. At present 1,000 places have already been secured and the Campaign this week will no doubt bring this number up to 2,000—enough for all the delegates who are planning to attend.

Word has already been received that a number of special trains will bring delegates from Bay City, Saginaw, Flint, Lansing, Detroit, Jackson Battle Creek Grand Rapids and a number of large delegations will come from the Counties having organized Y. M. C. A. Work.

The Conference this year promises to be a most notable one. A number of national leaders have already been secured as speakers. The boys themselves will have no small part in the program, fully 40 boys will read papers and lead in discussions in the section meetings of the Church. Clubs Boy Scouts, and Country Y. M. C. A's High School and Employed Boys. Registrations for Conference must be in by Nov. 16.

PROGRAM:

The program will include general sessions, sectional meetings for High School boys, Employed Boys, city and country Y. M. C. A., Boy Scouts, Church and Sunday School Clubs, Life Work suppers for various life callings in Professions, Business, Y. M. C. A. Work, Ministry, Farming, and Social Service.

Registration cards and furthur information from your city or county Y. M. C. A. secretary. If you have no Y. M. C. A. in your town, write J. A. Van Dis, 411 Assn. Bldg, Detroit, Mich.

HERE'S NATURES OWN REMEDY FOR CATARRH

Hyomei Relieves Catarrh Without The Use of Dangerous Drugs.

Not until Hyomei was discovered has it been possible to truthfully say that a real remedy for catarrh was known.

Hyomei is an oil and its air is breathed through a small inhaler furnished with it for a few minutes four times a day, and during that time every particle of this Hyomei-laden air taken into the air passages and lungs is impregnate with a powerful germ killing and health giving antiseptic.

Sprays and lotions often cause disorders of the respiratory tracts or bring on some other diseases and never make a permanent cure of catarrh. But when the air of Hyomei penetrates to the inmost air cells of the lungs and enters the blood with the oxygen it not only kills the germs in the throat and nose, but kills the bacilli in the blood, freeing the mucous membranes from poisonous microbes and giving perfect health.

A complete outfit is inexpensive and includes an inhaler, dropper and sufficient Hyomei for several weeks treatment.

C. A. Wright & Son have so much faith in the merit of Hyomei that they agree to return the money to any purchaser who is not thoroughly satisfied.

Sudden Muscular Aches and Pains —Need not be!

That is—if you use the right remedy. Sloan's Liniment is a real necessity in every home—for young and old. Its merit is praised in dozens of letters. A stiff neck from colds, children's sprains, those aching muscles, that sharp neuralgia pain—these find guaranteed relief in Sloan's Liniment. Every home meets with sudden aches and accidents. Your home needs a bottle. 25c 50c, and $1.00.

COMING BACK
To Tecumseh
UNITED DOCTORS SPECIALISTS

Will be at the Barrett Hotel
Monday, November 15, 1915
ONE DAY ONLY
HRS 10 A. M. TO 8 P. M.

Remarkable Success of These Talented Physicians in the Treatment of Chronic Diseases.

Offer their Services Free of Charge.

The United Doctors, licensed by the State of Michigan for the treatment of deformities and all nervous and chronic diseases of men, women and children, offer to all who call on this trip, consultation, examination, advice free, making no charge whatever except the actual cost of treatment. All that is asked in return for these valuable services is that every person treated will state the result obtained to their friend, and thus prove to the sick and afflicted in every city and locality, that at last treatments have been discovered that are reasonably sure and certain in their effect.

These doctors are among America's leading stomach and nerve specialists and are experts in the treatment of chronic diseases and so great and wonderful have been their results that in many cases it is hard to find the dividing line between skill and miracle.

Diseases of the stomach, intestines liver, blood, skin, nerves, heart, spleen, kidneys or bladder, rheumatism, sciatica, diabetes, bed-wetting, tape worm, leg ulceers, weak lungs and those afflicted with long standing, deep seated, chronic diseases, that have baffled the skill of the family physicians, should not fail to call. Deafness often has been cured in sixty days.

According to their system no more operations for appendicitis, gall stones, tumors, goiter, piles, etc., as these diseases are treated without operation or hypodermic injection.

They were among the first in America to earn the name of "Bloodless Surgeons," by doing away with the knife with blood and with all pain in the successful treatment of these dangerous diseases

If you have kidney or bladder troubles bring a two ounce bottle of your urine for chemical analysis and microscopic examination.

No matter what your ailment may be, no matter what others may have told you, no matter what experience you may have had with other physicians, it will be to your advantage to see them at once. Have it forever settled in your mind. If your case is incurable they will give you such advice as may relieve and stay the disease. Do not put off this duty you owe yourself or friends or relatives who are suffering because of your sickness, as a visit at this time may help you.

Worn-out and run-down men or women, no matter what your ailments consult them. It costs you nothing.

Remember, this last free offer is for this visit only.

Married ladies come with their husbands and minors with their parents.

CAN'T TALK

But Would Like to Tell His Experience.

If Michigan horses could talk, some might say to their owners what Chauncey Botton's (of Chittenango, N. Y.) horse would say, if it could speak, namely, that a simple liniment "removed those mighty bad galls." And thousands of other grateful animals all over the world could testify that Hanford's Balsam of Myrrh often cures when all other liniments have failed. It's good for horses, hounds, burns, etc., too. Get a bottle for your home. Your local dealer has it.

Throws Away Head of Dog That Bit Hillsdale Man.

HILLSDALE, MICH. — Word has been received from the Pasteur institute at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor that a janitor threw away the head of the dog that had bitten Rural Carrier George Foster, of this city, a few days ago, before the head had been examined for rabies.

The janitor is said to have taken it for granted that the examination had been made and that the head was ready for removal.

"BIG NORRIE" IS ABANDONED

Royalties of $10,000,000 in 19 Years Paid by Mine Company.

IRONWOOD, MICH. — The Big Norrie, for twenty years and more the leading mine on the Gogebic range and around which grew its leading city, Ironwood, has been abandoned by its former operators, the Oliver Mining company. From its first opening to the recent surrender of its lease it has produced 25,000,000 tons of ore, the royalties on which run close to the $10,000,000 mark, of which the Keweenaw Land association, better known up here as the Longyear Land pool, is the sole beneficiary.

It was learned that the company would have kept the early mine as well, had it not been for the minimum royalty of $100,000 to be paid whether any ore was produced from the property or not.

ONE KILLED, FOUR INJURED

Miss Stella Weiss Loses Life When Adrian Auto Turns Over.

ADRIAN, MICH. — Miss Stella Weiss, of Monroe, was so badly injured that she died within an hour, and Mr. and Mrs. John Nuss and their sons, George and Matthew Nuss, of Adrian, were seriously hurt when Matthew Nuss' automobile, in which they were returning from Tecumseh, upset five miles north of Adrian.

George Nuss was driving and had turned out to pass another automobile. In getting back into the road, the rear axle of the Nuss machine collapsed and the car turned over, crushing Miss Weiss beneath it.

JURORS DRAGGED BY TRAIN

Two Men Narrowly Escape Death When Engine Hits Auto.

ALMA, MICH. — Two jurors in the circuit court at Ithaca, James Mills and James Porterfield, nearly lost their lives at night when their automobile was struck by a freight train and wrecked. The train carried the car about sixty feet. When it stopped, Mills was pinned under the wreckage, making it necessary to move the train to get him out.

He was suffering from a broken shoulder and other injuries while Porterfield escaped with slight bruises.

PASTOR LOSES LIBEL SUIT

Brought Action Against Paper Which Criticised Lusitania Talk.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. — Judge Clement Smith in circuit court ordered a verdict in favor of the Grand Rapids News in a $20,000 libel suit brought by the Rev. John Van Longhuyzen of the Christian Reformed church.

The suit was based on an editorial criticising the pastor's utterances in opposition to President Wilson's policy after the sinking of the Lusitania.

People who use Peruna

Mrs. T. Frech, R. R. 1, Hickory Point, Tenn., writes: "I am happy to tell you that I am cured of catarrh. Having been afflicted with catarrh and stomach trouble for seven years, and after having tried four different doctors, who only relieved me for a little while, I gave up all hope of being cured. I was induced to try Peruna, and to my great surprise I am now entirely well. My health never was better."

FOR INDIGESTION

Mrs. W. R. Whitehead, R. R. 1, Pryor, Oklahoma, writes: "I am happy to tell you that I keep free from my old stomach trouble; feel no catarrhal symptoms at all. I am able to do my work, eat and drink what I want, and rejoice to know that I found a sure cure in your valuable medicine. I think it saved my life. By beginning in time with Peruna I was cured sound and well."

Have you a sharp pain or a dull ache across the small of my back? Do you realize that it's often a timely sign of kidney weakness? Prompt treatment is a safe guard against more serious kidney troubles Use Doan's Kidney Pills. Profit by a Tecumseh residents experience.

J. B. Smith, E. Chicago St., Tecumseh, says: I was caused a great deal of suffering by pains in the small of my back. When the attacks were present, it was all I could do to work When stooping, I became very dizzy and spots of fire seemed to flash before my eyes. I rested poorly and in the morning when I got up, was unrefreshed. I doctored and used remedies of various kinds, but got no benefit until I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills. They made me feel like a different person, ridding me of the trouble." (Statement given Dec. 11, 1906.)

MORE THAN FOUR YEARS LATER, Mr. Smith added: "I gladly confirm my former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills. This medicine never fails to act just as represented.

Irritable Children Often Need Kickapoo Worm Killer

There is a reason for the disagreeable and fretful nature of many children. Think of the unrest when the child's body is possessed by tiny worms sapping its vitality and clogging its functions. Whatever may be the cause—"that children have worms is a fact." Your child's peevishness and irritability has a cause. Give Kickapoo Worm Killer a chance and if worms are there this humanly harmless remedy will eliminate the annoying parasites. 25c. a box. adv

Best Cough Medicine for Children

"Three years ago when I was living in Pittsburg one of my children had a hard cold and coughed dreadfully. Upon the advice of a druggist I purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and it benefited him at once. I find it the best cough medicine for children because it is pleasant to take. They do not object to taking it, writes Mrs. Lafayette Tuck, Homer City, Pa. This remedy contains no opium or other narcotic, and may be given to a child as confidently as to an adult Sold by all dealers. adv

Despondency Due to Indigestion

It is not at all surprising that persons who have indigestion become discouraged and despondent. Here are a few words of hope and cheer for them by Mrs. Blanche Bowers, Indiana, Pa "For years my digestion was so poor that I could only eat the lightest foods. I tried everything that I heard of to get relief, but not until about a year ago when I saw Chamberlain's Tablets advertised and got a bottle of them, did I find the right treatment. I soon began to improve, and since taking a few bottles of them my digestion is fine." For sale by all dealers. adv

D. D. D. In Hospitals; Standard Skin Cure

How many hospital patients, suffering the frightful itch, the raw scorching pain of skin disease, have been soothed to sleep by a soothing fluid washed in by the nurse's hands?

That fluid is the famous D. D. D. prescription for eczema.

THE SUPERVISING NURSE of one of our prominent Catholic institutions (name of nurse and institute on application), writes regarding a patient. "The disease had eaten her eyebrows away. Her nose and lips had become disfigured. Since the use of D. D. D. her eyebrows are growing, her nose and face have assumed their natural expression."

How many eczema sufferers are paying their doctors for regular treatment and are being treated with this same soothing, healing fluid?

DR. GEO. T. RICHARDSON frankly writes "D. D. D. is superior to anything I have ever found. Soft and soothing, yet a powerful agent."

To do the work, D. D. D. Prescription must be applied according to directions given in the pamphlet around every bottle. Follow these directions—and see!

And it certainly takes away the itch at once—the moment the liquid is applied. The skin is soothed—calmed—so thoroughly refreshed—delightfully cooled.

All druggists of standing have the famous specific as well as the efficient D. D. D. Skin Soap.

But we are so confident of the merits of this prescription that we will refund the purchase price of the first full size bottle if it fails to reach your case. You alone are to judge.

"BATTLING BOB" DID NOT SHY AT MONEY

Ignoble Motives Move La Follette Says Stephenson.

Washington, Nov. 15.—At the age of eighty-six years ex-Senator Isaac Stephenson, one of the last of Wisconsin's lumber merchants, has issued a volume of recollections which for the first time bares the secrets of his relations with Robert M. La Follette and with the tumultuous political movement within that state which resulted in the genesis of the "Wisconsin Idea."

Ex-Senator Stephenson disclosed the details of his financing of La Follette's political ambitions and lays before his friends all the facts which he steadfastly refused to give out when La Follette turned on him and attempted to oust him from the United States senate because he spent more than $100,000 in his campaign for election to that body.

The venerable ex-Senator relates how he spent more than $500,000 on La Follette and his political lieutenants and how he has contributed probably $1,000,000 to the Republican party. He described La Follette weeping with joy when his (Stephenson's) agent handed him the first $2,500.

Senator Stephenson makes the interesting disclosure that La Follette turned against him finally trying to have him removed from the senate soon after he refused to put up $250,000 to back La Follette's candidacy for the presidential nomination. Stephenson does not seek to connect the two events or to draw any deductions from them. He merely states the facts.

AUDITOR ELECT IS INDICTED

Thomas Ferguson Accused of Embezzling $3,000 from Township.

Terre Haute, Ind., Nov. 15.—Thirty-one indictments, charging crimes ranging from petit larceny to embezzlement and affecting former county, city and township officials, were returned by the Vigo county grand jury. Thomas Ferguson, county auditor-elect, is accused in nine indictments, containing five counts each, of embezzlement of the funds of Lost Creek township during the year 1914, his last year as trustee of that township. All indictments against Ferguson charge embezzlement and the conversion of more than $3,000 of the funds of Lost Creek township to his own use, and in this alleged action six Indianapolis dealers in school supplies are made parties to the action, although indicted on separate counts.

Jacob R. Finkelstin, president of the Greenburg Iron company, is indicted on a charge of presenting fraudulent claims for $525 and getting the money.

Thinks Body Not Yeager's

Evansville, Ind., Nov. 15.—Failure to locate a fracture in the thigh bone of a body taken from the river here a year ago has convinced a son of Julius Yeager, former Owensville (Ind.) merchant, that the body is not his father. Yeager disappeared from the Southern Hospital for the Insane shortly before the body was found.

CAR KILLS HOSPITAL HEAD

Supt. J. B. Draper of Ann Arbor, Run Down on Way Home.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 15.—Superintendent J. B. Draper, of the University hospital, was almost instantly killed when he was struck by an Ann Arbor street car at the corner of Twelfth street and North University avenue as he was on his way home. Both legs and one arm were cut off.

The accident happened almost opposite the Homeopathic hospital and he was rushed to the operating room there, but died within ten minutes.

HOLD AUTOISTS FOR DEATH

Pair Were in Car from Which Officer on Duty Fell.

Flint, Mich., Nov. 15.—Hiram Stratton and Elmer Wilcox were bound over to the circuit court on a charge of manslaughter. It is alleged the men caused the death of Emery T. Middleton, former state representative from Genesee county and prominent local option worker, on the night of August 26.

Middleton was trying to detain them for sheriff's officers after their automobile had wrecked a milk wagon and fell or was pushed from the running board of the machine.

THIRD ITALIAN LINER IS SUNK

Steamer Bosnia Is Destroyed by Austrian Submarine.

PASSENGERS BELIEVED LOST

Vessel Was Small One—Austro-Hungary Issues Statement Declaring Liner Ancona Sought to Escape—Time Given All on Board to Disembark—Denies Stories.

Rome, Nov. 15.—The Italian steamship Bosnia has been sunk by a submarine flying the Austrian flag. The passengers and crew boarded four lifeboats. Three of these craft have been landed, but the fate of the occupants of the fourth boat is not known.

The Bosnia was a vessel of 2,561 tons gross and was 307 feet long.

The Bosnia is the third Italian liner sunk with a week by submarines flying the Austrian flag.

Of ten Americans who were on board the Italian steamship Ancona when she was sunk by a submarine off the Tunisian coast only one was saved, according to a statement issued by the Italian emigration office.

The statement also says that out of 507 passengers and crew of the Ancona only 299 were saved.

Ancona Fled, Says Vienna.

Berlin, Nov. 15.—The Austro-Hungarian admiralty officially announced that the Italian steamship Ancona attempted to escape at full speed after a warning shot had been fired across her bow and that the vessel only stopped after being shelled several times by an Austrian submarine, says the Overseas News agency.

The submarine commander, it is further asserted, allowed the Ancona's passengers and crew forty-five minutes to abondon the ship, after which the vessel was torpedoed, sinking three-quarters of an hour later. The report that the submarine fired on the life boats is denied.

The Admiralty Statement.

The statement issued by the Austro-Hungarian admiralty, declares that the foreign press has spread false rumors regarding the Ancona incident.

Runic and Vaderland Sunk.

New York, Nov. 15.—The Cunard Line officially denied the report that the Aquitania and Mauretania had been sunk while acting as transports. "They had been in the hospital service between Savla Bay and Liverpool," said an official of the line. "The transports sunk were the Runic and the Southland." This is the first time the name of the Runic had been mentioned among the transports sunk. She was a White Star liner. The Southland was the Red Star liner Vaderland.

French Steamship Sunk.

London, Nov. 15.—All on board were lost, it is believed, when the French steamship St. Malo of 1,243 tons was sunk by a German submarine near the Island Guernsey, in the English Channel. Twelve bodies have been washed up on the shores of Guernsey.

Among the other victims of the submarine war was the Norwegian steamship Waseda of 4,969 tons, the crew of which was saved.

Reports from Bordeaux state that the Spanish steamship Bernabe of 2,288 tons, registered at Bilbao, has been lost. Ten of the crew of twenty-four are missing. The dispatch does not state how the Bernabe met her fate.

ANOTHER FOOTBALL DEATH

Paul Root, Normal School Player, Is Dead Following Injury.

Charleston, Ill., Nov. 15.—Paul Root, half back on the Normal school team, died at the Montgomery sanitarium as a result of injuries sustained in Saturday's football game here with Normal university.

Death was due to a ruptured blood vessel in the head.

Prince Albert Ill.

London, Nov. 15.—Prince Albert, second son of King George, is suffering from an obstinate gastric disorder and will have to remain in London a few weeks to undergo special treatment.

28 KILLED IN VERONA BY AUSTRIAN AIRMEN

Three Aeroplanes Drop Fifteen Bombs on Italian City.

Rome, Nov. 15.—Three Austrian aeroplanes dropped fifteen bombs on the City of Verona.

Twenty-eight persons were killed. Thirty other inhabitants were seriously wounded and nineteen people were slightly injured. One bomb alone killed nineteen people.

This is the second time Austro-Hungarian aeroplanes have made a raid on the fortified City of Verona. Last July an Austrian machine dropped about a dozen bombs on the city and then escaped, notwithstanding a fire directed at it by the forts defending the city.

Verona, next to Venice, is the most important town of the Italian compartimento of Venetia, and is distinguished by its strikng medieval palaces.

PRO-GERMAN SHOUTS "LIE"

Gifford Pinchot Interrupted During Address at Church.

New York, Nov. 15.—Enraged at statements made by Gifford Pinchot in an address in the Park Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, Paul Dierke, a German sympathizer, arose and shouted several times at Mr. Pinchot: "You lie!"

Pinchot gave no heed to the interruption, whereupon the man walked out. In the lobby he vented his anger by smashing with his fist a bulletin board which announced Pinchot's address.

NOBEL AWARDS ANNOUNCED

Prize for Chemistry Goes to German—Britons Divide Physics Honors.

London, Nov. 15.—According to a Reuter dispatch from Stockholm, two of the Nobel prizes for 1915 will be awarded as follows:

Chemistry, Dr. Richard Willstaetter of the University of Berlin; physics, divided between Professor William Henry Bragg of the University of Leeds and his son, W. L. Bragg of Cambridge university, for research in the structure of crystals by use of the Roentgen rays.

Demarest Sent to Asylum.

Rockford, Ill., Nov. 15.—Calvin Demarest, the former amateur billiard champion, whose nervous trouble a few months ago brought on his confinement at the Wilgus sanitarium in this city, has been committed to the state hospital for the insane at Elgin. A sanity commission decided him hopelessly insane.

He Don't Want Vindication.

Anderson, Ind., Nov. 15.—That G. K. Mercier, an Anderson man under arrest in Houston, Tex., charged with criminal assault on a fifteen-year-old girl, will bitterly fight extradition to Indiana was learned in a telegram received here from the chief of police of Houston.

BREWERY IN FLINT TO BECOME CHURCH

Beating Swords Into Plowshares Has Nothing on This.

Flint, Mich., Nov. 15.—Flint's only brewery, which quit business when Genese county went dry, is about to be turned into a church.

The sale of the building, occupied by the Flint Brewing company for twenty years, to the Elm Park Methodist Episcopal church for $6,400 has been announced. The building is to undergo alterations and in a few weeks it will become the Lakeside Methodist Episcopal church—a mission of the Elm Park church. The sign of the brewing company, which has been a thorn in the side of the church people of Flint for years, will be removed within a few days.

"The quicker the better," said Rev. P. B. Hoyt, pastor of the Elm Park church. "It is but fitting," he added, "that a building whose product has probably done as much to corrupt the morals of the city as any institution outside the actual saloon, should now take the role of a reformer."

B. T. WASHINGTON DIES IN ALABAMA

Negro Leader Susccmbs Near School He Made Famous.

NERVOUS BREAKDOWN FATAL

Had Been Honored by More White Men Than Any Other Member of His Race—White Man Believed His Father—Dinner With Roosevelt Is Recalled.

Tuskegee, Ala., Nov. 15.—Booker T. Washington, the ablest leader of the negro race, died here. Bright's disease and arterio sclerosis caused his death. On October 25 Mr. Washington addressed the National Council of Congressional Churches of the United States in New Haven, Conn. Two weeks ago he was in New York on business when stricken. He was taken to Rockefeller Institute hospital for examination. He was removed to St. Luke's hospital while some method of treatment was worked out.

Nothing could be found to relieve him. He left New York for Tuskegee last Friday.

Honored by Big Men.

Probably no negro that ever lived was more honored by white men than Mr. Washington. President Roosevelt had him to the White House for dinner, greatly scandalizing some sorts of opinion in the South thereby but creating throughout the country as a whole a more favorable impression. Andrew Carnegie, whose rise from poverty and menial labor was in some respects not unlike the career of Booker T. Washington, once remarked that history would tell of two Washingtons—one white, the other black, both fathers of their peoples.

It was through the generosity of Mr. Carnegie that Washington was left free to devote his life to the cause of educating negroes. Mr. Carnegie gave $600,00 0to the Tuskegee normal and industrial institute at Tuskegee, Alabama, the school made famous throughout the world because of Mr. Washington's connection with it and devotion to it.

Washington was born near Hales Ford, Franklin county, Virginia, either in 1858 or 1859, he was never quite certain which year it was.

He inserted the "T." into his name the second day he attended school when asked by the teacher who he was he thought that while he was selecting a name he might as well select a good one. The "T," he explained, stood for Taliaferro, which he had heard, was the name of his father.

Growth of Tuskegee a Marvel.

He was invited to Tuskegee, Ala., by citizens to take charge of the school which he made famous in 1881. When he arrived at Tuskegee he found there had been no land or buildings provided—that there was nothing, in fact, except the promise of the state of Alabama to pay $2,000 annually toward the expenses of the school. He began to teach in a small shanty, having one assistant only for the instruction of thirty pupils. From that time on the growth of the institution was phemonenal. Persons all over the country became interested in Tuskegee and the man who was making it famous.

Gifts flowed in. Extensions became possible. Now Tuskegee possesses property worth $2,000,000 or more, uses fifty buildings which are on 3,000 acres of land. Annually from 1,500 to 2,000 young negro men and women are taught how to make their lives count for the most for themselves, for their race and their country.

President Roosevelt admired him highly and frequently consulted him. President Taft recognized his keeness of judgment and his sincerity of purpose. Harvard university gave him a degree in 1896 and other colleges conferred degrees upon his subsequently.

Married in 1893.

In 1893 he married Maggie Y. Murray who became closely identified with the work at Tuskegee. She too became prominent in many national movements for the uplift of the negro, particularly in movements for the betterment and welfare of negro mothers and negro women generally. She worked in the cause of temperance.

Georgia Passes New Dry Law.

Atlanta, Nov. 15.—A measure revising Georgia's prohibition law designed to eliminate completely breweries, lockers clubs and "near-beer saloons," now in operation, was passed by the lower house of the legislature. It already had passed the senate and it understood to have the approval of Governor Harris.

COUNTRY PUBLISHERS ORGANIZE ASSOCIATION

Met in Adrian Last Friday and Perfected Details. Common Interests Demand Unity of Action!

The publishers of country papers have long felt the need of an organization among themselves wherein they can discuss their common problems and assist each other. The result of this was the perfection of such an organization at Adrian last Friday when the country publishers from Lenawee and adjacent counties met and organized.

The officers elected were E. T. Armstrong, Morenci Observer, president; W. N. Miller, Blissfield Advance, vice president, and J. B. Carter, Deerfield Journal, secretary and treasurer.

The publishers of all the Lenawee county papers and several from adjacent counties took part in this organization and all were of the opinion that a strong united effort on the part of the publishers will do much toward solving many of the problems common to each and through the standing committees which have already commenced work, it is hoped to benefit both the publishers and the communities they represent.

The following papers were represented at the preliminary meetings which resulted in this organization, Addison Courier, Hudson Gazette, Onsted News, Tecumseh Herald, Clinton Local, Blissfield Advance, Morenci Observer, Deerfield Journal, Milan Leader, Saline Observer, and Waldron Recorder. The enthusiasm and determination of these publishers to work together for their common interests and the communities they serve was apparant and it assures the complete success of the organization.

Paying the Price for "Reform."

Chicago, Nov. 15.—State expenditures are increasing 200 per cent every decade, Medill McCormick told the Commercial club. They jumped from $16,000,000 in 1905 to $46,000,000 this year, and at this rate will be $130,000,000 in another ten years.

Horse Linament May Cause Blindness.

Oxford, Mich., Nov. 16.—Martin Ludwig, of Oxford, may lose the sight of both eyes as the result of a mistake in medicines. Ludwig mistook a bottle of horse linament for eye wash and bathed his eyeballs with it.

Tossing In a Blanket.

Tossing in the blanket is a very old sport or punishment. "Blanketing" Ben Jonson called it, and in Hollinshed (1557) we find a denunciation of "jesting, plaiing, blanketing and such other filthie and dishonorable exercises." The French have a special verb, "berner," for it, "berne" being the name given to the sheet or blanket used. The verb "berner" is also used for the Moorish punishment, in which four men hold the victim by his ankles and wrists and send him as high as they can—presumably with no blanket to catch him.

Now He Has Millions.

"See that fellow in the limousine?" said one man to another at Washington and Illinois streets as a big car passed.

"Well, I can remember when he didn't have but one pair of socks; now he has millions."

"Gee, he must have some washings," replied the friend whose mind does not run to finances.—Indianapolis News.

By Comparison.

"Dubkins is a great comfort to me."

"I don't see how you can say that. He's the most tiresome chump I have ever met."

"That's just it. Although I don't amount to much, it's true every time I look at Dubkins I feel that I could amount to less."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

ITALY'S CRACK MARKSMEN.

They Are All Athletes and Are the Pride of the Army.

The bersaglieri (sharpshooters) are the elite of the Italian army, and each bersagliere is a picked man, chosen for his hardihood and stamina, the average bersagliero being short and thickset, but with magnificent strength and exceptional powers of endurance.

There is no prouder soldier in the world than the full blown bersagliere as he swaggers along the street of an Italian town in his dark blue uniform, with its rich red facings, and on his head, set at a rakish angle, the famous wide brimmed black slouch hat adorned with large, heavy, drooping plumes of green cocks' feathers.

Bersaglieri, by the way, is pronounced ber-sarl-lary.

When on the march the bersaglieri never walk as do other soldiers, but always go at a sort of quick trot.

These 25,000 or so men are among the most perfectly drilled troops in the world. Every single bersagliere, apart from being a man chosen for his endurance, is a fully trained athlete.—Westminster Gazette.

An Ingenious Device.

When Sir Robert Perks' school days were over he entered the office of a firm of lawyers and worked very hard. It was no uncommon thing to find him reading law at 5 in the morning, and this often after he had been working late on the previous night. As a matter of fact, he made it an inflexible rule never to be in bed of a morning after 5. To enforce this rule he invented an ingenious device. This consisted of a long glass tube filled with water nicely balanced over his head and attached by a string to an alarm. At the desired hour the bell rang and awakened the sleeper. If within a few seconds he did not leap from his bed and avert the calamity the descending weight of the clock destroyed the balance of the tube, and down poured the water on his guilty head!—From "The Life Story of Sir Robert W. Perks."

ANIMALS IN PAWN.

Tame or Wild, They Are Good For a Loan In This New York Shop.

Among the curious industries or sources of livelihood in New York city is an animal pawnshop. As you take a watch to an ordinary pawnshop to raise money on it, so you may take a watchdog to the animal pawnshop. Recently a man did this, getting $20 on a dog that was easily worth $50, the pawnbroker said. But he was a trick dog which had been taught to open doors. So in due time he opened a door and let himself out while letting the pawnbroker in.

A well known animal trainer owns the shop. He takes camels, lions, elephants—any animals. There are no charges for interest on the loan, the only charge being for the keep of the animals, among which at almost any time are dogs, monkeys, bears, goats, cats, coons, foxes, parrots, canaries. At one time he had forty trick donkeys in pawn. The profits arising from charges for feed and care are enough to make the institution pay.

Once he had a lion in pawn which broke his chain in the stable and went roaring around, scared almost to death, and it was only after heroic efforts that they mustered courage to capture him. As a matter of fact the animal was a decrepit beast that had served his time in sideshows and was anxious to get away.—Exchange.

A CLEW TO HER PAST.

She Knew Entirely Too Much, As a Close Observer Discovered.

She looked rich and acted rich, and every one knew that she was rich because she had married a rich man, yet the Sherlock Holmes of the tea party discovered that she had once been poor.

"Take it from me," she said, "that there was a time, and that not so very long ago, when she was as poor as the rest of us."

"Marvelous!" exclaimed the other four girls. "How did you discover that?"

"Through her knowing so absolutely where I keep all my housekeeping things. She knew that the tea caddy was in the writing desk, that the cheese, biscuits, and other edibles beloved by mice were in that tin box under the sofa, that the alcohol for my stove was in the corner behind the washstand, that the butter and milk were on the window ledge and that the eggs and other raw foods were in a box on the bottom shelf of the wardrobe.

"When we were cooking she went straight to the spot and got every one of those things without once asking where they were, which is something that a person who had not had a wide experience of housekeeping in one room could never have done."—New York Times.

FATAL ACCIDENT

Clinton people were much shocked Saturday when it was known that Geo. Millspaugh had been severely burned while working over an auto.

He and another man had been to deliver a new car to Mr. McHaney a few miles out of town, they had a Ford car with them for their return home. As they were starting out, the car refused to work and Mr. Millspaugh began to look it over to see what the trouble might be and finally struck a match to see more clearly:

He was an once enveloped in flames and started on a run. Mrs. McHaney called him back, when he grabbed her by the arms calling "Help me," "help me." She shook him loose and she and the men wrapped him in a blanket rolled him on the ground putting out the fire, but he was so seriously burned that death came to his relief Sunday at 10:40 p. m. Mrs. McHaneys apron was badly burned and her escape was marvelous.

Mr. Millspaugh was about 33 years of age and leaves a wife and one child to mourn his terrible death

ALICE BRADLEY

The funeral of Miss Alice Bradley was held at the home Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. W. A Rex officiating, Mrs. B. T. Mead and Miss Ella Hodges singing.

The large attendance and the wealth of beautiful flowers attested to the love and appreciation in which she was held by her friends

Miss Alice was the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs F. E Bradley and was born in Franklin twenty-nine years ago.

When eleven years of age the family removed to Ypsilanti where she attended school and later graduated from the Musical department of the Normal. Mr. Bradley and family came to Tecumseh several years ago, later moved to their present home west of town.

Miss Alice was of a sweet retiring disposition and won many friends, both old and young. Especially was she loved in the intermediate department of the Presbyterian Sunday school where she was assistant teacher she was a member of the West Minister Guild which attended her funeral in a body.

She was also a member of the Eastern Star. Her parents, a sister Mrs. Wm. McNamara of Lansing, two brothers Arthur of Tecumseh, and Elwin of Lake Odessa are left to mourn her early death.

CARD OF THANKS

To the friends who came to us in the hour of our deepest sorrow to comfort and assist us. To the pastor and the singers, To those who gave the wealth of beautiful flowers to garland the grave of our dear one, we wish to express our most grateful thanks,

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Bradley and family

AT THE GRANGE

The all day meeting of the Tecumseh Grange held Saturday was a very interesting one. A picnic dinner was served at noon after which a program was given. Mrs Cornelius gave two piano solos and Mrs. A. W. Mills a vocal solo. One of the most interesting feature was the talk by Mrs. Will Waldron on her western trip. Short talks were also given by H. B. Eaton and Rev. Hartzog.

Quarantined.

In one of the little mountain towns of the south a Chautauqua meeting was held last summer for the first time. The fact was advertised for some distance round the town, but the older negroes especially did not understand what it was all about.

Across the front of the little hotel of the village was flung a banner bearing the one word "Chautauqua."

Up to this hotel one day drove an old negro in a one horse wagon containing a few vegetables, which he hoped to sell to the proprietor, as he had done on former occasions. But when he saw the banner with its ominous word he was seized with fright and would not go into the building or even get out of his wagon. When the proprietor appeared the old fellow inquired nervously, "What disease is you all quarantined for, boss?"—Youth's Companion.

An Idol With Diamond Eyes.

The famous Orloff diamond was once the right eye of the great idol Serringham in the temple of Brahma. This precious gem was stolen at about the beginning of the eighteenth century by a French soldier who had made a pretense of being converted to the Hindu religion in order to gain the confidence of the priests and admission to the temple. The Frenchman first sold the diamond for £2,000. On the next turn it was bought by a banker of Constantinople for £12,000. The banker kept it until 1774 and then sold it to the Russian empress for £90,000 and a life pension. The gem has been in the Russian royal family ever since. As it is now set in the imperial scepter of Russia it presents a flattened, rose cut surface and weighs exactly 194¾ carats.

DON'T SUFFER—LAUGH AT STOMACH MISERY

C. A. Wright & Son Will Return the Money if Mi-o-na Does not Relieve Dyspepsia

Among all the remedies in C A. Wright & Son popular drug store, there are few that they are willing to sell on a guarantee to refund money if they do not cure.

Mi-o-na, the famous dyspepsia remedy has helped so many of their customers that C. A. Wright & Son says, "If this remedy does not relieve you, come back to our store and we will cheerfully return your money."

Anyone who has dyspepsia, indigestion, headaches, dizzy feelings or liver troubles, should take advantage of this chance to be made well without any risk of spending their money to no purpose. Mi-o-na will relieve you, will regulate the digestion, will enable you to eat what you want. If it does not do all this it will not cost you a cent.

C. A. Wright & Son have sold hundreds of boxes of Mi-o-na and have yet to receive the first complaint from any customer. Such a record is simply marvelous and speaks volumes for the merit of the remedy.

Do not suffer a day longer with disordered digestion. If Mi-o-na does not give you complete satisfaction you have C A. Wright & Sons personal guarantee to return your money.

YEAR OF INDEPENDENCE.

The Custom of Dating Proclamations by the President.

While the president of the United States dates official documents from the year of the Declaration of Independence, there is no law on the subject, and the custom is neither general nor binding, the form being used only in proclamations by the president. It originated before the adoption of the constitution during the days of the confederacy.

The original articles of confederation show they were signed by the delegates "at Philadelphia, in the state of Pennsylvania, the 9th day of July, in the year of our Lord, 1778, and in the third year of the independence of America." The signers dated "the independence of America" from the Declaration of Independence, July 4, 1776, although the war was still young and continued several years longer. The constitution shows it was signed "the 17th day of September A. D., 1787, and of the independence of the United States of America the 12th."

The first proclamation issued by Washington as president was, "Given under my hand and the seal of the United States in the city of New York the 14th day of August A. D., 1790. and in the fifteenth year of the sovereignty and independence of the United States." He used the phrase "sovereignty and independence" in two proclamations and then dropped the word sovereignty.

All subsequent executive proclamations are dated from the year of independence, as beginning July 4, 1776, although the independence of the United States was not acknowledged till several years later. — Philadelphia Press.

KIT-CAT PORTRAITS.

Origin of the Term That Stands For Stupid Mediocrity.

Several years ago an eastern art critic waxed sarcastic concerning a collection of paintings on view at one of the leading New York clubs. In the course of a vitriolic tirade he relieved himself of the assertion that the exhibition consisted chiefly of kit-cat portraits. Those who went to the clubrooms expecting to see canvases adorned with feline compositions were condemned to disappointment. There was not a cat picture in the whole show.

"What is a kit-cat portrait?" was the burning question of the hour. Why, a stupid portrait, a commonplace piece of painting that reveals no glimmer of genius. At this stage of the explanation the inevitable interruption—"But why do you call it a kit-cat picture?" And not one critic out of a hundred had the remotest idea.

The term for stupid mediocrity had its origin in a collection of forty-two portraits of prominent men painted between 1703 and 1720 by Sir Godfrey Kneller, one of the best known British portrait painters. They were exactly the same size and were framed alike; hence the idea of monotony which led to the idea of mediocrity. The subjects of these portraits were members of a club that met in the tavern of a celebrated pastry cook, Christopher Cat—called Kit for short—and among them were such men as Addison, Steele, Walpole and Marlborough. It was the influence of this club that placed George I. on the throne of England.—Exchange.

Mollified.

This really happened in New York the other day:

Displeased Parent—Molly, I find you have been buying three pairs of gloves without my permission. Why did you do it?

Miss Molly (aged twelve)—Why, daddy, I was obliged to have some gloves. I hadn't a pair to wear!

Displeased Parent—It was very wrong of you to buy the gloves without asking either your mother or me about it.

Miss Molly—Well, never mind, daddy, dear. They won't cost anything. I had them charged!—New York Post.

Her Conscience.

In spite of scoldings, Helen persisted in running away from home. One day, after a longer absence than usual, her mother asked:

"Helen, dear, does not your conscience trouble you when you are running away from mother?" explaining that her conscience was a little voice speaking within. Helen answered:

"Oh, yes, mamma; that little voice is always saying, 'Run faster, faster, Helen; your mother is after you!'"—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

The Amethyst.

A good example of one of the ways in which magical properties became attributed to natural objects is the stone known as amethyst. The ancient Indian name of this stone had the sound represented by its present name. In Greek this sound happens to mean "anti-wine;" hence, without more ado, the ancients declared that the amethyst was a preventive of and a cure for drunkenness!—London Mail.

Idle Dream.

"Poor dad! Sister told him that the girls of her class are going to graduate in dollar gowns."

"Well, what about poor dad?"

"He thinks a dollar is all he will be called upon to give up."—Kansas City Journal.

Two Sides.

Willis—Why don't you go to church?

Gillis—Too far. Why don't you go?

Willis—We live next door to one, and I hate to get all dressed up just to go that little way.—Boston Journal.

There Are Exceptions.

"We are all born equal," quoted the wise guy.

"Don't try to tell that to the mother of a first baby," cautioned the simple mug.—Philadelphia Record.

Woman's Enlarging Sphere.

At twenty-five a man used to begin to live, but a woman was on the shelf. Up to a few decades ago the woman of twenty-five," married [illegible] was usually passee. If married she forswore romance and spent her days in dull and commendable faithfulness to "kinder, kirche, kueche;" if unmarried and minus an independent income, heaven help her! She passed gently into the maiden aunt stage—household helper in general to any married sister, brother, cousin that ever wanted her; subject to call when there was illness, dire need, a new baby or bustling preparations for some important event; to take errors and omissions meekly and without complaint. Sometimes she persisted in being young even at twenty-seven and curled her hair and squeaked her voice to a childish treble and trained in a set of kittenish manners for social purposes. She hated to give up the thought of ever being married.

And here's her twentieth century substitute who is an undeveloped child under twenty-five. She is perfectly willing to marry, but she has plenty of interests to occupy her if she doesn't. Moreover, she has plenty of interests in addition to home and family when she does marry.

For there is one thing that business and professional interests have done for the modern woman which makes them beyond price—that have protracted youth and deferred recognition of old age indefinitely. Business and professional life do for women what they have done for men. It takes a man about ten years to put a business on the level of substantial success. Sometimes it takes more, occasionally less. The well planned business life of the average man makes the years between twenty and thirty hard plugging. At thirty he begins to have a secure footing, and if he has really lived, if he has the rich human experience that falls to the average normal individual, he is a well rounded personality and in the prime of life at forty.

Interesting occupation has shoved ahead woman's prime of life similarly. The young bud of nineteen or twenty is only pleasant to look at or to play with for a little while. From twenty to thirty, if she is actively engaged in doing something worth while, she is developing continually. She is enriching her mind and personality by actual contact with life, more real than that viewed from the safe walls of a comfortable home. She is building her business life, facing conflict daily, learning self reliance. Her soul goes unshielded through the fires of experience. At thirty she is in the prime of life, rich in interest and human sympathy and understanding. For it is not alone the patting of baby curls that develops womanly sympathy, but working in the world and seeing and experiencing what other men and women endure.

Woman's life used to be mainly retrospective. Before thirty she was already engaged in the gentle occupation of reiterating again and again her youthful experiences and conquests. The modern woman with an occupation looks ahead. The past is to her only a foundation, and her days are filled with planning for next month, next year and ten years ahead.

Sandwiches and Sandwich Fillings.

Honey Sandwich.—Spread thin slices of bread with very thick honey that will not run readily; spread other side with butter stirred with cream. Press one slice of each together and cut into fancy shapes if something tasty is desired for an afternoon tea.

Baked Bean Sandwich.—Reduce the beans to a pulp (red kidney beans preferred). Mix pulp with melted butter, onion juice, a pinch of dry mustard, a few olives or pimentos chopped and a dash of tomato ketchup or chili sauce. Spread the mixture between slices of brown bread. Chili sauce is generally used.

Deviled Ham Sandwiches.—To make deviled ham chop very fine one pint of boiled ham (more fat than lean), six hard boiled eggs, one teaspoonful of mustard (the made kind), season and press in a mold. This will keep for weeks and is a good filling for sandwiches.

Fillings for sandwiches are numerous and nearly always on hand. First there come the sweet fillings, such as creamy fudges of all kinds, mashed chocolate creams, maple fillings, creamy maple fudge, caramel fudge, candied ginger as a garnish for outside of sandwiches, also as a filling; raisins chopped and mixed with fudge or chopped and mixed with butter, etc. They make a good filling. They do not attack digestion quite so harshly when used in this manner and may be used between crackers, cookies or bread with good results and are always liked by those who use them. Second come the cheese fillings, American cheese and Swiss cheese, and they may be cut wafer thin and served in many ways with pimentos on buttered bread. Nuts and raisins are popular now as sandwich fillings, as are also the meat, chicken and vegetable fillings.

Darning Hint.

When darning run the thread around the hole first, drawing the hole up until the edges lie flat on the darner. The hole will seem much smaller, and the darn can be made more satisfactorily.

Feline Amenities.

They were discussing the newest engagement. The fair fiancee had previously made three similar announcements, but not one had resulted in a wedding.

"Do you think she will really marry him?" asked her dearest friend.

"I can't say, my dear," retorted the next dearest. "It is possible, but not customary."—Woman's Home Companion.

The Limit.

"I shall never speak to her again as long as I live."

"But you've said that often before."

"I know, but what else is there to say when a person becomes as angry as she makes me?"—Detroit Free Press.

Cautious.

Higgs—Crooke is a criminal lawyer, isn't he? Diggs—He's a lawyer, but as to his being criminal, I think he's too careful to quite overstep the line.—New York Sun.

God gives every bird its food, but does not throw it into the nest.—J. G. Holland.

A Curious Experience.

Lombroso, the famous Italian criminologist, once had a curious experience. He was in a printing office correcting the proofs in his "Delinquent Man" with the chief reader when on reaching a page which dealt with a young man who, impelled by jealousy, had stabbed his fiancee he made a surprising discovery. The proofreader was this man.

"Suddenly," Lombroso said in telling the story, "he threw himself at my feet, declaring that he would commit suicide if I published this story with his name. His face, before very gentle, was completely altered and almost terrifying, and I was really afraid that he would kill himself or me on the spot. I tore up the proofs and for several editions omitted his story."

Thunder.

Winter thunder is considered throughout Europe to be of very ill omen, but April thunder is considered to be very beneficial. In Devonshire and other cider counties of England there is a saying that "when it thunders in April you must clean up the barrels"—in readiness, that is, for a plentiful crop of apples. The French consider April thunder to be indicative of a good yield from vineyards and cornfields.

Getting It Straight.

It was in the Elysian fields.

"I am gratified to see that Shakespeare is more sought after than the military heroes," declared a highbrow shade. "I consider this a tribute to the peaceful arts."

"It isn't that so much," pointed out a lowbrow shade. "Every new arrival wants to ask him if he really wrote those plays."—Kansas City Journal.

Angel Coins.

An "angel" was an ancient gold coin weighing four pennyweights and valued at 6s. 8d. in the reign of Henry VI. and at 10 shillings in the reign of Elizabeth in 1562. It took its name from the effigy of an angel embossed on one side.

Irritable Children Often Need Kickapoo Worm Killer

There is a reason for the disagreeable and fretful nature of many children. Think of the unrest when the child's body is possessed by tiny worms sapping its vitality and clogging its functions. Whatever may be the cause—"that children have worms is a fact." Your child's peevishness and irritability has a cause. Give Kickapoo Worm Killer a chance and if worms are there this humanly harmless remedy will eliminate the annoying parasites. 25c. a box. adv

Best Cough Medicine for Children

"Three years ago when I was living in Pittsburg one of my children had a hard cold and coughed dreadfully. Upon the advice of a druggist I purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and it benefited him at once. I find it the best cough medicine for children because it is pleasant to take. They do not object to taking it, writes Mrs. Lafayette Tuck, Homer City, Pa. This remedy contains no opium or other narcotic, and may be given to a child as confidently as to an adult. Sold by all dealers. adv

Colds do not Leave Willingly

Because a cold is stubborn is no reason why you should be. Instead of "wearing" it out, get sure relief by taking Dr. King's New Discovery. Dangerous bronchial and lung ailments often follow a cold which has been neglected at the beginning. As your body faithfully battles those cold germs, no better aid can be given than the use of this remedy. Its merit has been tested by old and young. Get a bottle today. 50c and $1.00. adv

Cheaper than Home Made

You cannot make a good cough medicine at home for as little as you pay for Foley's Honey and Tar, nor can you be sure of getting the fresh, full strength, clean and pure materials. Did you ever hear of a homemade cough medicine doing the work that Foley's is doing every day all over the country? Sold everywhere in Tecumseh. adv

Despondency Due to Indigestion

It is not at all surprising that persons who have indigestion become discouraged and despondent. Here are a few words of hope and cheer for them by Mrs. Blanche Bowers, Indiana, Pa. "For years my digestion was so poor that I could only eat the lightest foods. I tried everything that I heard of to get relief, but not until about a year ago when I saw Chamberlain's Tablets advertised and got a bottle of them, did I find the right treatment. I soon began to improve, and since taking a few bottles of them my digestion is fine." For sale by all dealers. adv

FEAR TREACHERY BY CONSTANTINE

London Believes Kitchener Faces Grave Balkan Problem.

SUSPECT COUP BY GREEK KING

Kaiser Is Planning to Enter Constantinople in State—Turks Elated Over Successes—Russians Gain in Teheran—Berlin Says 8,500 Serbs Are Prisoners.

LONDON, ENG.—Hints of treachery planned by the Greek king are heard on all sides here and it is generally believed that when Earl Kitchener, minister of war, reaches Athens he will face the gravest problem of his life in his efforts to protect the Anglo-French army that has its headquarters at the Greek port of Saloniki.

The Greek plan, as it is reported here, is simple: The Greek army will be kept mobilized. Aid will be given to neither party, but if the Anglo-French-Serb force is beaten by the Germans or the Bulgars and forced to retreat onto Greek soil it will be disarmed and interned as a violator of Greek neutrality.

King in Full Control.

That Kitchener realizes this situation and that he is on his way to Athens armed with full power to settle the question of Greek neutrality is admitted here. Because of his intimate knowledge of the politics of the near East it is believed he will be able to solve the problem of the status of King Constantine and end the "benevolent neutrality" attitude of Greece, which is regarded here as only a cloak to a menace to the allied forces in the Balkans.

That the Greek constitutional government has broken down is generally admitted. The dissolution of parliament and the control of the army by the pro-German king has destroyed all semblance of democracy and taken from ex-Premier Venizelos the last vestige of power to aid the allies. There is a chance that a revolution may follow the calling of the elections, since Venizelos has practically decided that since the election is illegal his party will not take part in the balloting.

Troops Still Landing.

Troops of the entente allies, arriving in an unceasing stream at Saloniki, tax the resources of the port to railroad to the utmost.

8,500 Serbs Captured.

BERLIN — According to the Frankfurter Zeitung, the French general staff has given up its intention to send troops by way of Santi Quaranta, on the Adriatic Sea, in southern Albania to Monastir, a distance of 120 miles through the mountains. The French troops landed in Santi Quaranta, therefore, already have re-embarked.

Announcement was made by the war office of the capture of 8,500 Serbians, with twelve cannon. Of these 7,000 prisoners and seven cannon were taken by the Bulgarians.

Russians Near Teheran.

PETROGRAD — A Russian army already is within forty miles of Teheran and is encamped at Yangiema. The German legation at Teheran caused to be transmitted a quantity of ammunition and arms to Emir Hismet, one of the chief organizers of Persian opposition to the Russians and the Russian and British legations thereupon sent word of the act of the Persian vizier.

The German, Austrian and Turkish archives have been deposited in the American consulate.

BIG NEGRO GOES ON RAMPAGE

Black Kills One Man and Injures Three Near Powers, Mich.

MENOMINEE, MICH. — One man dead, two near death and another injured is the total of one day's rampage charged to Jerome Nelson, a big negro, held in the Baraga county jail. Sam McGregory was killed while he was trying to hold the negro for the authorities. John Smith, who came to McGregory's aid, is near death. Peter Fish, sixty-five years old, is not expected to live as the result of a beating given him with an iron bar and his son John is suffering from bullet wounds.

ANOTHER FOOTBALL DEATH

Paul Root, Normal School Player, Is Dead Following Injury.

Death was due to a ruptured blood vessel in the head.

Demarest Sent to Asylum.

ROCKFORD, ILL. — Calvin Demarest, the former amateur billiard champion, whose nervous trouble a few months ago brought on his confinement at the Wilgus sanitarium in this city, has been committed to the state hospital for the insane at Elgin. A sanity commission decided him hopelessly insane.

ALL PLANS GOOD; EXECUTION POOR

That Is Winston Churchill's Explanation of Failures.

FISHER AND KITCHENER CAUSE

In Speech Former Naval Department Head Blames War Lord and French for Antwerp Fiasco—Defends Dardanelles—Throws Failure Onto Fisher for Non-Guidance.

LONDON, ENG.—Winston Churchill told the house of commons that he took the full responsibility for the inception of the Dardanelles campaign. He refused, however, to shoulder the blame for the failure of the expedition to save Antwerp. The blame for this failure, he frankly told the parliament, belonged to Premier Asquith and to the French strategists, for with them, not with him, had originated the idea to check the Germans in that fashion.

Dardanelles Legitimate Gamble.

"The Dardanelles enterprise," said the former first lord of the admiralty, "I regarded as a legitimate gamble of war for a prize of an inestimable value and here was a reasonable chance of winning. On that basis, I went before the ministry and accepted full responsibility for initiating that enterprise."

Even though the Antwerp enterprise failed as a military adventure, Mr. Churchill said it had some good results in that it forced the Germans later to give battle on the Yser instead of further in the south of France.

Asquith Praises Him.

As Mr. Churchill took his seat, amid cheers, Premier Asquith stepped forward and referring to him said, "I have always found him a wise counsellor, a brilliant colleague and a faithful friend. He takes with him in leaving the ministry universal good will."

Though frankly telling the house of commons in so many words "I am responsible for the Dardanelles campaign" his declaration was marked by one passage tending to reduce his own responsibility at the expense of Admiral Sir John Fisher, who was first sea lord when Churchill was first lord of the admiralty.

Blames Admiral Fisher.

He asserted that Sir John, while opposed to a reduction of Great Britain's naval strength in home waters, "never criticised the method of attack on the Dardanelles." He added further that he did not receive clear guidance from Admiral Fisher before the expedition was decided on or the subsequent firm support to which he was entitled. In reply to his critics who had charged that Britain went into the Dardanelles action "half cocked," Churchill emphasized that in the beginning the enterprise was "profoundly, maturely and elaborately considered."

If any operations in the history of the world were worth carrying through with sustained fury and utter disregard for life, Mr. Churchill contended, the operations at the Dardanelles were worth it.

Predicts German Defeat.

Incidentally Mr. Churchill sounded an optimistic note as to the eventual outcome of the war. Also, he made another phophecy.

"We are passing through a bad time, which probably will be worse before it will be better," said he, "but it will be better. If we endure, the campaign of 1916 should be decided against Germany by her shortage of men."

FORMER RICH MAN SUICIDES

Walter Clark, after Shooting Brother, Lost Money and Health.

BATTLE CREEK, MICH. — Walter Clark, a few years ago one of the wealthiest men in Michigan, ended his life by shooting himself in the head, death being instantaneous.

Clark was well known in sporting circles. A few years ago Clark, while hunting in Wisconsin, shot and killed his brother Chester, which created much discussion at the time. The tragedy was finally accepted as accidental, but the effects was keenly felt by Clark and he soon lost his money and his health.

BREWERY IN FLINT TO BECOME CHURCH

Beating Swords Into Plowshares Has Nothing on This.

FLINT, MICH. — Flint's only brewery, which quit business when Genesee county went dry, is about to be turned into a church.

The sale of the building, occupied by the Flint Brewing company for twenty years, to the Elm Park Methodist Episcopal church for $6,400 has been announced. The building is to undergo alterations and in a few weeks it will become the Lakeside Methodist Episcopal church—a mission of the Elm Park church. The sign of the brewing company, which has been a thorn in the side of the church people of Flint for years, will be removed within a few days.

"The quicker the better," said Rev. P. B. Hoyt, pastor of the Elm Park church. "It is but fitting," he added, "that a building whose product has probably done as much to corrupt the morals of the city as any institution outside the actual saloon, should now take the role of a reformer."

RUN DOWN PRIVATE REBATES

Grand Rapids Treasurer Gave Refunds on Personal Accounts.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. — That City Treasurer James S. Hawkins made many refunds through his private checking account at the Grand Rapids Savings bank instead of recording the rebates in the official council proceedings and making out a voucher through the city treasurer's official depository as the city charter provides, was discovered in an examination of his private account.

The account shows he paid back several thousand dollars of refund city taxes through his personal account without authority from the council, between October, 1913, and September, 1915. More than 100 checks were drawn to various individuals, firms and corporations, in amounts ranging from $1 to $450. The name of Mrs. Dell Wood and Hawkin's mysterious relative, L. Lee Clark, appeared frequently.

THEY DID CHOOSE GOOD ONES

Robinson Crusoe and Ivanhoe Lead Popular Book Contest.

MENOMINEE, MICH. — The holy bible may be the most popular book among the boy and girl readers of the Chicago libraries, if the voting contests they held there are to be accepted as a criterion, but not so in Menominee.

A contest like that in Chicago was held here recently in which 1,060 votes were cast. Out of this number eight boys and eight girls favored the bible. Defoe's "Robinson Crusoe" easily took the honors in the boy's contest and got fifth place in the girls' contest. "Little Men," by Alcott, was second. Ivanhoe, not only won the girls' contest, but got the largest total votes. "Little Women" and "Little Men," by Louisa M. Alcott, followed.

MAN TELEPHONES HE IS DEAD

Is Found "Laid Out" in Night Clothes; Hustled to "Bug" House.

BATTLE CREEK, MICH. — When a local undertaker received a call from an excited man near Waubascon lake, he asked "Who's dead?" "I am," came the reply.

Under Sheriff Frank Eddy and Deputy Robert Towsley found Ernest Van Nocker "laid out" in his night clothes at the home of a neighbor. Van Nocker imagined he was being stoned to death. Before the arrival of the officers he had dived head first into a shock of corn.

He was hurried to the Kalamazoo asylum.

Lads Accused of Burglary.

FLINT, MICH. — Two fifteen year-old Lapeer boys are in custody here accused of burglarizing the store of V. L. Clark.

Noted Physician Is Dead.

LANSING, MICH. — Dr. George E. Ranney, seventy-six years old, lifelong resident of Michigan and of this city since 1866, died here.

Plymouth Custer Veteran Dies.

PLYMOUTH, MICH. — Ephraim Partridge, seventy-three years old, veteran of Custer's brigade of civil war fame, is dead here.

BESSEMER, MICH. — The Wakefield mine, formerly known as the Hanausek, will soon be reopened.

LAKE FREIGHTER IS DESTROYED BY FIRE

Flames Get Beyond Crew's Control, Three Nearly Perish.

MENOMINEE, MICH. — Three men battled to save the freighter Starlight from fire which was raging in the hold, then battled with high seas when flames got beyond control and forced them to board a small lifeboat only to be thrown into the chilly waters of Green bay just off Chambers island, fourteen miles from this port.

Captain Samuel Christensen saw flames in the canvas covering the cargo of hay, grain, potatoes and apples being taken from Sister Bay to C. E. Larsen, a Marinette grocer and half owner with the captain in the boat.

With the crew, Christensen fought the flames, but in fifteen minutes he was forced to lower the lifeboat. High waves prevented them from going to Marinette, seven miles away. The sea swept the boat toward Chambers island and after a three hour fight, when a few hundred yards from shore, the lifeboat capsized and sunk. The men swam ashore.

In a chilly breeze and snow storm the men walked four miles across the island to the lighthouse, where they arrived almost exhausted.

HOLD AUTOISTS FOR DEATH

Pair Were in Car from Which Officer on Duty Fell.

FLINT, MICH. — Hiram Stratton and Elmer Wilcox were bound over to the circuit court on a charge of manslaughter. It is alleged the men caused the death of Emery T. Middleton, former state representative from Genesee county and prominent local option worker, on the night of August 26.
